For biliousness, constipation, and appendicitis. For indigestion, sick and nervous headache. For sleeplessness, nervousness, and heart failure. For fever, chills, debility and kidney diseases, take Lemon Elixir. Dr. Mozley's Lemon Elixir is prepared from the fresh juice of lemons, combined with other vegetable liver tonics, and will not fail you in any of the above-named diseases. 50 cents and $1.00 bottles at druggists. Prepared only by Dr. H. Mozley, Atlanta, Ga.

LEMON ELIXIR.

I fully endorse it for nervous prostration, headache, indigestion and constipation, having used it with most satisfactory results, after all other remedies had failed.

J. W. ROLLO.

West End, Atlanta, Ga.

Sec'y Miss. Conf. Brotherhood.

Brookhaven, Miss., March 14, 1902.

General News.

Another conference was held on March 17 between the administration forces and the sugar representatives on the Cuban reciprocity proposition, but no agreement was reached. The beet sugar people express themselves as confident of being able to defeat the proposed reciprocity agreement either in caucus or on the floor of the House, and they will not accede to any plan looking to a reduction of the tariff.

The Northwestern States have been buried under several feet of snow. All traffic is blocked in the Dakotas, Montana and Minnesota. Trains on some of the railroads have been delayed nearly a week. Loss of life will not reach above eight or ten. The property damage, however, will run up into large figures.

Twelve lives were lost by the capsizing of a boat off the south end of Cape Cod on March 17. Seven of those who perished were members of a life-saving crew, while the other five were members of the crew of the stranded barge "Wadena."

Discouragement regarding the Boer war has been accentuated by the publication of the report that the Cape Colony rebellion is again flourishing, and that Commandant Maritz has captured two large convoys.

NO, YOU CAN NOT SELL "any old thing" merely by advertising. Many liniments are advertised. Only one, Perry Davis' Painkiller, has stood the test of sixty years. To-day it is more popular than ever. 25 and 50c.

ADVOCATE OFFER.

Magic White Soap, advertised in our columns, is manufactured in New Orleans by a responsible company, who can be relied on to do what is promised. The soap is what is claimed for it. There is none better on the market. A fair trial has been given it at the home of the editor, and the good wife, who knows what soap is, says "it is about the best she ever used." Our lady readers would do well to give this soap a trial. Send for a box of twenty bars—one dollar; charges paid by the manufacturer.

We make the following offer: We will furnish one box of this soap, and the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for one year, for $2.50, to new subscribers. We make the same offer to all who will pay up back dues, and send $2.50 additional. Cash must accompany the order. Address

JNO. W. BOSWELL,
512 Camp St., New Orleans.

For Sale.

My choicely located and handsome cottage on Seashore Camp Ground, Miss. All the modern conveniences of a Summer home—electric light, bath-room, sanitary closet and artesian water connections. All in perfect order. Price, $1,200.

DYSPEPSIA NERVOUSNESS Cured.

Nervousness and loss of sleep is naturally caused by indigestion or dyspepsia. If you suffer from these troubles, there is nothing that will relieve and cure as quickly and permanently as that standard preparation, Tyner's Dyspepsia Remedy. For all stomach troubles it is the queen of all remedies. It builds up the appetite, insures easy, splendid digestion, and never fails to benefit.

HOW SHE WAS CURED

Mrs. T. F. Meadow, of Atlanta, says: "For many years I suffered with dyspepsia and extreme nervousness. Tyner's Dyspepsia Remedy cured me perfectly, and I now enjoy excellent health in every way. I can not recommend them too highly."

Price 50 cents per large bottle. For sale by druggists. Six bottles for $2.50 or sent by express on receipt of price by TYNER'S DYSPEPSIA REMEDY Co., 107½ S. Forsyth St., Atlanta, Ga.

SAMPLE BOTTLE FREE.

ANOTHER NOTICE.

Requests for special copies of the ADVOCATE come to us so often that they are burdensome, and we again remind our friends that in making such requests they must send FOUR CENTS for each copy. We can not afford to "send bill," as we are sometimes asked to do. Please, friends, bear these things in mind.

WM. H. LAPRADE, P. E.

For the Annual Reunion United Confederate Veterans, to be held at Dallas, Texas, April 22 to 25, inclusive, 1902, the Texas and Pacific Railway Company will sell round-trip tickets from stations on its line in Louisiana at exceedingly low rates—in fact, at lower rates than have been announced to Dallas for a long time.

Tickets will be on sale from points in Louisiana, April 19, 20, 21, 1902, limited for return to leave Dallas, April 30, 1902, with privilege of extension to May 15, provided tickets are deposited with Joint Agent at Dallas on or before April 30, and a fee of fifty cents is paid at time of deposit. Tickets are limited for continuous passage in each direction, but for the benefit of those desiring to visit other points in Texas, a special rate of one and one-third fares for the round trip will be authorized from Dallas, tickets to be sold April 25 and 26, with final limit for return May 14. These side-trip tickets will permit stop-overs at any point both going from and returning to Dallas.

Any one of our agents will be glad to arrange for sleeping-car accommodations and explain to you any points connected with the trip, or we will be glad to have you write direct to us for further information.

E. P. TURNER,

She Can't Enjoy The Baby

Unless she is a healthy mother. No woman can. If the baby has drained her vitality; if its care is a tax; if, in short, the baby is a burden instead of a blessing, how can she enjoy it? She loves it, but she cannot feed it. She yearns for it, but has not the strength to fondle it.

There is nothing more beautiful in the world than a healthy mother and her healthy child. The madonna is the highest reach of human art. In the serene strength which art gives to the typical mother and child there is distinct denial of suffering and weakness as a necessity of motherhood. But how few women are there to whom motherhood is naturally an abiding joy. In how many cases a woman dates her loss of health from the birth of her child! To all such suffering women Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription comes as a veritable god-send. It prepares the mother for her hour of trial, tranquilizes her nerves, encourages her appetite, and brings her restful sleep. It makes the baby's advent practically painless, and gives the mother abundant strength to nurse and nourish her child.

Every claim made for "Favorite Prescription" is supported by the testimonials of wives and mothers, thousands in number, and covering in their several experiences the whole range of womanly suffering. In a great number of cases after the utter failure of all doctors and medicines, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, tried as a last resort, has effected a perfect and permanent cure.

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter free. All womanly confidences held under the seal of strict professional privacy. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

There is no alcohol in "Favorite Prescription" and it is entirely free from opium, cocaine, and all other narcotics.

Between Life and Death.

"I think Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Golden Medical Discovery' the best medicines in the world," writes Mrs. Amelia Dougherty, of Kerrigan, Wayne Co., Mo "My baby was born last summer. After baby came I became ill, had the best physician that could be got, and he diagnosed my case as uterine trouble tending to dropsy. Medicine seemed to do me no good, I lingered between life and death for quite a while, every day growing weaker, until I could not walk across the room. My friends were looking for my death every minute. A friend wrote and told me about Dr. R. V. Pierce, and I at once wrote to him for medical advice. He replied immediately, giving me full instructions as to what to do I at once followed his advice, and when I had taken his medicine about a week I felt a good deal stronger. When I had taken it about one month I felt as strong as I do to-day. I took four bottles of each kind and two vials of 'Pleasant Pellets.' Many thanks for the medicine. It has cured me permanently."

Gained 40 Pounds.

"I am very glad to let other poor sufferers know what Dr. Pierce's medicines have done for me," writes Mrs. Edwin H. Gardner, of Beechwood, Norfolk Co., Mass., Box 70. "You know I wrote to you last summer I read what your medicine had done for other people, so thought I would try it, and I found that it was a blessing to me and my family. I began in June and took six bottles of your medicine, and three vials of 'Pellets.' I took your medicine a year when I had a ten pound girl. I had the easiest time I ever had with any of my three children. I have been very well since I took your medicine. I took three bottles of 'Favorite Prescription,' three of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and three vials of 'Pellets.' I had no appetite and could not eat much without it distressing me before I took your 'Favorite Prescription' and I only weighed 135 pounds. Now I weigh 175 pounds."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets commend themselves as a family laxative. They are easy to take, effective in results, and their use does not beget the pill habit.

There is another trouble in army circles. It is again with General Miles. It appears that the General was called before the committee of the Senate having in hand the Army Reorganization Bill, and gave his views at length as to the effect of the bill should it become a law. He stated very plainly his objections to the bill, pointing out what, in his judgment, would be its effect. His remarks have been construed by the President, and perhaps others, as an uncalled-for criticism of his superior officers, and report says that but for the advice of the Cabinet, Mr. Roosevelt would have retired the General without further consultation. The public, however, will bear in mind that General Miles was speaking to a committee, and that what he said was "privileged," and will side with those congressmen who have stated that he can not be punished for what he said. If the General has been reported correctly, it may be said that though he spoke his mind, he did it in the most respectful terms. As we see it, there was no criticism of the Administration; only a criticism of proposed legislation.

President Roosevelt outdoes any man who has ever occupied the White House. Tradition, precedents, etc., are nothing to him. In some respects this is not to his discredit, but we rather think he carries his independence a little too far. Not content with riding or walking about Washington for exercise, as well as to show the fearlessness of his spirit, he has employed a professional wrestler to come to the White House, and several times a week he tries his muscle and skill in wrestling contests. The idea of the President of these United States taking turns with a professional ring-man is horrifying. Tumbling over and over in saw-dust, or on a carpeted floor, is not an edifying spectacle for the President of the United States to put before American youth.

The city of New Orleans has been excited ten days, or more, on account of unsettled affairs among the street-car employees. There has been constant dread of a strike, which, should it take place, would derange the affairs of the whole city. The car-men have formulated their demands and presented them to the railroad authorities. They make three demands, viz.: Shorter hours, increase of wages, and complete and unequivocal recognition of the Employees' Union. A committee of the Union was appointed to treat with the authorities, but without success, as the presidents and directors of the railroads declined to have anything to do with the Union. Then a committee of employees, in their capacity as employees, and not as representatives of the Union, was appointed, and the issue is now pending. The authorities are willing to hear and discuss any grievances that the car-men may present, but absolutely refuse to discuss the Union, on the ground that the Union has nothing to say as to the control of their properties. The citizens of New Orleans await with much solicitude the settlement of the troubles. A general strike would be calamitous.

WOMAN'S HOME MISSION SOCIETY. LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

The Louisiana Conference W. H. M. S. held its tenth annual session with the Mer Rouge Auxiliary in the Methodist Church, Mer Rouge, La., March 6-9, 1902. The number of delegates in attendance was not large, but what was lacking in numbers was made up by the earnest devotion, consecration and zeal of those present.

From start to finish the meeting was a success. The citizens of Mer Rouge gave the delegates and visitors a hearty welcome, and gave thought, time and attention to making their stay pleasant and profitable. That they succeeded is the consensus of delegates and visitors.

The meeting was instructive and uplifting, and our workers here received from it encouragement to more diligent service. These godly women, while wide-awake to the business in hand, were not unmindful of the spiritual, and their meetings were enlivened, made helpful and strengthening by being interspersed with testimony, prayer and consecration services.

The Methodist Church in Mer Rouge has received lasting benefit from having had in our midst this band of consecrated women in their organized capacity; and as we were earnest and hearty in our welcome, so we are sincere in our prayers that the blessings of God may accompany them wherever they go.

The following named were elected officers for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. F. A. Lyons, New Orleans; first vice-president, Mrs. W. W. Carre, New Orleans; second vice-president, Mrs. F. E. Russ, New Orleans; third vice-president, Mrs. C. C. Henderson, Ruston; corresponding secretary, Mrs. E. R. Kennedy, Lafayette; recording secretary, Mrs. F. M. Williams, Mer Rouge; treasurer, Mrs. S. A. Montgomery, New Orleans; solicitor for Our Homes, Miss Mary Werlein, New Orleans.

District secretaries: New Orleans district, Mrs. F. E. Russ; Crowley district, Mrs. Crow Girard; Alexandria district, Mrs. L. B. Baynard; Baton Rouge district, Miss Carrie V. Schwing; Monroe district, Mrs. M. E. Carr; Arcadia district, Mrs. H. E. Pitts; Shreveport district, Mrs. T. S. Randle.

It would not be amiss, in this connection, to make mention of the noble work done by the Mer Rouge Church and local auxiliary in securing by purchase a parsonage for this charge. Delightful for situation, comfortably furnished, with ample grounds, having three lots, the securing of this property is an achievement worthy the most hearty commendation.

THE DEACONESS UNDER FIRE.

BY DR. F. N. PARKER.

It was not to be expected that the deaconess movement would escape criticism, or fail to excite grave apprehensions as to its character and tendencies. This has always been the case when any innovation has been introduced in the church. When John Wesley, with doubts enough of his own, finally consented to lay preaching, he was roundly censured. Ecclesiastical organizations may always be depended upon for their conservative instincts. That the deaconess should pass unchallenged was not expected by the advocates of the movement. Neither do we intend to defend some of the opinions and plans proposed by extremists who are friendly to this work. But the objections so far expressed will scarcely survive criticism.

I wish to call attention at this time to the insufficiency of the reasons urged against the movement. The first is, that it is a departure from woman's "heaven-ordained mission." In other words, it is out of woman's "sphere." It has always been the province of the men to determine what this "sphere" really is. If her "heaven-ordained mission" is strictly a domestic realm, then it must inevitably follow that a large number of our sisters will have no sphere at all. The solution of this difficulty is a matter of relativity in population and personal affinity. If the men and women who hold to the rigid "queen-of-the-home" theory of woman's relation to this world, and her business here, can succeed in thoroughly establishing all the potential queens in suitable limits, and impress them with the fact that both destiny and duty have appointed them to the limits of their homes as the scene of their toils, then we shall have no material for deaconesses, missionaries, teachers, or nurses. But of this we have no hope whatsoever.

The fact of the matter is, that the sphere of both men and women has greatly widened in the past fifty years. If this is to be the score upon which the deaconess is counted out, then let us be consistent. If it be wrong for a woman to work in other than domestic occupations, then there is but one thing to do, and that is, recall every woman missionary and teacher whom we have employed in the foreign field. There is absolutely no difference between a woman working out of her home for souls in America than in China. The one is as much out of woman's domestic sphere as the other. Is it possible that any intelligent man or woman can affirm that the consecrated women we have sent to China and Japan have outraged the purposes of a beneficent Providence and abandoned her "God-ordained mission"? Yet these foreign missionaries do no more and no less than we propose for the deaconess, the only difference being that we propose to organize them for greater effectiveness. But in any case the objection referred to is as great in the one case as in the other.

It has also been asserted that the whole tendency of the movement was in the direction of women preaching; that it will issue in their seeking orders and regular ministerial recognition. As a matter of fact, the movement has existed in Germany for many years without any such tendency manifesting itself. It has also been carried on in England without the slightest manifestation of this tendency. So far as our own country is concerned, it has been my observation that the women who are really anxious for ecclesiastical recognition are not likely to do the work of a deaconess. The women who are pressing forward in that direction do not usually start on our lines. They are more radical. They have an inherent and unquenchable desire to be as a voice crying in the wilderness. Far otherwise these sisters of the people whom we wish to send in the highways and slums of our cities to rescue the perishing by personal toil and daily sacrifice.

Again, this movement has been characterized as "aping Romanism." This is a phrase which is supposed to include a multitude of sins. It savors of ridicule, and casts a shadow of suspicion upon the spiritual character of the movement. But has it any justification? Of course, the implication is, that the deaconess movement is to a certain extent an imitation of the Roman Catholic sisterhoods and celibate orders. But there is a radical difference between the two—a difference as great, or greater, than that which exists between the Roman priesthood and the ministry of the evangelical churches. In the first place, all the orders of the Church of Rome rest upon the theory that the celibate life is inherently a life of greater sanctity than the married life. This is at the very basis of the whole system—a theory, of course, utterly repugnant to the Word of God and the belief of the Protestant Churches. The deaconess movement, on the other hand, rests upon no such foundation. There is no thought of greater personal sanctity about it. It is a matter solely the result of seeking greater efficiency in the spread of the gospel.

Again, the Roman system proceeds always and everywhere upon the theory of justification by works. The deaconess has no such perverted theological bias. She is not looking for richer rewards or better relations with God by either celibacy or the works of mercy done in his service.

Again, the Roman system exists in connection with voluntary vows assumed for life. This is, in fact, absolutely essential to their system. Without it their orders could not exist as they now do. Our deaconess will take no life vows. She may retire at any time she wishes. Here you have differences as great as those which exist between the Roman Church and our own. The difference is in purpose, in foundation, in intention, and in spirit. There is simply this point of contact: that they are a band of organized women whose occupation is in works of religion and benevolence. Is it to be supposed that any of these women of the missionary societies have ever been induced to advocate this work because celibate orders of women exist in the Roman Catholic Church? And, really, if this implication were true, it ought to furnish a sense of security on one point—the Roman Catholic sisters do not preach! The allusion to uniform has been made with more or less pungency in regard to the deaconess. But it is really superficial. A uniform does not make a Roman Catholic, albeit I have one or two clerical friends in the Methodist ministry who bedeck themselves with high-buttoning coats and collars which are made fast at the back of the neck, who have been greeted on the streets of this city as "Father." Our friends of the trained nurse's profession find it expedient to wear a uniform for eminently satisfactory reasons, which they sometimes relinquish to become "queens" of the home. To really ape Romanism, you have to go pretty deep into the principle of things. Their institutional differences from us are based in theological differences, where the root of the whole matter lies.

I think that the deaconess that some of my friends are antagonizing is really a "woman of straw." At first sight, a very real and alarming woman to some men. But I think it possible to avoid absurdities and extremes in this work. I believe it perfectly practicable for our Southern Church to organize wisely the latent force of consecrated women now in our midst into a band of fellow-helpers in the gospel, to meet the growing needs of the social, moral and spiritual condition of this perplexing new century.

WHOSOEVER WILL MISSION.

BY MRS. JULIA TRUITT BISHOP.

It has been my pleasure to watch the work and the progress of the Whosoever Will Rescue Mission during the past five years, and I write of it now largely from personal knowledge. It was founded March 2, 1896, and when I visited it first the work was young. True, it had already brought about surprising results, but few believed that it would last. Many were of the opinion that it had originated in an impulse, and that J. H. Haag, the young founder of the mission, would soon tire of it and let it die. The mission of today is an answer to those who doubted. Since it was opened in 1896 the doors have never been closed, day or night; not an evening has passed without the regular service, and no poor wanderer has ever been turned away uncomforted.

It is almost impossible to give statistics in connection with a work like this; yet such figures as can be gathered are not without interest. At the close of the fifth year, for instance, the record of the Whosoever Will Mission read something like this: Number of meetings held, 8,170; total attendance, 366,585; professed a change of life, 10,735; fed at Saturday night love-feasts, 44,100; other meals, 81,375; number of persons lodged, 34,134; number of persons sheltered, 70,120; men's garments distributed, 4,020; men's shoes distributed (pairs), 690; women's garments distributed, 31,000; women's shoes distributed (pairs), 299; sent to Charity Hospital, 362; families supplied with food and clothing, 920; employment secured for 2,170; assisted to leave the city, 161; papers circulated, 80,000; other reading matter, tracts, etc., 200,000; visits to Charity Hospital and prison, 800.

And yet these figures tell only the merest fraction of the story. A great part of it the mission workers themselves will never know. Many of those who drift into the ever-open door of the mission are transients, who attend a service or two, and are gone from the city, and, perhaps, are never heard from again. Under these circumstances no one can tell if any change has been made in their lives, even when they have stood up and made apparently earnest professions of conversion. But the mission is full of tender stories, such as move the heart and bring swift tears to the eyes of the hearer. These are stories of lives in which the workers have seen the change, and which make the work so well worth while. Here is a man who staggered into the mission one night, so intoxicated that he slept through the service and through the night—a man who had not seen or heard from home or family in thirty-eight years; and now he is decent, respected, established in business, and taking care of his aged mother and her sister. Here is another, a sailor, who was so violent that he was thrown out of a near-by saloon; but the mission took him in and cared for him. As a result, he is now an evangelist among the sailors. In one State is a teacher, holding a place of responsibility, honored and admired, and it was the mission that caught him up out of the depths and turned his face the other way. In another State is a professional man who had fallen so low that he felt himself beyond hope, but the mission found him, and to-day he is doing his work in the world—a man of science, a gentleman and a Christian. They are too many to be told. If one would but hint at the homes that have been re-established, the shaking hands that have been steadied and set at honest work, the bleared eyes that have brightened and are looking the world in the face, the homeless and despairing that have been fed and sheltered and cheered, the ragged and shivering that have been clothed, space would be lacking, and yet it could not all be told.

It has been said that not a service has been missed in all these years. At one time it became necessary to take down and rebuild the back wall of the four-story brick building which the mission occupies, and the workmen insisted that there could be no service for three or four days. But Mr. Haag said, "There must be service, even if we do without the new wall." So the services went on, and during those three or four days several men were converted who would not have been able to wait over, and whose last chance it was to hear and turn.

Thirty or forty men are lodged every night on the cots, and often the floor is covered with wanderers who are out of money and have no other place to go. Those who are hungry are fed, with no question as to their worthiness. They may be unworthy, but they may be reached by kindness, too; and if all men were worthy, there would be no need of the mission.

One fact has impressed itself on all who have attended the mission services, and that is, that it reaches a class of men the churches do not and can not reach. Most of them are lost and ruined and penniless when they drift into the mission. Many of them are deeply intoxicated, with the mud of the gutters on their clothing; some of them are only poor and ragged; but there is a place for all of them in the mission, and a welcome, and food and clothing, if they are needed, and that kindliest of messages from the throne of Heaven, "Whosoever will may come."

Surely it is a work that deserves the heartfelt co-operation of every Christian in the land, and of every good citizen even. It is worth a great deal to any community that there should be a work which reaches the worst and most dangerous and most expensive class of its people, and helps them to become useful and law-abiding. And how earnestly Christians should rally around such a Christ-like work!

One of the great needs of the mission is clothing, especially men's clothing, which is always in demand. It is often necessary to get a man decent and self-respecting, physically, before you can talk to him about his soul, and those who contribute clothing to such a work are sometimes helping men to a better life.

I can not close this article without some tribute to J. H. Haag, who has labored without ceasing in the cause of the mission which he founded. His patience under difficulties, his unflagging zeal, his earnestness and devotion and steady persistence have made the mission what it is today—a power for good in the land and an earnest of great reward in the world beyond.

Dr. Parkhurst says: "Men grow surprisingly lovable as soon as we begin to love them, startlingly interesting as soon as we begin to be interested in them. And we shall find in people just as much heart as we have the heart to find in them. As soon as we begin in a Christ-like way to love people, we shall discover that they love to be loved. They are in our power, if our power is heart-power."

Christian Advocate.

STATE PROHIBITION.

BY DR. W. T. DOLLING.

There are two ways of dealing with an evil, the policy and on principle; but there is only one right way, and that is to deal with it purely in the spirit of consistent principle.

If the liquor business is not an evil, then we have no right to interfere with it in any way: and if it is an evil, we have no right to make any compromise with it, but must, to be consistent, fight it in hamlet, town, city and State, for there is no middle ground for us to occupy in relation to what we recognize as an evil, and a constant menace to the individual, the home, society and government. What is true of the whole is necessarily true of every integral part of that whole, and hence, if prohibition is bad for the State as a whole, it is bad for any part of the State, and hence local prohibition must stand or fall upon the rightfulness of State prohibition.

If the right of local self-government means that the locality in the measure of a town or county alone must decide all questions relating to public evils, then the State authority ceases, and all legislation of the State to govern conditions in towns and counties becomes a direct violation of the principle of local self-government. Suppose a town is absolutely lawless, and claims the right to be so, denying State prohibition of crime, who would endorse such claim? Yet the State has the same right to prohibit liquor-selling throughout her borders that she has to prohibit robbery, and I will go further and affirm that the State has not only the right, but is under the same obligation to prohibit one evil as another, in order to maintain the best government and preserve highest civic values.

The Louisiana Lottery, which once so blighted the moral life of this State, was not killed by local option, but by State prohibition, and a lottery ticket can not now be legally sold in any county or town in the State, and the State has the same right and is under the same obligation to prohibit any other thing which, as a public evil, curses the public life.

Indeed, it is idle for any one to attempt in reason to maintain the position that local legislation is better, in order to destroy any evil, than is a State prohibitory law, and only a desire to advance private political interest at the expense of public good can induce an intelligent man to assume such a position as is assumed by some public men in opposition to State prohibition, while, as professed friends of prohibition, they cry out for home rule in the shape of local option.

Prohibition by local option is good, but prohibition by State action is better from both legal and moral points of view, for every argument which can be used against prohibition by the State may be urged with equal force against local prohibition, and few, if any, will deny that a law which has the enforcing power of the State behind it is better enforced than mere local ordinances, because it has a greater influence of public opinion in its favor, which is a great quantity in inducing even unwilling officials to enforce the law.

If any brother will show me why it is right to have a saloon anywhere, I will then show him why it is right to have saloons everywhere, and if it is not right to have liquor sold everywhere, then it is not right to have the saloon anywhere.

I am sorry that some warm personal friends, whom I honor much, in Mississippi, so far forgot themselves as to give aid and comfort to the liquor champions, who defeated State prohibition in the Legislature at Jackson, Miss.

TO MY FRIEND, MRS. LINA A. MANLY.

On the last day of the old year, 1901, we laid to rest in the beautiful cemetery in Opelousas the form of our beloved brother, Rev. M. C. Manly. The earth was bathed in the brightest sunshine, typical of the glorious sunshine of the Father's love into which he had entered. There was a holy hush brooding over the quiet city of the dead as the man of God stood by the open grave to commit to its silent resting place the still form of one who for years had been to us as a father beloved. How beautiful sounded the words of his favorite hymn, as the singers softly sang:

"I would not live always;

There was no gloom there for him, because Jesus had triumphed over death, hell, and the grave, and its silent shadows were but the gateway into eternal life; the glorious blood-bought privilege of every soul, and our brother had appropriated his right, and entered his heavenly inheritance with the saints in light.

Our hearts are sad without him, because we miss his benedictions, his godly counsels and his prayers; but we rejoice, too, because he is done with this world of trouble, sorrow, and suffering. For seventy-two years he had trodden this earthly pathway, and though so long deprived of his natural sight, yet faith's vision was ever keen, and he bore unwavering testimony to God's power to save and keep in the midst of all this world's conflicts and trials.

He loved to talk and to preach holiness, and his daily walk and conversation bore the beautiful fruits of entire sanctification. And many were the souls he helped into the clearer light of God's truth. Many of these saved ones he has already met in the glory world, while still others linger on the shores of time, till the Master bids them, too, to enter into rest.

"O what a shout, when we all get there, Safe in the glory land."

After Bro. Manly was superannuated he had a monthly appointment to preach in our home, and, oh! what times of refreshing we would have, as

"Heaven came down our souls to greet,
And glory crowned the mercy-seat."

As age and infirmities increased, he could no longer continue his periodical visits, and how we did miss him. How our hearts would long to hear again his voice in prayer and song. But God saw that his suffering child had endured long enough, and so he sent the family carriage to convey him home, where now his eyes "behold the King in his beauty," and he revels amid the supernal glories of our Father's house. There he will be waiting and watching at the beautiful gates for those he has left behind.

To the dear sorrowing wife we extend our deepest sympathy. To her the loss is keenest, because she is bereft of this godly companion, who has been her only earthly stay and comfort for so many years. God has called you to finish the journey alone, dear sister, but "He will give thee naught to do,

But will grant the grace and courage,
And the strength to do it, too."

THE TRANSFORMATION OF METHODISM.

BY REV. J. F. SCHLOCK.

The changes are so many and so surprising that few are prepared to appreciate them. These are not only discovered in the general aspects of the whole system, but take cognizance of the minor details which go to make up the fullest measurement of what we call Methodism. Some of these we wish to review, making such comments on them as seem pertinent to their importance. We have them up under various heads.

I.—IN NAME.

Of the Membership. The historian says: "The men were dressed in hunting-shirts, and either bare-footed or with Indian moccasins on; the women in the plainest made stuff." Many of them would be insulted should they be asked to wear such raiment in the early part of the twentieth century. All the poor class can dress neatly; multitudes can indulge in elegance; the very wealthy are extravagant in the adornment of their persons. What a contrast between the former and latter times! No class of people excel Methodists in dress, jewelry, and the fashionable cut of the raiment which they wear; and it is a sad thought that those who can dress well, by their ridicule drive many from the house of God. The time has come when those who can not afford to dress in taste and elegance will not attend the services of the sanctuary, particularly in towns and cities. How times are changed, and we changed with them!

Of the Preachers. "His clothing was of the plainest material, often patched, often ragged. They wore straight-breasted coats, broad-brimmed hats; they looked as no other men." One preacher's dress is thus described: "His coat was of plain country jeans cut in the old Methodist style, and fitted him badly. A copperas linsey vest, coarse pantaloons too short for him, blue-yarn socks, and heavy brogan shoes, completed the dress." What preacher dresses in such a style now? They are not to be found in the most backwoods part of our country. Everywhere they dress well, some in finer and some in coarser material. They were in the fashion then, and no one thought of criticising their attire, or of making ill-natured remarks concerning it. Now a preacher who should enter the pulpit dressed as they were then would be the occasion of many a shrug of the shoulder, of many a hearty laugh, of many good-humored jokes. In our times broadcloth and other qualities of goods are cheap, and their support sufficiently remunerative to enable them to buy a nice suit, and of good quality. Gold chains and gold watches are worn by many of our brethren, and without any scruples of conscience. The general rules throw no restraint around them; they do not feel that this one is obligatory upon them. Could the old preachers, who established Methodism in all these lands, rise up from the dead, how they would groan at the worldliness, and denounce, in unstinted measure, the innovations upon the practice of our forefathers.

II.—THE SUPPORT OF THE MINISTRY.

The historian writes these lines concerning one brother, which he gives as an example of many others: "At his first quarterly meeting he received four dollars. He started home, and after spending a few days, left with his family $3.75 to support them for three months more, and started for his work with twenty-five cents in his pocket. He spent this in ferriage, and as he had no money to pay for lodging, he camped out with a traveler, but without either supper or breakfast. The next day he reached his Sabbath appointment, and preached, and at a hospitable house partook, after sermon, of the first food he had eaten for tweuty-five hours." We do uot wonder at preachers locating in those days. More of them would do the same thing now than in those days if they were called upon to labor for a whole year for the sum of sixteen dollars. The circuit is said to have been one of the best in the Conference at that time. Whilst we support our pastors better now, yet the same spirit of parsimony still prevails in the church. There is a decided improvement over those days, and one which indicates a higher appreciation of the gospel and of the messenger who bears it. But why all this complaiuing from the lack of support? Ours is much more liberal, and really our pastors, though it is not what it ought to be, are not forced to locate. If we continue to increase the assessments and to collect them, as our people have done for the last fifty years, the time is not far distant when ample support will be given the ministry. We note one advance in the law of the church which, at first, fixed the assessment for the preacher at $64; then it was raised to $80; then to $100. A similar amount was estimated for the wife, and $16 for each child over six years of age and under sixteen. Finally these were all merged into a support, and the amount was made to embrace everything. In the early days of our history in this country, when a preacher received more than his assessment, he was compelled to report the same to the Annual Conference, and it was taken and given to his needy brethren. But now the pastor gets all that is paid, even though it be four times the amount assessed. Our progress in the support of the gospel is encouraging.

III.—IN LIBERAL OPINIONS.

A preacher went to the house of Brother Williams, in Hancock county, Ga. "Brother Williams was well-to-do, and had his home somewhat elegantly furnished for those times. This brother noticed that Brother Williams' children called him 'Pa' instead of 'Daddy' or 'Pappy;' that the plates were upside down on the table, and that Brother Williams wore suspenders. He was distressed at these signs of worldliness, and went into the woods to pray over it. Here he fell asleep. The sun was setting, and Brother Williams had gone to the same retreat for his evening's devotion, and his cup overflowed, and he began to shout. This awoke the preacher, and, looking up, he saw his happy brother. Rushing to him, he cried, 'Pa or no Pa, plates or no plates, gallnses to your elbows or not, you've got religion, brother.'" Now preachers would complain if the plates were not turned down, especially in Summer time. "Daddy" and "Mammy" are outlandish epithets for our parents, and ought to be relegated to the Dark Ages. "Pa" and "Ma," or "Father" and "Mother," are the names by which our parents should be called, and we have so advanced in civilization and enlightenment in the nineteenth century until we scarcely hear anything else among well-bred people. Wearing "gallnses" seemed to be the greatest sign of worldliness. They were objected to then, but forty years after it was thought to be as strange and conclusive a sign of worldliness not to wear them. The wearing, or not wearing, suspenders has nothing to do with a man's salvation, and equally as little to do with his worldliness. Decency and cleanliness in the household can not be construed as the loss of spiritual communion, but is to be commended as appropriate and healthful. In the wearing of "gallnses" comfort, more than anything else, was sought. The choice of any brother, in matters so unimportant as this, and to us so foolish, in modern times, is not, for wise and important reasons, interfered with. A member may wear six pair, if he wishes to, and no one would tell him that he was becoming worldly minded. He might indulge in a hearty laugh at his expense, and nothing more.

When Bishop Asbury came to a certain town he looked upon the bell which the pastor, by some means, had procured. "It was an innovation; the first bell he had seen in any of our meeting-houses in America. He said it was the first; he hoped it would be the last. It was cracked; he hoped it would break." Now our people think they are indispensable in summoning the people of God to the sanctuary and to sacred worship. Indeed, churches in the villages and towns seem incomplete without them. Catholics baptize their bells, and not many years since a bell which was to be used in a Methodist Church in New Orleans was dedicated with appropriate ceremonies. The great leader of Methodism in this country had a pious horror of innovations upon the old usages of the church, and here we are, nearly a century after, putting them into our houses of worship with delight, and in some instances with ceremonies appropriate to the occasion.

A liberality of theological opinions is now tolerated which would have hurled the preacher who should entertain and preach them outside of the church. Dr. Bledsoe desired to unite with the Methodist Church twenty-five years before he did, but not accepting the doctrine of sanctification as it was then taught, he was informed that he could not be received. There are errors in the light on the doctrine of depravity, conversion, witness of the spirit, and many others which would not have been tolerated then; but now, if they do not compromise the Methodist system so as to render it ineffectual in saving sinners, and in building up and strengthening Zion in all her borders, no special stress is laid upon them. Has the church lost anything by this advance in toleration? When inquiry is unrestricted the truth is reached much sooner. While it is well to have dogmas, it is not well to dogmatize to the detriment of such advancement in thought as will crush it to death. Our people are too well-informed to be deceived and led astray by errors in theology as announced from the pulpit; so little or no harm is done.

COMMON-SENSE VIEW OF WATER BAPTISM.

BY REV. I. L. PEEBLES.

In our last article on water baptism we noticed that John the Baptist, the twelve apostles, and all to whom the commission to baptize was first given, were Jews; and, too, that water baptism was not a new thing to them. We also noticed that they understood it in the sense of purifying or cleansing, and that for this purpose it was applied by sprinkling or pouring, and most especially by sprinkling, to the person, and not the person to the water. We further noticed that common sense decides that since all this was true of them, that it was so natural for them, when sent out to baptize with water, to sprinkle or to pour it on the people, since they were not commanded to do it in any other way. Does not common sense say, "Yes, that is so"? Why, certainly it does; and we believe that the most rigid immersionist, laying aside his prejudices, would say, "Yes, it is so natural, and so much like a Jew, to sprinkle or pour the water upon the people," if he were to see as we do. Now for our instruction, and to provoke thought, and to convince, let us see how this matter stands in the New Testament. Let us see whether or not common sense will allow us to say that we know of one single case of immersion in the New Testament. If we can not find such a plain case of immersion that will enable us to know unmistakably that it was by immersion, then common sense comes to our relief, and settles it, that those Jews did actually baptize the people with water; not in it or under it. It is said of John the Baptist that he baptized the people in Jordan (Matt. iii. 6), but the question arises, "Did he immerse them?" Did that Jew really put the people under the water contrary to the custom and training of his people, instead of applying the water to them by sprinkling or pouring it upon them? Let us see how this matter stands. "In Jordan" does not enable us to know that he immersed, for it does not mean immersion. Common sense teaches us that it does not, and that it never did mean immersion. Indeed, God himself speaks of "in Jordan" as being at the edge of the water, and not in it at all (Josh. iii. 8), and we know that one must not only be in the water, but you must be put under it, in order to immersion, and this can not be done at the edge of it. That which Matthew calls "in Jordan" is the place where Jesus lived, and we all know that our Savior would not live in water. Did Jesus really live "in Jordan," and that, too, right in the place where John was baptizing?

Listen to the Scriptures on this point. "And went away again beyond Jordan into the place where John at first baptized; and there he abode." (John x, 40.) Actually lived "in Jordan," and that, too, in the very place where John baptized. It is true, he could have dried up the water, but the Scriptures do not say that he did, and it does seem that such a miracle as that would have been, would have been mentioned, and common sense says there was no water in the "in Jordan" where he lived. Our Savior never did a foolish thing, and how foolish it would have been for him to have dried up the water of Jordan, so he might live in Jordan, when there was already enough dry land on which to live. Common sense says he did not do it, and also that "in Jordan" does not mean immersion, and neither does it necessarily mean in the water at all. But some one says we are willing to give that point up, but the Greek word "baptizo" settles it, and its settlement is immersion, and nothing else. Well, let us see about that word. Common sense says, in order that "baptizo" may settle it, it must mean immersion, and nothing else, and in order to this meaning, it can not, and it must not, be used in any other sense, for if it is used anywhere and at any time in the New Testament in any other sense to mean anything besides immersion, then it does not, and it can not, settle it for immersion.

Now, will not any logician allow that that is good logic, and will not admit that that is good common sense? "Baptizo" is used in I. Cor. x. 2, to mean either sprinkling or pouring, because those people whom Paul declares were baptized were on dry ground in the sea (Ex. xiv. 22), and they remained on dry ground until they got out of the sea. (Ex. xiv. 29.) It is used in Acts i. 5, to mean pouring. That this is true is clear from the fact that what God himself calls pouring in Acts ii. 17, the New Testament writers call "baptizo" in Acts i. 5. Does not common sense say that this is a good and a strong point? Surely it does; and now let us notice that the Jews were great sticklers for washing hands before eating, as we learn from Mark vii. 2, and this washing of hands is called "baptizo" in Luke xi. 38, and since it is called, or rather used to mean, washing the hands, let us now see how this washing of hands was done. We learn from II. Kings iii. 11, that Elijah washed his hands by having the water poured on them, and let us not forget that he was a typical Jew, and, therefore, what he did in such a matter would have great weight with other Jews. Again, we learn from "Jewish Laws and Customs," by Grover, page 46, that the Jews always washed their hands by having the water poured on them, for the reason that it was unlawful for them to immerse them.

Now, then, does not common sense say that I would be very sick and fainty for a point if I were to claim that when "baptizo" is used for washing hands, it always means immersing them in water, in the face of strong proofs that it is not thus used? Certainly it would, and it would say more than that of me. "Baptizo" is translated "undergo" four times in Mark x, 38, 39, by the Baptists in their improved New Testament.

Now, having seen that "baptizo" is used in the New Testament to mean sprinkling or pouring, does not common sense say that whenever it is used, that I can not, as an honest man, say that I know it means immersion, and nothing else? Certainly it does, and it says further that since John the Baptist was a Jew, and that he was accustomed to applying water by sprinkling or pouring, and, too, that since "baptizo" means pouring and sprinkling, he did not immerse the people when he baptized them "in Jordan." At any rate, no one can say that he knows he immersed them, for he does not know that he did. The proofs, the circumstances and all favor sprinkling or pouring the water upon them. John himself said that he baptized with water and not by putting under it. (Matt. iii. 11.)

SHELBY AND MERIGOLD.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: On Shelby and Merigold charge we have reorganized the Woman's Home Mission Society with 14 members; have increased Shelby Sunday-school from 2 to 5 classes, and from 10 or 12 to 50 in regular attendance; have organized a Teachers' Study Circle at Shelby with 10 members, and will reorganize Merigold School, April 6. Official Board organized and financial work under good headway; have set in operation well-attended weekly prayer meeting at Shelby; Sunday congregations large; to date 25 accessions. We have missionary service planned for March 30. On April 14, Bro. J. C. Park, of Winona, will begin a revival with us at Shelby on May 5. Bro. J. M. McIntosh will join us in a like work at Merigold. Expect great victories. Join us, brethren, in prayer for the salvation of this country.

The Small of the Back

That is where some people feel weak all the time.

They are likely to be despondent and it is not unusual to find them borrowing trouble as if they hadn't enough already.

The fact is their kidneys are weak, either naturally or because of sickness, exposure, worry or other influences.

"I am thankful to say," writes J. L. Campbell, of Sycamore, Ill., "that Hood's Sarsaparilla has cured me. For many years I was troubled with backache. At times I was so bad I had to be helped from the bed or chair. I am now well and strong and free from pain." What this great medicine did for him it has done for others.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL DEPARTMENT.

Conducted by N. A. MOTT, Yazoo City, Miss

To Whom All Communications for This Department Must Be Sent.

Sunday-School Work in the Land of the Southern Cross.

BY REV. M. DICKIE.

Our last Annual Conference in Brazil reported 65 Sunday-schools, with a total membership of some 2,500. One charge will often report several schools on the circuit; so some are, therefore, small. As the figures indicate, there are no large schools. Our workers take a warm interest in the Sunday-school cause, and have great faith in it as a church feeder. Wherever possible, therefore, they seek to organize schools. The difficulties, though, are very great. Suitable superintendents are scarce, the pastor frequently, in addition to his other onerous duties, filling that office. Then, teachers are not plentiful. Our people are willing to work, but they lack training. When we consider the deplorable lack of material in the mission fields, the wonder to us is, how their Sunday-schools manage to accomplish so much.

When I visit the home schools, see their well-arranged buildings, the charts, maps, picture-cards, lesson-helps, papers, hymn books, etc., certain longings will come, and I can not help saying to myself, "What wonders we could accomplish had we such equipments." We have but two Sunday-school papers—the Juvenil, a little weekly sheet for the children, and the Revista, a quarterly for adults. How delighted we would be were we able to publish a paper like the Children's Visitor. We would not be able to publish what we have were it not for the help received from the "Children's Day Fund." Then we have no libraries. Portuguese literature suitable for children is very scarce. What little there is we manage to get into the hands of the young folks. The Religious Tract Societies of London and the United States have helped in this matter, and their efforts have been much appreciated.

Our methods are much like those employed in the home schools. The children do not need much urging, for, as a rule, they like to go to the Sunday-school. The order of exercises is much the same. We can not, of course, have such elaborate programmes, because we have not the conveniences and helps that exist here. There are, however, two features of our Sunday-school work that, perhaps, are not always found here. Our Sunday-school children stay for the morning worship in the church, and a goodly number of adults attend the Sunday-school. I think our young folks do not get too old or too big to go to Sunday-school. We look to the Sunday-school to prepare the children for membership in the church, and we are not disappointed, for it is a frequent occurrence to see them, when the occasion offers, present themselves as probationers. I have a very grateful recollection of receiving some six of them into the church in Rio de Janeiro on the last Children's Day services I attended there. Personally, I love to work amongst children, and have always sought to give special attention to it, preaching occasionally to them, getting up an occasional entertainment, and noticing them in other ways. It pays. It has been my privilege to receive not a few of them into the church. Out of our Sunday-school work has grown a children's society called "Christ's Jewels." It has taken with the little ones, and bids fair to become general in all our churches. So far these little jewels are working in the interests of our home missions, and with good success.

"Children's Day" is more observed than formerly, some of the churches holding it with interesting exercises. The Christmas celebrations are quite popular, and, just as here, the children look forward to them.

Our day and boarding-schools are quite a help to us in the Sunday-school work. The ladies in charge of these various schools are earnest and effective workers in the Sunday-school.

The Brazil Mission is, in some respects (at least), the most successful and prosperous mission of our church, and not a little of this prosperity is due to earnest work in the Sunday-school. There is, of course, much ignorance everywhere, and Brazil has its share. I remember a little boy asking one of the teachers if God was a Brazilian or an American. He now knows something about the Heavenly Father and his Son, our Savior. To spread this blessed knowledge is our aim.

Notice.

To the Pastors and Sunday-school Superintendents of the Mississippi Conference.

BRETHREN: By request, I have ordered Children's Day programmes sent to all the pastors, on the basis of the number of scholars reported in the Minutes. Where changes have been made necessitating more, please notify me how many will be needed.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

GUNNISON STATION.

DR. BOSWELL: Concordia—once prominent as a Methodist charge—is now known as Gunnison; a town of probably 500 people, including colored, with Italians and Chinamen. The Yazoo and Mississippi Valley "loop" passes the place, and traverses for miles the famous river front. A number of citizens prominent in business and church interests here have homes of beauty and elegance in the town and vicinity.

An honored line of predecessors have occupied this pulpit, and recorded in letters indelible their deep solicitude for the church of God and unquestioned fidelity to his cause.

Rev. J. W. Dorman, now of the Columbus district, dedicated the parsonage within the decade just passed; and my worthy bachelor friend, now of Duncan station, appropriated at intervals a per cent., at least, of the commodious preacher's home, without so much as the squeak of a mouse or cry of a cat to disturb his slumbers or studious meditations. His evident preparation and cheerful earnestness predict a future of eminent service and usefulness.

All too soon, Pastor Moose departed for an army chaplaincy, and Bros. Gladney, Countiss, and others still, are held in remembrance, and wrought well to plant and to strengthen the church as the years have fled.

"Saints and angels" in to-to scarcely exist in the best of locations, but a perfectly excellent and noble people largely predominate in this favored community. The territory for miles about smiles in magnificent plantations and richly constructed villas, most of whose owners and residents worship at times in the Gunnison Church.

The latest in gates—"20th century" and a bit automatic—will add to convenience and conduce to church-going, and the new house of worship, when completed as per purpose of this congregation, will settle, well-nigh, the question of religious prosperity in this splendid section of the great Delta region.

Transfers come at times with silent questionings and much of anxiety. Such, at least, was true of one at the Winona session, North Mississippi Conference. Literally, he had gone out, "not knowing whither he went," and Gunnison station, as announced by Bishop Morrison, was accepted "as from the Lord," in a sense unusually sacred.

The kindly greeting of that superb layman and model citizen, Bro. G. L. Wrenn, was as "rain upon the thirsty soil," and the brief call at his home and town a constant benediction and a special inspiration in beginning the duties of the year.

Later the snow-storms were upon us as we came from Memphis and our previous charge.

Mrs. Williams and three lesser lights were transferring by faith.

The cordial greeting at the Gunnison depot, the glowing fires and sumptuous dinner at the parsonage, and the delightful welcome accorded by the Methodist ladies, were convincing proofs of intelligent piety and large items to a travel-tired company just in from Winter's sleets and constant expense. A note of gratitude to God and to these interesting people still lingers in our hearts, and we trust for many blessings unto them, and to be found faithful as the mouths pass.

Scarcely had we time to express our pleasure and appreciation when the ladies had gone, leaving us to the courtesy and graces of that important functionary, the colored sexton, who presented himself in good form, having been, as he said, "Section of de church for sixteen years."

Dr. T. W. Dye, of the district, has called lately. His presence and preaching were exceedingly helpful, and the prevailing verdict is, "Well suited to the place."

Ex-Presiding Elder Thomas was greatly esteemed as a competent minister of choicest merit.

We shall expect a visit from the New Orleans editor, whose ADVOCATE is popular, and classes next, of course, to the "great official" at Nashville.

A. H. WILLIAMS.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

COLUMBIA, MISS.

Our first Quarterly Conference was an occasion of pleasure and profit to this charge. Bro. J. M. Morse, our new presiding elder, was with us from Saturday until Thursday. We had fine congregations (as we always do at Columbia) at every service. The reports showed that twenty-nine had been added to the church, $53 expended in ceiling one church, $176 paid for support of ministry, the pastor's assessment increased $100, plans inaugurated to enlarge our church here, as our Sunday-school and congregations have outgrown the church.

While we regretted to part with Bro. Simmons, Bro. Morse is making friends, and winning the confidence of the people wherever he goes. He looks closely into all the interests of the church, and is willing to do anything to assist the pastors and advance the kingdom of Christ.

We are praying and working for a revival in spirituality and vital godliness. We feel confident that we have the co-operation of most all the members, and we have a fine people—many consecrated to the work of our Master. We have a fine working Epworth League, which gives promise of much useful service. We have as fine a body of young people as you will find in any town of 1,000 inhabitants. Come to see us. Pray for us.

STRENGTH

Is an attribute of manhood universally desired. Few people understand that the only source of physical strength is food, and that every one who has sufficient nourishing food should be strong. But there are thousands of puny people who have plenty of good food. How is that explained? The explanation is simple. Food does not nourish the body unless digested and assimilated. Diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition hinder the proper digestion and assimilation of the nutrition contained in the foodeaten. Thus the strength of food is lost, wasted.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and its allied organs. It causes the perfect digestion and assimilation of food and thus it makes men and women strong.

"I had been suffering from indigestion so badly that I could not work more than half the time, but now can work every day and eat anything I want," writes Mr. Victor L. Hayden, of Blackstone, Nottoway Co., Va. "Why? Because I took Dr. R. V. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It has put new life and energy in me, restored my health and made a man of me once more. I used to weigh 170 but had gotten down to 144, now am back to 160 and will soon be back at my old weight if nothing happens. Your medicine has done it all."

ENTERED AT THE POSTOFFICE AT NEW ORLEANS AS SECOND-CLASS MATTER.

Office, 323 Carondelet Street, New Orleans.

TERMS AND DIRECTIONS.

One Copy, one year, $2.50; six months, $1.25; the payment of all denominations, half price.

Communications will please direct all communications, whether on business or for publication, to the Editor, 323 Carondelet St., New Orleans. Write with ink, and only on one side of the paper. No attention will be paid to nameless communications.

Communications not over two hundred words in length will be published free of charge. All over two hundred words will be charged for at the rate of one cent a word. Count the words and send the amount necessary with the communication. Thus will save trouble all around.

The Publication Label on a paper shows the date to which a subscription is paid. It is no good to us without receipt. When remitting to make, if the date is not moved forward after two weeks, notify us, and we will make it right. This applies also to those who request a change of address.

All Preachers of the M. E. Church, South, are authorized Agents, to whom payments may be made.

THURSDAY, MARCH 27, 1902.

Dr. Buckley, of the New York Advocate, is discriminating. Speaking of the unparliamentary language of a United States Senator, used not long since in the Senate chamber, he says it was such that "in private life would bring out pistols in the Southern States and in many parts of the Northern States." We wonder if the Doctor would have missed the mark had he said the orator's language was such that in private life would bring out pistols in the Northern States and in many parts of the Southern States. What an easy thing it is to cast a slur at the South!

Scotch words, or "chunk words," as they are sometimes called, are very convenient things for young preachers. A few preachers have several of them. Some do not get too old to use them. We know a young preacher who, in the course of a talk of half an hour used a "chunk word" seventy-five times. That was more than forty years ago. In all these years we have not made much progress in getting rid of the habit. Not long since we heard a preacher scotch his talk with one word about thirty-five times in as many minutes. It often spoils the sermon. Honestly: Are any of us entirely free from the fault?

We once knew a preacher who, in the simplicity of his soul, thought he could secure the approbation of his Lord without offending that part of his congregation who were known as Jews. There was a considerable number of them, and they were liberal in their contributions. He would select his lesson and his text from the Old Testament, and go through the service from beginning to close, and never mention the name or office of Christ. How he managed to answer to the Christian members of his charge we do not know. Perhaps he was not aware that they could be offended. It was a clear case of denying his Lord in the face of his enemies.

We are now within six weeks of the meeting of the General Conference. There is much less excitement than usual—less disposition to suggest changes of economy. This, we take it, is an indication of general satisfaction with the machinery of the church as it is. Of course, some changes will be made, some new things be introduced. One or two matters of great importance are to be settled. But we expect no radical changes in our Discipline. The absence of excitement does not argue indifference to the interests of the church. It rather points in advance to the coolness and conservatism that will prevail. Everybody is interested, and we trust everybody is praying for grace and wisdom to direct.

THE RESURRECTION.

St. Paul, basing his faith on the resurrection of Jesus Christ, declared a general resurrection at the end of the world. Before Felix he employed this doctrine in defense of himself when charged with heresy by the people of his own nation, saying, in answer to Tertullus, the orator, "This I confess unto thee, that after the way which they call heresy, so worship I the God of my fathers, believing all things which are written in the law and in the prophets: and have hope toward God, which they themselves also allow, that there shall be a resurrection of the dead, both of the just and unjust."

Belief in a resurrection was general among the Jews. It was the orthodox faith. Only the Sadducees rejected it. And in rejecting it they rejected everything supernatural, the existence of angels, spirits, etc. But though this belief was general, the Jews up to the resurrection of Christ, had never had a demonstration of the fact. True, they had seen the dead raised by the hand of prophets and by the hand of Christ, and were thus convinced of the power of God, but it remained for Christ to become "the first-fruits of them that sleep." Jesus said, "I have power to lay down my life, and I have power to take it again." He did both. He voluntarily gave up his life, and faithful hands committed his body to the grave, which, though sealed by order of the governor, and watched by Roman soldiers, could not contain him, for he burst the bands of death, and came out a living conqueror. Thus he demonstrated his power over death, and, as representative of the human race, gave assurance of a universal resurrection.

In after years St. Paul had occasion to set before the church distinctly the doctrine of the resurrection, and to show that it constituted the very basis of Christianity. His statement is plain, and his argument conclusive. Writing to the Corinthians, he said: "I delivered unto you first of all that which I also received, how that Christ died for our sins according to the Scriptures; and that he was buried, and that he rose again the third day according to the Scriptures: and that he was seen of Cephas, then of the twelve; after that, he was seen of above five hundred brethren at once; of whom the greater part remain unto this present, but some are fallen asleep." Having called attention to these facts he proceeds to reason on the subject: "If Christ be preached that he rose from the dead, how say some among you that there is no resurrection of the dead? But if there be no resurrection of the dead, then is Christ not risen: and if Christ be not risen, then is our preaching vain, and your faith is also vain. Yea, and we are found false witnesses of God: because we have testified of God that he raised up Christ: whom he raised not up, if so be that the dead rise not. For if the dead rise not, then is not Christ raised: and if Chist be not raised, your faith is vain; ye are yet in your sins. Then they which are fallen asleep in Christ are perished. If in this life only we have hope in Christ, we are of all men most miserable. But now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the first-fruits of them that slept. For since by man came death, by man came also the resurrection of the dead. For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive. But every man in his own order: Christ the first-fruits; afterward they that are Christ's at his coming." Such is the argument, no interpretation of which is tenable save the literal viz.: that our Lord actually died, was actually buried, and actually rose from the dead. These are facts as well established as Christ's birth, and baptism, and wonderful ministry. Now, if it be true that Jesus literally rose from the dead—that is, brought up from the grave the body that was laid in it—and if his resurrection is a pledge of our resurrection, it must be that when we are raised from the dead and stand before God in judgment, we must stand in the bodies that were laid in the grave. Other interpretations do not necessarily militate against the fact of immortality or of personal identity, but they destroy the certainty of the resurrection of the body—the fact for which St. Paul contends. If the dead body is not raised, there is no resurrection, for it is not the spirit, but the body that sleeps in the grave.

The doctrine of the resurrection, considered apart from the omniscience, the omnipresence, and the omnipotence of God, would be impossible of belief. Viewed from a purely scientific standpoint, it is declared impossible, and the faith of some in a literal resurrection has been shaken. St. Paul, ignoring the oppositions of science, planted himself squarely on the doctrine of a literal resurrection, looked earnestly into the face of the stern judge before whom he was pleading, and asked with conviction of its truth, "Why should it be thonght a thing incredible with you, that God should raise the dead?" With God nothing is impossible.

How are the dead raised up, and with what body do they come? They are raised by the power of God, and come with bodies fashioned like unto the glorious body of our Lord Jesus Christ. His body was raised from the grave, and, in its glorified state, seated at the right hand of God. As it came from the grave, it was flesh and blood, and so remained for the forty days he was upon earth. Evidently it was changed to its glorified state in the transit from earth to heaven. So our bodies shall be raised from the dust, and, changed by the power of God, we shall enter heaven in spiritual bodies—in tabernacles not made with hands. The body "is sown in corruption, it is raised in incorruption; it is sown in dishonor, it is raised in glory: it is sown in weakness, it is raised in power: it is sown a natural body, it is raised a spiritual body." "As we have borne the image of the earthy, we shall also bear the image of the heavenly. . . . For this corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality. So, when this corruptible shall have put on incorruption, and this mortal shall have put on immortality, then shall be brought to pass the saying that is written, Death is swallowed up in victory." Let us comfort one another with these words!

THE TIME LIMIT.

It is argued seriously by an intelligent Methodist preacher that one reason, if not the main reason, why Methodism does not succeed any better in our large cities, is because the term of the pastor is too short to allow him to carry out any well-formed plans. It is said that before he becomes well acquainted, or has time to establish confidence, he must leave and give place to another, and that under such a regime Methodism does not prosper as it should. The brother reminds us of an old farmer who moved from North Carolina to West Tennessee to improve his fortune. But he thought of the tar kilns and persimmons of the old North State, and became dissatisfied with his new home. Tennessee was not as good as North Carolina, no how! He was invited by a neighbor to a "corn-shucking." While the shucking was in progress, and all hands were happy, this old man was complaining: "We don't make such crops in Tennessee as we did in North Carolina." And he was then before the biggest pile of corn he ever saw in his life. Our intelligent brother, in the presence of the greatest marvel of the ages—the success of Methodism in the cities as well as country places—complains that we are suffering on account of short pastoral terms. He thinks that unless the time limit is removed we will lose our hold and our ground in the cities, altogether. The idea is not at all original with him.

It is intimated that we must follow the wake of our Northern brethren if we hope to keep up with twentieth century movements. We are not so sure that our big sister is set to point out the way and introduce customs for all Western Methodism to follow. But, if we must adopt her ways in all good conscience, let us wait and see whether the abolition of the time limit from her economy has been of any material benefit. Is it not too early to determine?

The object of eliminating the time limit is to lengthen the pastoral term. Rather, it is for the purpose of allowing a preacher to return to the same charge an indefinite number of years. But who can give assurance that such will be the case, even though it were desirable? If we have received correct information, the elimination in the M. E. Church has had a tendency, as far as tried, to shorten, rather than lengthen the term. Fewer men, since the last General Conference, have been returned the fourth and fifth years than under the time limit. Are we mistaken in this?

The abolition of the time limit will tend to build up a ministerial aristocracy. And such will not work well under an itinerant system. But few men among us, as it is in other churches, would be able to hold a pastorate an indefinite length of time. And the good these few could do would not counterbalance the evil certain to be wrought by a change of policy. Let us hold on a while longer to the old way!

METHODIST FEDERATION.

The Joint Commission on Federation provided for by the General Conference of the M. E. Church and of our church was in session last week in Baltimore. As yet, no official report of the proceedings has been published, but the press reporters have sent out some information of its doings. If what the reporters say is true, the commission will recommend the consolidation of mission work and publishing interests in Shanghai, the publication of a union paper in Mexico, a common catechism, a common order of public worship, and the preparation and publication of a common hymnal. If these things are all agreed to, what more can be asked than complete organic union? We dare say, though, when the official report is made, it will show the matter in a different light.

Ever since the meeting of the Book Committee of the M. E. Church, some six weeks ago, when Bishop Walden called attention to the mistake that had been made in preparing a new hymnal, the whole Northern Methodist press has been profoundly silent on the subject. Now come the press reporters and say:

"The Northern commissioners acknowledge that their church made a mistake in beginning the work of a revision of the hymn book without first inviting an equal committee from the Southern Church. It has, therefore, been decided that the work of revision must begin over again."

That they acknowledge making a blunder is amazing. Heretofore the blundering has been on the other side. The blunder was egregious, else they never would have confessed it. Even in this matter the reporters may have blundered, as they evidently have in saying: "The plan of federation has already been adopted by the General Conference of the church." Our General Conference did adopt the report of the commission in 1898. But the General Conference of the M. E. Church amended it, and, of course, the report of this second meeting must go before both General Conferences before its recommendations can go into effect. Will our church federate as far as the reporters say the joint commission has recommended? The General Conference will settle the question in a few weeks.

NOT DISLOYAL.

We have received a well-written communication from an honored brother in reply to the few feeble remarks we made last week in regard to the action of a City Union Epworth League in adopting an alien song book for use at a Conference League meeting. As we did not locate the Union, we think it best to withhold our brother's name. And as the ADVOCATE'S hopper was full, and half the paper printed before his communication was received, it is quite out of our power to print it this week. Next week it will be out of date. Now, we wish to say that we do not believe for one moment that the League acted in the matter from a spirit of disloyalty; nevertheless, the action displaced our own song book, which thing ought not to have been done. In explanation of the action of the League, our brother says:

The real reason for adopting the book was an economic one. Principle and policy are the two foci about which the orbit of human duty revolves. The first is absolutely fixed; the second changes according to circumstance, convenience, or caprice. The application in the present instance was simply this: As the book had no possible objection arising from its undesirability, denominationally, our principle was guaranteed, and the matter of policy came to the front. We could not secure the necessary number of hymnals except at great expense; this book the publishers kindly put at our disposal free of charge.

We accept the explanation, and, hoping no harm was done, we bring the chapter to a close.

GRATIFYING INCREASE.

The statistics of all the Conferences for 1901 have been received and tabulated. We have the following figures, which we quote from the Methodist Review, the March-April number: Traveling preachers, 6,293; local preachers, 4,982; members, 1,505,241. Total preachers and members, 1,516,516. An increase of 66 traveling preachers and 34,721 members; a decrease of 169 local preachers.

In addition to the above, Dr. Tigert gives us the statistics of Universal Methodism as reported at the Ecumenical Conference last September. From the Eastern Section there was reported: Ministers and members, 1,285,513; from the Western Section, 6,526,967—a total of 7,813,480 Methodist communicants. Counting three adherents to one member (including the preachers), which is a moderate estimate, and adding all together, we have a grand total of 31,253,920 persons under Methodist influence. Let us thank God and take courage, and hold on to the old paths.

A MATTER OF IMPORTANCE.

The account of the Whosoever Will Mission printed on our first page will be read with great interest throughout our patronizing territory. No doubt it will touch the hearts of good people, and elicit their prayers and good-will. We trust the Christian men and women of New Orleans will be greatly aroused. Surely it ought to awaken their sympathies, and prompt them to do something for this noble charity. We have not read anything in a long time so inspiring. As we read, we wondered if such things were possible in this great city. Brother Haag, who is a Methodist, and connected with one of our city churches, deserves to be supported in his undertaking. He is doing a great work.

General Conference Daily.

The Book Agents will print a Daily Christian Advocate during the coming session of the General Conference at Dallas, Texas. It will give a full report of the proceedings of that body, which no weekly Advocate can do. The price of the Daily is one dollar for the session. From now until the seventeenth of April we will take subscriptions for the Daily, in connection with the ADVOCATE, for new subscribers or renewals, with the cash, at $2.50; money to be sent at expense of subscriber. To avoid confusion, we will not take orders for the Daily after our issue of April 17.

Very many of our subscribers are behind in payment, and the time of many more is just expiring. Please send what is due. If you can not send the whole, send part. We need the money. Please do not wait another week!

PERSONAL.

Bishop Galloway preached, Sunday last, at Carrollton, Miss. We have not seen any report of the discourse, but it goes without saying that he both delighted and edified his hearers.

Mr. W. D. Brown, of Rolling Fork, Miss., has been in the city a few days visiting his son, Prof. Brown, of Tulane University. It was a great pleasure to meet these two gentlemen in our office.

Rev. I. T. Reames remained in the city for Sunday services after close of the District Conference, and edified the saints at Carrollton Avenue in the morning. Brother Reames also honored the ADVOCATE with a call.

Dr. I. W. Cooper, of Centenary College, was present during the past week at the New Orleans District Conference. He preached at Parker Memorial Church, Sunday evening. Those who heard him were delighted.

Dr. Jno. T. Sawyer paid a flying visit to the city last week, and, though busy, he gave a few moments of his time to the ADVOCATE. He reports that the condition of his work, notwithstanding the vast amount of bad weather, is good.

A note from Rev. R. I. Allen informs us that the Columbia Church, on Vaiden circuit, will be dedicated next Sunday (March 30) by Rev. J. H. Mitchell, presiding elder of the Winona district. All former pastors are cordially invited to be present.

Rev. J. E. Cummings, pastor of Government Street Church, Mobile, will be with Rev. C. D. Atkinson, of Parker Memorial Church, in a meeting beginning on the first Sunday in April. Brother Cummings will begin preaching on the evening of the seventh.

Lieut. J. K. Cowan, of the United States Army, who has been serving in the Philippines, and whose visit to his home in Oxford, Miss., we noted a short time since, has returned to his command, now at Fort Bliss. En route he will spend a few days with a sister at Sherman, Texas.

Rev. T. B. Clifford is doing well at Dardanelle, Ark., as we learn from the Arkansas Methodist. About the first of March he remitted to the treasurer of the Arkansas Conference Board of Missions full amount of assessment on his charge for foreign missions. This is the first charge of the Arkansas Conference to pay in full this year. Brother Clifford is preaching to large and attentive congregations.

District Conference.

The New Orleans District Conference was held last week at Carondelet Street Church, beginning on the twentieth and ending the evening of the twenty second. Save the opening session, the business meetings were held in the evening. This plan is found to work well in the city. It gives the laymen, whose time is not their own, an opportunity to attend. This they could not do in the daytime. They attend at night in large numbers, and add greatly to the interest of the occasion. Dr. W. H LaPrade presided, and Rev. J. F. Foster was secretary. The reports made by the preachers indicate that the church is in a good state temporal and spiritual. The preachers are all at their posts and hard at work. The secretary, we presume, will give our readers a detailed statement.

There was preaching every morning, and Sunday there was a general interchange of pulpits among the city pastors, two or three visiting preachers occupying pulpits at the same hour. The visitors were Dr. I. W. Cooper, president of Centenary College; Rev. M Dickie, missionary to Brazil, and Rev. T. L. Lallance, once a member of the Louisiana, but now of the New Mexico Conference. It was our privilege to attend, and the brethren accorded us all the time we desired to represent the ADVOCATE. We trust some good was accomplished.

Sunday afternoon the brethren assembled at Rayne Memorial for the Annual District communion service, which is always a blessing.

The delegates to ensuing Annual Conference are: W. B. Thomson, W. W. Carre, A. S. Daniels, Jacob Cohen; alternates: E. P. Mackie, J. A. Woodville.

The next session of the Conference will be held at the Louisiana Avenue Church.

The meeting was pleasant and harmonious, and good results are expected.

A TREACHEROUS WIND hits you in the back and the next morning you have lumbago. Rub well and often with Perry Davis' Painkiller, and you will be astonished to find out how quickly all soreness is banished.

Mississippi Conference Minutes.

The Minutes of the recent session of the Mississippi Conference are out and have been distributed among the brethren. Where it was found to be cheaper to send them by express than by mail, they have been expressed, and in a number of cases when directed to points in the interior they have been expressed to what was thought to be the nearest railroad town.

If any of the brethren fail to receive their quota, they will please enquire at the nearest express office, and if that fails to bring them they will please write to me. That there are mistakes in them I have no doubt; some of them I have already discovered, and the others the brethren will discover. I hope that where the mistakes are of sufficient importance to demand it, the brethren will not hesitate to make public correction of them. I would like especially to have my attention called to incorrect spelling of proper names and other mistakes likely to be repeated from year to year. A postal card calling my attention to such mistakes would be appreciated.

Home Treatment for Cancer.

DR D. M. BYE'S Balmy Oil, for cancer, is a positive and painless cure. Most cases are treated at home, without the service of a physician. Send for book telling what wonderful things are being done by simply anointing with oils. The combination is a secret; gives instant relief from pain, destroys the cancer microbes and restores the patient to health. Thousands of cancers, tumors, catarrh, ulcers, piles and malignant diseases cured in the last eight years. If not afflicted, cut this out and send it to some suffering one. Address DR. D. M. BYE CO., Box 462, Dallas, Tex.

Notice.

To the Presiding Elders and Preachers In Charge of the North Mississippi Conference:

You are requested to collect your assessments for the Bishops' Fund as soon as you can, and remit to the undersigned at Greenville, Miss.

When practicable, send by New York or Memphis exchange, rather than checks on local banks, or by postal money orders.

Arcadia District.

DEAR DOCTOR: Did you ever have la grippe? It is like—but who can describe it? One must have it to appreciate it. I have been in its clinches for two months. Have missed several appointments, and was not able to do much where I went.

The work on the district is a little slow, owing to the bad weather and prevailing sickness.

At our District Missionary Institute and Preachers' Meeting, held at Ruston, about the middle of January, our policy for the year was decided upon, viz.:

1 A genuine revival in every charge, and to accomplish it more exchange of help among pastors, earlier meetings wherever practicable and longer meetings when necessary. The brethren are getting tired of holding meetings like "city folks" make calls—by number.

2. A campaign of doctrinal preaching, teaching the people by sermons on special subjects how the foundations of our faith stand secure on the everlasting Word.

3. All the collections in full. We paid out in full on missions last year. Now we hope, by divine help, to pay everything. With our men and our field we ought to do it.

At Arcadia the old Southern idea of White supremacy is popular. At Homer, Henderson is in a new parsonage, and expects to begin revival services soon. Whatever weakness there may be in the ecclesiastical anatomy of the Valley charge, it has an Armstrong for service. Martin is not a bird, he has no wings, but he can come as near flying as the youngest man on the district. At Conference time some of Williams' people did not want him any longer (they thought he was long enough) but they took him back and have given him a hearty welcome. He has a large field. At Lanesville they say that if Stapleton held fast for four years Boltz might have the time limit removed and stay indefinitely. He is that kind of a preacher. The "Old Ship of Zion" will keep her course toward the heavenly port manned by such Crews as they have at Minden. At Farmerville everything is all and always Wright. The Haynesville sheep have a Sheppard who will lead and feed them. Ruston will never have any rust on it as long as Singleton is there. Downsville could not ask to be Ledbetter. I would not say that Isbell is a bell, but he promises to make things jingle at Calhoun. Jordan rolls on in the Ganeville country, but there are no streams down there too deep or swift for us to Fordham. The Bienville people have their Honeycutt to suit them, and they do not complain of Aiken anywhere at Gibsland. Methvin has made a good beginning. Clarke is talking of two new churches, and Franklin is staking out claims for Methodism in a goodly land.

We ought to succeed. May the Lord help us!

REV. WALKER'S

FAMOUS DYSPEPSIA CURE.

Famous for Glorious Achievements.

The recognized unfailing scientific Cure for Dyspepsia, Nervous Indigestion, Constipation, Acidity, and Bilious Colic. Relief in one minute, with first dose; quickly effects a permanent Cure. Never fails. Neutralizes and eradicates dyspepsia poison. An absolute specific. Very palatable, perfectly harmless, as gentle as nature in effect. Neglected Dyspepsia and Indigestion produce "Bright's Disease," undermines the vital organs, overthrows the mental faculties, producing insanity and death.

Mr. J. G. Thompson, Ancelote, Fla., voluntarily writes "I suffered agonies from Dyspepsia. Walker's Famous Dyspepsia Cure quickly cured me. I gained 14 pounds in one month. My friends are astonished at my quick recovery. A wonderful medicine."

A HELPING FUND.

We have many calls to send the ADVOCATE to poor, aged persons at a reduced rate. This we always do. Are there not many persons, well-to-do in this world's goods, who will send us money—any sum they may see fit to give—to supply the ADVOCATE to persons who would like to have it, but are unable to pay anything? We will gladly send it to such for one dollar a year. We hope to get many responses to this appeal. Let those who respond designate the names of those to whom they desire the paper sent, or give the money to their pastors, and let them send the names. If names are not sent, the editor will do the best he can. Who will first respond?

From this date no attention will be paid to manuscripts that come to this office rolled. Let them be folded and put in an envelope. And please, brethren and sisters, use ink. Pencil writing, after passing through the mail, is often hard to read. We speak both for the printer and the editor.

The Commoner

(Mr. Bryan's Paper)

The Commoner has attained within six months from date of the first issue a circulation of 100,000 copies, a record probably never equaled in the history of American periodical literature. The unparalleled growth of this paper demonstrates that there is room in the newspaper field for a national paper devoted to the discussion of political, economic, and social problems. To the columns of The Commoner Mr. Bryan contributes his best efforts, and his review of political events as they arise from time to time can not fail to interest those who study public questions.

The Commoner's regular subscription price is $1 per year. We have arranged with Mr. Bryan whereby we can furnish his paper and NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE together for one year for $2.25. The regular subscription price of the two papers when subscribed for separately is $3 net. When remittance is made by personal check ten cents extra will be charged.

To Prove What SWAMP-ROOT, the Great Kidney, Liver and Bladder Remedy, Will do for YOU, Every Reader of "CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE" May Have a Sample Bottle FREE.

DR. KILMER & CO., Binghamton, N. Y.:

GENTLEMEN:—In justice to you, I feel it is my duty to send you an acknowledgement of the receipt of the sample bottle of Swamp-Root, you so kindly sent me. I had been out of health for the past five years with kidney and bladder trouble. Had our best physicians prescribe for me. They would relieve me for the time being, but the old complaint would in a short time return again. I sent for a sample bottle of Swamp-Root and I found it did me a world of good. Since then I have taken eight small bottles, bought at my drug store, and I consider myself perfectly cured. It seemed as though my back would break in two after stooping. I do not have the smarting and irritation, nor do I have to get up during the night to urinate as I formerly did, three and four times a night, but now sleep the sleep of peace. My back is all right again, and in every way I am a new man. Two of my brother officers are still using Swamp-Root. They, like myself, can not say too much in praise of it. It is a boon to mankind. We recommend it to all who are suffering from kidney and bladder diseases.

My brother officers (whose signatures accompany this letter) as well as myself, thank you for the blessing you have brought to the human race in the compounding of Swamp-Root.

We remain, Yours very truly,
JAMES COOK,
HUGH E. BOYLE,
JOHN J. BODKIN.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the famous new discovery, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, because as soon as your kidneys are well they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone.

Weak and unhealthy kidneys are responsible for many kinds of diseases, and if permitted to continue much suffering with fatal results are sure to follow. Kidney trouble irritates the nerves, makes you dizzy, restless, sleepless and irritable. Makes you pass water often during the day, and obliges you to get up many times during the night. Unhealthy kidneys cause rheumatism, gravel, catarrh of the bladder, pain or dull ache in the back, joints and muscles; makes your head ache and back ache, causes indigestion, stomach and liver trouble; you get a sallow, yellow complexion, makes you feel as though you had heart trouble; you may have plenty of ambition, but no strength; get weak and waste away.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is used in the leading hospitals, recommended by physicians in their private practice, and is taken by doctors themselves, because they recognize in it the greatest and most successful remedy that science has ever been able to compound.

If you are already convinced that Swamp-Root is what you need, you can purchase the regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles at the drug stores everywhere. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

EDITORIAL NOTICE—Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy, is so remarkably successful that a special arrangement has been made by which all of our readers who have not already tried it may have a sample bottle sent absolutely free by mail. Also a book telling all about kidney and bladder troubles and containing many of the thousands upon thousands of testimonial letters received from men and women cured by Swamp-Root. In writing, be sure and mention reading this generous offer in NEW ORLEANS "CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE" when sending your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

Mr. Vanderbilt's Punctuality.

Punctuality was almost a hobby with Mr. Vanderbilt. He was prompt himself in keeping appointments, and he had little patience with men who were careless about their engagements.

A young man of high social station solicited Mr. Vanderbilt's aid in getting a very desirable clerical position in a railroad office a few years ago. Mr. Vanderbilt liked the young man and, believing him to be capable of filling the place, told him he thought he could help him. "Be here to-morrow morning at ten o'clock, and I will go with you to the president of that road and say a good word for you," said Mr. Vanderbilt.

The young man promised to be on hand at the time specified, but he failed in punctuality, and presented himself in the anteroom of Mr. Vanderbilt's office at twenty minutes after ten o'clock. He was told that Mr. Vanderbilt had gone to attend a meeting. A few days afterward he managed to obtain an interview with Mr. Vanderbilt, and when asked very kindly why he did not keep his appointment, said, with a tinge of annoyance: "Why, Mr. Vanderbilt, I was here at twenty minutes past ten."

"But the appointment was at ten o'clock," said Mr. Vanderbilt.

"Oh, I know that, but I did not think fifteen or twenty minutes would make any difference."

"Indeed," said Mr. Vanderbilt, sternly, "you will find that punctuality in the keeping of appointments does make a great deal of difference. In this instance your lack of punctuality has deprived you of the place you desired, for the appointment was made on the very day upon which you were to have met me. Furthermore, let me tell you, young man, that you had no right to assume that twenty minutes of my time was of so little value that I could afford to wait for you. Why, sir, I managed to keep two other appointments of importance within that time."—Times.

The Baby's Nurse.

"Yes," said Mr. Hillier, as he carefully dug around my pansy bed; "oh, yes'm, I've seen elephants in India many a time. I was stationed at one point with the English army, you know, where I saw one who used to take care of the children."

"Take care of the children! How could it be? What do you mean?"

"Well, he did, ma'am. It was wonderful what that elephant knew. The first time I made his acquaintance he gave me a blow that I had reason to remember. I was on duty in the yard, and the colonel's little child was playing about; and she kept running too near, I thought, to the elephant's feet. I was afraid he would put his great clumsy feet on her by mistake, so I made up my mind to carry her to a safer place. I stooped to pick her up, and the next thing I knew I had had a knock which sent me flat on the ground. That elephant had hit me with his trunk. One of the servants came along just then and helped me up, and when I told him about it, said he: 'I wonder the old fellow didn't kill you. It isn't safe for anybody to interfere with that baby when he has it in his charge. I have you to know that he is that baby's nurse.'

"Well, I thought he was just saying it for sport; but, sure enough, after a while the nurse came out with the child fast asleep in her arms, and what did she do but lay it in the elephant's trunk, as though it had been a cradle. And the great fellow stood there for more than an hour, watching that baby, and rocking it gently now and then! "He was real good to the other children, too. It used to be his business to take the family out riding. The colonel's lady would come out and mount to her cushioned seat on his back, and then, one by one, the three children would be given to the elephant, and he would hand them up to the mother nicer than any nurse or servant could, you know, because he could reach, and knew how to do it. Oh, an elephant is an uncommonly handy nurse when he is trained to the business, and faithful, I tell you. You can trust him every time."—Pansy.

Indian Smoke Signals.

The Indian had a way of sending up the smoke in rings or puffs, knowing that such a smoke column would at once be noticed and understood as a signal, and not taken for the smoke of some camp fire. He made the rings by covering the little fire with his blanket for a moment, and allowing the smoke to ascend, when he instantly covered the fire again. The column of ascending smoke rings said to every Indian within thirty miles: "Look out! There is an enemy near!" Three smokes built close together meant danger. One smoke merely meant attention. Two smokes meant, "Camp at this place." Travel the plains and the usefulness of this long-distance telephone will at once become apparent.

Sometimes at night the settler or the traveler saw fiery lines crossing the sky, shooting up and falling, perhaps taking a direction diagonal to the lines of vision. He might guess that these were the signals of the Indians, but unless he were an old-timer, he might not be able to interpret the signals. The old-timer and the squaw-man knew that one fire-arrow, an arrow prepared by treating the head of the shaft with gunpowder and flue bark, meant the same as columns of smoke puffs—"An enemy is near." Two arrows meant: "Danger." Three arrows said imperatively: "This danger is great." Several arrows said: "The enemy are too many for us." Thus the untutored savage could telephone fairly well at night as well as in the daytime.—Star Monthly.

How Birds Dress Wounds.

Many birds, particularly those that are prey for sportsmen, possess the faculty of skillfully dressing wounds. Some will even set bones, taking their own feathers to form proper bandages. A French naturalist writes that on a number of occasions he has killed woodcocks that were, when shot, convalescing from wounds previously received.

In every instance he found the old injury neatly dressed with down plucked from the stem feathers and skillfully arranged over the wound, evidently by the long beak of the bird. In some instances a solid plaster was thus formed, and in others bandages had been applied to wounds or broken limbs.

One day he killed a bird that evidently had been severely wounded at some recent period. The wound was covered and protected by a sort of network of feathers, which had been plucked by the bird from its own body and so arranged as to form a plaster, completely covering and protecting the wounded surface. The feathers were fairly netted together, passing alternately under and above each other and forming a textile fabric of great protective power.—Youth's Chronicle.

The Little Loaf.

In the time of the famine a rich man permitted the poorest children of the city to come to his house, and said to them: "There stands a crate full of bread. Each of you take a loaf from it, and you may come every day until God sends better times."

The children at once surrounded the basket, striving and quarreling over the bread, because each desired to obtain the finest; and they finally went off without a word of thanks.

Only Franziska, a clean, but poorly-clad little girl, remained standing at a distance, then took the smallest of the loaves left in the basket, kissed her hand gratefully to the man, and went quietly and becomingly home.

On the next day the children were equally ill-mannered, and Franziska this time had a loaf which was scarcely half as large as the others; but when she reached home and her mother broke the bread, there fell out quite a number of new silver pieces. The mother was frightened, and said: "Take the money at once, for it certainly got into the bread by accident."

Franziska did as she was bid, but the benevolent man said to her: "No, no; it was not an accident. I had the silver baked in the smallest loaf in order to reward thee, thou good child. Ever remain as peace-loving and satisfied."

He who would rather have a smaller loaf than quarrel about a greater will always bring a blessing to the home, even though no silver is baked in the bread.—Reformed Messenger.

Bro. W. S. Henry was born March 7, 1834. He seemed in his usual health. While he and his wife were on their way home from his daughter's, near Knowles, La., he fell from his buggy dead, Feb. 23, 1902. Bro. Henry professed religion at about the age of eighteen years, in Homer, La., and united with the Methodist Church. His conversion was a bright one. That he had been truly regenerated he never doubted, and all through his life thereafter exemplified the marks of a regenerate character. It was often said of him that he was the best man in the community. He was a loving husband, a kind and tender father. He was a man of strong personality. To look into his face was to recognize him as a Christian gentleman. How well do I remember the inspiration of his presence at church. He said he went to church praying, and prayed while the preacher preached. So it was no unusual thing to find him full of the Holy Ghost. His talks after preaching would often move the congregation to tears. How much will old Salem miss this man of God! Truly a good man is gone, and gone to heaven. Since knowing him I have often thought of him as being as near to God as any man I ever knew. His loved ones are Christians, and know where to find him. May the God of all grace supply every need to the bereaved ones, and give them the faith that will lead them to the same sweet home!

H. W. Ladbetter, Former Pastor.

Brother E. B. Jones quietly passed to his reward Jan. 25, 1902. He was born in Pickens county, Ala., Oct. 11, 1837; came to Mississippi in 1847; was educated in the University of Alabama at Tuscaloosa. He enlisted early in the Civil War, and served most of the time as a lieutenant in light artillery under Capt. Yates, Company B. He was a gallant soldier, as was evidenced at Vicksburg, Corinth, and Atlanta, where he lost his right arm in 1864. He was elected sheriff, in 1868, of Panola county, Miss. He served as tax assessor one, or more, terms. He was married to Miss Elizabeth Shelton about 1869. His companion was taken to her reward about eighteen years afterward. He was happily married to Miss Rosa Whitten, Aug. 11, 1897. He professed religion and joined the Methodist Church at Batesville in May, 1900, in which he lived a consistent member to the end of his earthly pilgrimage. He had been rather helpless two years, and was fully aware of his approaching dissolution, of which he spoke freely and happily of his readiness. His sufferings were borne with patience. He breathed his last without a struggle. God bless the sorrowing ones.

D. W. Bard.

Mrs. Elizabeth Ann Collins was born May 6, 1820, in Morgan county, Ala.; was converted Friday night, Sept. 21, 1837, in the eighteenth year of her age. She moved to Mississippi in March, 1841; was married to G. N. Collins, Dec. 8, 1843. She moved to Cotton Valley, La., in 1854; to Texas in 1898, and died in Johnson county, Jan. 24, 1902. She was a woman of great faith in God. Her house was a house of prayer. In rearing her children she had family prayer twice a day, and in her declining years conducted family worship three times a day. Her great burden of her heart was that sinners might be brought to Jesus, and had a burning desire for the conversion of heathen. She was scrupulous in dividing her tithes, and always distributed some in heathen lands. She was a regular subscriber to the New Orleans Christian Advocate for about a quarter of a century. Mrs. Collins was sick only five days; gave all necessary directions about her funeral a few days before she took sick. She had been walking with God for nearly sixty-five years, and went sweeping through the pearly gates.

Rebecca Collins.

Fort Worth, Texas.

Henry D. Miller, son of S. D. and S. J. Miller, was born at Homewood, Scott county, Miss., Jan. 1, 1880. He joined the M. E. Church, South, at Garone Chapel, in 1898. He died of pneumonia at the residence of Mr. William Herrin's, near Homewood, Miss., on Jan. 18, 1902, being twenty-one years and eighteen days old. Thus, in the first bloom of manhood, was Henry called to his long home, from whence there is no return. It is a great grief and bereavement to his parents, brothers and sisters, to be called upon to mourn the final departure of this loved one, making it doubly sad by the absence of his mother, who was nursing another son who was very sick in Neshoba county, near where her father was very low. Henry Miller was a very bright young man, tall and handsome in person, genial in disposition, and a general favorite with his associates. While our hearts are sad, we must bow in humble submission to the will of an All-wise Providence, who doeth all things for the best. May the sorrowing hearts find comfort in the sustaining grace of Christ!

D. C. L.

Sister Martha J. Cox (nee Meek), after struggling in widowhood for seventeen years, has fallen on sleep. She died Nov. 29, 1901. She was born July 20, 1834, and grew to womanhood near Tyro, Miss. She was married to Tilmon D. Cox, Dec. 24, 1856 or '7. She professed religion and joined the C. P. Church, east of Batesville, where she then lived, about 1869, in which communion she lived until God took her above. Sister Cox was a good mother, a kind neighbor. She loved God, and bore her afflictions patiently, rejoicing in the promise of rest in heaven. She leaves two brothers, two sisters and two sons to mourn their loss. May they all be faithful until death, and have a happy reunion in our Father's mansion house above!

Mrs. Mary E. Blanks was born Jan. 28, 1849; was married Jan. 26 1866, to Rev. R. L. Blanks, a local elder in the bounds of Conshey circuit, Lauderdale county, Mississippi Conference. Sister Blanks died Jan. 21, 1902. Her married life was happily spent in the church with her husband, near thirty-six years. She was the mother of eight children—five boys and three girls; all members of the church, living good and happy lives, filling noted places in the church, and are appreciated in all useful places of life. Bro. Blanks has the three youngest children at home with him, exercising that faith in God that will demand the blessing upon the home that is so sad. Sister Blanks was treasurer of our Sunday-school at Saqualena. She was one of our best workers in the church during her married life. She prayed twice every day; assisted by her husband. Sleep on, my sister; take thy rest. Your husband, children, Sunday-school workers and pastor have resolved to meet you in that sweet by-and-by.

Vivian Smith, daughter of Jesse and Mrs. Rose F. Smith, was born in West Point, Miss., Aug. 10, 1901, and died on March 3, 1902. Little Vivian's life, though lamentably brief, was most beautiful. God never gave to a household a brighter, sweeter babe, and she at once took possession of every heart. Being the only child in the family, all—father, mother, and grandparents—lavished upon her their love and attention, and I were ever so happy as when she was smiling upon them. But she has gone, leaving desolate the hearts that she had won, and dark and lonely the home of which she was the brightness and joy. She now lives in "the land of an unclouded sky," where sin and sorrow and death can never come, and there she will wait and watch for the loved ones left behind. When eternity's dawn shall have come, and broken family circles are being re-formed in the great "house of many mansions," may there be no missing face in the group that shall gather around the radiant form of little Vivian!

Mrs. Cassia Chadwick (nee Hays) was born March 11, 1863, and died at Walnut Grove, Miss., Oct. 27, 1901. Sister Chadwick being the daughter of a Methodist preacher, learned in early life to love and serve God. She joined the church in the morning of life, and lived a day-by-day life of faith and trust. During the last six months of her life she suffered greatly, but she never murmured nor complained, but meekly suffered His will. On April 17, 1879, she was married to Mr. John Chadwick, who, with seven children, mourn their loss. Her devotion to her family was beautiful; a good neighbor, one whose life was felt by all who knew her. It was said by one who knew her best, "The life of this woman is a blessing to this town."

Feeble natures live in their sorrows instead of converting them into apothegms of experience. They are saturated with them, and they consume themselves by singing back each day into the misfortunes of the past. To forget is the great secret of strong and creative existence, to forget after the manner of nature, which brews no past and begins again every hour the mysteries of her indefatigable productiveness.—Balzac.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury, as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is tenfold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Start Girls Right!

Many beautiful girls become invalids for life, because at the crucial period of puberty they pay no attention to the laws of health. Mothers should protect their daughters' health by giving them necessary information and proper treatment. When the menses come on a girl unawares in her inexperience she is either frightened into convulsions, or scared into trying to check the flow. Many girls have checked the flow and it has never started again. And as a result they have grown pale-faced, with "crow-tracks" on their cheeks, and dark half-moons under their eyes. A dose of taken every morning after a girl is twelve years old will bring the menses on properly and keep them regular. It will help her to develop into attractive womanhood and equip her for the duties of wife and motherhood. All druggists sell $1.00 bottles of Wine of Cardui.

The Hollywood, Asbury Park, N. J., February 3, 1900.

I read your advertisement in regard to Wine of Cardui in the Baltimore American, and it so favorably impressed me that on my visit to Baltimore during the holidays I purchased a bottle of it for my adopted daughter, who was suffering with female troubles. She had been under the doctor's care for some time, and when her periods would come on her suffering was something terrible. I induced her to try it and the first dose brought on her menses. She took it regularly according to the directions, and was greatly relieved. To use her own words, "It saved my life." J. WESLEY CROSS.

We Have It at Last

For many years we have been trying to get a Bible containing exactly the features which, to our mind, would constitute as nearly as possible especially for the use of preachers and teachers. We have contracted for a large number of a Bible which we believe to be the nearest to a perfect book we have ever seen. It contains the AUTHORIZED VERSION, DICTIONARY OF PROPER NAMES, SUBJECT INDEX, CONCORDANCE, AND MAPS. The type is long primer, self-pronouncing. It is 6x8½ inches, and only 1 inch thick. Bound in the best levant morocco, divinity circuit (overlapping edges), calf lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges. By reason of the large number contracted for we are selling this splendid Bible at only a little more than half its regular price.

Glances at the World.

Cecil Rhodes, commonly called the "uncrowned king of South Africa," and the most conspicuous figure in politics and mining in Africa, died at Cape Town, on March 26, after an illness of several weeks. The Boers in South Africa owe their troubles largely to him, and they hated him above all men. Several years since, as is well known, he planned what is known as "the Jameson raid," which was nothing more than an attempt to overthrow the Boer government and take possession of the Boer lands. It was an infamous attempt to rob an innocent people of their rights and liberties. That he possessed a controlling mind, both as a statesman and a financier, nobody doubts, and in the years to come it is said his name "will stand high on the roll of the giants who have caused England's drum-beat to follow the sun," but "will not belong to the little band of immortals whose hearts were given to truth and justice alone." He was among the richest men of the British Empire, but wise men die and leave their wealth to others. "Man that is in honor, and understandeth not, is like the beasts that perish."

No department of the government is more imposed on than the Pension Bureau. The commissioner administers its affairs judiciously and honestly, but he does not give satisfaction to all parties, particularly to pension attorneys, who work up cases, often unworthy and without sufficient proof to justify the Bureau in granting relief. In that case many applications denied by the Bureau are carried to Congress and passed as private pensions. If the bill succeeds before Congress, the benefit to the pensioner is double what it would have been had the commissioner acted favorably. Had the Bureau granted the pension, the applicant would have received only $12, whereas, if he is relieved by Congress, his pension amounts to $24 per month. Of course, the attorneys work this for all it is worth, and trouble congressmen no little. A bill now in the hands of the President, if signed, will put a stop to this raid, and all applications be determined on their merits.

The cases of embezzlement of Cuban postal funds, which have been in court at Havana for more than a year, have at last been decided. The persons indicted are C. F. W. Neely, W. H. Reeves, and E. G. Rathbone. The three men were found guilty and sentenced as follows: Neely, ten years' imprisonment, and to pay a fine of $56,701; Reeves, ten years, and $35,516, and Rathbone, ten years, and $35,324. These gentlemen had a high time while handling government funds. They now realize that the way of the transgressor is hard.

MISSIONARY INSTITUTE AT WESLEY HALL.

BY REV. HENRY T. CARLEY.

MR. EDITOR: Every year, in the early Spring, there is held at Vanderbilt, in Wesley Hall, a Missionary Institute. Its main purpose is to train those who intend to spend the Summer in the Student Campaign; but that is by no means all it accomplishes. These Institutes are times of great spiritual quickening, and have come to be one of the most important features of the session's work.

This year the Institute began Friday evening, March 7, and closed the following Sunday evening. Each day's programme had been carefully prepared, and everything moved steadily forward. The meeting was under the direction of Rev. P. L. Cobb and Rev. J. E. McCulloch, and such men as Dr. Lambuth, Dr. O. E. Brown, Dr. C. F. Reid, Dr. Atkins, Dr. J. H. Stevenson, and Dr. E. B. Chappell, contributed their labors and inspiring words to make it profitable.

The students who will spend the Summer among the Epworth Leagues and the Sunday-schools, organizing mission study classes, placing missionary literature, and diffusing general missionary information, got much that will help them in their work. The history of the Student Campaign Movement, as brought out in the Institute, is interesting. In 1895 a medical student was conducting training-classes to instruct men engaged in selling stereoscopes. The thought suggested itself to him that the same plan might be adopted in training men for missionary work during their Summer vacation. The thought took shape, and Missionary Training Conferences were inaugurated. In our church the movement was introduced in 1898. That year eight students gave their vacation to the work, and every year since the campaign has been kept up with increasing good results.

In the opening address by Bro. Cobb the Forward Movement in the church at this time was sketched. One of its results is seen in the missionary collections. Last year there was an increase of $20,000 over the previous year, and four Conferences paid their assessments in full; this year there is an increase of $26,000, and seven Conferences have paid in full. One of the surest signs of missionary interest is the purchase of missionary books, and within the last ten months 7,547 volumes of missionary literature have been sold in our church. The New Orleans Conference was a great factor in the movement. Missionary leaders are being developed in the Conferences, and greater interest is being aroused. One feature of this Forward Movement in the South Georgia Conference received special mention: in that Conference individual churches support seven missionaries on the foreign field.

The movement is embracing the young people. Four years ago there was nothing in the Epworth League Constitution providing for special missionary work; now one meeting a month is regularly provided for on the topic cards. Mission study classes have been formed, with, perhaps, 1,200 members enrolled. It was brought out that different organizations for young people, whose work is largely missionary, have an aggregate membership of something like six millions. There are 70,000 students in the great Christian Student Federation of the World.

Saturday morning was largely given up to consideration of the practical work of the campaign. Bro. Cobb presented the possibilities of the Sunday-school missionary society. It can reach thousands not otherwise touched. The Epworth Leagues and the juvenile societies have a membership of only about 155,000; in the Sunday-school there are over a million.

At 11 o'clock Dr. Chappell spoke on "John Wesley and Modern Missions," and in the afternoon Dr. Atkins, who has so recently visited the field, gave a view of the situation in Cuba. The church has the opportunity to take that island for Christ, and the responsibility is upon her for the work.

Saturday evening Dr. Stevenson spoke on "The Universal Note in the Prophets," showing that even while the Jewish Church itself was a close corporation, the great prophets of Israel had a vision of the world-wide sway the religion of Jehovah was to assume. An interesting feature of the evening service was the report of the delegates who went from Wesley Hall to the great International Student Convention, recently held in Toronto.

Sunday morning Dr. Lambuth gave a sketch of the work of our church in its various fields—China, Japan, Corea, Brazil, Cuba, and Mexico. In every one of them the prospect is most encouraging, if only the church can furnish the men and the means to equip the work.

At 11 o'clock Dr. Brown presented "The Missionary Call." His words made a profound impression upon those who heard them.

Sunday afternoon Dr. Reid spoke on "The Urgency of Immediate Action."

The meeting Sunday evening was presided over by Dr. Lambuth. It was a quiet time for searching of heart and forming resolutions. One after another told how the missionary call had come to him, how the call had been yielded to, and the life laid on the altar of consecration to God's service. It was a spiritual time, and the very presence of God seemed to fill the room.

Year by year these Conferences are accomplishing much for the students in Wesley Hall, and we believe for the whole church, in the men who go out with hearts afire to preach the everlasting gospel, and to labor at home and abroad for the salvation of the world.

MILLSAPS COLLEGE NEWS.

BY PROF. H. E. YOUNG.

Dr. T. B. Holloman has just paid us a visit, conducting chapel exercises and delivering one of his talks to the students. Bro. Holloman reports that Rev. W. W. Graves, who is one of our best students, is doing especially fine work upon the Westville circuit.

At a recent meeting of the faculty it was decided to divide our college year into three equal terms, instead of two, as at present—a change which is expected to prove beneficial in many ways. Under this new plan the first term will close at Christmas.

We are glad to see the February number of the Millsaps Collegian. We wish that this excellent publication might circulate more largely among our constituency in Mississippi. This number opens with a good sonnet dedicated to George Washington by Rev. J. R. Countiss. Bro. Countiss is one of those exceptional men who have learned that fourteen lines do not necessarily constitute a sonnet. From W. F. Cook, '03, we have an excellent paper upon the "Egoist." From the remaining contents we should select for special mention the department, "Grit and Gold," made up of terse comment upon college affairs, with now and then an epigram. Some of the "poetry" in this number, however, is below the standard usually set by the editor.

We were very glad to have from Mr. F. E. Gunter an enthusiastic report of the Toronto Conference of the Students' Volunteer Movement. Certainly the Millsaps Christian Association could not have sent a more representative man. Mr. Gunter reports a large attendance of delegates from Southern colleges. He states that Bishop Galloway was present throughout the Conference, and delivered a number of addresses to the largest audiences greeting any speaker. The Bishop was heralded by the Toronto papers as "the orator of the convention."

Our visitors' list includes: Rev. Dr. W. C. Black, Rev. Bachman, Rev. Selby, Rev. T. B. Holloman, Bishop Galloway, Rev. J. T. Leggett, and Rev. W. F. Yarbrough, of the First Baptist Church. A number of visiting and local ministers attended Bro. Park's revival services from time to time.

Another very notable gift has been made to the college by our liberal benefactor, Dan A. James, of Yazoo City. We are not yet in possession of full particulars, but we understand that Mr. James has given several thousand dollars to provide a dormitory and chapter-house for the Alpha-Mu Chapter of the Kappa Alpha Fraternity. The chapter expects to erect a commodious house in the vicinity of the campus. For some years it has occupied a rented house on West street, opposite the campus. The administration of the two fraternities here has always been excellent, and they are regarded as one of our most valuable adjuncts.

The following freshmen have been chosen to speak in the declamation contest of that class at commencement: L. L. Mayes, A. H. Whitfield, Jr.; E. G. Williamson, M. S. Pittman, J. E. Carruth, J. H. Price, W. D. Hughes, L. Q. C. Williams, E. C. MacGilvray, J. F. Robinson.

Justice A. H. Whitfield, of our Law School, has been signally honored recently, having been invited to deliver the annual orations of the Bar Associations of three States—Alabama, Arkansas, and Louisiana.

We learn that our first graduate, F. M. Austin, '95, has just been elected county judge of Jackson county, Texas. He is a prosperous lawyer at Edna, Texas.

The Senior class is contemplating a trip to the Ozark Mountains in Arkansas for the purpose of geological investigations.

Rev. J. R. Countiss sends the following report of the revival services:

"The annual series of revival meetings has just been held at Millsaps College. The Young Men's Christian Association secured the services of Rev. J. C. Park, pastor of our church at Winona, and for more than a week he preached twice daily in the Y. M. C. A. Hall. From the first there was an interest genuine and deep, and the faithful work of the earnest preacher, the zealous Christian students, and the consecrated faculty, soon resulted in the conversion of a number of students. The new converts showed their faith by joining enthusiastically in the meeting and laboring for the salvation of others. The spiritual life and moral sentiment of the college have received a great uplift. The preaching of Bro. Park was exceptionally fresh, spiritual, and practical. He has a talent for illustration and fluency of language, and his open frankness captivated everybody on the campus. We hope to have him address us again."

NEWS FROM CENTENARY.

BY PROF. R. P. LINFIELD.

Rev. C. C. Miller, of Alexandria, one of the most active and useful members of our Board of Trustees, paid the college a short visit last week.

Rev. J. C. Morris, pastor of the First Methodist Church of Memphis, will preach the commencement and Y. M. C. A. sermons at Centenary in June.

The music for commencement this year will be furnished by Centenary Glee Club, composed entirely of students and professors who have worked hard to bring it up to its present point of excellence. Much credit is due to Mrs. S. C. Selwing for her skillful services in training the club, and the members will ever be grateful to her for her interest.

The honor roll for the past month, which is composed of the names of students whose average reached ninety per cent., is given below. For the college classes: Misses Jennie May and Mary Taylor, and Messrs. W. G. McDonald, L. O. Clark, A. K. Doss, W. L. Doss, L. H. Pearce, E. H. Hoffpauir, L. J. Buss, J. T. Nabors, W. H. Nelson, and G. O. Sanders; for the fitting-school: A. D. Ellis, J. C. Roberts, J. B. Reiley, W. P. Hickman, A. F. Smith, H. E. Townsend, C. E. Fike, W. G. Fleming, A. K. Goodrich, D. A. Sweeney, H. G. Lumpkin, E. S. Freeman, and S. G. Noble.

The boys of the Union Society will soon engage in a moot court, to which the public will be invited. This will be a very agreeable change from the regulation public debate. The high-license question will occupy attention, and will be debated by Messrs. Clark, Pearce, Holcombe and Hoffpauir.

We quote below from The Feliciana, one of our local papers. These few lines are appreciated by the friends of the college as well as by those of the devoted vice-president of Centenary, whose work is thus publicly recognized.

"It is highly probable that within a few months the dormitories of Centenary will receive a thorough overhauling, inside and out, and be equipped with modern furniture. A plan is also on foot to have the entire set of buildings, including the chapel and dormitories, steam-heated, and probably lighted by gas. Centenary is slowly, but unmistakably, on the up-grade. The attendance is now larger than for fifteen years past, and the prospects are in every way brighter. Much of this new life and vigor is directly attributable to the personal efforts of Rev. H. B. Carre, vice-president of the school. He seems to be specially endowed for the work, and possesses the happy faculty of reaching the hearts of pupils, patrons and the public at the same time. He combines in an eminent degree the necessary qualities of a thorough scholar and a practical business man and manager. Coupled with this is a most intense interest in the welfare of the school."

Mississippi Conference Endowment Fund.

To the Preachers in Charge in the Bounds of the Mississippi Annual Conference—

DEAR BRETHREN: This is not an appeal, but a statement of facts.

1. I made two appeals for the appointment of collectors of the Endowment Fund, which you had unanimously voted to do at the Conference in December, and asked you to report the names to me as president of the trustees of the Endowment Fund, the Joint Board having requested me—so the Rev. J. W. Chambers informed me—to take charge of the movement. I did not seek the responsibility. I have never aspired to be "a leader," but only "a worker" in the Conference, holding myself in readiness to do any work put on me by my brethren. I have never sought place or votes.

2. Since my two calls, or appeals, were published, nine of our pastors have reported names to me, as follows: Rev. J. W. Chambers, McComb, Rev. J. A. Bishop, L. P.; Rev. B. F. Lewis, Magnolia, Jo. E. Norwood; Rev. Geo. M. Hull, Florence, Dr. E. K. White; Rev. W. M. Sullivan, Court Street, Hattiesburg, J. A. Daimon; Rev. M. L. Burton, Summit, E. Ham. Easterling; Rev. Dr. W. L. C. Hunnicutt, Woodville, J. H. Jones; Rev. D. C. Langford, Trenton, S. D. Miller; Rev. Dr. H. Walter Featherstun, Moss Point, L. N. Dantzler, Sr.; Rev. W. B. Lewis, Yazoo City, L. A. Magruder.

3. Some brethren "have been waiting for the Minutes to come out," and some "have been considering whom to appoint," although they have been one, two or three years in their present charges. They are still "considering."

4. Some brethren "do not think Governor Jones' plan the best way to increase the Endowment Fund. We ought to put a man in the field." But they forgot or neglected to say so at Conference, and either voted for Governor Jones' plan, or else failed to speak or vote against it. Ought they not now to hold their peace and fall into line with the nine who do seem to be moving in "double-quick time"? Why not give Governor Jones' plan a trial for 1902, at least? We tried an agent in the field some years ago. He got some cash and several thousand dollars in notes—not one of which was ever paid.

5. Last year two laymen wrote some fine articles and made some sensible propositions in the columns of the ADVOCATE about this fund. I wonder if they are being "considered"? Yours faithfully,

T. L. MELLEN,
Pres't Conf. Fund Trustees.

A COMMON-SENSE VIEW OF WATER BAPTISM.

BY REV. I. L. PEEBLES.

It is believed that Jesus was immersed, but let us see whether or not it is possible for one to know that he was immersed, for if immersion only is baptism, and there is no other baptism but it, then it ought to be definitely known that he was immersed, and, therefore, to the task for such knowledge we shall betake ourself. It is written, "And Jesus, when he was baptized, went up straightway out of the water." (Matt. iii, 16.) "And it came to pass in those days, that Jesus came from Nazareth of Galilee, and was baptized of John in Jordan. And straightway coming up out of the water." (Mark i, 9, 10.) In the verse quoted from Matthew, "out of" is from the Greek preposition "apo," which our Baptist brethren have translated "from" in their New Testament, but the "out of" in the tenth verse quoted from Mark they have also in their New Testament, although it is from the same Greek preposition "apo." However, without anything further on this point, and for the sake of argument on the most liberal grounds, let us just allow that "out of" in Matthew and Mark in our Bible is all right, and that the Baptists made a mistake in not having it in the verse quoted from Matthew as well as in the one quoted from Mark, and, even then, can one know that Jesus was immersed? Does "up out of the water" mean immersion? It does not in common language, for it is often said, "He rode up out of the water," "He drove up out of the water," "He walked up out of the water," "He backed up out of the water," etc.; and at the same time the water may not have been deep enough to half cover one up if he had lain flat down in it. This is common sense, and anyone can see the point; but one may say, all that is true ordinarily, but not so in baptizing, for no one would go down into the water for baptism without being immersed.

Now, is it true that no one goes into the water without being immersed? Let us see about this matter.

1. We have pictures of people who went into water, and were baptized by having it poured upon them, and, too, just on their heads.

2. People in our times have gone into the water, and were baptized by having the water poured on their heads; some while standing and others while kneeling in the water. So common sense says, one may be baptized while standing, kneeling, sitting, and even while lying right flat down in the water, by having it poured or sprinkled upon him. But one may say that the word "baptize" means immersion, and nothing else; but let him look in all the English dictionaries, and he will see that it does not. He may say that the Greek word "baptizo," from which our word "baptize" came, means immersion, and nothing else, and hence it settles it that Jesus was immersed; but we noticed in a former article that "baptizo" means to sprinkle or to pour in the New Testament, and since it does, how can one know that Jesus was immersed? Does not common sense say that the water was most likely applied to him, by sprinkling or pouring, since he was a Jew, and was baptized by a Jew, and, too, that the word "baptizo" means to sprinkle or to pour? For the Jews understood water baptism in the sense of purifying or making clean, and this they accomplished by pouring, and especially sprinkling the water on the subject. Let us not forget that John's baptism was a baptism of repentance, and, too, that repentance means a wrong done, and a sorrow for the same. In that sense Christ was not, and could not be baptized, for he had done no wrongs to repent of, and hence his baptism meant more than that of others. It is true that it is claimed that Jesus set an example to be followed in baptism; but common sense comes in and says, "Why did he wait until the people were baptized before he went to John to be baptized himself?" Can not anyone see that if his example was to be followed, that he should have been baptized before anyone else? And, again, if he was to set an example, why did he wait until he was thirty years old? Did he mean by that, that all are to wait until they are thirty years old before they are baptized? Then many who die before thirty would not be baptized at all. Our Lord was made a priest, and that was the meaning of his baptism, and everybody knows that priests were not made by immersion, but by having the water applied to them. That our Lord was a priest is evident. The Scriptures declare he was, and that he was made a priest by John's baptism is clear from his appeal to John's baptism when he was asked, "By what authority doest thou these things?" (Matt. xxi, 23-27.) John's baptism made a priest of him, and, as such, he had a right to do just as he did. If he had referred to John's immersion as giving him authority, his enemies would have informed him that he had no more authority than any other immersed person, and, too, that those who had rightful authority in the temple did not receive it by being immersed, but by pouring or sprinkling. So there is no way for us to know that Jesus was immersed, but the way is quite favorable to knowing that he was sprinkled, or, in other words, that the water was applied to him. Now, common sense comes in again and says there is no support in the baptism of our Savior for the doctrine that immersion is the only baptism, or that it is baptism at all.

MISSIONS.

BY REV. R. S. LAWSON.

I can not understand that there is anything more in the Christian life than that of doing good to men. And it matters not who it is, nor where they are, if they be in the slums, or if they be in a palace, the Great Commission is to "preach the gospel," and live the gospel. Christ and the church are the themes of the whole Bible. Abraham's faith took hold of Christ, Moses preached Christ in the wilderness, the prophets declared his coming, the disciples followed him, and the noble apostle says, "I am not ashamed of the gospel, for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth." "They are slaves most base whose love of right is for themselves, and not for all the race."

The day has passed when a man can limit his activities or sympathies to work either at home or abroad. To put one line of effort over against the other as being necesssary is to admit failure in having read the words which God has written large across the skies of modern times. The organized forces for Christian work in the United States number at least twenty millions. Added to these are many more who stand ready to assist in every effort to uplift the race. Is it fair to say that the few thousands of these who are in foreign work ought to come home and assist the millions? When merchants, consuls, teachers and pleasure-seekers of the land are found in every country of the globe by the tens of thousands, can anyone begrudge a few teachers of the faith that has made our nation great? Hands enough for all the work are ready. Let the work be carried on here, and there, too. Let America do her work at home thoroughly, and also care for the oppressed abroad. Oh! but could the whole church be waked up to this all-important matter, it would double its contributions, and in a great many instances it would do ten times as much.

Again: Our land is improving the sanitary conditions of our cities. But she has stepped across the sea, and demands that every other nation shall fight disease. For selfish reasons we say the world must be clean, that we may be exempt from the plagues of other days. No one who has walked through the Midways of our recent large Expositions, or who has examined the moral filth pouring into the cities from oriental and tropical lands, can shut his eyes to the fact that we must adopt a moral quarantine by invading foreign lands with the purifying principles and life of the gospel of the Son of God. The bubonic plague is best stopped in its starting-place. Heathen practices and impurity also are most effectively combated where they first spring to light.

Many large gatherings are yearly being held in this country to report the work accomplished on the foreign field. No one listening to the account of God's working through these faithful men and women in China, Japan, Corea, Mexico, Brazil, and the isles of the sea, can help turning to the struggle at home with new determination. The man in our streets walks faster and does his work better when the news of success flashes across the water. The home and foreign missionary are each inspiring and upholding the other. He that has not got the heathen and sinner at heart has not got God in the heart. It was Christ that said, "Ye shall be my witnesses, both in Jerusalem, and in Samaria, and in Judea, and unto the uttermost parts of the earth!"

Redding, Miss.

THE NEED OF PERSONAL PIETY.

BY REV. R. B. DOWNER.

Possibly never before in the history of the church has there been such enthusiasm and activity displayed as may be witnessed in this century's beginning in all that appertains to church work—Epworth Leagues, Christian Endeavors, missionary societies for children, women, and the church in general; training-schools for missionaries, deaconesses to aid in home missions, church extension, and ministerial education. If souls are to be saved by good works, we surely are in the dawn of the millennium. No wise Christian will offer a disparaging word, nor endeavor to stay the zeal and enthusiasm now developing on said lines. Do all we may, yet it is no more than our duty to do. However, it is well to remember that being abundant in good works is not always certain evidence of divine acceptance. Many a dollar has entered the church's treasury that came from the wages of sin; many a church edifice has been built upon unscriptural foundations, as church rivalries often pass as love for Christ. Paul says, "We may give our bodies to be burned, and all our goods to feed the poor," and yet lack in love.

To be "a partaker of the divine nature," "to know Christ," "to be filled with all the fullness of God," "to walk in the light as God is in the light," "to have fellowship with God," are items of Christian experience absolutely essential to sanctify our good works, making them acceptable to God, as well as bestowing rest upon our souls here, and the felicity of heaven hereafter.

In our mad rush to eclipse the labor of others we fail to take time to become pious. We may be exceedingly moral and religious, and yet deficient in companionship with God.

Brother minister, if you doubt this statement, in the next round of pastoral visits ask these questions and record the answers: "Brother, sister, have you any special place in your home, or on your premises, sanctified (i. e., devoted to God), where, daily, you and the Lord alone are present?" Christ surely meant that such a place was to be expected in every Christian home when he said, "When thou prayest, enter into thy closet, and when thou hast shut thy door, pray to thy Father which is in secret, and thy Father which seest in secret shall reward thee openly." If such a provision exists for feeding the soul, ask: "Do you daily retire from all worldly duties, enter said sanctuary, reading God's Word with delight, meditating upon God's goodness, and through heart-searching prayer, aided by the Holy Ghost, learn just how and where you stand before God?" "Are you conscious of a growth in grace, nearer to God today than yesterday?" "Is there a burden for souls, outside the home circle, that often drives you to the mercy-seat?" "Can you say, 'It is my meat and drink to do thy will, O God?'"

If what we call the Methodist Church fails to develop personal piety in its members, to spread scriptural holiness over the world, I doubt its right to encumber the Lord's vineyard with its presence. I think a return to "band and class meetings," old-time love-feasts, family altars, and secret prayers, a groaning after Christian perfection, will oil up all the wheels of our church machinery, giving a momentum sufficient to cause "a nation to be born in a day."

HOME MISSIONS.

BY REV. W. B. WILLIAMS.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: Bro. J. A. Leech gave us a very able article in a recent issue of the ADVOCATE upon the home mission question. Bro. Leech knows what to say, and is not afraid to say it. There is no question in my mind that something should be done in the near future. It has been said that experience is a school in which no man has ever graduated, and yet I feel that some of us are entitled to a piece of sheepskin. I have had no trouble in finding brethren who have been more fortunate than some of the rest to tell us what to do—"Trust the Lord." We are all willing to do that, but are often not much willing to trust men to help him. What I am going to say now is not by way of complaint or egotism, but to make a statement. I have been on circuits for seven years, and have seven in family. The most that I have received for one year was $247.50; the least I have received in one year was about $125. All that I have received in seven years from our Home Mission Board was $123. I have taken into the church during that time something near five hundred people who claimed religion, some of whom have moved to town, and are to-day paying the preacher well. Why a man will not pay in the country as much as he does in town I can't tell; but not many do that. I know of many other preachers who have had about the same experience along this line. I am now on a circuit that paid the preacher last year $212.05. I have asked the Home Mission Board for the first time to help me, but have no assurance of getting anything. I often think of what some great lord said once, "Tell me, Mrs. Wesley, whether you have ever actually wanted bread." Her answer was, "Strictly speaking, I can not say I have; but I have so often been put to such great trouble in getting it, and then paying for it after it was gotten, that it is the next thing to having none at all." I know many preachers to-day who are having the same experience. There has been much said about sending strong preachers to those circuits in order to develop them. I am willing for my part. God send the day. I know that our brethren are all on the altar. I want it moved out on some of those hard circuits. I think most of the strong preachers of the North Mississippi Conference have been upon some of those circuits that I have served. They had about the same experience of the rest of us. Talk is one thing, doing is another. It seems to me there is one thing that ought to be done: Whether we send strong preachers, or preachers that are not so strong, that some provision ought to be made for the support of their families. God bless them!

Cornersville, Miss.

ANOTHER VIEW OF THE QUESTION.

BY REV. D. SCARBOROUGH.

MR. EDITOR: You published in the ADVOCATE, of March 6, under the heading, "Dancing in the Public Schools," the amendment of the North Mississippi Conference at its last session to the report of the Board of Education. The amendment is in the form of a preamble and resolution, and reads as follows:

"We are sorry to note that in our State Industrial Institute and College for our young ladies, located at Columbus, where 200 of our Methodist girls are in attendance, that the practice of dancing is allowed among the students. And since many of our young ladies return to their homes poisoned by this dissipation, thus becoming centers of worldliness in our churches; therefore,

"Resolved, That we express our disapproval of this amusement, and request the authorities of that institution to abolish this custom that is so hurtful to the Christian character of our young ladies."

Following this you quoted from The Mississippi Baptist, which, in a ringing editorial, strongly condemned the management of the institution referred to for permitting dancing among the students.

Now, I am as much opposed to dancing as anybody, and do not criticise the action of the North Mississippi Conference in passing the above resolution. Neither do I differ from The Mississippi Baptist in its denunciation of this hurtful amusement. I simply take another view of the matter.

If it is a fact that dancing is indulged in among the students at the I. I. and C., and that "many of our young ladies return home from that institution every year poisoned by that dissipation," and become "centers of worldliness in our churches," why is it that the fathers and mothers of our churches send their girls to that school? Why is it that there are 200 Methodist girls in that college to-day? If the Methodist Church had no institutions in the State for the higher education of her girls, the answer would be easy to give. But since we have such schools as East Mississippi Female College, Whitworth College, Port Gibson Female College, Edward McGehee, Grenada, and others that might be mentioned, there is no reason why any Methodist should send his or her daughter to Columbus to get an education. A girl can take just as high a course of study, and get just as thorough instruction in our church schools, as the I. I. and C. can give her, and it will cost her very little, if any more, money. Besides that, she will not return to her home poisioned by the dissipation of dancing, and become a center of worldliness in the church. Every Methodist has solemnly promised at the altar to support the institutions of the church, and yet some of them will send their girls and boys out from the very shadow of our church schools to State institutions, where they will be given liberty to engage in hurtful amusements, and come in contact with injurious influences. My brethren, these things ought not so to be.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL CONVENTION FOR THE SEASHORE DISTRICT.

Some time since it was announced that we would hold at Hattiesburg a District Sunday-school Convention for the Seashore district. Bro. Morse, our presiding elder, advertised this fact at each Quarterly Conference in making his round. Bro. Huntley and Bro. Sullivan, our pastors at Hattiesburg, and others, wrote to, I think, every pastor in the district, and others supposed to be interested in the Sunday-school work. In this correspondence each one to whom a part was assigned was notified of that fact, and requested to write whether or not they could and would attend, and take the part assigned them. Failing to receive more than two or three responses, each one not heard from was rewritten. Up to within ten days of the time set for the convention eight responses were received. Six of these eight wrote that they could not attend, and only two promised to come. This meant failure. Brother, did you help to cause this failure? In view of these circumstances, we decided not to hold the convention as announced, but instead to hold it in connection with the District Conference, which will be held at Brooklyn.

Now, brother, there has been one failure. Will you help to cause another, or will you help to make this a great success in His work? It is earnestly desired that every Methodist Sunday-school in the Seashore district should be represented in this convention. In the name of and for the sake of the childhood and youth of our church and land, I urge, I beg you, pastors, superintendents, teachers, and other interested working Christians, come. Take this matter up in your Sunday-schools at once, and send a good representation. Do not say you are not needed, or do not need the convention. Either you need the convention, or the convention needs you. I am sure both. Let nothing short of the insurmountable keep you away. Souls are hanging on your actions and on your teachings. Let us labor to be better equipped at every point. If you are coming, please write Bro. W. H. Huntley or Bro. W. M. Sullivan at this place. If you have been assigned a part, please at once write either of these brethren whether or not you will prepare the part assigned you and attend. If you are a superintendent, and can not possibly come, please at least kindly send a report of your Sunday-school, which should show the enrollment and attendance of officers, teachers, and pupils; amount of contribution for Children's Day, Rally Day, missions, Sunday-school supplies, and other purposes. Also any other information you can give concerning your school. If you can come, please bring such a report.

Now, brother, this is a personal invitation to you; your opportunity, your responsibility, your convention, not the other man's. It is important. One day you will be rewarded accordingly as you have embraced or failed to embrace these opportunities. Don't say "it is inconvenient." Come, if possible.

Remember the convention will be held at Brooklyn in connection with the District Conference, which will meet at that place on the morning of the last Wednesday in April. Keep this in your minds, in your hearts, and in your prayers.

Yours fraternally,

R. A. MAGRUDER.

IDLE WORDS.

"But I say unto you, That every idle word that men shall speak they shall give an account thereof in the day of judgment." (Matt. xii, 36.)

These words were spoken by the Son of God; hence are of vital importance to the world. As the Son of God, he knew the will of the Father, the truth as man had never known it before. "The law came by Moses, but grace and truth by Jesus Christ," Paul tells us. He is planting a tree that shall bear no evil fruit. The law, while surpassing anything the world had ever known, was a tree whose fruit was evil "according to the deceitful lust (of men)." The wisdom of the world, the devices of men affecting the destinies of nations, however sincere the effort to elevate man, were but idle words, the wisdom of man being but foolishness with God.

Even the learned men of Israel, whose conversation was in the law, spake but idle words. Jesus and his teaching becomes wisdom unto man, and no man is educated until his mind is clothed with the thought of God. The Word says, "Let this mind be in you which was also in Christ Jesus."

Again, Paul says, "But we have the mind of Jesus." Jesus says, "Howbeit, when he, the Spirit of truth, is come, he will guide you into all truth." Without this man teaches but idle words, and "he that increaseth knowledge increaseth sorrow." The gospel of the Son of God applied will deliver man from every evil under the sun, and take away the sin of the world, and there will be no more sea (of sin that covers the earth, and in which the souls of men are drowned).

ARTHUR ERWIN.

AN ERRONEOUS IDEA.

DEAR DOCTOR: In the ADVOCATE, of the thirteenth instant, in the article, "Dr. Steel Endorsed," "A Preacher's Boy" makes this statement: "Millsaps College is a good place for a young man, I'll admit; but I will not admit that it is a place where a poor boy can go."

We are sure that if the author of that statement had a clear conception of the circumstances connected with Millsaps College, and the possibilities for a worthy poor boy to get an education here, he would not make so bold a statement. If it were necessary, we could mention the names of a number of poor boys who have kept themselves at Millsaps College by being economical while here and working diligently during vacation. A good number of the present student body are doing this. After being one of this number for four years, I make the assertion that any energetic, worthy poor boy can get an education at Millsaps College.

Salt Rheum

It may become chronic.

It may cover the body with large, inflamed, burning, itching, scaling patches and cause intense suffering. It has been known to do so.

Do not delay treatment.

Thoroughly cleanse the system of the humors on which this ailment depends and prevent their return.

The medicine taken by Mrs. Ida E. Ward, Cove Point, Md., was Hood's Sarsaparilla. She writes: "I had a disagreeable itching on my arms which I concluded was salt rheum. I begnn taking Hood's Sarsaparilla and in two days felt better. It was not long before I was cured, and I have never had any skin disease since."

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Promises to cure and keeps the promise. It is positively unequaled for all cutaneous eruptions. Take it.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL DEPARTMENT.

Condnoted by N. A. MOTT, Yazoo City, Miss

To Whom All Communications for This Department Must Be Sent.

The Louisiana Convention.

The importance of this convention can not be too strongly impressed upon the minds and hearts of the Sunday-school workers of Louisiana. It is the only organization of the kind in the State, and where Catholicism is so strongly intrenched and the Sunday-school so widely scattered, it is wise to present a united front against a common foe. We believe it would be wise for the ministers of our church to talk up this convention, and endeavor to have their schools represented. A great many teachers, if induced to attend, must first be enthused by their pastors. To quote the words of one of Louisiana's Sunday-school workers, in speaking about writing for this Sunday-school column: "I would write more, such as it is, with the hope of doing some good; but, sad to say, the Sunday-school teachers most in need of exhortatiou do not take our ADVOCATE."

We understand that Prof. Hamill will be the principal speaker and instructor. Whether he will be present throughout the sessions and conduct an Institute, we are not informed. But his presence at all is a guarantee that it will be well worth the time and money necessary to attend.

A convention of this kind, where mind sharpens mind, arouses enthusiasm that will be felt all over the State. It will be a great aid to the teachers in learning how to teach, and in preparing them for effective Christian work. Pastors, superintendents, teachers and workers of Louisiana, rally to this convention, and make it a grand success.

CHILDREN'S DAY.

The time is at hand when preparation for Children's Day should be begun. One difficulty in many schools is that preparation is postponed until too late to hold it on or near the regularly appointed day, and by that time the enthusiasm dies out, warm weather comes on, and some of the teachers and pupils take vacations, with the result that the school has no observance of the day at all.

The Sunday-school Board of the Mississippi Conference has ordered the literature sent free to every pastor in the Conference, and we presume the Boards of North Mississippi and of Louisiana have taken similar action. We plead for a larger observance of the day than ever before. Let the collection be emphasized also, telling the children that the money is to be used to assist needy Sunday-schools. Let it be emphatically Children's Day—a day for the children to sing the praises of Zion, and a day in which they may decide for Jesus Christ. There is much profit in observing times and seasons. They are landmarks in the work of the school. Let the children be taught to look forward to this one as a time of refreshing from the Lord.

Select your delegates at once for the Louisiana Sunday-school Convention, which meets at Natchitoches, April 22-24. The schools of Methodism need such a gathering, and ought to be largely represented there.

We learned recently from the daily press that the officers and teachers of the Methodist Sunday-schools of Meridian, Miss., have formed a Union, the object being the general improvement of the teaching force, and the lifting of the Sunday-school work to a higher standard of excellence.

The tenth International Sunday-school Convention will be held at Denver, Col., June 26-30. Great preparations are being made for the event, and it promises to be a grand affair.

We learn from the Magazine, for April, that at the end of six weeks after the Study Circle was organized, over three hundred local Circles had been reported, and over 5,000 sets of the three books of Part I. had been ordered. Let the good work go on until every school in Southern Methodism has a Circle.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

WAYNESBORO, MISS.

EDITOR NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE: Our first Quarterly Conference finds the condition of this charge very gratifying. The salaries of pastor and presiding elder are paid in full to date, and the outlook for the year is encouraging. Though the pastor and his family arrived here in a down-pour of rain, the good people gave us a hearty welcome. The ladies have bought new furniture, and in other ways have added substantially to our comfort. The trustees have ordered lumber to improve the parsonage, which, by the way, is a very neat, comfortable building, far above the average. The church is a handsome modern building, a monument to the zeal of our late Brother Penn. Among the official members of this charge are several as deeply spiritual and consecrated men as I have ever had the pleasure of knowing.

Our sweet-spirited and lovable brother, Rev. W. W. Hopper, makes Waynesboro his home. He preaches every Sunday at half-past two o'clock at "Mission Hall," formerly the old Methodist Church. While we do not agree on certain points of doctrine, yet our relatiou as co-laborers in the Master's vineyard is friendly and cordial.

As to the health of Waynesboro, a local physician told me that when the census report was sent to Washington, it was returned with request to correct the mortality rate. There was no correction to be made. Whereupon the authorities there pronounced this one of the healthiest places in the United States.

There is here a public artesian well, from which flows an abundant supply of water, having the color, but neither the odor nor the effect of old Bourbon whisky. It is an alkaline water, and has effected some wonderful cures, especially in digestive disorders. Cattle are very fond of it, and, I am told, often refuse to drink other water until they can reach this. However, the water will not bear shipment, owing to the excess of ammonia.

Besides Waynesboro, we have two other appointments south on the Mobile and Ohio railroad Buckatunna and State Line. At both of these two places are many most excellent people, whose goodness of heart and genial hospitality make it a pleasure to serve them. Of these places I hope to say more at another time.

Waynesboro, though a small place, is almost wholly a Methodist town, and the people are easily able, financially, to make it a station, as it is hoped they will do next year.

The claims of the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE have been presented both in public and in pastoral visitation, and it is hoped that a copy will be placed in every Methodist home within the bounds of the charge.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

BATON ROUGE, LA.

DEAR DOCTOR: The great interest manifested in the services at the Second M. E. Church (South) at this place should, ere this, have impressed itself upon some member to send the good news through the ADVOCATE. Bro. Kleinschmidt is the happy possessor of virtues and accomplishments of wonderful drawing power. As a pastor, he is beloved for his untiring zeal in behalf of his people. As a preacher, he gives us of the unadulterated gospel. The attendance at the Sunday evening services taxes the church to its full seating capacity.

We are now in the midst of a prayer-week preceding a protracted meeting that will begin next Sunday. These services are largely attended, and already signs of a glorious revival are to be seen. Bro. Eli Riggs will assist the pastor in the meeting, and he will have the hearty co-operation of the membership, his only handicap being the fact that Bro. Kleinschmidt's congregations are loath to believe there are many who can measure up to the full standard of their preacher.

All departments of church work on this charge are in good condition, and steadily improving. The financial status is without a discouraging feature. We hope for a great revival, and to this end ask you, Mr. Editor, and the whole brotherhood to unite your prayers with ours.

Yours fraternally, MEMBER.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

TOCCOPOLA, MISS.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: We have been kindly received by the good people of Toccopola charge, and we are at work doing what we can for the cause of Christ. Our people have bought some new furniture for the parsonage, and they are doing all that they can to make us feel at home.

On the second Sunday in this month (February) we began a revival at this place, with Bro. W. D. Bass, of Corinth, Miss., to do the preaching. We continued eleven days, with good success. The membership was greatly revived, and we had sixteen additions to our church and some to the other churches.

On Thursday night after the meeting closed the good people of the town gave us a nice pounding, containing good things from the size of a toilet bar of soap to that of a barrel of fine flour. God bless the donors, and help us to minister to them in turn in spiritual things.

My brother preached in his old time power a clean, pure Methodist gospel, according to the Bible, to the entire satisfaction of the people. Winter meetings will always pay in many ways when it is possible to have them. J. H. BASS.

In my younger days, when a student, I frequently asked my mother to awake me at a certain hour, and she invariably did so. I could depend on her, and in the time of examination stress I could lay me down and sleep assured of being awakened. So I can lay me down and sleep, being certain that in the morning I shall awake in his likeness, for Christ is our redemption. We have the sure promise of his Word that those who suffer with him shall also reign with him.—John Robertson.

When the story of Chinese atrocities filled the papers and shocked the world, it was the women who drew the pity and sympathy of all. Doubtless many a wife who heard her husband's words of sympathy for these women thought with a pang, of the blindness of men to the suffering under their very eyes. It is true. The suffering of women in China was severe but short. Many a wife suffers for years with a daily agony of pain, her nerves shattered, her strength almost gone, and never hears a word of sympathy.

To women such as these Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription brings the opportunity of a new life of health and happiness. It establishes regularity, dries the drains which weaken women, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness. It makes weak women strong and sick women well. Accept no substitute for the medicine which works wonders for weak women.

"I had falling of internal organs and had to go to bed every month; had irregular periods, which would sometimes last ten or twelve days," writes Mrs. Alice L. Holmes, of Coolspring St., Uniontown, Pa. "Had also indigestion so bad that I could hardly eat anything. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Golden Medical Discovery' cured me. I took three bottles of the 'Favorite Prescription' and one of the 'Golden Medical Discovery.'"

Sick people are invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, free. All correspondence is held as strictly private and sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

THE FULLNESS OF SALVATION.

God has provided full salvation for all men through the blood of Christ. Not only may men have access to the Father through the Son, but pardon and cleansing, and thereby come into favor and communion with him. We call this full salvation. The term is not altogether appropriate, because it implies degrees in salvation—not in the sense of a lower and higher degree of the same thing, which is allowed, but more, it carries with it the idea that the soul may be brought into partial favor with God, and be only partially cleansed from sin. It is at this point that confusion arises, produced by misunderstanding and misuse of words.

Nothing is clearer than that the salvation in Christ is salvation from all sin. It is hard to make some men see this. They have no difficulty at all in believing that grace can save a man from one, or more, special sins. For example: Ask one if he believes that grace can save an individual from lying, and, without hesitancy, he will tell you, Yes. He will give the same answer when asked if grace can save a man from stealing, murdering, or from covetousness, etc., and so on through the whole catalogue of crimes. Not one sin in the long list will he acknowledge as being beyond the power of Christ to cure. But ask him if Jesus can save from all sin, and the probability is that he will draw back with a shudder expressive of doubt. Some will go so far as to deny the possibility with earnestness. In doing so they deny the fullness of salvation. This is inconsistent with their own admission as to Christ's power to save from particular sins, and also with the very purpose for which he shed his blood. It is a denial of the all-sufficiency of the atonement. Reason teaches that if grace can save one man from lying, and another from theft, and another from pride, etc., it can save one from all these sins, should he happen to be guilty of them, either in thought or deed. St. John declares, "The blood of Jesus Christ his Son cleanseth us from all sin."

It is probable that this denial in general grows out of the supposition that sin is inseparable from human nature, and that in some form men are bound to sin as long as they are in the flesh. This is another idea based on a misconception, viz: that depravity is sin—an idea that largely obtains. It is held by some, who believe in present, full salvation, so strenuously as to require men to repent of it, and seek to have it eradicated. If it be true that depravity is sin, then those who hold the inseparableness of sin from human nature have ground for their belief, for nothing is truer than that depravity, hereditary and inborn, is inseparable from human existence. But taking the position that depravity is not sin, but that sin is a transgression of the law, it is seen that, unless grace counteracts the evil tendency and puts an end to sin, the same must be a saving power in the soul.

It is but a middle ground to be occupied by those who fail to take acknowledging the power of grace to save from all sin, the work can not be accomplished until the moment of death. Then there is sufficient only to say, does not compare with St. Paul's statement, which ties the efficacy of grace in the present moment: "But now, being made free from sin, and become servants to God, ye have your fruit unto holiness, and the end everlasting life." In this expression the apostle does not teach that the end of life is freedom from sin, but that the end of freedom from sin is life eternal.

Wherein does the fullness of salvation consist? 1. In freedom from the guilt of sin. God, for Christ's sake, pardons the penitent sinner, and, though actually guilty, he is held and treated as if he had never sinned. The condemnation under which, as a sinner, he labored, is removed, and in its stead is a consciousness of pardon and acceptance with God.

2. It consists in cleansing from the pollution of sin. It is one thing to clear of guilt, another thing to make clean. Pardon and cleansing are really distinct in nature, but in the work of grace they come together. The soul is cleansed the moment it is justified. Cleansing is the work of the Holy Spirit, whereby the justified become new creatures, the partakers of a divine nature. By this same act the saved become sons of God. The birth is complete, and entitles the child to all the privileges and blessings that such a relation to God can possibly confer. Such children are not under the law, but under grace, and are, therefore, freed from the power and dominion of sin.

There are so many passages of Scripture that teach the importance, the necessity and the certainty of the cleansing power of the blood of Christ, when a soul puts itself in a proper attitude towards God, and consents to be saved, it seems useless to assert that the work is anything short of completeness. Every movement of God towards man through Christ and the Holy Spirit is for this special purpose. Christ came to seek and to save that which was lost—not to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance. God seeketh such to worship him as shall worship in spirit and in truth. Every call to repentance and faith and consecration and sacrifice has in it no other purpose than full redemption and sanctification. The means to this end is faith; the Agent through whom it is accomplished is the Holy Spirit. Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved. "But ye are washed, but ye are sanctified, but ye are justified in the name of the Lord Jesus and by the Spirit of our God."

To put the matter in a somewhat different light, we may say, fullness of salvation is manifested by freedom from outward sin. Forsaking sin is the very first evidence of a changed life; at the same time it is the lowest form of expression that a Christian life can take. And, alas! many professing Christians are content with this formal life, and never seek to know anything of the power of grace. This accounts for much of the low order of Christian living, and the ease with which converts are often made and brought into the church. There must also be freedom from inward sin—that sin which springs from the heart, and may exist and dominate when free from outward overt acts. This is essential. "In Christ Jesus neither circumcision availeth anything, nor uncircumcision; but a new creature." "He is not a Jew which is one outwardly, neither is that circumcision which is outward in the flesh: but he is a Jew which is one inwardly." Freedom from outward sin without inward cleansing amounts to nothing.

For until we are saved by the washing of regeneration and renewing of the Holy Ghost, can we claim fellowship with God and with the Son, nor is finally, personal holy, unblamable and unreprovable in the sight. Where lies he to cleanse ourselves from all filthiness of the flesh and spirit, and perfect holiness in the fear of God.

WOMEN AS PASTOR HELPERS.

We suppose no intelligent and active pastor ever failed to recognize the worth of good women in the church, and to employ them wherever it was possible to utilize their services. It would be hard for any pastor to get along successfully in his work without the help of women. This is true of work in the country as well as in the city. And we are now face to face with the question: Are we not more dependent on the women than ever? The strong efforts that are now being made to organize the women into a working force, and train them in schools for the business, suggest this. It does more. It suggests the growing indifference of men to the interests of the church, else it is an evidence that they are so busily engaged in their own affairs that they must, of necessity, employ others to do their work. Certainly it can not be that our women, as a whole, are not also commercialized, or indisposed to do works of charity in person, and must do it by proxy. But it looks that way.

Admitting the necessity of women helpers now, even to a greater extent than at any time in the past, we insist that our churches are fully qualified to select such as they need, and are abundantly able to support them while at work. If one church is not able, two can throw their strength together. And, if the work is as pressing as it is said to be, why not begin at once? Why wait? If what we hear is true, there are not only thousands of souls living in sin, in poverty and dirt, dying for attention at the hands of the church, but hundreds of young women (New Testament deaconesses are not to be thought of) standing idle, longing for the church to authorize them to enter the field. There is absolutely nothing to keep the churches from employing them—nothing to keep them from work.

Take the city of New Orleans, for example: Here a dozen women missionaries, or helpers, could be employed. Several of the churches do not need such help, but they could help other churches, and assist in employing missionaries in sections where there are no churches. There is no law against employing as many women helpers as are needed. Nor is there any reason why they should wait for the General Conference to authorize the Home Mission Board, or any other Board, to do the work that might be done just as well without waiting. What is true of New Orleans is true of all our large cities. Again, we say: Why wait?

Of course, we know why. One reason is, it is desired to institute an order. This can not be done for the whole church, and in the name of the church, without the authority of the General Conference. To call what is desired an order is to give it dignity. It would not be recognized without a name and a badge of distinction. Another reason is the workers must be trained. We are told that those who are to be set apart for the work must be so well instructed that they can enter the house of the poor and teach the women how to cook, how to keep house, how to care for children, and maintain them in their religious duties and privileges. All this will take time—at least two years—a long time to wait when the harvest is ripe, and plenty of mature women already better prepared for such work than any young girl can be at the end of two years' training ready if not assured of support while engaged in the mission.

Any city in our bounds can bring about conflict of action and employ their own missionaries, but as women as the case may demand. Nobody will object to such a plan. But if the business is to be put under a General Board, and the church at large is to be called on to furnish means to supply a few large cities with missionaries, no matter by what name they are called, there will be opposition at the start, and friction in the work.

DECISION DAY.

Much is being made of what is called "Decision Day"—a day set apart for the special purpose of getting Sunday-school children to decide for Christ. If we understand those who are foremost in this movement, they propose to have an annual observance of this day. There is no such day in the Methodist calendar, and as Methodists believing in and preaching the doctrine of experimental religion we should be careful how we take up with methods that in time may prove anything but beneficial.

We are not prepared to object in toto to the observance of the day. We prefer to wait awhile—to see more of the methods employed, and the effect on the young children of the Sunday-school. But we advise caution. There is danger of making the religion of our children too formal, if not entirely mechanical. There is danger of impressing them with the idea that what influences the Holy Spirit exercises in the work of personal salvation is reserved for a fixed period of time. This is the idea with reference to the catechumen in high churches. In such there is no full salvation without the laying on of hands of the Bishop, necessary to which is a long course of preparation. Hence appointments for confirmation. The idea connected with Decision Day is not so good. With the catechumen decision is the first step; then follows preparation and consummation in confirmation. Decision Day supposes that the children and young people have not decided, and that the day set apart must be used for that purpose.

Every day ought to be Decision Day with every soul out of Christ, young or old. And every Sunday-school teacher ought to press this thought home to the hearts of their scholars all the time. Having made up their minds to give their hearts and lives to Christ, they could then, in connection with the pastor, begin a course of training, and prepare them fully for taking the vows of the church. A day set apart for the reception of all who have decided, and given evidence of the genuineness of their faith, would be in order. If this is what is meant by "Decision Day," no objection can be urged. But if one day of the year is to be specially set apart by the Sunday-school to make special efforts to get Sunday-school scholars to decide for Christ, and have the whole work of salvation begun, continued, and ended on that day, the children will necessarily enter the race that may be ruinous in the interests of their souls every other day in the year. This would be calamitous.

One of the leading ministers of the last conference remarked a meeting for nearly a quarter of a century, stormy because, but, may state that he had not been a convert of religion a dozen years. That is strange. What is the matter? Immense crowds attend the ministry, and all are as eager to hear as ever. Has the revival power left the church or has the preacher's method ceased to be effective? This is a matter of serious concern, and should be more considered than the evangelist himself.

(Mr. Editor—A few weeks since I saw a communication in the Advocate under the above caption by a "Preacher's Boy." It struck me very much as timely and we have quite a number of boys at Millsaps and Grenada College, and in the cause of Christian education. An idea struck me that we could do a village or the poor boys and girls of Mississippi seems to have entered into young hearts to.

Now if this statement is true, and there being mailed, and our money misused, it is useless for Dr. Steel, or anyone else, of all of us to shout "wolf!" any more. We joined hands and hearts and purses to get these, and some of us put more in than we had to help the poor boys and girls. If we failed in these, we will not join Dr. Steel, or anyone else, for another.

The next thing in order is, for some one who has information to tell us what is the real state of things at Millsaps and Grenada; and if these are not schools for poor boys and girls, tell us why. These institutions belong to us, and if they are not what we want, and what they promised to be, let us make them what we want. They are just what we make them: this we are told year after year.

We have a high regard for Dr. Steel: so much so that we would not invite him to undertake an enterprise like that advocated by a preacher's boy, until we can get out of Millsaps and Grenada what we have put in them. We are neither willing nor ready until we hear from those in authority. But it is in order now for somebody to explain, and do it quick. It will save somebody trouble. When the cry for poor boys and girls is made, something is going to happen.

Out of our 100,000 Methodists and their friends, Millsaps, by this time ought to have an annual enrollment of at least 600 boys, and Grenada 300 girls.

Will some one please tell us what is the trouble? We have the poor boys and girls; we are sure of that. If our schools are not for these, they are not what we promised they should be, and they are not what we want.

If, after all we have said and done on the subject of a college within

A Cure for Rheumatism

OF WHICH ANY SUFFERING READER CAN HAVE A TRIAL BOX FREE!

Rheumatism has yielded to a new and simple remedy of which a trial box is offered free to all who suffer. Scarcely a grown person has escaped its twinges and thousands have been so deformed and misshapen that they hardly look like their former selves. If you are such a sufferer, send your name and address to John A. Smith, Milwaukee, Wis., and by return mail you will receive a trial box of Gloria Tonic free. This is the most wonderful remedy ever discovered, and has enabled many a person to abandon crutch and cane.

Rev. C. Sund, of Harrisville, Wis., testifies that Gloria Tonic cured two members of his congregation, one who had suffered 18, the other 25 years. Rev. W. Hartman, of Farmersville, Ills., writes: "Five boxes of Gloria Tonic cured Mr. A. Kulow, a member of my congregation, who had suffered day and night." Mr. E. S. Kendrick, P. O. Box 13, North Chatham, Mass., after using Rudiments for 18 years, writes: "I am convinced that it will cure any case." Mr. B. H. Marshall, Plain City Ohio, writes: "I am 76 years old, and had it not been for Gloria Tonic I would be no more among the living." Mrs. Mary E. Thomas, of No. 9 School St., Nantucket, Mass., writes: "From my childhood on I have suffered from rheumatism; have been cured through Gloria Tonic at the age of 83 years." Mr. J. N. McMaster, Box 13, Plain City, Ohio, writes: "Gloria Tonic cured me after prominent physicians of Columbus, Ohio, called me incurable."

Gloria Tonic in Point Pleasant, W. Va., cured Mr. R. A. Barnet, 77 years old, after suffering 15 years. In Menominee, Mich., it has been used with excellent results by Hon. Martin Van den Berg, Justice of the Peace.—In Perth, Miss., it cured Mr. J. C. Chapman, after suffering 30 years.—In Odessa, Me., it cured Mrs. Marion Mitchel, who had suffered 12 years.—In Elmhurst Ills., it cured Mrs. Nicolina Brumaud, age 89 years.—In Otis, Ind., it cured Mr. Christian Kranz after suffering 22 years. In Gift Tenn., it cured Mr. L. Nelson, a merchant, after suffering 20 years. In Hinton, N. Y., it cured Mr. Joe. Putney, 83 years old.—In Durand, Wis., it cured Mrs. Nellie Brees, after suffering 20 years.—In Manila Minn., it cured Mrs. Minna F. Peane, after suffering 14 years.—In Craig Mo., P. O. Box 134, it cured Mr. John N. Kruger, 70 years old, after suffering 15 years.—These are a few of the many thousand testimonials of recent date. Every delay in the adoption of Gloria Tonic is an injustice to yourself.

No matter what your form of rheumatism is—acute, chronic, muscular, inflammatory, sciatic, gout or lumbago—write us to-day sure, and by return mail you will receive the box and also the most elaborate book ever gotten up on the subject of rheumatism called "Rheumatism; Its Causes and Cure," absolutely free. It is illustrated with numerous stippled drawings from actual life and treats every form known to science. It will tell you all about your case. You get the trial box of Gloria Tonic and this wonderful book at the same time both free. So let us hear from you at once, and soon you will be cured.

Mississippi Conference Brotherhood.

NOTICE.

Another assessment. This is No. 30. On the death of Rev. J. W. Harmon. Four since the last session of our Conference. Yet let us not be discouraged. Hear me in a few words. 1. Our Brotherhood was organized in Natchez, December, 1882, if I mistake not. The charter dates Feb. 23, 1884. It has been in existence now nearly twenty years, and only thirty deaths have occurred in our ranks, including the four we have had since Conference. This remarkable coincidence, the occurrence of so many in so short a time, may never take place again.

2. It occurred to me, when the death of Dr. Harmon was announced, to write to the parties interested, and get their consent to have the assessment on his death deferred until the fall of the year, inasmuch as three assessments had already been issued since Conference. But I was very sick at the time, and before I was able to do so, the assessment had been issued. However, it may be best as it is.

3. Now, will not the churches whose pastors are members of the Brotherhood come to the help of their pastors in this matter? Some may not need it, but others will. A word to the wise is sufficient.

4. One other suggestion. Without an effort, more than a mere statement of facts, a number of the members of my church in Yazoo City volunteered to join the Brotherhood as honorary members. This might be done, it seems to me, in almost any congregation in our Conference. We might thus enlarge our borders, and increase our usefulness. Then it might be well to appoint one of the number to collect and remit the mortuary fees. This would be simple and practical, and it might facilitate the payment of assessments.

Missionary Institute.

To the Preachers of the Brookhaven District—

DEAR BRETHREN: Please remember that our Missionary Institute will convene in Hazlehurst, Tuesday evening, April 8, at 7:30 o'clock, with the opening sermon by Rev. T. H. King. A full programme has been prepared, and every one who has been assigned a place on it is expected to be present without fail, to do his part in making the occasion profitable.

Dr. C. F. Reid, Superintendent of our Mission in Korea, will be present to enliven and enrich the Institute with talks on the work in the far-off fields. Rev. T. L. Mellen, our own Conference Missionary Secretary, will be with us also with his words of wisdom and burning zeal.

Every preacher in the district is expected to be in Hazlehurst at 7:30 o'clock P. M., Tuesday, April 8, and remain till the close of the Institute, Thursday, the tenth. Let us make this meeting the very best we have ever had, and draw from it an inspiration that will quicken our spiritual life and vitalize our latent energies. Yours most cordially,

B. F. JONES, P. E.

REV. WALKER'S FAMOUS DYSPEPSIA CURE.

Famous for Glorious Achievements.

The recognized unfailing scientific Cure for Dyspepsia, Nervous Indigestion, Constipation, Acidity, and Biliousness. Relief in one minute, with first dose; quickly effects a permanent Cure. Never fails. Neutralizes and eradicates dyspeptic poison. An absolute specific. Very palatable, perfectly harmless, as gentle as nature in effect. Neglected Dyspepsia and Indigestion produces "Blight's Disease," undermines the vital organs, overthrows the mental faculties, producing insanity and death.

Mr. J. G. Thompson, Aneeta, Fla., voluntarily writes: "I suffered agonies from Dyspepsia. Walker's Famous Dyspepsia Cure quickly cured me. I gained 14 pounds in one month. My friends are astonished at my quick recovery. A wonderful medicine."

Rev. F. M. Martin, Van Wyck, S. C., "Best Dyspepsia medicine I ever knew."

Rev. R. M. Boone, editor Baptist Chronicle, Alexandria, La., "Doing finely in my wife's case."

Mr. Leroy Turner, Sparta, Ga., "I could scarcely eat anything; two doses completely relieved me."

A HELPING FUND.

We have many calls to send the ADVOCATE to poor, aged persons at a reduced rate. This we always do. Are there not many persons, well-to-do in this world's goods, who will send us money—any sum they may see fit to give—to supply the ADVOCATE to persons who would like to have it, but are unable to pay anything? We will gladly send it to such for one dollar a year. We hope to get many responses to this appeal. Let those who respond designate the names of those to whom they desire the paper sent, or give the money to their pastors, and let them send the names. If names are not sent, the editor will do the best he can. Who will first respond?

The Commoner

(Mr. Bryan's Paper)

The Commoner has attained within six months from date of the first issue a circulation of 100,000 copies, a record probably never equaled in the history of American periodical literature. The unparalleled growth of this paper demonstrates that there is room in the newspaper field for a national paper devoted to the discussion of political, economic, and social problems. To the columns of The Commoner Mr. Bryan contributes his best efforts, and his review of political events as they arise from time to time can not fail to interest those who study public questions.

The Commoner's regular subscription price is $1 per year. We have arranged with Mr. Bryan whereby we can furnish his paper and NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE together for one year for $2.25. The regular subscription price of the two papers when subscribed for separately is $3 net. When remittance is made by personal check ten cents extra will be charged.

TRAINED NURSE CURED BY SWAMP-ROOT.

USED BY HOSPITALS—PRESCRIBED BY DOCTORS.

To Prove what Swamp-Root, the Great Kidney, Liver and Bladder Remedy, will do for YOU, Every Reader of "CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE" May Have a Sample Bottle Sent Free by Mail.

Miss Alice Brown, the well known trained nurse, is in a position to speak with knowledge. She was formerly with the St. Louis Baptist Hospital and has had many trying experiences in her arduous vocation. She adds her valuable testimony to the thousands already received by Swamp-Root. She said in a signed interview with a reporter of the St. Louis Star:

MISS ALICE BROWN.

"Although a woman in my position can receive plenty of prescriptions from physicians without cost, it was upon the advice of a well known West End Doctor that I began to take Swamp Root. No. I will not tell you his name for he might not like it. But all the same, I took it when I was run down from night work in the sick room. I was thin and yellow and tired even when I rose from my sleep. Swamp-Root gave me a relish for my food and cleared my blood from its stagnant impurities. Of course I do not praise Swamp-Root as a cure for all troubles, but it is splendid for the kidneys, stomach and bowels and relieves female disorders when all other remedies have failed to give relief. I know of many cases in the hospital cured by this wonderful remedy.

Alice Brown

1519 Semple Ave., St Louis, Mo.

Weak and unhealthy kidneys are responsible for more sickness and suffering than any other disease, therefore, when through neglect or other causes, kidney trouble is permitted to continue, fatal results are sure to follow.

We often see a relative, a friend, or an acquaintance apparently well, but in a few days we may be grieved to learn of their severe illness, or sudden death, caused by that fatal type of kidney trouble—Bright's Disease.

The mild and extraordinary effect of the great kidney and bladder remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root, is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. Hospitals use it with wonderful success in both slight and severe cases. Doctors recommend it to their patients and use it in their own families, because they recognize in Swamp-Root the greatest and most successful remedy. A trial will convince anyone—and you may have a sample bottle free, by mail.

EDITORIAL NOTE—If you have the slightest symptoms of kidney or bladder trouble, or if there is a trace of it in your family history, send at once to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., who will gladly send you by mail, immediately, without cost to you, a sample bottle of Swamp-Root and a book telling all about Swamp-Root and containing many of the thousands upon thousands of testimonial letters received from men and women cured. In writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure to say that you read this generous offer in the NEW ORLEANS "CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE."

If you are already convinced that Swamp-Root is what you need, you can purchase the regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles at the drug stores everywhere. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

The Seeds of Kindness.

A big parade was passing through the city streets. There was the usual crowd of spectators elbowing each other for the best places. The small boy of the bootblack and newsboy type was everywhere. There could be no doubt but that he would see all of that wonderful, glittering array. He sat on top of hitching-posts, looked from the roofs of buildings, hung halfway up on telegraph poles, clung to the supports of bill-boards, or at the very least occupied the front rank in the street.

A crowd of these happy little fellows had secured a good place on the shady side of the street. Some had their blacking kits swung over their shoulder, and all were munching peanuts or candy. Along the street came a weary-looking, poorly dressed woman pushing a little crippled girl in a wheeled chair. The brass bands were heard in the distance, and the children along the line began to shout, "There it comes." The woman looked anxiously at the dense ranks of sightseers, hoping for an opening through which she could push the little chair. No doubt she had walked a long way for the sake of bringing a glimpse of pleasure into the child's hard life. But the people who saw her trying to get through were selfishly intent on their own enjoyment, and, instead of making room, turned away from her and stood rigidly in their places. Just then one of the boys saw her. He turned instantly to his companions.

"Say, fellows," he said, "there is a little lame girl that can't get a place. Most likely she don't get many chances to see a parade, and we can see all that come to town. Let's give her our place, and we can run farther up the street and get another."

"All right," came from half a dozen of the boys at once.

The boy who had spoken pushed through the crowd.

"Say, missus," he said, "you can have our place out here for the little girl."

With the boy's help the chair was quickly guided to the place, and the boy with his companions ran away. He was only a ragged little street urchin. His language was plentifully interlarded with the roughest slang, but he had the divine spark in his soul, and all who saw the simple, unassuming deed were glad to think that the seed of kindness is found everywhere and bears fruit in the most unexpected places.—Ex.

Some Other Man's Boy.

The father who had left his son in one car, while he went into another to transact some business with the conductor, should have taken more careful notice of the location in which the boy was left. The Detroit Free Press tells the story and describes minutely the instructions given by the father to his boy.

"Now, Willie," he said, "I'm going to be away just a few minutes. You sit right where you are, and don't you move a bit. If you do, I'll spank you good and hard. So don't stick your head out of the window. You might have it taken off if you do. Then you wouldn't have any head, and you'll get a spanking besides."

The man went away to find the conductor. After a few minutes he came back.

There was Willie with just his feet and seat of his trousers sticking in through the window. He seemed to be more outside than inside, and moreover, whenever a telegraph pole whizzed by and looked especially close, he would make a lunge for it, as if trying to catch it.

The father did not hesitate long. He made a grab for the boy just as the latter was making a lunge for a pole. He pulled him in by the heels, laid him over his knee, and began to fulfill his promise. The little fellow yelled and yelled until he almost drowned out the noise of the train; but during a lull in the uproar the father heard a snicker behind him. He laid the boy down and turned around to see what it meant.

There was his son, two seats behind and across the aisle, with two fingers stifled in his mouth to keep his merriment in. The man looked again and rubbed his eyes, but there was no mistake.

He looked at the boy in his lap. Behind the tears was a face he had never seen before. He had spanked some other man's son.—Exchange.

Too Fine for Use.

When Grandma Cook came home from the picnic she asked with interest about the different villagers whom she had seen for the first time.

"Who was the handsome young woman who poured the tea?" she asked. "A thin, pale, melancholy girl—very quiet. I did not see her smile once."

"Oh, that," said her niece, "is Annie Gordon. She's always that way."

"Has she lost friends? She was not in mourning."

"No. Her people are all living, but they are rather commonplace, while Annie is a girl of ideas and originality—almost a genius. She wrote very good poetry at school. But the Gordons are poor. They could not send her to college. She wanted so much to go abroad—to see Greece and Rome; but that, of course, was impossible. She is a saleswoman in Bryce & Potts' store. But she is always melancholy, as you see her now. She lives apart, makes no friends, hardly knows the name of her next-door neighbor. Always turning over in her mind her dreams, I suppose."

Mrs. Cook knitted in silence awhile. "It puts me in mind of Prudence Maxwell's shawl," she said. "Did I never tell you of that? Well, Prudence's uncle brought her a real cashmere shawl when she was a young girl. It was like a picture, with its fine texture and dull, wonderful colors.

"'Hang it up,' we all said, 'on the wall. Let people enjoy it. Nobody in the village ever saw such a thing. It will be a pleasure to us all.'

"'No,' indeed,' Prudence said. 'It would fade. I can't spoil it that way.'

"So it was folded in tissue-paper, put in a box and hid away.

"Prudence married, but the shawl was not just the thing to wear, even on her wedding morning. Her daughter grew up. We begged Prudence to give it to her as a bridal gift. 'No,' said she, 'I will leave it to her when I die.'

"Well, she did die at last. The box was opened and the shawl lifted out. It fell into rags! The moths had done their work, and all the beauty was wasted.

"Now, neither Annie Gordon nor any other girl has a thought too high or a fancy too fine for every-day use. If she would put their beauty or purity into her talk with her old father and mother, or into her actions in the store, they would make her life beautiful and a blessing to the world."—Youth's Companion.

Respect Your Work.

A boy is usually set to do drudgery when he first begins any trade. He must kindle fires, sweep stores, care for stables, etc. These things are tiresome, and appear to be of little use in teaching him his future business. They are very important tests of his character, however, and he is wise if he treats them as such, and attends to them as though he believed they were of consequence.

A distinguished merchant owed his first advancement in business to the way he attended to mere drudgery. He had to take care of two horses, look after the lamps, and care for the horse-sheds. His lamps always shone and gave good light; he kept the barn where the horses were clean and neat; the ground in the sheds was carefully swept every morning, and some loose bricks which were apt to fall down would be carefully piled. One day the head partner of the firm, who lived at a distance, put his horse under the sheds. When he backed him out the horse knocked down some of the bricks.

"Pick up those bricks!" said the man to the boy who had come to put some packages into the carriage.

That was all the recognition the boy received, and it was the first time that the great man had spoken to him. But the next day the same man came again. He was seen looking about the stable and talking with the manager of the store. In a week the boy was promoted to the charge of a department which called for special faithfulness, and from that time rose rapidly.—Selected.

MRS. VIRGINIA ELIZABETH RENCHER, one of the most faithful and best-loved members of our church at Enterprise, Miss., passed peacefully to her eternal reward Feb. 12, 1902. She was the daughter of Samuel H. and Susan B. Coffman, and was born in Sumter county, Ala., Sept. 3, 1838. Her father died when she was but two years old, and her mother afterwards married Elias Brown, of Gainesville, Miss. She was converted under the preaching of Dr. P. F. Neely, and joined the M. E. Church, South, in her thirteenth year, while attending school in Marion, Ala. After leaving Marion she attended several schools, Barton Academy, Mobile, Ala., being one of them. At the early age of eighteen she was married to Dr. C. E. Rencher, of Enterprise, Miss., who, in feeble health, but steadfast faith, awaits his summons to join the loved ones in the better land. She was the mother of eleven children, five of whom—four sons and one daughter—preceded her to the eternal world, while the six remaining daughters—four married and with families of their own—are pressing forward with Christian faith and zeal to the glad reunion in the Father's home. She was devoted to Christ and his church, and an active laborer in all branches of its service. Until the wasting disease of which she died laid its interdict on her going, she regularly filled her place in Sunday-school and at public worship. Naturally retiring, the deep experiences of her soul were only revealed to those whom she thought would be particularly interested or helped. She recognized, like a true woman, that her first duty was at home, and with blessed assurance she can say to the Master, "Those whom thou hast given me I have kept." Her cheerfulness and appreciation of attentions in her last illness were most beautiful. Those who went to comfort her felt themselves inspired and inspirited by the visit. When asked her of her spiritual state she quickly replied: "Oh! that is all right. I stranded on that long ago. The bed of suffering is no place to prepare for heaven." At the end she was anxious for the Lord to stay her breath and take her home. And he did, for, as quietly as a hushed babe in its mother's arms, she fell asleep that night to awake in the fearless palace of God. The recital of her Christly life is enjoy abundant. The memory and influence thereof is a royal heritage to those who miss her most, and a sweet incense in the minds of those among whom she lived and from whom she has gone. "Well done, thou good and faithful servant; enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."

H. M. ELLIS.

MRS. NETTIE FELTS (nee McCarley) was born Oct. 7, 1881; married Mr. David Felts in 1900, and died Feb. 19, 1902. She joined the M. E. Church, South, during the Summer of 1900, under the ministry of Rev. T. W. Lewis, in which she lived a consistent Christian until the Lord said, "Come up higher." The assumption of the church vows meant to her a complete and unconditional consecration of life to the service of Christ; hence she readily and cheerfully assisted in every enterprise that tended to advance the interest of Christ's kingdom. She loved home dearly, and diligently labored to render it beautiful and lovely to her devoted husband. In this she was fully rewarded, for their home life seemed replete with continued contentment and happiness. Her place in Sunday-school and church was never vacant when physically able to be present, for she allowed nothing else to interfere with her attendance upon the services of the sanctuary. Of course, the end of such a life must be peace. She gloriously triumphed over death, her last words being full of assurance of a safe entrance into the realms of bliss, thus leaving a legacy to her bereaved husband, parents, relatives, and infant boy, richer and more precious than any worldly wealth. May all the sorrowing loved ones endeavor to emulate her example here, and meet her above, where parting will be no more!

EUGENIA JOHNSON.

Died in Natchitoches parish, La., Jan. 25, 1902, WM. FLETCHER SANDELL. He was born in Mississippi, Nov. 19, 1827. Bro. Fletcher was married to Miss Mary Jane Conerly, July 27, 1852. To this union was given five children—two girls and three boys—all of whom are still living but one, who died just a few days before his father. Bro. Sandell had been an invalid for a number of years, having been paralyzed in one side since the fifth day of September, 1884; but in all this time of affliction he bore it with Christian fortitude. He was brought up by Christian parents, and attached himself to the M. E. Church, South, in early life. Ever afterwards he lived a consistent member of the same. As long as he was able he was an active worker in his church, especially in the song service. Well do I remember, at a revival service at old Holly Grove Church, when Bro. Fletcher got happy, and stood in the altar and sang alone, "When I set out for glory," etc. And now we have no doubt but his departed spirit fully realizes the sentiment of the song, "And to glory I will go." Thus another Christian man, after having lived his allotted time and more, has crossed over the Jordan of death to be at rest for evermore. May the Lord sustain his afflicted and bereaved companion, with her dear children, realizing their loss is his gain!

JOHN FRANKLIN.

MRS. ADALIA MCCOY (nee Young) fell on sleep at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Mary Morris, in Acadia parish, La., Jan. 19, 1902. She was born in St. Landry parish, La., in July, 1826. Her parents were among the early settlers of the parish, and in their home the early Methodist preachers found a cordial welcome. She often spoke of Bros. Uriah Whatley, B. F. White and Dr. Frazee as those who sowed gospel seed whose fruit we are now reaping. In many respects she was a remarkable woman. She possessed a wonderful memory, whose mental faculties age had not dimmed. She was well versed in the Bible, and her faith in the sure promises of God life's storms had only strengthened, and her faith in the ultimate triumph of the gospel of Jesus could not be shaken. Her faith was never more buoyant than on the evening before she died. To her pastor she repeated part of Hymn 561, "Though troubles assail." Her kind words and bright spirit had to many a disheartened heart. She had a place in her heart for everyone, ardent love for her church; for its welfare she labored, and for its purity she prayed. No one doubted Aunt Della's readiness for the summons. May her loved ones meet her!

J. J. KELLY, P. C.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

Whereas, On Saturday, March 1, 1902, Mrs. EDD POPKINS, our beloved sister and fellow-worker in the cause of foreign missions, suddenly passed from this life to her final rest, we, the members of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of Jefferson Street Church, Natchez, Miss., do resolve,

First. That although she has passed from us, she will ever live in our hearts as a quiet, gentle Christian character.

Second. That while we submit to the will of Him "who doeth all things well," we deeply regret her loss, and shall endeavor to emulate her in the faithful discharge of Christian duty. As treasurer of our branch of church work, she was untiring in her zeal and efforts to keep the finances up to the required standard.

Third. That we tender our heartfelt sympathy to her family and other relatives, and we pray they may ever hear the comforting voice of Him who said, "What I do thou knowest not now, but shalt know hereafter."

Fourth. That a copy of these resolutions be sent the family of our departed sister, and that they be spread upon the Minutes of our society.

MRS. ROBERT F. READ,
MISS SUSIE H. READ,
Committee.

Died at Slate Line, Miss., Feb. 28, 1902, little MAUDE BUNNAY, the youngest daughter of Mrs. Robert J. Briggs, Jr. The joy and light of a loving household, after a brief earthly sojourn of just eight years, her gentle spirit was borne by ministering angels to the paradise of God. It is not the will of Him who "doeth all things for the best" that one of these little ones should perish. They are lambs of the upper fold, faultless before the throne, and jewels on the Savior's diadem. The bleat of the lamb in the Shepherd's arms says, "Come up hither." A large concourse of friends and neighbors assembled at the church, whence, after the funeral rites were over, the little body was borne by loving hands to the cemetery, and laid beside the father and little companions, who, together, now await the final and inseparable reunion of the family.

We Have It at Last

For many years we have been trying to get a Bible containing exactly the features which, to our mind, would constitute as nearly as possible especially for the use of preachers and teachers. We have contracted for a large number of a Bible which we believe to be the nearest to a perfect book we have ever seen. It contains the AUTHORIZED VERSION, DICTIONARY OF PROPER NAMES, SUBJECT INDEX, CONCORDANCE, AND MAPS. The type is long primer, self-pronouncing. It is 6x8½ inches, and only 1 inch thick. Bound in the best levant morocco, divinity circuit (overlapping edges), calf lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges. By reason of the large number contracted for we are selling this splendid Bible at only a little more than half its regular price.

For the Annual Reunion United Confederate Veterans, to be held at Dallas, Texas, April 22 to 25 inclusive 1902, the Texas and Pacific Railway Company will sell round-trip tickets from stations on its line in Louisiana at exceedingly low rates—in fact, at lower rates than have been announced to Dallas for a long time.

Tickets will be on sale from points in Louisiana, April 19, 20, 21, 1902, limited for return to leave Dallas, April 30, 1902 with privilege of extension to May 15, provided tickets are deposited with Joint Agent at Dallas on or before April 30, and a fee of fifty cents is paid at time of deposit. Tickets are limited for continuous passage in each direction, but for the benefit of those desiring to visit other points in Texas at special rate of one and one-third fares for the round trip will be authorized from Dallas, tickets to be sold April 25 and 26 with final limit for return May 14. These side-trip tickets will permit stop-overs at any point both going from and returning to Dallas.

Any one of our agents will be glad to arrange for sleeping car accommodations and explain to you any points connected with the trip, or we will be glad to have you write direct to us for further information.

Woman's Foreign Missionary Society.

The Annual Meeting of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Louisiana Conference will be held at Rayne Memorial Church, April 24-27, inclusive; opening service on the twenty-fourth, at 8 P. M. It is earnestly desired that each Auxiliary be represented. Send names of delegates to Mrs. F. A. Dicks, 1913 Napoleon avenue, New Orleans, as soon as possible.

MRS. W. H. LAPRADE, Pres.
MISS LIZZIE PAXON, Sec.

General News.

The damage by the storm in Pittsburg will reach several hundred thousands of dollars.

Waters are receding in portions of the flooded districts of Mississippi, but at points along Pearl river the situation is serious.

The Ways and Means Committee of the House, by a vote of 12 to 5, ordered a favorable report on the Payne bill for a 25 per cent. tariff concession to Cuba.

Mr. Kruger, D. Leyds and the Boer delegates in Europe will hold a meeting at Utrecht, April 2 to consider the situation in view of Schalk-Burger's peace movement.

In a bull fight at Jarez, after the slaughter of several bulls and horses, a wounded bull caught a matador on his horns and tossed him lightly over his shoulders. A number of Americans chased the bull and nearly precipitated a riot with the Mexican populace.

This letter appeals to you to try one month's treatment and be convinced that the Tablet is the initial incident to health in all of its most coveted phases, and I know you will do like Mr. Mallory.

Mallory, Ga.

Mr. T. J. Hunt, Merom, Ind.

Dear Sir: Enclosed please find one (1) dollar, for which send me six months' treatment of "Hun.'s Digestive Tablets." I sent to you for one month's treatment some time since, and they have been quite beneficial to my general health, and have recommended them to a lot of people.

Yours truly, A. H. MALLORY.

Less Than One Bottle Did It.

A sufferer writes: "Can certainly say that Hagbes' Tonic is the best chill remedy I ever heard of. Used only part of a bottle, and need no quinine, and it cured me." Sold by Druggists—50c. and $1.00 bottles.

ADVOCATE OFFER.

Magic White Soap, advertised in our columns, is manufactured in New Orleans by a responsible company, who can be relied on to do what is promised. The soap is what is claimed for it. There is none better on the market. A fair trial has been given it at the home of the editor, and the good wife, who knows what soap is, says "it is about the best she ever used." Our lady readers would do well to give this soap a trial. Send for a box of twenty bars—one dollar; charges paid by the manufacturer.

We make the following offer: We will furnish one box of this soap, and the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for one year, for $2.50, to new subscribers. We make the same offer to all who will pay up back dues, and send $2.50 additional. Cash must accompany the order. Address

JNO. W. BOSWELL,
512 Camp St., New Orleans.

MOZLEY'S LEMON ELIXIR.

A Pleasant Lemon Tonic.

For biliousness, constipation, and appendicitis. For indigestion, sick and nervous headache. For sleeplessness, nervousness, and heart failure.

Dr. Mozley's Lemon Elixir is prepared from the fresh juice of lemons combined with other vegetable liver tonics, and will not fail you in any of the above-named diseases. 50 cents and $1.00 bottles at druggists.

LEMON ELIXIR.

I fully endorse it for nervous prostration, headache, indigestion and constipation, having used it with most satisfactory results, after all other remedies had failed.

J. W. BOLLO.

A Banker Praises Tyner's Dyspepsia Remedy

Worry kills lots of people and sometimes bankers. It impedes digestion, irritates the nervous system, and in many ways destroys the health. If you are worried with business or other troubles, Tyner's Dyspepsia Remedy will meet and baffle all ill effects. It cures indigestion and dyspepsia, tones up the stomach, and thus insures calm, refreshing sleep, and a good healthy and invigorating appetite.

WHAT A BANKER SAYS.

Mr. Chas E. Currier, of the Atlanta National Bank, says: "I often use Tyner's Dyspepsia Remedy for acute indigestion, and have always found that it gives immediate relief. I consider it a medicine of very high merit."

Price 50 cents per large bottle. For sale by druggists. Six bottles for $2.50 or sent by express on receipt of price by Tyner's Dyspepsia Remedy Co., 107½ S. Forsyth St., Atlanta, Ga.

SAMPLE BOTTLE FREE.

To the Bureau of Materia Medica: T. J. Hunt, Merom, Indiana, manufactures a Digestive Tablet which bears his name, and which deserves of this notice. I have taken clinical pains to become thoroughly acquainted with it, and as a result of my acquaintance, am able to say that it is not only all that he claims for it, but as well, it is quite unlike the ordinary digestive tablets. The tablet is the initial incident to health in all of its most coveted phases, and covers a wide range of usefulness.

MILLSAPS COLLEGE.

BY PRESIDENT W. B. MURRAH.

I have read with interest Bro. Lagrone's article in the last issue of the ADVOCATE. The general purport of the communication is precisely in accord with the spirit that has characterized Millsaps College from the beginning. To make it possible for even the poorest boy, who has ambition and worth, to avail himself of the advantages of the college, should be the end constantly sought. To accomplish this was one of the prime motives in the establishment of the institution. It finds expression in one of the most emphatic paragraphs of the charter, and it has largely dominated our policy all the time. I very well remember the first time I attended a meeting of the Board of Trustees. I naturally sought with eager interest to know the mind of those who would in large measure shape the affairs of the college. I then received the impression, and it has deepened ever since, that whatever else we might do, we were never to lose sight of the fact that we must bring the college within reach of those who were shut out from other institutions because of limited means.

This purpose was so influential in our original organization that it was decided to make the tuition less than half what it was in our other church colleges, and to admit the sons of preachers and young men preparing for the ministry free of all tuition fees. In view of the fact that our endowment was very small, to many this seemed almost reckless if we were to have a competent faculty. It was believed, however, that this beneficent policy would commend itself so powerfully to the church that we would have our meagre income from endowment and small fees liberally supplemented by collections ordered by the Conferences. Our hopes in this respect have been only partially realized, but we still adhere to our original policy.

Of course, it was understood from the start that even if we were able to admit students to the college free of all cost, they would have to provide their living expenses. It was, therefore, determined that board in the homes we controlled should not exceed twelve dollars per month. But we realized that more than this was necessary to bring the advantages of the college to many of the most deserving. Accordingly, neat cottages were built on the campus, where students could rent rooms at fifty cents per month, and organize self-helping clubs, and thus reduce the cost of living to the lowest point. And it may be here noted that students who adopt this plan secure board for six dollars a month. During our brief history many young men have won the honors of the college, and are now filling useful and influential positions in our State and in other States, who could not have had college advantages at all but for the help afforded here.

By the generosity of Major Millsaps we will soon get possession of a magnificent dormitory building. This will greatly enlarge our boarding facilities and extend the scope of our opportunities for usefulness.

We are now closing the first decade of our history. Despite hard times and interruptions from quarantine, we have developed from year to year, and are in advance of institutions which have been in existence for a half century. Our students win honors and take high rank as they go out to the battle of life. Surely this is no time to project new enterprises in our educational work. This has been the bane of our policy in the past, and we should set our faces like flint against the perpetuation of the folly. Ordinarily, I am a great believer in competition; but just now we have enough of that outside of the church. What we need above all things is loyalty and co-operation in the work we now have in hand. The future is bright, but we must not forget that we have just started. I firmly believe that we can do as much here in our two Mississippi Conferences as can be done in any part of the connection; but we must not expect impossibilities.

ACCRUING POWER.

BY REV. J. E. DENSON.

Of all God's creatures, man comes into the world the most utterly helpless, and hence, by nature, dependent. He is limited in everything, and yet with a blank capacity approximating the infinite for progress and development. In the divine economy and purpose we rise from the imperfect to the perfect. First the "blade," said our Lord; "then the full corn in the ear." The natural and the spiritual, both alike, are subject to the law of progress and increase, which is the law of God.

Man is often, and properly, put under obligation to do that for which he has in himself no present ability or fitness; but it is the nature of human strength and bodily fortitude to have an elastic measure, and to be so extended and directed as to meet the exigencies that arise and the obligation imposed.

Many men are placed under a task in life that requires great bodily strength and an immense power of physical endurance, and when he is fully launched upon his avocation, the bodily strength and physical endurance, which are indispensable to the highest excellency, will be generated in it and by means of it, though previously it seemed not to exist. The smith gets the power with which to efficiently wield his sledge by the force and energy of every strike with which he wields it. Intellectual force, too, is endowed with the same elastic quality, and measures itself in the same way by the exigencies we are called to meet. Task it, and by reason of the very task imposed it grows efficient. Plunge it into darkness, and it creates a sphere of light. It discovers its own force by the exertion of force. Measures its capacity by the difficulties it has opposed and the tasks it has successfully executed, so that the intellectual efficiency to which a man may attain will, of necessity, be in the ratio to the mental gymnasties performed. All great generals, statesmen, jurists, preachers, have found the power unfolded in their calling, and by means of it which were necessary for it. "As thou hast been faithful," said Christ, "over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things." The faithful employment of the talents committed, however seemingly small, will bring an enlarged capacity, to which may be safely intrusted the rulership over "ten cities." "To him that hath shall be given," and justly so is the law of God's kingdom till the end of time.

This is quite as true of moral power. By moral power we mean the power of a life and character, the power of a good and sublime purpose by constant struggle, which comes at last to possess and be possessed of a man who has become distinguished by an estimable and sublime course of conduct. No other power of man is comparable to it. To it all merely physical force and intellectual power is as chaff to the wheat. There is no individual, however illiterate or obscure, who may not measurably, at least, be invested with it. Those graces catalogued by St. Paul as "the fruits of the Spirit," when possessed by one, even in the lowest walks of life, or manifested in the performance of the humblest task, begin to invest them finally with a character, and creates a moral excellence, which give to them a prestige and power that means success.

This kind of power is not a gift, but it comes upon a man and settles on him like a jewelled crown, while discharging with fidelity and integrity of purpose his humblest duties to God and his fellow-man.

This moral power is often suddenly enlarged by the stress of circumstances that call for it. It is not infrequently a fact that the very difficulty and grandeur of an enterprise which some courageous soul has undertaken to execute exalts him at once to such an altitude of moral power that mankind is inspired and lifted with him. Indeed, a man is often able to carry a project to successful completion simply because he has made it so sublime and splendid a project. By virtue of his great idea, his faith, his sublime confidence in truth, or justice, or duty, he inspires and calls to his aid all kindred spirits and heroic souls.

What is true of physical, mental and moral power is pre-eminently true of spiritual power. The most genuine and beautiful Christian characters which have adorned the gospel of Jesus Christ are such as rest their souls day by day, with confidence upon the promise of accruing power, and make themselves responsible, not for what they have in some inherent ability, but what they can have in their times of stress and peril. With supreme confidence in the promise, "As thy days, so shall thy strength be," they throw themselves on works wholly above their ability, and get accruing power in and by their work for others still greater and higher, and so they "grow in grace," courage, confidence, personal volume, and instead of shrinking into their graves out of impotent lives, they "fall on sleep" in the honors of heroes.

THE OLD-TIME MINISTRY.

BY REV. J. D. NEWSOM.

Is our Methodist preaching and ministerial labors as effective now in converting souls as it was in olden times? Some of us who took part in the great work of bringing the world to Christ half a century ago, and who had some knowledge of the workings and methods of men, the scenes of whose labors were laid in the opening of the nineteenth century, are disposed to say that in proportion to the population as it then was, and the number of laborers now in the field, conversions are not so numerous, nor do they now develop in brightness as in those early times. To account for this, I would say:

1. The preaching was then delivered in a most earnest and fervid manner. It is true, in many instances, those preachers did not look so much to the completeness and literary finish of their discourses as to the lost estate of the sinner. "Jesus Christ and him crucified" never failed to occupy the thoughts and fill the hearts of those sons of thunder. That earnestness and fervor, with or without logic, was eminently successful in bringing hearers to the same conclusion held by the preacher. They entered into his sympathies as he waxed warm with his theme. This hortatory ministry was not effective only in the rural districts; its power and effect were felt and acknowledged under the shadows of city walls. This faithful preaching of Christ text or no text as we look at it, has been supplanted by carefully prepared sermons delivered with studied manner — text or no text. Sermons, if well studied and can be prayed, can be bad, and are needed in these times.

2. The singing those days was by the congregation, which fully entered into that part of the service, singing, as the worshipers often did, "with the spirit and with the understanding also," in the use of those old-time hymns so full of religion and gospel truth, such as: "Come, ye sinners, poor and needy;" "There is a fountain filled with blood;" "Alas! and did my Savior bleed?" "Come, thou Fount of every blessing;" and the now relegated to the shade, "Jesus, my all, to heaven is gone." And others of like truth and spirit are out of date, and are reckoned old-timey.

While, again, there is some ground for saying that preachers who have been useful in communities where they have lived in drawing and building up congregations, and were directly instrumental in converting souls, have been rejected for the regular work for a failure on some technical point, when it would be indeed difficult for some of the Examining Committees to name an instance in which they had ever led a soul to Christ.

A VETERAN AT WORK.

REV. AMOS KENDALL AT LEXINGTON.

The people of Lexington have enjoyed a rare spiritual feast during the last two weeks in the preaching of Bro. Amos Kendall. Large, attentive and serious congregations have listened to the Word as preached by this able minister of the gospel. Christians were edified, sinners were brought to reflection, and good was accomplished. We expect to receive several into membership on next Sabbath. One who gave his name goes to the Episcopal Church. Our services were interrupted and finally closed out by the frequent and heavy rains of last week. The abundant rain, however, inured to our benefit in the end, interfering with railroad travel, and keeping the preacher with us.

Yesterday was a bright and beautiful day, and floral decorations in the Methodist Church told of Easter Sabbath. A very large congregation was in attendance, and heard an appropriate and excellent sermon from Bro. Kendall on the resurrection of our Lord. At night, in the Baptist Church, by request of the pastor, Bro. Kendall preached again an impressive and solemn sermon on the final judgment.

If the youthful vigor and strength of our brother has ever suffered any lapse, he has surely renewed his youth. He claims a gain in avoirdupois of twelve or fifteen pounds since Conference, and looks better than we have seen him in a long while. Had he come to us canonized as "Bishop Kendall," the twenty sermons preached in Lexington would have measured fully up to the episcopal standard. His sermons are original and unique in thought and expression, clear, forcible, and eloquent. The wisdom of retiring a man like Kendall, who can outpreach half the men who remain on the effective list, does not appear to us. Let the Bishop and his cabinet, at the next session of Conference, consider. A word to the wise is sufficient.

Bro. R. H. B. Gladney conducted successfully a children's service, and Bro. E. S. Lewis preached two earnest sermons during the meeting. Bros. W. S. Lagrone and H. M. Young favored us with their presence for a short time.

The pastor's family have been specially favored, in that they have had Bro. Kendall and his most amiable and excellent wife as their guests under the parsonage "roof-tree." We still have them with us, waiting for the "wash outs" on the railroads to be repaired, and the clever people continue to send in good things.

GRENADA COLLEGE.

The trustees of Grenada College have long desired to change the policy of that institution—the "leasing system" employed by many of our schools for girls. Several times they have, by formal resolution, declared their purpose to inaugurate a new system of work. At a meeting held in Grenada, April 1 and 2, they purchased from Rev. W. M. McIntosh, who has been the eminently successful president for three years, all the property now in the study halls and in the boarding department. After the present session the school will be conducted by a business manager and a faculty chosen by the trustees. Everyone connected with the school will be employed by the trustees, and will be paid a salary; and every dollar of profit that may arise from the school will be used by the trustees to make the school better. All profits will belong to the school for its own improvement, and not to any individual. This plan has well-nigh universal approval as the ideal system. Some doubt the practicability of the plan. Surely, if individuals can so conduct schools for girls as to make money—some of them large profits—we can manage to maintain our school and add something each year to the equipment. We are fortunate in securing competent business management and a faculty of conspicuous ability, devoted to the school and to the church, who will aid us in our great work without involving the Conference or the church in any financial liability. We ask one thing, and one thing only, of our preachers and people, viz.: hearty co-operation. Doubtless we would be justified in an appeal to your church loyalty, but we prefer to ask your support chiefly upon the ground of merit. On this basis we make our appeal with perfect confidence.

Since all of you do not know our faculty, I may be permitted to indulge a word about the organization of our forces. Rev. J. M. Wyatt as business manager, and Mrs. G. W. Jones as matron, leave nothing to be desired in those departments. Bro. Wyatt is both well and favorably known throughout our territory, and needs no introduction. Mrs. Jones is a cultured, refined, elegant Christian woman, of great tact, fine business ability, and rare poise of character.

W. L. Clifton, president, A. B. (University of Mississippi), Ph.B. (University of Nashville), is a native of Mississippi, a young man of fine executive ability, full of energy, and devoted to teaching as his chosen calling for life. His high scholarship is attested not alone by his degrees from two leading Southern universities, but also by strong testimonials from his former teachers at Oxford and Nashville. He is personally known to members of our Board of Trustees, who have been his patrons, as a man of exalted character, who not only knows what the books teach, but also has the happy faculty of imparting knowledge and of inspiring studious habits in his pupils.

Mrs. J. M. Wyatt (L. I. and C.) is a woman of unusual intellectual gifts, and is an accomplished teacher of proven success.

Mrs. Carlotta Hargrove Gibbs (L. I. and C.) has had recent and special training for teaching, and her symmetrical character and balanced judgment peculiarly fit her for the place she will fill in Grenada College.

Miss Lizzie Lester (University of Mississippi) is a successful teacher, and will fill admirably a place in our faculty.

Of course, Mrs. Payne retains her position as head of the Primary Department. No one will ever be mentioned for that place so long as Mrs. Payne will consent to teach.

Miss Hattie Mae Bennett, of Russellville, Ky., will direct the work of the School of Elocution and Physical Training, for which department she has had best training, and in which she has achieved distinction.

We offer exceptional advantages in music. This school will be under the direction of Mrs. W. L. Clifton. Mrs. Clifton is of the celebrated teaching family of Bonnells, of Georgia. She is an A. B. graduate of Wesleyan Female College, Macon, Ga.; accomplished in letters, and has had training under best vocalists and pianists. She has traveled extensively, and resided several years abroad.

Miss Coney, who has given eminent satisfaction under three administrations at Grenada, is retained in the School of Music. This statement of fact makes further reference to her unnecessary.

Miss Lillian Bell will teach French and music. Miss Bell is an accomplished linguist and musician. She sings in English, French, German, Italian and Latin.

Other positions are yet to be filled. Great care will be exercised in making selections.

Our faculty is no experiment. It is composed of persons in full vigor of life, each member already a demonstrated success, and devoted to the chosen profession of teaching. And this is why we so confidently make our appeal for patronage on the basis of merit.

The Bible will be taught systematically, and highest ideals will be set before our pupils.

The members of our faculty have had abundant technical training, but character is greater than learning, and in our selection, while we have required scholarship, we have also had special reference to character.

J. R. BINGHAM,
Pres. Board of Trustees.

The Baptists of Louisiana are engaged in the work of establishing a home for orphans, to be known as Louisiana Baptist Orphanage. Several towns in the State competed for the location of the institution. Lake Charles put in the best bid, and secured the home. The institution is purely charitable, and commends itself to all well-wishers of the poor and helpless of the State. The co-operation and material help of the good people are earnestly invoked. Rev. Wm. Cooksey is superintendent, to whom contributions, large or small, may be sent. Money is needed now.

Yes, we must be watchful, especially in the beginning of the temptation, for the enemy is then more easily overcome if he be not suffered to enter the door of our hearts, but be resisted at the very gate on his first knocking.—Thomas a' Kempis.

MOVING THE PREACHERS.

BY REV. Q. A. OATS.

It was not the purpose in my former article to fix the blame for the numerous changes made at the last session of the North Mississippi Conference. In view of the financial condition of most of the territory, the consequent shortage in the preachers' salaries, and the prospects of depleted quarterage during the greater portion of the ensuing year, it did seem that it would have been both just and merciful to make no unnecessary changes: and, in all cases of necessity, it appeared that caution should be exercised. In view of the Bishop's declaration, it seemed a foregone conclusion that most all would be relieved of a move, and it is not surprising that some of us were unprepared for the upheaval that came to the Conference. It may be that some readers may think my statements arise from personal motives and dissatisfaction. This they will understand is not the case when I say I was not one of the number moved, and my return was satisfactory to me.

It may be that the condition of the people, and limited experience and accomplishments of the preachers in an earlier day, required frequent and compulsory changes; but if the causes have not passed, or become considerably modified, it is very strange. Observation of many years, and a personal experience, have convinced the writer that the very frequent and wholesale changes are hurtful both to church and preachers. They encourage the people in lax ideas of responsibility to the preachers, and prevent ties and interests that would bind the people more firmly to their pastors and church. I have often heard, in substance, people say, "We have ceased to try to love our preachers and to get interested in their families, because, if we do, they will be taken from us, and the ties broken, and it will all be to do over again with the next one." They also say, "What is the use of trying to help the man who comes to us in straitened financial condition, for about the time we do it he will be moved, and another will come as needy." These are complaints from our best people, and not the indifferent classes, or chronic grumblers.

The constant probable changes discourage the preachers to undertake enterprises of improvement in their work on all lines—in church-building and improvements, in securing and improving parsonages, in many affairs of the social, moral, intellectual, and spiritual interests of his people. It discourages and, in some respects, prevents the high degree of mental and practical attainments of the preachers. It also encourages tendencies to lazy and indifferent conduct. Many will make it an excuse, and others will glory in it as a relief from exertion, so long as they know they can always be provided for, however indifferently, and must be by our plan. Instead of moving such men to new charges they should often be kept where they are till they prove themselves capable of being something, and accomplishing something, or the opposite. Give them to understand they must do something, or quit the itinerant ranks. They should have no ground of satisfaction or consolation in the idea, "If I do nothing, they can only move me, and I am sure of a place, anyhow."

Unfortunately some preachers complain of their appointments entirely from a selfish consideration and desire for advancement without thought of their qualifications or the interests of the Lord's kingdom, and they clamor for change, hoping to have their aspiration gratified. Such a clamor should have no consideration with the appointing power. No doubt the preacher sometimes says nothing of the real cause, and puts his claim on other grounds, but a wise observation ought to see and understand the real state of things, and be governed accordingly.

The writer is about satisfied that the time has arrived for removing the limit, and leaving the whole matter with the appointing power. My reasons are that it may be just as necessary for a man to remain five, or more, years as four, and if so, why force a move by an arbitrary limit? It seems that our Bishops recognize this, and they often move men they would gladly reappoint, and have much difficulty in supplying the places. They practically ignore the law by often changing men back and forth within the same limited territory; have virtually created a new class of preachers, which might be termed itinerants at large, but known as "giraffes," "wandering stars," etc. Men of this class soon become unidentified with Conferences, and much influence for good they might wield is lost, and there is much they lose themselves. There is no doubt that the churches they serve also suffer as a result of this isolation.

Already exceptions have had to be made of missionaries, editors, school-men, connectional men, etc. It may be that the conditions in the pastorate are not always similar to the cases of those just named, yet they, no doubt, often are. If this is the case, then why not allow the wisdom and judgment of the Bishops to decide the matter? The writer doubts the wisdom of iron-bound rules in all administration. Not that a proper and due control by law over our servants in the responsible places should not be maintained, but let us not hedge them by needless insurmountable fences. Give room and opportunity for any needed adjustment.

I believe removing the limit would place the retaining of men for a long period on real merit and need, while now I am inclined to believe such is not the case always. Men become ambitions to stay the four years, and sometimes use just and unjust means to effect it. Under the pressure they prove able to bring to bear they effect their purpose, because all parties concerned see an easy way out of the difficulty by waiting for the limit to do what their rights and prerogative should do, and do at once. The church may now say: "Our pastor is ambitious to stay, and would raise difficulty if moved, and we like him, and do not want to hurt his feelings. The four-years' limit will move him; though he is not the man we need, yet this is the easiest way to get him off our hands." I really believe removing the four-years' limit would cause some who are usually four-years' men to move much oftener, and cause many who seldom stay four years to stay much longer. I believe it would cause the going or staying to be controlled more by the merits and needs than as we have it now.

NEW ORLEANS DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The New Orleans District Conference convened at the Carondelet Street Church on March 20, at 10 A. M.; Dr. W. H. LaPrade in the chair. Rev. Jno. F. Foster was elected secretary. The hour of meeting was fixed at 7:30 P. M., this hour being the most convenient for the laymen. The Conference did its work largely by committees, as follows: Committees on Missions, Sunday-schools, Christian Literature, and Epworth Leagues.

The reports of the pastors showed all churches in good financial shape and growing in spirituality. The tone of all reports was encouraging and gave manifestation of growth.

It was stated that shortly the Pearl River work would have a new church.

The Rayne Memorial charge reported extensive repairs and enlargement of chapel at a cost of $2,000.

The Burgundy charge reported the starting of a movement for a new church.

The parsonage debt of Parker Memorial was reported cancelled save one two hundred dollars, and the Carrollton Avenue Church as remodeled within and without, adding to the beauty and taste of appearance.

The Sunday-schools of the district were shown to be in flourishing condition, and the week beginning April 13 was appointed as a week of special revival within the schools.

The reports of Epworth Leagues and Christian literature were strong presentations of these causes, and were heard with much interest by the Conference.

The Woman's Home Mission Society was represented by its district secretary, Mrs. F. E. Russ; and the report of the district secretary of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, Mrs. J. P. Jackson, was read by Mrs. W. H. LaPrade.

The report of Committee on Missions recommended the following, viz.: That our district centre its missionary work on the Tulane mission, begun by the Epworth League, and appoint a committee to arrange for purchasing a lot for same, and the raising of funds for erecting a building; also that we memorialize the next Annual Conference to appoint a city missionary, and to arrange for a distinct work on the lower coast.

The interests of the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE and of Centenary College were forcefully presented by Drs. Boswell and Cooper.

Reports of officers of Seashore Camp Grounds were presented, and the following brethren elected trustees for the ensuing year, viz.: Jno. W. Adams, A. S. Daniels, E. L. McGehee, W. B. Thomson, R. L. Riley, S. H. Meyer, J. A. Woodville, H. W. Spear.

The election of delegates to Annual Conference was as follows: W. B. Thomson, W. W. Carre, A. S. Daniels, and Jacob Cohen; alternates: E. P. Mackie and J. A. Woodville.

The preaching of the Conference was done by Dr. W. H. LaPrade, and Revs. L. T. Reames, Jno. F. Foster, and K. W. Dodson.

Sunday, as is the custom, the pastors exchanged pulpits, Drs. Cooper, Boswell and Dickie each filling pulpits on the Sabbath.

We gladly greeted as brethren beloved Rev. M. Dickie, of the Brazil Conference, and Rev. T. L. Lallance, of the New Mexico Conference.

The joint communion service of all the churches Sunday afternoon, in Rayne Memorial, served as a fitting close to an enjoyable Conference.

THE MISSIONARY INSTITUTE.

The Missionary Institute held in Epworth Hall, Jackson, Miss., on the eighteenth ultimo, proved very profitable to all who attended. It was arranged by Dr. Holloman, the presiding elder of the Jackson district, and was especially called for the convenience of those residing in that part of the district included in Hinds, Rankin, and Simpson counties.

All the pastors in this part of the district, except Rev. G. M. Hull, pastor at Florence, were present, and did the work assigned them by the presiding elder.

There were several visitors present, among whom were the pastors of the Baptist Churches of Jackson, and Rev. Mr. Bachman, colporteur of the Mississippi and North Mississippi Conferences. They were invited to participate in the discussions that came up.

We were quite fortunate in having with us our distinguished Bishop Galloway, who added much to the interest of the occasion by freely discussing several subjects that were under consideration by the members of the Institute.

Bro. Bachman conducted the opening exercises. The presiding elder made some preliminary remarks in regard to the purpose of the Institute, stating that the real and why he was holding these Institutes in the district was that all might have an opportunity to attend, which manifestly, on the part, is a consideration for the interest of the preachers and the people of the district.

After Dr. Holloman had concluded his remarks, Rev. R. Selby, pastor of Brandon charge, read an interesting and thoughtful paper on "Our Obligation to the Heathen." Then the presiding elder read from Bishops Wilson and Hendrix's compendium bearing on the same subject.

W. A. Terry, pastor of Thomastville charge, read a paper on "American Missions," which subject was then discussed at some length by Bishop Galloway, who gave us some very definite information in regard to what he had seen and heard while in Mexico and Brazil.

Dr. Black, pastor of First Church, Jackson, very ably discussed "Some Objections to Missions," which objections, he plainly showed, had no foundation. Dr. Holloman then quoted from Dr. Hess' address at the Missionary Conference.

Brother Carett, superintendent of the First Church, Jackson, Sunday-school, made a talk on "Missions in the Sunday-school." He gave us some splendid ideas in reference to the manner in which he manages the Missionary Days. Bishop Galloway, Dr. Holloman and R. Selby made very practical suggestions along the same line.

Rev. J. T. Leggett, pastor of Capitol Street Church, Jackson, read an interesting and instructive paper on the "Growth of Missions," which showed that marvelous advancement had been made in this great work.

Rev. W. W. Graves, pastor at Braxton, read a very lengthy and well-prepared paper on "Missions in the Orient;" then Dr. Holloman quoted Bishop Wilson on this subject.

Miss Addie Purnell, who always manifests so much interest in the homes of the preachers, and makes us feel that in her we have a special friend, read an earnest and stirring paper on "Home Mission Work in the Mississippi Conference."

Several made remarks on the same subject.

The following resolution was passed:

Resolved, That we, the members of the Missionary Institute for this part of the district, make the assessments, as ordered by the Annual Conference, the minimum amount raised.

HOLLY SPRINGS.

The interest of our community has for four months centered around the saloon. A petition for a saloon was circulated last year, and secured a number of names. The Prohibition people held that the petition did not carry a majority of the legal voters, and presented a counter-petition. The Board of Aldermen compared the petition and the poll-books. Names were stricken off of either side because of delinquent taxes, non-residence, and other legal causes. At the close of the session it was apparent that the Prohibition side had a majority of fifteen or twenty names. The Board adjourned without a decision, and the next night met in secret session. When the result of this secret session was announced the Prohibition side was shocked to learn that the license had been granted by one vote. The Prohibition people immediately took an appeal to the Circuit Court. This court met in February. After a tedious fight of four days Judge Lowry gave peremptory instructions to the jury to find for the plaintiffs (the Prohibitionists). The Prohibition side had won by more than a dozen votes. The papers announced 64 to 64—a tie. This was due to the fact that the judge allowed the whisky men every name on the Prohibition list that they challenged. This left us 64 unchallenged names. On the other hand, the whisky men were allowed to keep on their petition names that we had challenged in sufficient number to give them 64 names. In this way the judge could give peremptory instructions to the jury. In this trial it came to light that the Board had granted the license and on the saloon had paid for it. The case is now appealed to the supreme court. Judge Lowry will not grant it. They then appeal to the Supreme Court, and Judge Calhoun granted the supersedeas without waiting to hear from the Prohibitionist lawyers.

Such is the present situation. In a week's time a majority of the citizens of Holly Springs petitioned for a saloon. Not a Methodist name appears on a petition. The entire membership of our church has lined up solidly on the right side.

WALTER G. HARRIS.

WHO IS PROTECTED?

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: I see that a great many professed Christians advocate licensing the saloon, and give the people to live by it. I have been fighting the saloon all my life, and have always found that the whisky element advocated that policy. Any Christian that assists in bringing about such a policy has fallen into line with the saloon crowd. I cannot find in the Bible that God justifies anyone in making a compromise with sin of any kind. Then why make a complete surrender to one of the worst sin-producing elements in the world, when the Bible teaches us not to do evil that good may come? And, besides, I would like for some one to tell me where the police protection comes in. Do they keep our boys out of the saloon? Do they keep the saloon from violating the law by having a gambling-room in the rear of the saloon? Do they keep the saloon from making murderers, wife-beaters, child-murderers, gamblers and proselytes? I answer: No, to all of the above questions. They only arrest men in this city when they are so drunk as to be down, and when they are in that condition, they are harmless; and, besides, the police are not allowed to go inside of a saloon. One was suspended here for going in a saloon to make an arrest. The only protection, as far as I can find out, is given to the saloon keeper. It is strange that smart men will advocate such a course. I know that it is the best that can be done with the professed Christians praying one way and voting another. If we ever get rid of the saloon, we have got to quit this compromise business, and set our mark down right with God, and that is, "No saloon in any form whatever," and work to that end without any compromise at all.

CORINTH DISTRICT.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: The first quarter for the Corinth district has been completed. There is evidently a fine spirit in all the charges. The preachers' salaries on the circuits have in some cases been increased, and the stations maintained as last year, except one. In this case the reduction was because of financial disasters. The salary paid the first quarter has been equal to other years. This, we think, is creditable, in view of the terrible Winter. The Sunday-school interest is good and growing.

Bro. L. W. Cain, on the Kossuth charge, writes me that he has just organized an Epworth League with twenty-three members, and will this week organize another.

Bro. J. B. Randolph, at Guntown and Baldwyn, has received about thirty into the church since Conference. The work has begun on the new church at Booneville, and Bro. Jaco has the best prayer meeting the church has enjoyed for some time.

REPORT—MISSIONS.

To the Board of Missions of the North Mississippi Conference:

Eupora paid collections in full; Lexington, $90; Durant, $90; Pickens, $90; Ackerman, $15.

I have not heard from the other preachers of the district.

Very respectfully,

R. H. B. GLADNEY, Dist. Sec.

March 31 1902.

"Blessed are they that mourn, for they shall be comforted." Surely it means that every sorrow carries in itself a clue to blessedness, and that there is no sorrow for which there is no healing and help in the gospel of Christ.—Rev. F. B. Meyers.

Home Mission Society.

North Mississippi Items.

We are glad to report a new society at Duncan, Greenville district, organized Feb. 8 by the pastor, Rev. Robt. A. Clark, with nine members; Mrs. Charles Mabry, president; Mrs. J. S. Burton, Jr., corresponding secretary.

This quarter brings the completion of the $200 promised to Maryland parsonage, and a fine beginning on the one next in order—Lamar, on Holly Springs district. What a great pleasure to think we have had part in providing these homes for our preachers!

Much of our work being local, does not always appear in official reports. In Winona district alone the following amounts have been raised, and I am sure much done in the district has not been reported: Vaiden, $20 on home for Rev. J. F. Evans—$24.60 on church and parsonage; Winona, $108.75 on church and parsonage; Greenwood, $531.15 on parsonage, furniture, and church debt; Carrollton, $193.50 on church and parsonage; McNutt, $50 on parsonage and furniture; Indianola, $96.52 on local work; Black Hawk, $2.65 on Orphans' Home; total, $1,177.17. In this district we have 136 members, 42 subscribers to Our Homes, and report 495 leaflets and papers distributed, and 443 visits made to sick and strangers.

While these figures, compiled by our officers with great care, only approximate the truth, they show the work going on in one of the nine districts of our Conference. I wish I had the figures at hand to show what other districts are doing, so we could report the entire Conference.

Are we trying to put into practice the resolution formed at New Year to make this year the best of our lives? Let our next report give an answer.

That is what is required by every organ of the body, for the proper performance of its functions.

It perfects all the vital processes.

W. P. Keeton, Woodstock, Ala., took Hood's Sarsaparilla to make his blood pure. He writes that he had not felt well but tired for some time. Before he had finished the first bottle of this medicine he felt better and when he had taken the second was like another man—free from that tired feeling and able to do his work.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL DEPARTMENT.

Conducted by N. A. MOTT, Yazoo City, Miss

To Whom All Communications for This Department Must Be Sent.

Mississippi Conference Sunday-School Convention.

The fifth Annual Sunday-school Convention of the Mississippi Conference was held in Utica, Miss., March 24-27, 1902; J. C. Cavett, of Jackson, Miss., presiding. Rev. W. H. Lewis, pastor of our church at Utica, and his helpers had made ample provision of hospitality. Indeed, the hearts and homes of all the people of Utica seemed open. One hundred and twenty-one members from a distance were provided with homes. Delegates were present from the remote parts of the Conference, as well as from the parts nearer by, and each one was intent upon something.

N. A. Mott, chairman of the Conference Sunday-school Board, had made abundant provision for the intellectual and spiritual refreshment. A programme had been prepared with much care, and nearly everyone of the speakers was present, and that with well-beaten oil.

The "feature" of the occasion was the Institute work of Prof. Hamill, Superintendent of Training Work, as given in lessons, talks, and drills that seemed to answer every conceivable inquiry that might arise upon Sunday-school matters, seeming to exemplify every successful method that had been used, or that could be used anywhere—in city, village, or country. Indeed, the members of the convention had poured into them, as shot and shell from mighty cannon, so many arguments and ideas concerning the origin, purposes, methods, and responsibilities of the Sunday-school movement, as it relates to the well-being of individuals, congregations, communities, churches, and States, that everyone present became a glad captive of the Sunday-school idea. Each one felt that it would be wrong to go away the same person that he was at coming; that this would be proving false to trust and miscreant to privilege. Each pastor learned anew that he must be the pastor of childhood and youth. Each preacher, officer and teacher felt that his school must be different. Public and private testimonies go to prove that many a school of the Mississippi Conference will receive impetus and uplift from this meeting. Other denominations also are to be blessed by it.

The fact is, that no church ever did a wiser thing than the M. E. Church, South, when, going beyond all precedent in Protestant Church history, she established a department for training her Sunday-school teachers, and employed a man to devote his whole time to this work in office and field, taking advantage, too, of the opportunity to secure such a man as Prof. Hamill.

On Wednesday afternoon "Certificates of Honor" were given to all who had faithfully attended during the convention as many as four of Prof. Hamill's "Institute" sessions, and the Minutes record the names of 106 who received these certificates.

Furthermore, the report of the Statistical Committee showed that the 86 schools reporting to the convention have 206 members who are taking the "Bible Teachers' Study Course" of the current year. And, though the 86 schools reporting to the convention are the livest of the Conference, yet the 306 other schools that did not report may have in them a hundred more who are taking this course. But, if only these 206 study faithfully this year the three little books, our Sunday-school cause will have gained in a single year an advantage which would not come in ten years of random reading.

The statistics of the 86 schools reporting prove the possibility of the convention for getting information upon several points that are not included in our Annual Conference Minutes. Thus, the 86 schools reported: 26 libraries, 627 Sunday-school Magazines taken, 980 Visitors taken, 4 schools having Home Departments, 9 having Teachers' Meetings.

The five-dollar gold piece for the scholar under eighteen who should stand the best examination on the first sixteen chapters of Acts was awarded to Homer Breland, of the North Wesson Sunday-school, Brookhaven district, and the second prize, a Teachers' Bible, to John Simmons, of Oak Grove Sunday-school, Meadville circuit, Natchez district. Also a badge was presented to little Laura Hutchins for giving correct answers to a quick lesson upon the Book of Acts, taught the children of Utica by Prof. Hamill.

Hattiesburg was chosen as the place of the next Annual Convention, and the following officers were elected: President, Rev. B. F. Lewis, Magnolia; vice-president, Adria Trimble, Natchez. District vice-presidents: Vicksburg district, W. W. Ellis, Utica; Jackson district, C. W. Catlett, Canton; Seashore district, R. A. Magruder, Hattiesburg; Forest district, W. H. Ormond, Forest; Natchez district, Thos. H. Reed, Centreville; Brookhaven district, J. M. Wood, Brookhaven; Meridian district, W. D. Hawkins, Meridian.

The Executive Committee of the Conference Sunday-school Board compose the Executive Committee of the convention; also the secretary and the treasurer of the Board hold these same relations to the convention.

The singing was excellent, and all enjoyed the "Convention Hymn" that had been composed for the occasion by Rev. J. M. Tally, of Utica. The social features were splendid.

Many asserted that in the quality of the work done this was the best convention of any kind that they had ever attended.

Missionary Institute.

A Missionary Institute was held by Presiding Elder Holloman at Yazoo City, Miss., Friday, March 21. Religious exercises were conducted by Rev. B. F. Lewis, of Magnolia. Rev. J. D. Clynes discussed "Obligations to Heathens," and N. A. Mott read a paper on "Missions in the Orient." Rev. H. B. Watkins made a talk on "The Sunday schools and Epworth Leagues and Missions," and Bro. R. L. Bennett discussed "Laymen and Missions." At the evening session Rev. H. J. Moore read a paper on "Missionary Literature." Both morning and evening sessions were enlivened by discussions by Rev. G. W. Bachman, Rev. W. B. Lewis and Bro. Holloman. At night Bro. Holloman preached a strong missionary sermon.

The following resolution was adopted:

"Resolved, By the pastors and laymen attendant on this Institute, that we will go forth from this meeting to make every possible effort to bring up missionary assessments in full."

While not largely attended, the Institute will be productive of great good. It extended a knowledge of mission fields, it strengthened the zeal of its advocates, and we believe will result in increased collections.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

WESSON STATION.

We are at work in earnest again at Wesson, and hope to do much this year for our Lord. Our return was well received by our people. Some of them met us at the parsonage with kindly expressions. In behalf of those present, and also for the whole church, Bro. J. T. Sudduth addressed us, assuring us that our labors during the past year were much appreciated, and also that our return afforded much joy. After his earnest and appropriate speech of hearty welcome, he presented to my wife and me some nice presents as an expression of their love and appreciation of us.

Our meeting was good and profitable. I need not say that Bro. Cutser was present, for he is at everything the church has. When the time came for our delightful meeting to end, we had Bro. Sudduth to lead us in worship to our God, and then, with our hearts full of Christian love and joy, we bade each other good-night, and our brethren and sisters returned to their homes, leaving us happy and contented.

Although our people continue to leave Wesson for other places, yet I am thankful to say we have had 28 accessions, and baptized 21 infants, aggregating 142 infants since we came here one year ago last December. The Lord is with us, and ever and anon he makes us shouting happy. Glory to God in the highest! Our collections are coming up well, despite the poverty of our people. This is the town to which widows and orphans flock, and some of the poorest ones, too. One widow, with five children, is striving to live on $9 per month, and, of course, we are helping others to live. We have a fine opportunity to develop all the Christian graces. Pray for us, that we may not become so poor as to be too sorely tempted to steal, and that we may not become so rich as to become proud and forgetful of our God.

ISAAC L. PEEBLES.

HARRISTON CIRCUIT.

EDITOR ADVOCATE: I was returned to the Harriston circuit for the third year by the Bishop, and have entered upon my work with as much energy as possible under the circumstances (bad weather), and am hoping and praying for a good year. The people have been very kind to us the past two years, and still continue to be kind, and we certainly appreciate all their acts of kindness, and shall continue to pray earnestly for them. God graciously bless them in every line of work!

Our first Quarterly Conference for the year convened with Cane Ridge Church last Saturday and Sunday, and with it came our faithful and very highly appreciated presiding elder, Rev. T. W. Adams, whose coming is always a benediction to our home, and a great blessing to our work. Some may equal, but none will surpass him in well-directed zeal in his work. He preached us three splendid sermons; good to the use of edifying. God graciously bless and preserve him and his loved ones, and spare his life for many years to the church and to his family.

And now, brethren of the Natchez district, let us, in co-operation with our presiding elder, make this the best year the district has ever had; and may God grant it, and not only so, but bless the church throughout its length and breadth!

Your brother in Christ,

A. D. MILLER.

HACKING.

That word hacking is expressive to those who have experienced the aggravating constant cough, which is called a hacking cough. Sometimes it is the result of a cold, or of grip, and sometimes it is a consequence of catarrh, which unchecked has gradually involved the lungs in disease. Such a cough finds its cure in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which cures bronchitis, obstinate coughs, lung disease, hemorrhage, and conditions which, if neglected or unskilfully treated, lead to consumption.

"For twelve years I was a sufferer from catarrh and was treated by one of the best physicians in the State of North Carolina, who said the trouble had reached my lungs," writes Mr. J. M. Patton, of Clotho, Transylvania Co., N. C. "I grew worse every day until I tried Dr. Pierce's medicines. Will say Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery with one bottle of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy cured me, and to day I am well and hearty, and I will say further that my former physician, Dr. W. M. Lyday, recommends Dr. Pierce's medicines to me and to others. I am sure your medicines will cure any case of catarrh that exists. I recommend them to all."

If you ask your dealer for "Golden Medical Discovery" because you have confidence in its cures, do not allow yourself to be switched off to a medicine claimed to be "just as good," but which you did not ask for and of which you know nothing.

OFFICE: 512 CARP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

TERMS AND DIRECTIONS.

ONE COPY, one year, $1.00; six months, 50c. To preachers of all denominations, half price.

CORRESPONDENTS will please direct all communications, whether on business or for publication, to the Editor, 512 Camp St., New Orleans. Write with ink, and only on one side of the paper. No attention will be paid to veiled communications.

OBITUARIES not over two hundred words in length will be published free of charge. All over two hundred words will be charged for at the rate of ONE CENT A WORD. Count the words and send the amount necessary with the obituary. That will save trouble all around.

THE PRINTED LABEL on a paper shows the date to which a subscription is paid. It is as good as a written receipt. When renewal is made, if the date is not moved forward after two weeks, notify us, and we will make it right. This applies also to those who request a change of address.

All Preachers of the M. E. Church, South, are authorized Agents, to whom payments may be made.

THURSDAY, APRIL 10, 1902.

A public man who, by a firm stand and wise advice, succeeds in quieting disturbing elements in a community, thereby averting calamity, deserves well at the hands of the people. Such a man is more than a public servant; he is a public benefactor. He will be held in remembrance.

Home card-playing, even of the most innocent character, can never recommend itself to the devout followers of Christ. The wonder is, that people calling themselves Christians, knowing the tendency of the pastime, can give it any encouragement. It is one of the great evils of so-called society. Dr. John G. Holland truthfully said: "The presence of culture and genius may embellish, but can never dignify it."

It seems almost incredible that our Bishops, in visiting the churches, have to be informed as to the order of service. Yet the Alabama Advocate declares that such is the case. It so happened recently in one of our cities. The presumption is, the pastor of that church ignores the law, and that the Bishop, rather than have confusion, preferred to follow the new order of things. No doubt, though, he felt a little humiliated.

When a professed follower of Christ habitually spends more for the superfluities of life—some of which are more or less injurious—it is quite time for such disciple to inquire whether or not a mistake has been made in saying that "all has been laid on the altar." Full consecration requires a measure of self-denial that does not tolerate "the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eyes, or the pride of life." All such "is not of the Father, but is of the world."

A man in Albany, New York, quarrelled with his brother over the disposition of property, and with a revolver shot him to death. A rejected suitor on the same day at Double Bridges, Ill., in a fit of jealous rage walked up behind his rival, and without a word of warning shot him in the back. This looks very much like men in the North use pistols as well as men in the South. Such things, and much else just as bad, are not confined to the uncivilized South.

We receive many letters of commendation at this office. Of course, we are very thankful for the good-will of our brethren and sisters, and it does us good to know that our efforts are appreciated. It greatly encourages us in our work. But we think it out of place to print such letters, and hence they never appear in the ADVOCATE. None of our friends, we trust, will withdraw their good-will because we do not print their kind words. To print them would look like self-praise.

AS TO DR. KELLEY'S WAYS.

A short time before the session of the North Mississippi Conference, which met Dec. 4, 1901, I received a document which looked very much like a part of a congressional record. But a paragraph or two at the close of the paper indicated that another hand than the public printer had set the type. This copy was sent to me from Nashville, Tenn. Within a week I received another copy post-marked Fulton and Grenada R. R. P. O. Before I took the first copy ont of the envelope, I knew who sent it. I know Dr. Kelley's handwriting as well as I know my own. When I reached Conference, numbers of preachers told me they had received the same docnment—not one of which, as far as I heard, was mailed at Nashville, but on the Fulton and Grenada mail train. Why? If the document was printed in Washington, as some thought, or in Nashville, why send them to a mail train, hundreds of miles away, to mail? These questions were asked. My answer is: It was done to hide the track of the sender. Who sent them? I do not know. But as I have received as many as four copies from Dr. Kelley, not counting the one mailed on the train, I judge he keeps a supply on hand.

Immediately on the reception of the first copy I wrote Dr. Kelley a letter, a copy of which I did not keep. The Doctor says it was "an extremely unbrotherly note." I did not so intend it, but I intended to be very plain, and, as I remember, I was as plain as I intended to be.

In writing of the doings of the North Mississippi Conference in the ADVOCATE of Dec. 12, 1901, I alluded to that document in what Dr. Kelly thought was uncomplimentary terms, or something worse. Part of the correspondence between Dr. Kelley and myself on the subject he has taken the liberty to publish. That part he has seen fit to make public he first sent to me, but as I had not called his name, nor even hinted that he had any connection with the anonymous document, in a public way, I declined to print what he sent. He sent it elsewhere. Here follows the partial correspondence:

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: Some time in the latter part of the year 1901 I received an extremely unbrotherly note from you—so much so that my first thought was not to reply in any manner. Later, however, a reply was made in terms which were intended to be Christian. To this note, though asking a question which grew out of your first note, you made no reply. In the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE, Jan. 9, 1902, the following appears in the editorial column:

An attempt was made to create sentiment on the subject (the war claim) in some sections by scattering an anonymous leaflet, gotten up in the form of a congressional report, which leaflet was without date or address, and mailed to all who received it, as far as we have heard, with one exception, on a mail train. Whether the anonymous document was intended to deceive or not, it did deceive. There were some who thought it a genuine and authentic document from the United States Senate. But it created no excitement. It fell still-born.

Jan. 11 a courteous Christian note was written you, to which no reply came. As your published paragraph had the appearance of being a bitter report (retort) in your paper to a question asked in a private note, I was not willing to believe that you would, after this publication, still refuse the courtesy of a reply to a personal note, but as none came, the following note was, after ample waiting, forwarded under cover to a Christian brother, with the request that he would deliver it in person, wishing to be sure that you received it:

The Vanthall,
Nashville Tenn. Feb. —, 1902

"DEAR BROTHER BOSWELL: Some time since I wrote you, enclosing a pamphlet, and asking whether this pamphlet was the one to which you, in an editorial, had attached the two words, 'anonymous' and 'deceive.'

"Having received no answer—as you may not have seen the letter—this will be sent under cover to ———, with the request that he deliver it in person. I wait with interest your reply.

"Yours truly,

"D. C. KELLEY."

On my return from a distant appointment on my district, I find your reply, as follows:

New Orleans, La., Feb 21, 1902.
Dr. D. C. Kelley, Nashville, Tenn.:

REV. AND DEAR BROTHER: I did not suppose until a few moments ago that you were anxious to hear from me, else I would have written. As the document to which I referred was without name or date or address, I couldn't see what business it was of yonrs if I did characterize it as anonymous and deceptive. Even now I do not know why you are concerned, unless you desire to know why I nsed the above language. I did so because:

1. It had no name, no date, no address.

2. I said "whether intended to deceive or not, it did deceive."

A lawyer of my acquaintance said it was a "gennine document from the United States Senate." I heard a preacher say he thought it emanated from the Senate. You know it did not. While it may be a copy, it is a counterfeit gotten up in imitation of congressional matter. To that extent it deceives.

Now, you have my answer, and you may use it as you please, provided you acknowledge that you had the document printed and circulated all over the North Mississippi Conference. Otherwise, it is a private matter, with which you have nothing to do.

Yours fraternally,
JOHN W. BOSWELL.

If you had not published the above paragraph in your paper of Jan. 9, this note might close our correspondence, but this publication demands, not for my own sake, but for the sake of the church, that a word be said. (I did not have "the document printed and circulated all over the North Mississippi Conference.") But I sent out a number of the pamphlets by mail; so far as I now remember those sent by me were chiefly addressed to Bishops, editors of church papers, delegates-elect to the General Conference. These were sent out after comparing the pamphlet with the official journal of the Senate and finding the quotations therefrom to be correct.

Allow me to say now, after comparing the pamphlet with Senate documents published at Washington, there is nothing in it or about it to deceive an intelligent reader. You say there is "no name;" the Senate of the United States is a name greater than that of any one man living. "No date"—both date and page from which it is taken are given.

When your lawyer friend said it was a genuine document from the United State Senate, he told the exact truth; he did not say that it was printed by the government printer at Washington—it in nowise pretends so to be. The form, size of sheet, title page, and added matter on the last page indicate to every intelligent reader that it is a copy, not an original.

You say, "as the document to which I referred was without name or date or address, I could not see what business it was of yours if I did characterize it as anonymous and deceptive." You had already, in a private note, said to me that you believed that I had sent you a copy. When I wrote you a private note asking a proper question, instead of replying privately, you published your attack, which attack brought your full editorial weight to bear to disconnt a true statement. The statement made was not only needed for the vindication of the honor of the church, but had behind it the authority of the greatest body of men on earth to-day.

I have at no time concealed my thoughts as to what ought to be done, as you have good reason to know. Allow me to say that in my opinion the publication of this copy from the Senate's records was due the church and public, only partial information having before appeared in the newspapers, and in some of them no information except from one side of the questions involved. As yonr condemnation of the pamphlet has been placed in print in yonr editorial columns, a place for this defense is respectfully asked.

Yours truly,
D. C. KELLEY.

I said above that the correspondence, as printed, was partial. Dr. Kelley did not print my first letter to him, nor my last. Why, I am unable to say. In the last one I told him that, as he denied printing and sending that document all over the North Mississippi Conference, he was not at liberty to nse my name publicly in connection with it. If he is as smart as I think he is, he was obliged to understand that I declined to give him liberty to publish my private letters. But he published them anyhow—a thing he had no right to do. This is one of Dr. Kelley's ways.

If the Doctor was as anxious to vindicate the honor of the church as he professes to be, why did he not come out like a man, and issue that document over his own signature? He denies printing it, but acknowledges that he sent copies to Bishops, editors and delegates elect to the General Conference. The preachers of the North Mississippi Conference received the document before their delegates were elected. Why did he and his friends wait until the eve of a Conference to reach the preachers with such a paper? The reason is plain. They desired to influence them in a certain way.

Dr. Kelley should be among the last men in the church to undertake such business. He belongs to the Tennessee Conference. That Conference had, after a fair and full investigation, passed the character of Dr. Barbee. That document sent out by Dr. Kelley—whether to many or to few—sought to inflame afresh the public, and to create sentiment against a man who was declared to be guilty of no wrong by Dr. Kelley's own Conference. If Dr. Kelley's sentiment on the matter of Dr. Barbee's guilt or innocence had undergone a change, he was too late making it known to have great weight. If he believed that his Conference did wrong in passing Dr. Barbee's character, and he did not acquiesce, he should have protested. But he kept quiet for three years, and then joined hands with others to undo the work of his Conference.

Dr. Kelley has curious ways. He will sometimes shoot from ambush, but he does not always escape exposure. Thirty years ago I heard it said that he was a good hand to build around himself a fence, but that he left open so many gaps that it was easy to catch him. I partly believe it.

JNO. W. BOSWELL.

CARING FOR THE CHILDREN.

An editor of one of our exchanges, in answer to a question sent out by him, received the texts and subjects of 607 sermons, preached on a given day by 300 preachers. Of the 607 sermons, only one, he says, seems to have been addressed directly to children. His conclusion is, that the children are "somewhat neglected in the public service." Was this over-sight, or neglect, due to indifference to the interests of children, or to the belief that children can not understand and appreciate present-day preaching? Or was it due to the fact that in all the churches where these sermons were preached there are Sunday-schools and junior societies, and that the instruction of children is turned over to these auxiliaries under the belief that what they receive there is amply sufficient?

We are glad that the 300 preachers referred to are not Methodists. But we are not sure that of 607 sermons preached in Methodist pulpits any recent Sunday, even one was specially intended for the children. We are sure, though, that our preachers at least once a year—some of them much oftener—preach to the little ones, and are always ready to welcome them to the public service. We can not be too attentive to the young. If all signs do not fail, the time is close at hand when all the forces of the church will be drawn from among the young—the very young. In a recent census of a very large number of people, it was discovered that only about five per cent. of the Christians present were converted between 25 and 30 years of age, and beyond 30 only about one per cent. What a large proportion of people will live unconverted, and probably die impenitent. If these figures hold good everywhere, we see how imperative it is to look after the children. We see also the importance of securing their attendance at public worship. Neglect of that in early life will fix in them the non-church-going habit all their days.

EPWORTH LEAGUE CONFERENCE.

The Louisiana State Epworth League Conference convened in this city on the evening of April 3. The exercises were under the direction of Rev. Thos. Carter, president, who is a good presiding officer. Rev. W. D. Kleinschmidt was secretary. A fine programme had been arranged, embracing very many subjects of importance to the League, and with, perhaps, one exception, those appointed to lead were on hand, and delivered appropriate addresses. The attendance was very good, considering the flooded condition of the country and the uncertainty of railroad connections. The average daily attendance was ninety-five. At the evening services the church (Louisiana Avenue) was well crowded. Ample arrangements had been made for the reception and entertainment of visitors. The music, led by Brother T. O. Adams, of Rayne Memorial Church, was splendid, and added no little to the profit of the occasion. The presence of brethren from a distance is noted elsewhere. We would write at length—having made notes of interesting things done and said—but Rev. C. D. Atkinson, who was elected League Editor for the ADVOCATE, will give a full account in our next issue. We are glad to see so much interest manifested in this department of the church.

PREACHERS' MEETING.

The weekly New Orleans Preachers' Meeting of April 7 was called to order by Presiding Elder LaPrade. Dr. C. F. Reid, of Corea, led in prayer. In addition to the attendance of all the pastors, there were present Dr. Reid, of Corea; Rev. M. Dickie, of Brazil; Rev. W. G. Evans, Prof. H. B. Carre, Rev. J. L. Sutton, Messrs. J. M. Wynn, Louis Wicks, and J. T. Reames, of Baton Rouge.

The local pastors were called on for monthly reports of their charges. The following additions were reported: Louisiana Avenue, six; Carrollton Avenue, two; Carondelet, two; Mary Werlein Mission, two, and Rayne Memorial, two.

After the reports were made, Rev. M. Dickie, of Brazil, delivered a most interesting address on the outlook of mission work in Brazil. He said Brazil was the best field our church had. He believes there will be a thousand additions this year.

Dr. Reid, of Corea, was introduced, and made a great appeal for a forward movement in missions. A group of churches in the city has promised to support Rev. G. D. Parker as their missionary.

NOTES.

Revival meetings will begin at Parker Memorial and Gretna this week. Rev. J. M. Cumming, of Mobile, will assist at Parker Memorial, and Rev. J. M. Alford, of Leesville, La., will assist at Gretna.

Revs. J. F. Foster and R. H. Wynn will begin revival services next week in their churches.

Several of the pastors reported Conference collections full in subscriptions.

C. D. ATKINSON,
Secretary.

PERSONAL.

Rev. T. H. McClendon, though on the superannuated list of the Louisiana Conference, is in fairly good health, and will, for the remainder of the year, have charge of Franklinton circuit. He passed through the city a few days since on his way to the work.

Rev. W. G. Evans came down from Grand Cane, last week, to look after the Louisiana Conference Minutes, copy for which has been in the printer's hand for three months. He also took his place in the Epworth League Conference, and contributed his share to the success of the meeting.

Rev. J. R. Moore is doing excellent work as pastor and preacher at Monroe, and is held in highest esteem by his excellent people. He purposes soon to begin special services, and will have the assistance of Rev. Henry Trawick, of Tuskegee, Ala. We hope the efforts may result in a great revival.

Rev. J. W. Chambers, pastor of our church at McComb, Miss., passed through the city on Thursday last. He had a little time at command, and visited the ADVOCATE office. We enjoyed his visit. The church is in fine condition, and growing. He thinks McComb is a fine town, and destined to expand.

Rev. M. M. Black, of Mayersville, Miss., serves an appreciative people, who show him and his family many courtesies. On account of the sparseness of the white population in the Delta, church work does not make such a show as some other sections, but progress is being made, and the outlook is encouraging.

Dr. C. F. Reid, late Superintendent of our Corean Mission, has been spending a while in Mississippi and Louisiana. He added much to the interest and profit of the State Epworth League Conference in the city, last week, as did also Rev. M. Dickie, of Brazil, who has been sojourning several months in New Orleans.

Rev. J. L. Sutton, chaplain to the penitentiary of Louisiana, attended the Epworth League Conference last week. While in the city he enlisted the interest of friends in behalf of the moral and intellectual needs of the prisoners, securing reading matter, newspapers, magazines, etc. Such literature is always in demand and appreciated.

Dr. H. W. Featherstun, of the Mississippi Conference, attended the Louisiana State League Conference in this city, last week, and, as usual, delighted his hearers with his talks, which are always interesting and instructive. While here, in connection with Rev. Thos. Carter and Rev. C. D. Atkinson, arrangement for the Tri-State League Conference was made.

Rev. H. R. Singleton, Jr., of Ruston, delivered a lecture in this city, on the evening of April 1, in the interest of the Parker Memorial Parsonage Debt. The subject of the lecture, "The Wedding March," was much enjoyed. It was full of wit and humor and wise sayings. Brother Singleton is a very bright man. He knows well how to entertain an audience.

North Mississippi Conference Notes.

In accordance with instructions of the Sunday-school Board, Children's Day Programmes have been ordered sent to each pastor in proportion to number of Sunday-school scholars reported in the charge. Should any pastor fail to receive in due time his package, or if any one should not receive enough, let him write to me for what he needs. Our desire is to furnish free of charge an ample supply for a general observance of Children's Day.

This writer has recently spent two weeks very pleasantly and, he trusts, profitably within the bounds of the Mississippi Conference. One Sabbath and a few days were given to Florence, with Bro. G. M Hull and his people, preaching, addressing the Sunday-school and circulating the books and papers. A Bible Teachers' Study Circle was organized and nine sets of the books sold. Three days were spent in Jackson in attendance upon the Preachers' Missionary Institute and visiting among friends. Thence to Yazoo City, where was held on Friday another Preachers' Missionary Institute, and on Sunday Dr. Hamill preached an excellent sermon to a large and appreciative congregation. It was planned for him to deliver an address on Sunday-school work in the evening at the Methodist Church, the other churches uniting in the services; but a heavy rainfall prevented.

The week following I attended the Sunday school Conference at Utica, and can truly say, "It was good to be there." It was an occasion of great interest, and much and abiding good will doubtless come of it. Prof. Hamill, our Superintendent of the Bible Teachers' Study Circle Work, was present and rendered valuable service. His addresses and illustrations are highly instructive and inspiring.

During these visitations the colporter distributed many books, especially of our song books and the books for the Bible Teachers' Study Circle. Thanks are hereby tendered to all who in any wise helped in the good work.

Rev. Amos Kendall recently aided Dr. Wier in a two weeks' meeting in Lexington, during which he preached twenty sermons with the vigor of former years. He is in fine health and enjoying this rest year greatly. We are glad to have him and Sister Kendall with us at this writing. Their presence is a benediction to any home or community. May they live yet many years to bless their generation and church.

The Old Men and Women Do Bless Him.

Thousands of people come or send every year to DR. D. M. BYE for his Balmy Oil to cure them of cancer and other malignant diseases. Out of this number a great many very old people, whose ages range from seventy to one hundred years, on account of distance and infirmities of age, they send for home treatment. A free book is sent, telling what they say of the treatment. Address DR. D. M. BYE CO., Box 462, Dallas, Tex. [If not afflicted, cut this out and send it to some suffering one.]

Louisiana Conference.

Beginning April 24, and continuing through Sunday, April 27, the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Louisiana Conference will hold its twenty-third annual meeting in Rayne Memorial Church. Morning and evening sessions will be held, to which all are cordially invited. B P. WERLEIN, Cor. Sec.

DEAR SIRS:—I do not want to be without a supply of your Emmett's Colic and Bots Cure as long as I own an animal subject to the above named diseases. Am a farmer, owner and breeder of horses, cows and hogs. I have used the Specific in a good number of cases, and in every instance, found it fully as good as recommended. There is an increasing demand for it here among the farmers. Yours,

"Potatoes."

We once heard of a man who ate potatoes for breakfast, but at lunch his wife always gave him a nice dish of potatoes, while for dinner the dear woman thought he would enjoy nothing more than a good square meal of potatoes.

This poor man died.

My dear madam, have mercy on the poor man who has to eat potatoes all the time; give him a change. Order a "New Orleans Cook Book." It is full of the best recipes by the best cooks of this Southland—95 pages—and was designed to be serviceable. Send twenty cents in stamps to the ADVOCATE office, and secure one of these valuable books before the limited supply is exhausted.

A HELPING FUND.

We have many calls to send the ADVOCATE to poor, aged persons at a reduced rate. This we always do. Are there not many persons, well-to-do in this world's goods, who will send us money—any sum they may see fit to give—to supply the ADVOCATE to persons who would like to have it, but are unable to pay anything? We will gladly send it to such for one dollar a year. We hope to get many responses to this appeal. Let those who respond designate the names of those to whom they desire the paper sent, or give the money to their pastors, and let them send the names. If names are not sent, the editor will do the best he can. Who will first respond?

Aberdeen District Conference.

The District Conference of the Aberdeen district will meet at Nettleton, Miss., June 26-29, 1902.

The District Sunday-school Conference will be held in connection with the District Conference, on the twenty-sixth. A programme will appear later.

Forest District Conference.

The District Conference of the Forest district closed Saturday, March 29. The Conference was preceded by the Preachers' Institute, lasting two days. The Institute sifted our doctrines, and the Conference sifted our work. This was the nearest approach to the ideal Conference we have ever attended. Unity and brotherly love prevailed. The spirit of victory is in the district. Loyalty to truth and duty is the motto. No compromise is made with sloth or stinginess. The assessments for missions, etc., are already nearly provided for in some charges. Bro. Donnell's report of work among the Choctaws was marvelous. Bro. Mellen is—concerning the district—ubiquitous. One brother said: "If we are right, our presiding elder is behind us; if we are wrong, he is still behind us." O God! give us the power of the Holy Ghost. God bless you, Bro. Boswell.

REV. WALKER'S
FAMOUS DYSPEPSIA CURE.

Famous for Glorious Achievements.

The recognized unfailing scientific Cure for Dyspepsia, Nervous Indigestion, Constipation, Acidity, and Biliousness. Relief in one minute, with first dose, quickly effects a permanent Cure. Never fails. Neutralizes and eradicates dyspeptic poison. An absolute specific. Very palatable, perfectly harmless, as gentle as nature in effect. Neglected Dyspepsia and Indigestion produces "Bright's Disease," undermines the vital organs, overthrows the mental faculties, producing insanity and death.

Mr. J. G Thompson, Anclote, Fla., voluntarily writes "I suffered agonies from Dyspepsia. Walker's Famous Dyspepsia Cure completely cured me. I gained 14 pounds in one month. My friends are astonished at my quick recovery. A wonderful medicine."

The Commoner
(Mr. Bryan's Paper)

The Commoner has attained within six months from date of the first issue a circulation of 100,000 copies, a record probably never equaled in the history of American periodical literature. The unparalleled growth of this paper demonstrates that there is room in the newspaper field for a national paper devoted to the discussion of political, economic, and social problems. To the columns of The Commoner Mr. Bryan contributes his best efforts, and his review of political events as they arise from time to time can not fail to interest those who study public questions.

The Commoner's regular subscription price is $1 per year. We have arranged with Mr. Bryan whereby we can furnish his paper and NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE together for one year for $2.25. The regular subscription price of the two papers when subscribed for separately is $3 net. When remittance is made by personal check ten cents extra will be charged.

An Appeal to Our Friends.

We make a special appeal to our friends who owe us on subscription to send us the amount due. We need the money. The amount each one owes is small, but the aggregate amounts to hundreds of dollars. Our friends must see that it is embarrassing to us to withhold the money. Please look at the label on your paper, and if you are behind, send us the amount due. We will greatly appreciate it.

WHAT A SAMPLE BOTTLE OF SWAMP-ROOT DID.

To Prove what Swamp-Root, the Great Kidney, Liver and Bladder Remedy, will do for YOU, Every Reader of "CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE" May Have a Sample Bottle Sent Free by Mail.

W. F. Lohnes, a prominent business man of Springfield, Ohio, writes the following strong endorsement of the great kidney remedy, Swamp-Root, to the editor of the Springfield, Ohio, Republic:

W. F LOHNES.

Springfield, Ohio, Feb. 21st, 1901

"Having heard that you could procure a sample bottle of Swamp-Root free by mail, I wrote to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle and it was promptly sent. I was so pleased after trying the sample bottle that I went to the drug store and procured a supply. I have used Swamp-Root regularly for some time and consider it unsurpassed as a remedy for torpid liver, loss of appetite and general derangement of the digestive functions. I think my trouble was due to too close confinement in my business. I can recommend it highly for all liver and kidney complaints. I am not in the habit of endorsing any medicine, but in this case I can not speak too much in praise of what Swamp-Root has done for me."

421 West High St. W. F. Lohnes.

Weak and unhealthy kidneys are responsible for more sickness and suffering than any other disease, therefore, when through neglect or other causes, kidney trouble is permitted to continue, fatal results are sure to follow.

We often see a friend, a relative, or an acquaintance apparently well, but in a few days we may be grieved to learn of their severe illness, or sudden death, caused by that fatal type of kidney trouble—Bright's Disease.

EDITORIAL NOTE—If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the famous new discovery, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, because as soon as your kidneys are well they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone.

You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful remedy, Swamp-Root, sent absolutely free by mail, also a book telling all about Swamp-Root and containing many of the thousands upon thousands of testimonial letters received from men and women who owe their good health, in fact their very lives to the great curative properties of Swamp-Root. In writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure to say that you read this generous offer in the NEW ORLEANS "CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE."

If you are already convinced that Swamp-Root is what you need, you can purchase the regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles at the drug stores everywhere. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

FROM REV. W. J. BURT.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: Not long ago one of our presiding elders wrote to me on business, and addressed me at Tyro, Miss. My address is Wardell, Ark. I am west of the Mississippi river. I am about twenty-five miles northwest of Memphis with my brother in-law, who owns land here, and who thinks that this is the garden spot of the world. The land is rich and produces all farm products in abundance. Much of it is still uncleared. We have a fine range for stock in Summer and Winter. There are many cows, horses and hogs in the cane now. The weather has been rough on them since the first of February. At times the leaf of the cane has been covered with a shield of ice. The stock could eat but little of it, and some good horses and mules have died from eating the frozen cane. Some cattle have been killed by falling limbs broken by a burden of sleet. But hogs have suffered most. We had but little mast last Fall. Hogs were in bad condition, and when the sleet and ice came and stayed for days and days, hundreds of them died of starvation.

Brother Wilson is our pastor. He is a young man in great favor with his people. We hear him preach once a month at Wilson's Chapel, a handsome new church not far away, built by Brother Wilson last year, and named in honor of him. We have some Baptists here, but Methodism is in the front and constantly looking for a new place to put her foot. When the country is all cleared and settled, the church will be here in her glory and utility. My health is not yet perfect, but is still improving. May the Spirit of God rest upon every member of the North Mississippi Conference in great power, and may much good be accomplished by them this year. If the Lord will, I hope to join them soon in the great work of preaching our Lord's gospel.

Yours fraternally,
W. J. BURT.

Wardell, Ark.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

BIENVILLE, LA.

Bienville is a nice little town, incorporated, with about three hundred inhabitants. We have two nice churches here—our M. E. Church, South, and the other a Missionary Baptist Church. The town is blessed with a High School, and the people have recently formed a District, and voted a ten-mill tax to support it.

There are four churches in this circuit, and a total membership of about two hundred and fifty. We have one good Sunday school and two prayer meetings. I have made quite a number of pastoral visits, and find there are about ten family altars in my charge, and there are only two subscribers for our ADVOCATE out of the two hundred and fifty members.

Our presiding elder was with us on the appointed time. Though almost sick, he did us good service, especially Saturday and Sunday at eleven o'clock A. M. His subject for Sunday morning, at eleven, was Foreign Missions, which he handled ably and to the delight of quite a number, after which we took a collection for foreign missions and received $21.35.

We have received dishes and other things in the way of furnishing the parsonage to the amount of $14.60, which was very badly needed and was very much appreciated.

Prospects, religiously, in this circuit look very gloomy to me, but I pray God's blessings upon the people, and trust the Lord will bless our work with success.

Brethren, I earnestly solicit your prayers in behalf of this circuit.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

PORTERVILLE, MISS.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: When the Bishop read out my name for the Porterville circuit, I felt like something was wrong. But after I had time to reflect I said: I am in the hands of the Almighty. I will go where he wants me to go. I will do what he wants me to do. For I had often heard that the Porterville circuit was the hardest circuit in the Mississippi Conference. Since I have been on the circuit I have had some sickness in my family, and I have been sick myself; also the weather has been very disagreeable, and I have been prevented from doing but little pastoral work so far; but the people have been very kind to us, responding to all our wants. I must say that I have never met with a more generous, kind and hospitable people than those on the Porterville circuit. I feel that God is directing us, and that we have made a start in the right direction. I believe that I will be able to report to the Annual Conference: All claims paid in full. I have received three into the church—two by baptism, one by profession of faith.

Brethren, pray for us, that God may pour out his Holy Spirit upon us, and that many sons and daughters may be born unto God.

The Work That Is Never Done.

"If things would only stay done: if I could look back over the day and see one thing accomplished which will not have to be done over again to-morrow, I should not get so tired of it or feel so discouraged!"

How many millions of wives and mothers have made some comment as this on the monotony of household tasks! It is not alone the deadly sameness, the constant repetition of little duties! It is even more the feeling of futility, the apparent failure to accomplish any enduring results. The bread which was baked this morning will be gone to-morrow; the dishes are washed and put away, only to be used and washed again; the linen fresh from the ironing table will be back in the laundry by the end of the week; the rooms swept clean the other day already need sweeping; the children call for endless sympathy and attention.

A man's work may be ever so hard; it is less often clouded by this sense of unproductiveness. It usually brings a definite reward in the feeling of something accomplished, some tangible result achieved. The architect points to the finished building, and says: "I designed it." The carpenter and the mason, who see the structure growing under their hands, know that it will stand for years, an unimpeachable witness to their industry and faithfulness.

But the things which are tangible are not always those which are most real or most useful. There are other noble works besides fine buildings. The young man who goes out into the world healthy and clean-minded, strong in principles which he acquired at home and firm in the belief that there is no other woman in the world quite so good as his mother, he is a nobler work even than a Parthenon or a Taj Mahal. And the daughter who has grown to womanhood with a pure heart and hands trained to perpetuate in a new home the deeds of usefulness and comfort learned in the old—is she less to the world than brick and marble?

"Do you think that nothing is happening because you do not see yourself grow, or hear the whir of the machinery?" says Henry Drummond. "All great things grow noiselessly; you can see a mushroom grow, but never a child."—Selected.

"I'm Part of the Concern."

A clergyman on his way to a missionary meeting overtook a boy and asked him about the road and where he was going, says Good Words. "Oh," he said, "I'm going to the meeting to hear about the missionaries." "Missionaries!" said the minister. "What do you know about missionaries?" "Why," said the boy, "I'm part of the concern. I've got a missionary box, and I always go to the missionary meeting. I belong." Every child should feel that he is "part of the concern," and that his work is just as important as that of any one else. Linchpins are very little things, but if they drop out, the wagon is likely to come to a standstill. Every pin and screw should be in working order, and every child should be able to say: "I always go to the missionary meeting. Why, I'm part of the concern!"—Zion's Herald.

Rev. Wesley Griffin Evans.

Wesley G. Evans was born in Greene county Miss., Sept. 16, 1818. His father, Thomas Evans, was a devoted Christian and a staunch Methodist, his home being the home of Methodist itinerants and his house a house of worship, both public and private. In this home revival meetings were often held. In such a home Wesley Evans was trained. In his infancy the family moved to White Sand, Lawrence county, Miss. At the age of ten they moved to Harrison county, Miss. Here he continued to make his home, except for four years during the Civil War, when his home was in Jackson county, Miss. In infancy he was baptized by Rev. Thomas Griffin, for whom he was partly named. At the age of fifteen he was converted and joined the church at Santee Camp Meeting, in Covington county, Miss. At sixteen years of age he was licensed to preach. He was ordained deacon and elder, but we know not the dates. His ministry continued for sixty-seven years, till he was called from labor to reward. Under the most unfavorable circumstances he succeeded in getting a good English education. He was also a close student of theology. This broad foundation rendered him acceptable and efficient among all classes.

In 1842 he was married to Miss Lucetta Woodruff, an excellent woman, who died in 1844, leaving him an infant son. In 1847 he was again most happily married, to Miss Susanna Carter, whose blessed companionship he enjoyed for forty years, she dying in 1887. The memory of this saintly woman many of us treasure as a sacred heritage. The writer is under lasting obligation to this godly family for the kindest of attention when very sick at their home. To Bro. and Sister Evans were born five children, all of whom still live. One of these, Mrs. Lou Whyte, is known throughout the church for her activity in church and missionary work. Hon. T. M. Evans, a son at Gulfport, and others of their children are also active and zealous Christians.

Bro. and Sister Evans have been justly designated "Father and mother of Methodism on the Gulf coast." Bro. Evans, in the early years of his ministry, supplied work in the southern part of Mississippi from Black Creek to the coast. He was the pioneer of Methodism on the coast, building the first churches at Handsboro and Coalville and other places. By petition from the members of Handsboro Church he served them for two or three years. At Mississippi City he was the only Protestant preacher that held services regularly in a period of fifty-five years, preaching in humble homes, in parlors, and in the court-house. He frequently held revival meetings, receiving members and reporting them to the nearest pastor. For several years after the Civil War when preachers were scarce, he served the Handsboro and Coalville works, and without compensation. In the camp meeting in Southeast Mississippi for sixty years Bro. Evans was a fixture. Without his presence, his prayers, his exhortations and sermons, something was lacking. He delivered the first sermon at Gulfport, using a box-car for a church. When the G. and S. I. R. R. was being constructed he frequently visited the camps, preaching and praying with the men, and not neglecting the convicts who were employed in that work.

When the Civil War began he raised a company, and, as captain, entered the Confederate Army. It was said that every man in his company loved him. In the forties and fifties he was clerk of the courts in Harrison county. In the sixties he represented Harrison and Jackson counties in the Legislature. He often preached to the negroes, and tried to influence them to do right. They loved and honored him. Especially was this true of his own slaves. An affecting scene was that when one of them, 'Uncle Sam Evans," ninety-six years old, stood over his remains and wept aloud, and said, "I know Marse Wesley is in heaven, and I expect to meet him there."

On his eighty-second birthday he preached an instructive and effective sermon at Bond. On Easter Sunday, 1901, he received a man and his wife into the church, baptizing the father with six children.

He died at the home of his son, Will J. Evans, in Bond, Miss., Nov. 16, 1901, in the eighty-fourth year of his age. When told that he was dying he said, "All is well; God's will be done." His last words were aout trusting to Jesus. One who stood by said, "His death was beautiful; he calmly and sweetly fell on sleep." After funeral services in Gulfport and Coalville Churches he was laid to rest in Coalville Cemetery.

Bro. Evans was a man of large natural endowments. Possessed of fine natural address, clear intellect, full and excellent voice, an eloquent and untiring speaker, sympathetic, social, fond of company—at home in any social circle. He was most powerful in prayer. With what strong and ringing voice, fervor of spirit, and faith in his Lord, he would plead at the throne of grace, clapping his hands aloud until the vaulted heavens would ring and echo back, "The dead's alive, the lost is found, and God is binding up the broken-hearted." When a young preacher, an old sea captain said of him, "The devil has laid an egg so large on the Mississippi coast that all of little Wes. Evans' prayers can't turn it over." But before that old sea captain died he sent for Wes. Evans to come and pray for him. He came and prayed, the old captain professed conversion, and he received him into the church. Who can ever forget his prayers? Who will take the place of our fathers in prayer?

He was full of enthusiasm. In the midst of discouragements that would have driven others to despair, he, knowing no discouragement, would begin to bubble with enthusiasm, and then waves, great waves of enthusiasm would begin to roll, and on these white-capped waves souls would be borne with shouts into the kingdom.

He was an old-time revivalist. He had the old-time fire. There was nothing tame about his services. In sermon, in prayer, and in exhortation, he was a power, an old-time altar worker. So he stands ling over mourners, exhorting them, clapping his hands, falling on his knees before them, instructing them, praying with them, leading the public prayer. Thousands were swept into the kingdom who will rise up to call him blessed in that day. With the presence of the Holy Spirit he could create revival waves, and ride them successfully; and who ever enjoyed these occasions more? He possessed a large degree of emotion. A less emotional man could not have succeeded as he did; would not have suited the times and people. He rejoiced in every revival that he witnessed or heard of, especially on the Gulf coast. He greatly enjoyed the Seashore Camp Meeting, associating with the brethren and drinking in their great sermons. When Seashore Camp Meeting was established he said, "God has sent Bishop Keener, Bishop McTyeire, Dr. Weisworth, and other good and great men, to help me turn over the devil's egg.'"

His loyalty to his church was commendable. He worked in the most perfect harmony with pastor and presiding elder; was the best friend of the pastor, always ready to defend the pastor or Methodism. When necessary, he acted as steward, collecting the quarterage in full. He was always a great help to the pastor in a revival.

Bro. Evans has gone from us. His memory is a holy benediction; his "name is as ointment poured forth;" his "works do follow him." We can not conceive of a soul that will enjoy the companionship of heaven more. He will but be in his natural element, joining with the hosts of heaven, and singing "unto him that loved us, and washed us from our sins in his own blood, and hath made us kings and priests unto God and his Father; to him be glory and dominion forever and ever. Amen!"

B. S. RAYNER.

HARDY BRISTER, infant son of Dr. Felix H. and Mrs. Gertrude Thompson, was born Aug. 16, 1901, and died March 21, 1902, at Bogue Chitto, Miss., aged seven months and five days. So brief was the little earthly ministry of joy and grief for the inheritance of the kingdom of heaven. All was done that devoted parents, skillful physicians and sympathizing friends could do to keep the precious gift of our heavenly Father in this world, but Jesus said, "Suffer the little children to come unto me," and taught us to say, "Thy will be done." It may be that God has performed a good work in his providence in this case that will glorify him. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. B. F. Jones, and the little body that had been the subject of pneumonia for about three weeks was tenderly laid away in the grave, and the sorrowing father and mother will often be there in spirit. They will adorn and beautify the place where the precious seed is sown, but the redeemed spirit will bloom and fruit in the city of God.

Told by Pain

If you have pains you should look after them quickly. Pain shows something is wrong. The sharper the pain the more danger there is in delay. There are thousands of women to-day who are bearing awful pain almost continually, rather than tell a physician about the shooting pains in their lower abdomen, about the agony of falling of the womb and the distress of leucorrhœa. They let the months pass and their trouble becomes harder to cure and more distressing. But modest women can secure exemption from the embarrassment of a private examination. When pain tells them of danger they can cure themselves by the use of in the privacy of their homes. You can be cured without distressing publicity. With these facts before you there is no reason for the delay which is increasing your misery and wasting the days of your life. Why not stop the pain today?

Belen, Miss., March 9, 1900.

I have used one bottle of Wine of Cardui and one package of Thedford's Black-Draught. Before I began to take your medicines I had pains in my back, hips, lower bowels and my arms. Sometimes I thought I would go blind. My head ached and I was so weak I could hardly walk across the floor. Now I can only feel a little of the pain in my side and I am going to use your medicines until I get cured, for I believe they will certainly cure me. I have been married twelve years and am the mother of seven children. I thank you for your wonderful medicine and what it has done for me.

We Have It at Last

For many years we have been trying to get a Bible containing exactly the features which, to our mind, would constitute as nearly as possible

especially for the use of preachers and teachers. We have contracted for a large number of a Bible which we believe to be the nearest to a perfect book we have ever seen. It contains the AUTHORIZED VERSION, DICTIONARY OF PROPER NAMES, SUBJECT INDEX, CONCORDANCE, AND MAPS. The type is long primer, self-pronouncing. It is 6x8½ inches, and only 1 inch thick. Bound in the best levant morocco, divinity circuit (overlapping edges), calf lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges. By reason of the large number contracted for we are selling this splendid Bible at only a little more than half its regular price.

Our Price, Only $5.00

Postage 20 cents additional, if mailed.

Giant Flowering Caladium

Grandest foliage and flowering plant yet introduced. Leaves 2 to 3 feet long by 1 or 2½ feet broad; perfectly luxuriant, and make a plant which for tropical beauty has no equal. Added to this wonderful foliage effect are its rich fly-like blossoms, 12 to 15 inches long, snow-white, with a rich and exquisite fragrance. Plants bloom perpetually all summer in the garden, or all the year round in pots. Not only is it the grandest garden or lawn plant, but as a pot plant for large windows, vestibules, halls, or conservatories, it rivals the choicest palms in value, to say nothing of its magnificent flowers. Thrives in any soil or situation, and grows and blooms all the year, and will astonish every one with its magnificence. By parcel, collective, free delivery, and prepaid.

Three plants, which will soon bloom and reach full perfection, 25c.; each, 8 for 60c.; 6 for $1.00 by mail, postpaid, guaranteed to arrive in good condition.

OUR GREAT CATALOGUE of Flower and Vegetable Seeds, Bulbs, Plants and Rare New Fruits, profusely illustrated; Lots of Colored Plates; 178 pages; FREE to any who request to order. Many great novelties.

High Pressure Days.

Men and women alike have to work incessantly with brain and hand to hold their own nowadays. Never were the demands of business, the wants of the family, the requirements of society, more numerous. The first effect of the praiseworthy effort to keep up with all these things is commonly seen in a weakened or debilitated condition of the nervous system, which results in dyspepsia, defective nutrition of both body and brain, and in extreme cases in complete nervous prostration. It is clearly seen that what is needed is what will sustain the system, give vigor and tone to the nerves, and keep the digestive and assimilative functions healthy and active. From personal knowledge, we can recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla for this purpose. It acts on all the vital organs, builds up the whole system, and fits men and women for these high pressure days.

Testifies with Pleasure.

Good evidence: "With pleasure I testify to the merits of Hughes' Tonic as a remedy for chills and fever. I recommend it, and in no case have I known it to fail, even in the most obstinate." Sold by Druggists—50c. and $1.00 bottles.

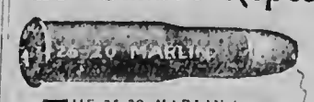
THE ORIGINAL
25 Calibre Repeater



THE 25-20 MARLIN is one of the handiest arms made and accurate to 300 yards, with light report and little recoil. Its bullet is more reliable than a 22 calibre and the barrel does not foul as rapidly. It will kill cleanly and quickly without tearing. Smokeless powder can be used in a large variety of loads, and the ammunition is cheap.

To the Bureau of Materia Medica: T. J. Hunt, Merom, Indiana, manufactures a Digestive Tablet which bears his name, and which deserves of this notice. I have taken clinical pains to become thoroughly acquainted with it, and as a result of my acquaintance, am able to say that it is not only all that he claims for it, but as well, it is quite unlike the ordinary digestive tablets. The tablet is the initial incident to health in all of its most coveted phases, and covers a wide range of usefulness.

It is well known that for some months past the British have been buying horses and mules in the United States for shipment to South Africa, to be used in the war against the Boers. But not until very recently was it suspected that a regular army post was maintained, where not only supplies have been purchased, but men secured for the British army. It is now charged openly that such a post is maintained at New Orleans. The charges have been officially presented to Gov. Heard, of Louisiana, and through him to the administration at Washington. The government has an officer on the ground, who is quietly looking into the matter. Up to this writing nothing has been made public showing that the laws of neutrality have been violated. If proof of such is developed, of course the post will be broken up, and the illegal work stopped. If not, the horse and mule trade will continue as long as the British are disposed to buy. We are not sufficiently informed to pass judgment, only so far as to say, if there is a regular post under British officers at New Orleans—or in Missouri, as is also said—it is a serious matter; an unpardonable breach of trust on the part of British officers.

The question of municipal ownership of public utilities is a question that will have to be settled by all the big cities of the country, and, perhaps, by the government. The city of Chicago has just spoken on the subject. The Times-Democrat says: "At the recent city election in Chicago several questions were submitted to the popular vote. The two most important of these questions were: 1. Shall the city of Chicago own all the street railroads within its corporate limits? 2. Shall the city of Chicago own the gas and electric lighting plants, and furnish therefrom light, heat and power for public and private use? As to municipal ownership of street railways, the voters said aye, by a vote of 124,594 to 25,987. As to the municipal ownership of lighting plants, the voters said aye, by a vote of 124,190 to 19,477. These are splendid majorities, and give evidence of the strong popular sentiment in Chicago in favor of municipal ownership." This vote clearly shows the trend of sentiment.

For some time past there has been talk of cruelties practiced by the army on the natives of the Philippine Islands. One officer is now being court-martialed for killing persons without trial. It seems that he does not deny the charge, but pleads that he was acting under the orders of his superior officer. Now, there comes a report from Major Gardener, civil governor of one of the provinces, in which the army is charged, in specific terms, with brutality and maladministration. Major Gardener's report "has created a sensation in congressional circles, and the President's friends have told him that, in their judgment, serious results would follow unless some action was taken either to refute the testimony of Major Gardener, or to show the disapprobation of the War Department with the method of conducting warfare described by him." Without admitting the truth of the accusations, one major-general has gone so far as to deny that any regular officer would be guilty of cruelty, but suggests that if such is practiced, it is by volunteer officers. That is an effort to shift responsibility. The authorities are aroused, and will sift the whole matter to the bottom, and Secretary Root says those found guilty "will be punished as is provided for in violations of the rules of war."

The will of the late Cecil Rhodes, the multi-millionaire diamond king of South Africa, when opened, revealed a surprising thing. He had provided for several hundred scholarships in Oxford College, England, the scholarships being divided among young men of different nations, many of them for boys in the United States. The scholarships are worth $1,500 per year. Such a devise was not the work of an unbalanced mind. It was not the whim of an old bachelor. It looks to the future, and may have a far-reaching effect on the nations of the earth. If we understand the matter, Mr. Rhodes had in his mind the idea of making statesmen of the very highest order. But whatever his purpose, if such young men are selected as he prescribes, and his will is carried out, there will proceed from Oxford men of larger views, and men of a clearer sense of the common brotherhood of the race, and in due time they will act their part in preserving the peace of the world. Such a will was never before probated in the history of the world.

THEN AND NOW.

BY REV. HOUSTON ARMSTRONG.

Brother Scurlock's article on the "Transformation of Methodism" awakened in my mind reminiscences of away back in the fifties—those good old times, before the dark clouds of civil war burst in fury upon our Sunny South, and before general demoralization, which accompanies war, and especially civil war, became deep-seated and widespread. I was not brought up a Methodist, but from boyhood there was something in their hearty Amens and enthusiastic singing that impressed and attracted me, and often drew me to their services. From my (Presbyterian) standpoint, the most of them had no dignity, and when I attended their services, I usually lost mine, and joined in most cordially with them. Friday before each quarterly meeting was generally, and I believe always, observed as a day of fasting and prayer. The custom was for each congregation to meet at their church, and spend a greater part of the day in singing, prayer, and in relating their Christian experiences. "They spake often, one to another." Class meetings existed then, and they were compulsory. If each one did not testify for Jesus voluntarily, he was called out by the class leader, and had to tell something. Now class meetings are very few and far between, and not long since I heard habitual testifying for Christ sneered at by a man in high authority in our beloved Methodism. Such singing now as obtained then would be very objectionable with many Methodists. They would use any kind of a book, and no book, and some of their enthusiastic leaders in song would manufacture choruses as they sang, such as: "Oh, brethren, will you meet me?" etc.; "Joy, joy, has just begun, O halle hallelujah," etc.; "And we'll cross the river of Jordan happy, O happy," etc.

It seems to me there was less skepticism then than now, and that convictions were deeper, and conversions brighter. The bitter cry from the penitent was, "Lord, have mercy on my soul!" Have known them so sick at heart that they would refuse to eat or sleep for twenty-four consecutive hours. There was a young man who was brought up in my neighborhood, who became so deeply sick at heart that his Hardshell parents, not understanding the case, called in the family physician, who was puzzled, and could not diagnose the case. Soon the Great Physician healed the wounded soul, and he leaped like a hart, and praised God aloud.

I am not positive, but it seems to me that discipline was observed then more than now. I know expulsions were of frequent occurrence. Where I am, and where I have been for years, the rules of the church are violated with impunity. What is the matter with me? Why do not I have the rules enforced? Simply because my predecessors have not done so, and for this reason it is difficult to do. Whereunto will this lead?

CORRECTIONS AND ASSESSMENTS.

BY REV. E. C. SULLIVAN.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: Allow me to make some corrections through the ADVOCATE. The pastor from Waterford circuit reported five infants baptized; the Minutes report 0. He reported $18.85 paid to foreign missions; the Minutes report $6.85. Waterford is in that district that suffered severely from the drouth, but those people should have credit for what they pay. In the Raper and Shumaker pamphlet, classifying the charges, Waterford falls in the fifth class, and is near the bottom of that. I think the proper basis on which to calculate all the collections is the preacher's salary.

Now, we want to use the salary basis, and compare Waterford with a few other charges all classed higher than Waterford. Waterford paid the preacher $231, and to foreign missions $18.85, which is 8 per cent., and a fraction over, of the preacher's salary. The whole amount paid by the North Mississippi Conference for foreign missions is less than ten per cent. of the whole amount paid for preacher's salary; so Waterford was nearly up to an average. Sardis district paid 13 per cent., Columbus district paid 13 per cent., Aberdeen district paid 12 per cent., Durant district paid 10 per cent., Corinth district paid 9 per cent., Holly Springs district paid 9 per cent., Grenada district paid 8 per cent., Greenville district paid 8 per cent. Let us compare some stations:

Class A (Raper and Shumaker)—Carrollton paid 21 per cent., Greenwood paid 20 per cent., Columbus, Macon, West Point, Aberdeen and Winona paid 16 per cent.; Como paid 15 per cent.; Starkville, Oxford and Senatobia paid 14 per cent.; Corinth, Tupelo, and Lexington and Tchula, paid 13 per cent.; Durant and Kosciusko paid 12 per cent.; Pickens paid 11 per cent., Gunnison paid 9 per cent., Greenville paid 8 per cent., Rosedale paid 7 per cent.

Class B Redbanks paid 18 per cent., Tyro paid 17 per cent., Batesville and Wesley and Holly Springs paid 14 per cent., Ackerman and Holly Springs circuit paid 13 per cent., Longtown paid 12 per cent., Eureka paid 11 per cent., Booneville station and Buena-Vista paid 10 per cent., Okolona station paid 6 per cent.

Class D Coffeeville, Abbeville and Booneville circuit paid 8 per cent.; Pleasant Hill paid 4 per cent.

The foregoing examinations refer always to the payments. Should we compare the assessments, we would find them very unequal. Take, for instance, Aberdeen. The assessment for foreign missions is 16⅔ per cent. of the assessment for the preacher. The assessment for foreign missions on the Waterford circuit is nearly 21 per cent. of that for the preacher. The foreign mission assessment for Greenville station is 8 per cent. of that for the preacher, and on Holly Springs circuit the foreign mission assessment is 24 per cent. of the preacher's.

I think it is time for our Boards to consider how they are making the assessments, and make them more equal. We are all men, and all laboring in the Lord's vineyard, and all should be treated alike. May the Lord bless all the preachers (including those that make the assessments) and the people!

A BIBLE SOCIETY BOARD.

The delegation from the Holston Conference will memorialize the approaching General Conference "to enact a law making it the duty of an Annual Conference to appoint a Bible Society Board, consisting of one member from each presiding elder's district, to be appointed at the first Conference after the General Conference, and to hold office four years."

This memorial, I think, should be adopted for very many reasons, a few of which I state:

1. As the law now is, there is no representative of the Bible cause in the interim of Conference. A Board would give it competent representatives all the year, and for four years consecutively.

2. The Committee on Bible Cause, usually appointed by Conferences, is, in the very nature of the case, composed of new, untrained men, and there is no time in which to train them, as the committee is born when the Conference is organized, and dies when it adjourns.

3. A Board would give trained representatives in every presiding elder's district, so that no District Conference, or other important gathering, could assemble in any district without a representative being present who would be a member of the body and entitled to the floor.

4. Such a Board would be a perfect Bureau of Information between the Bible House, its agents, and the whole church. Through it appointments could be made for agents and all Bible Society gatherings, obviating all conflict, and Bible Society literature could be circulated.

5. This Board would help the M. E. Church, South, quite as much as the American Bible Society. Every pastor knows that in our cities and larger towns there are auxiliary Bible Societies, where the people can get the books; but in the smaller towns and rural districts, just where they are most needed, there are no auxiliaries, and the people do not get them. In many localities the destitution is appalling. In one year, through the pastors, this Board could know accurately the condition of every field, would decide how much and how the money for Bible cause should be raised, and, when collected, could place any amount of it to its purchase account with the society and buy books with it, ordering directly from the Bible House to the place of destitution without the extra trouble and expense of Depository. This would enable us to put the Word of God in the hands of all our people, and many others, both systematically and intelligently. After careful study of this great interest for years, I am fully convinced that this legislation will, in a short time, revolutionize Bible work in all of the territory covered by the M. E. Church, South. I ask the earnest and prayerful attention to it of every member elect to the General Conference. Very truly,

GEO. D. FRENCH.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: I have read with pleasure and profit your paper on "The Relation of Baptized Children to the Church." It is a subject concerning which our people, generally, have very indefinite ideas, and, consequently, very lax discharge of a great responsibility.

It seems to me that you have wisely placed the emphasis upon the grounds of our practice of infant baptism. We assume too much in supposing that our people, as a rule, understand the scriptural authority and significance of this practice. You have stated the case in clear and concise form.

The importance of this fact is evident. The whole question of Christian nurture is determined by the relation which exists under grace by children to the kingdom of God. You have so stated the matter as to greatly enforce our obligation in the care and training of the children of the church.

I heartily concur with you in the statement that our Discipline has made ample provision for the religious instruction of the children. The trouble with us is simply the failure to do the thing which our legislation calls for. We simply need a stronger conscience on this point.

Your publishers have issued the paper in convenient tract form, and I trust it may have a large circulation. Fraternally yours,

F. N. PARKER.

REV. J. P. DRAKE.

In his memoir of this good man Rev. B. F. Jones says, "His work as a pastor was pre-eminently constructive, both in a spiritual and material way." I desire to add this testimony to the truth of that statement.

In December, 1888, Brother Drake was sent to Shubuta, where he labored faithfully during his four years' pastorate. For the promotion of every good cause he worked zealously with heart and mind and hand. In the local-option election held in Clarke county in 1889, his wise counsels and brave leadership helped the temperance cause on to victory, the blessings of which victory we still enjoy.

He it was who kindled into life the feeble spark of missionary zeal in the church. And to his untiring energy we owe the beautiful building in which we now worship. In the face of obstacles that would have daunted a man less strong in faith, he went forward, a suitable lot was purchased, and in the third year of his pastorate the church, completed and free from every cent of debt, was dedicated.

In all these good works he was so modest, so unassuming, in honor preferring others, that few realized the extent and the worth of his labors. It is easy to enumerate the material blessings he wrought, but all the spiritual are written only in God's book of remembrance. His pure and holy walk commanded the respect of all classes, while his lovely Christian character won the confidence and love of all who knew him. Many are the hearts here bound by ties of strongest love to him, because of his Christ-like sympathy shown in hours of suffering and affliction. In and through him ever shone the divine love of his Master. It is such lives as his that draw the world to Christ. A. B. H.

MERIDIAN DISTRICT.

The District Conference for the Meridian district convened in South Side Methodist Church, Meridian, Miss., Wednesday morning, April 2, at 9:30, and adjourned Friday afternoon, April 4, 1902. The attendance of the preachers and laymen was not so good, the recent flood having cut off transportation. However, quite a number of members and delegates were present. The weather was delightful, and South Side entertained the Conference royally. The session was one of peace and harmony, and of great social and spiritual enjoyment.

Reports from the several charges of the district were very encouraging, and showed an increase along all lines. The preachers have been zealous and painstaking in the prosecution of the work. The key-note is, "Full collections, and a revival in every charge."

L. P. Brown, S. B. Watts, J. E. Watts, J. W. Beeson (all from Meridian), were elected delegates to the Annual Conference.

Rev. D. C. Hull was recommended for admission on trial into the traveling connection.

H. Mellard, J. W. Lewis, D. D.; Dr. Irvin Miller, P. H. Howse, D. Scarborough and B. W. Lewis did the preaching during the Conference.

Presiding Elder Simmons, a new man on the district, has the work well in hand, and is in high favor with both preachers and laymen. He will soon be domiciled in an elegant parsonage. MEMBER.

CORRECTION.

FORT JESUP AND MANY.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: The Minutes of the last session of the Louisiana Conference are at hand, and show commendable enterprise on the part of our editor. However, an error occurs in the financial report of Fort Jesup and Many charge which I would like to have corrected. Minutes show total assessments for Conference collections to be $202, whereas the real assessments were $178, and payments thereon $192.60, as Minutes show. As my assessments and payments were plainly written in parallel columns on my blank reports, I can not account for above mistake. Very truly,

H. B. THOMASON.

"A changed attitude is making the Jew more accessible now than at any time during the last eighteen centuries." So say the leaders of the Messiah Mission to Israel. In view of this fact, strenuous efforts are being made to advance the work of the gospel among the Jews of the United States. A call to prayer for Israel has been issued, signed by many prominent ministers throughout the country. The time set apart is May 1-10. It would be well for all Christians to bear this in mind, and unite in prayer to God that Israel may be saved.

Mr. Moody once said a good thought is worth a journey of a thousand miles. He offered a prize for the best thought sent him in a month. Here is what drew the prize: "Men grumble because God puts thorns on roses. Would it not be better to thank God that he put roses on thorns?"

The slightest sorrow for sin is sufficient if it produces amendment, and the greatest is insufficient if it does not.—Colton.

A COMMON-SENSE VIEW OF WATER BAPTISM.

BY REV. I. L. PEEBLES.

It is recorded in the Scriptures that "John also was baptizing in Aenon near to Salim, because there was much water there." (John iii, 23.) This verse has been, and is still quoted as a strong proof in favor of immersion, and, too, in favor of the claim that there is no baptism but immersion.

Now, let us just lay aside the Greek, which is, "hoti hudata polla en ekei," and which should have been translated, "because there was many waters there," and say that our translation, "much water," is all right, and even then, can we get immersion out of it? Can we know he immersed the people? If immersion is baptism, and especially the only baptism, we ought to know that John did immerse them, and that, too, in "much water." Common sense comes in and asks, "Can we know he immersed them?"

And now let us see about such unmistakable knowledge. In the first place, to be sure that he did immerse them, we ought to know that that was why he went where "there was much water." But was that why he went where there was much water? Paul says, in I. Cor. x, 2, that the whole Jewish nation, including the children and babies and all, were baptized in the sea, where there was more water by far than where John was, and yet they were baptized on dry ground. (Ex. xiv, 22.) John himself had, before this baptism in Aenon, baptized in Jordan, where there was a great deal more water, and that, too, on ground so dry and free from water, even in Jordan, that our Lord afterwards lived in the very place where John baptized the people. (John x, 40.) So, since John had baptized before this where there was much more water than there was at Aenon, and, too, baptized the people on dry ground—ground so free from water that our Savior lived on the same spot—common sense says: John might have been doing that very thing again; it was so natural for him to baptize on dry ground, since he was a Jew, and had not done otherwise before.

Methodist camp meetings are held where there is much water; but who would accuse the Methodists of holding their camp meetings where there is much water, because they wanted to immerse persons applying for membership? The Seashore Camp Meetings are held where there is much water; but is it because they immerse the people? I have known of persons joining the Methodist Church during meetings there, but I have never heard of one being immersed there yet; and really hope I shall never hear of such a thing being done. That camp ground was chosen because it is a nice and a pleasant place during the Summer. Its breezes and baths are delightful, and conducive to comfort and health. Even in the interior our camp meetings are held where there is much water, and if they were not, they would soon be deserted. I would not like to go to them myself, although I never was immersed, and never immersed anyone else. I have taken hundreds of people into the Methodist Church, but I have never immersed one yet. Great crowds went to John's baptism, and it is quite likely that many of the people rode, and even if they did not, just think of the water necessary for hundreds of people. They not only required much water for them to drink, but much for other purposes. It required much with which to wash their hands and feet. The Jews were a great people to wash their hands and feet. They would not eat without washing their hands, and the water, too, had to be clean. There was no such a thing as two Jews washing in the same water. Indeed, they had to have the water poured on their hands, so the unclean or dirty water would run off and not touch them. Just think of a few thousand Jews washing their hands three times every day, and sometimes often between meals, and that, too, with clean water ponred on their hands. Can not anyone see that it took much water to drink and with which to do all that washing? But suppose they did not wash at all while at Aenon, and that they did not drink any, and hence had no use whatever for any except to be baptized, and even then common sense says, "much water" does not mean that John immersed them. It does not help one to know that he immersed them, for people have been baptized by pouring and sprinkling where there was much water. People have been baptized by pouring and sprinkling on the shores of seas and lakes, much less on the banks of ponds and rivers. It is my honest belief that John baptized by pouring or sprinkling, because he was a Jew, and, besides, "baptize" means to pour or to sprinkle. Common sense comes in and says that he did not immerse them, because immersion is baptism, and the only baptism, for if that had been true, then there would not have been as good or better reasons for ponring or sprinkling. If immersion were the only mode or way of baptism, then there would not be any good reasons for any other mode, and, therefore, since there are not only as good reasons in favor of pouring and sprinkling, but better reasons for them than for immersion, then the doctrine that immersion is the only baptism is forever overthrown, whether baptism is practiced where there is much or little water. Common sense says there is no possible way whatever to know that John immersed the people at Aenon, but that it is quite clear that he did not immerse, and that the doctrine of immersion being the only baptism, finds no support whatever.

Wesson, Miss.

UP NORTH.

BY DR. S. A. STEEL.

Some lecture work, with Chicago as a base, has given me a week in this great city. I believe I will get away without losing my religion. I mean my kind of religion. There is plenty of religion in Chicago, and there are all sorts, but a great deal of it is not my kind. It reads the Sunday newspapers, goes to the parks for Sunday pastimes, to the theatre for Sunday fun, and seems to know little difference between Sunday and Monday. Of course, there are a great many good people in Chicago to whom the Christian Sabbath is still a holy day; but there are so many of the other sort that they create an atmosphere of frivolity. Gaiety and frolic, rather than rest and devotion, are the main characteristics of the Chicago Sabbath as I saw it; and the effect of so many people treating it as a holiday is a relaxation of the moral ideal. Woe to the man or woman who comes to Chicago without positive religious convictions, and the courage to live up to them. If they are once caught in the whirling stream of tendencies here, they are lost. I won't tear out of my Bible, however, the Ten Commandments or the Sermon on the Mount to please Chicago. So I and Chicago don't agree on the Sunday question. Chicago laughs at my old-fashioned religion, and I tell Chicago the moral law she so recklessly tramples under foot will be in force when she is in the dust, and "the marsh hen secretly builds her nest" again in the fens where her proud towers stood. How serenely confident a man feels who has built his life on immutable moral law!

But to a man who can hold to his ideals, and maintain his footing amid the swift currents of secular life, defy the subtle seductions of cultured sophistry and the myriad temptations of ingenious depravity, it is a great advantage to spend awhile in Chicago. It is a world in itself and by itself. To stand on these streets and watch these rivers of humanity rush by, to go abroad in these crowded avenues by night and observe the diabolical ingenuity of evil, the lust, the infamy and shame; to see these towering structures that seem to scale the sky; to go into the churches, the lecture halls, and stores; to watch the ships coming and going, and listen to the thunder and roar of countless trains, and all the din of traffic; to mingle with these multitudes of modern men and women, and get into the midst of this "strenuous" life—this is to get an idea of the world new and startling to the average man from the rural districts. The jabber of these polyglottic hosts confuses him, and, perhaps, for the moment makes him long to "Go back to Grigsby station,

Where he was so happy and so poor."

But it gives him broader views of life, makes him more tolerant in his opinions, insensibly destroys his little pesky prejudices, quickens his sympathies, and intensifies his earnestness. To stay even a little while in a great world-city like New York, Boston, or Chicago, is like climbing to some lofty tower, from which one can see afar, and trace the drift and direction of the times. When he gets back home he unavoidably collides with the provincial view of things whose perspective is limited to the neighborhood.

Sunday I had to make a difficult decision. Dr. Crane preached at McVicker's Theatre and Dr. Gunsalus at Studebaker's, and I wanted to hear both. Being informed that Dr. Crane would preach at night (which proved, however, to be a mistake), I gave the morning to Dr. Gunsalus, and went to the Studebaker Theatre. It was packed from pit to dome. I got a back seat in the second gallery, but I heard every word. The worship was very simple; exactly our Methodist order. Dr. Gunsalus was once a Methodist preacher. There was no choir, but the congregation, led by a fine precentor, sang with fine effect our old Methodist hymns. The text was, "The hour is come." The first thing I noticed was that Dr. Gunsalus didn't use a manuscript. He "preached," I tell you! And my, what a sermon it was! The thought was lofty, clear as crystal, simple enough for a child to understand, and surcharged with a depth, a sincerity, a power of spiritual emotion that swayed every listener in the vast throng that heard him. Such preaching will always get a hearing in this world. The Sunday newspaper can beat your pulpit essay, the professional elocutionist can excel your sacred reading of little glittering moral platitudes, the concert company can surpass your choir, but when a man talks to his fellow-men about God as Dr. Gunsalus did, people will crowd to hear him.

Monday I attended the Ministers' Conference, where I was very kindly received, and invited to speak. But the great thing of this meeting was an address by Prof. Chamberlain on "The Value of Musical Study to the Ministry." It was the finest thing I have heard in many a day. Dr. Milton S. Terry, who ought to know, pronounced it "the best lecture on homileties he ever heard." As I was leaving the Ministers' Conference I was attracted by singing in an adjacent hall, and out of curiosity went in. A friend who happened to be there told me it was a "second-blessing meeting," and that if I would stay, I would see strange things; and I did. He further told me that "the movement was started by your man Carradine, but they got away beyond him; had left the church, and denounced it." My impulse was to go away from any place where the church is abused, but I concluded to stay and study the situation. That meeting filled me with disgust. How sensible people (as some of them seemed to be) could ever bring themselves to believe that such grotesque behavior and such riotous demonstrations of feeling are consistent with the Christian religion, is one of the mysteries. At one time perhaps fifty were "praying" in "confusion worse confounded;" at another they clasped hands, two and two, and danced across the platform; at another time one of the men seated on the platform, during the sermon, all at once uttered a wild yell, sprang three feet from the floor, seized the chair on which he had been sitting, and holding it as high as he could above his head, pranced across the platform. He was met by a man from the opposite side, who had cut exactly similar antics. They whirled their chairs around in the air, jumped back to their former places like a couple of kangaroos, and sat down as quiet as kittens. The episode didn't phase the preacher. The sermon (if such an uncharitable tirade could be called a sermon) betrayed great confusion of moral ideas, an absurd psychology, a dense ignorance of Scripture, and was saturated with the vitriol of bitter prejudice. Yet the man who preached it was once an honored minister, I was told, in the Methodist Church. What a fall! I felt a deep pity as I listened to these deluded fanatics denouncing everybody who didn't believe as they do as "hypocrites," and sending everybody to hell who didn't have their experience of the "second-blessing." Such a revel of irrational excitement in the name of religion is little short of blasphemy, and serves to emphasize the danger that besets the movement towards a revival of scriptural holiness in the church. If it is true, as my friend said, that this crowd had "pitched Carradine overboard," it was the highest compliment they could pay him. I believe in entire sanctification, and long for the highest possible experience of the truth through which it is to be realized; but when religion in the Methodist Church gets down to the level of a dance of dervishes in the name of holiness, I'll take to the woods.

I had the pleasure of dining with my friends, Rev. J. A. Rice, of South Carolina, and Rev. J. E. Cuninggim, of North Carolina. These brethren have been here for some time taking special courses of study. They got after me for what I wrote some time ago adverse to our Southern preachers coming to Chicago for ministerial equipment. Well, if they will come and buckle down to real work as these brethren have done, and return to subordinate all their learning to a simple and faithful preaching of the gospel, such opportunities as they get here are invaluable. But I fear two things from theological students coming from Chicago. One is a sciolism that can raise more doubts in an hour than can be settled in a year, and the other is a false liberalism induced by this seething environment. I am not afraid of the "Higher Criticism." Biblical criticism is a perfectly legitimate science. "Lower" criticism deals with the text, whether this or that is the better rendering; "higher" criticism deals with the history of the books, by whom, when, and where they were written. There is nothing wrong about this; every intelligent Bible student wants to learn all he can about these subjects. I believe in the method and accept the results of conservative Higher Criticism. No, it isn't anything that attacks the Bible that I fear. The Word of the Lord endureth forever, and the "impregnable Rock of Holy Scripture" is no more shaken by the assaults of skepticism, no matter what weapons it uses, than is Gibraltar by the billows that roll and break on its base. What I fear is this deluge of practical ungodliness, this mad race for money, this corruption of conscience in high places and in low, this wholesale Sabbath desecration, this lying and swearing, this gambling and drinking, this frivolity and lust, and, most of all, the fatal relaxation of the moral ideal that must counteract these evils. These are the real perils. God help us to combat them in earnest.

The Chicago University is on an immense scale. It is a little town in itself, and is growing bigger all the time. I have seen them all—Harvard and Yale, Columbia and Cornell, Johns Hopkins and Dr. Harper's colossal school-house here on the shore of Lake Michigan; but for the charm of natural scenery, for mountain and vale, flowery woodland and blooming lawns, and for beauty of architecture, Leland Stanford, out yonder in the Santa Clara Valley in California, surpasses them all. I never see these great institutions of learning in the North without wishing that we had at least "one" in the South. Some people think that Vanderbilt University is rich. I've quit getting mad with such people. They don't know any better. They have no standard of comparison. But the truth is, Vanderbilt University is unable to do its work as it ought for lack of capital. It is the beginning of a university. We ought to give it a million dollars, and bring it abreast of these great Northern schools. We will some day. But, alas! for our delay. How long, O Lord, how long must we lag in the race?

If I had as much money as some men, I would charter a train down in Mississippi, load it down with farmers, blindfold the last one of them, and ride them up here, pull off the blindfolds, and tell them to look at the fields of these Yankee farmers at this season of the year. You can almost walk across the field on the heaps of manure. The land is as black as your hat, and naturally very rich; but not rich enough to satisfy these industrious toilers. If the Southern farmer uses manure at all to help his land, it is "commercial fertilizer," out of which the manufacturer makes a fortune, and the farmer gets only a temporary benefit. One load of good stable manure is worth a dozen loads of commercial fertilizer for the permanent improvement of the land, and these Yankees know it. After my excursionists had seen how these Yankees manage their land, I would bring them into Chicago, and give these Yankees a chance to learn from Southern gentlemen how to treat ladies. Heaven save the South from Chicago manners in this respect! However, I expect woman is largely to blame for it. When woman prefers the club to her home, bloomers to skirts, masculine ways to feminine refinement, men, unfortunately, are too ready to treat her as a man. Thank the Lord we still have women in the South. I trust it will be a long time before we lose this graceful ideal of the old civilization there.

CHILDREN OF THE CHURCH.

As a result of earnest prayers and careful training on the part of officers and teachers in the Sunday-school the children may be brought to Christ—saved for the church. If the church may be likened to Christian, who got to heaven himself, the Sunday-school represents Christiana, who carried the children with her. At least, that is seemingly the case with Methodism in Aberdeen.

An observer chanced to be in the splendidly equipped apartments for the children of the city's Methodists on a Sunday morning recently, while teachers heard their classes. A meeting had been in progress for a week, conducted by the earnest, eloquent, faithful pastor. Much interest had been manifested, and every service had been good; but when, at the close of the school, after an appeal by the pastor, ten children stood before the altar to be received into the church, who could blame us feeling joyful over a sight that moves angels to shout? So promptly and intelligently did they respond to the vows that you would have considered it a class far in their majority had you not recognized their ringing, youthful voices. This is but another telling example of training the soul for a higher life. The Sunday-school that does not have as its purpose the salvation of the souls of its pupils, has lost its commission. When a child is converted, you save a soul plus a life.

FROM "A CIRCUIT RIDER."

The Forest District Conference, which met at Heidelberg, Miss., March 29, unanimously passed the following resolution:

Whereas, Believing that the dissemination of such literature would be of vast benefit to the cause of Christ and of our Methodism; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we, as a Conference, urge "Circuit Rider" to publish in pamphlet form his excellent articles on baptism that have appeared in the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE; and we hereby promise to place an entire edition of one thousand copies in the bounds of the Forest district.

Since the brethren, generally, desire the publication of the articles in more substantial form, and for distribution, I have decided to grant the request. The pamphlet will be ready for mailing in a couple of months. It will constitute about one hundred and twenty-five pages, and will be sold as cheap as possible. When complete, it will be an eye-opener. Let the (other) brethren who wish to sow down their pastoral charges with them notify me about how many copies they can use, in order that the printer may be informed approximately of the number of copies to print for the first edition.

Address me at Forest, Miss.

POPE, MISS.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: We are getting along fairly well on our work. We have two prayer meetings, one Sabbath-school, and one Epworth League. Our people have been very kind to us, and the "pounds" have come from all directions; so we feel that we are appreciated. "Wherefore by their fruits ye shall know them." So it is the kindness of our people that makes us feel so.

Our second quarterly meeting was held at Pope, March 15 and 16. Our presiding elder, Dr. Sullivan, was present, and preached three fine sermons, which were very edifying. He made a deep impression on our people.

The Sardis District Conference will convene at Pope in June. Hope you will favor us with your presence. Pray for us.

Fraternally. J. A. GOAD.

Louisiana Conference W. F. M. S.

The annual meeting of Louisiana Conference Society is at hand. The importance of a full delegation can not be overestimated. We hope every auxiliary will see to it that one delegate, at least, is present. The inspiration of these annual meetings is wonderful, and the enthusiasm carried back to the home workers is always far-reaching. An expenditure in this direction of a little time, a little trouble, and a little money, will yield a rich harvest in the awakened energy of each auxiliary represented. Let us send our delegates panoplied with our earnest prayers for God's blessing, and for the president and officers let us implore wisdom and guidance in all their rulings, and may the Holy Spirit be ever present to comfort and enlighten!

Districts	7
Adult societies	24
Adult members	569
Adult members added during quarter	34
Juvenile societies	6
Juvenile members	183
Total adult and juvenile members	752
Life members	34
Scholarships supported	12
Bible women supported	5
Subscribers to W. M. Advocate	189
Subscribers to Little Worker	136

An adult society was organized at Gueydan, La., during the quarter. Two members of the Shreveport Auxiliary have undertaken respectively the support of a Bible Woman and a scholarship, thus increasing this department of our work. The number of life members has also been increased. One auxiliary reported heretofore as a juvenile has been promoted to the rank of an adult society. In this way the number of juvenile societies and members is less for this quarter. We regret very much to report a falling off in subscriptions to the W. M. Advocate.

Dear sisters, let us be "earnest" in our endeavor to increase our subscriptions to this periodical, without which we can not keep in touch with our work. Every adult member of the W. F. M. S. should read the W. M. Advocate, and every juvenile number the Little Worker. Sincerely,

MRS. F. A. DICKS,
Conf. Cor. Sec.

Catarrh

The cause exists in the blood, to what causes inflammation of the mucous membrane.

It is therefore impossible to cure the disease by local applications.

It is positively dangerous to neglect it, because it always affects the stomach and deranges the general health, and is likely to develop into consumption

Many have been radically and permanently cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla. It cleanses the blood and has a peculiar alterative and tonic effect. R. Long, California Junction, Iowa, writes: "I had catarrh three years, lost my appetite and could not sleep. My head pained me and I felt bad all over. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla and now have a good appetite, sleep well, and have no symptoms of catarrh."

Fearful Arraignment of the Liquor Traffic

A SERMON ON

TEMPERANCE,

By the Rev. George R. Stuart,

CLEVELAND, TENN.

Coworker with the Rev. Sam P. Jones.

The author has had numerous calls from all over the country for this sermon. In order to meet this demand he had it published in pamphlet form. He proposes to use the profits of its sale in the interest of the cause for which the sermon was preached.

It is sold by the single copy for 10 cents; by the 100, at 7 cents per copy; by the 1,000, at 6 cents per copy.

SIXTH SESSION — THURSDAY EVENING.

8 P. M. Sunday-school Testimony Service. Subject, How the Sunday-school Has Helped Me. Brief talks from volunteers.

8:30. Convention Question Drawer.

8:45. Address, Organization for Evangelization, Lewis Collins.

We trust that the brethren will bear in mind to pray definitely and earnestly for the Convention. Let Sunday, the 20th, be a day of special prayer for the occasion. Without God's help and the presence of the Holy Spirit, no matter how ably conducted, it will be barren of results. May God bless the Sunday-school workers of Louisiana! is our prayer.

Notice.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: I wish to correct a mistake through your paper. I see that Daleville charge is placed in Class "B" in the mission leaflet, when it rightfully should be in Class "A." We not only paid the foreign missions in full, but everything else. I write this in justice not only of myself, but of my people. This was the first time in years that all the claims were paid.

Your brother, P. H. HOWSE.

Revival Notes.

We have just closed a four weeks' revival effort for Rev. W. F. Walker, pastor of the M. E. Church, South, at Lake City, Ark., April 4, 1902. We had 231 new members to take in. The church had paid the pastor for his three months' work only $15! They now raise his salary to eleven hundred dollars for the year. The Holy Ghost had the "right of way."

GLEN-ALLEN, MISS.

DEAR DOCTOR BOSWELL: The little town of Glen-Allen, very appropriately to the sound of its name, possesses many characteristics of beauty. It is situated on the east bank of Lake Washington, two miles west of the station of Hampton, and twenty-eight miles south of the town of Greenville. We have a splendid little church-building at Glen-Allen, which is amply large for our membership and all the visitors who live near enough to attend church. Our membership, though small, and all the people, whether members of the church or not, are hospitable and liberal, feeling the necessity of supporting religious institutions in order to guard the moral welfare of the community. We have a nice three-acre lot, and a parsonage situated on it, but the parsonage is much in need of repairs. The lot is a beautiful and healthful location, bordering on the lake, and the acre and a half farthest from the lake is a nice pecan grove just beginning to bear. We owe a debt on this house and lot, which we are paying by installments.

The other appointment of the charge is Grace, though it does not appear to be a grace which can be used as a means of salvation to men. We need your prayers, that God may take hold on the people of this little town, revolutionize their lives, and make them willing to be used for his glory. We are planning to build a new church at Grace some time soon. Capt. W. M. Harris has, without solicitation, promised us fifty dollars for this purpose, and his son-in-law, Mr. Dulany, proposes to give us a church-lot just wherever we prefer it. Several have manifested a desire to help us, and we feel encouraged in attempting the execution of our plans. This is a newly arranged charge, and we think the prospects are good for making it a splendid half station appointment.

Our constant desire is that we may be filled full of the Holy Ghost. Will you pray that we may?

VAIDEN, MISS.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: The presiding elder, Rev. J. H. Mitchell, and the pastor both managed to get to Columbiana Church to quarterly meeting on last Saturday, in spite of high water. I had to walk five miles to make it, crossing Hayes Creek on I. C. R. R. bridge, two miles north of Vaiden. The people, knowing the swollen condition of the streams, were not much expecting the preachers, so we had a small congregation Saturday. We had a better representation of our people on Sunday, and after a suitable sermon by Bro. Mitchell, he dedicated our newly finished Columbiana Church to the service of God: Bro. S. N. Ely acted as spokesman for the Official Board. Everything was clear of debt, so we did not need to take a collection to pay out.

R. E. ALLEN, P. C.

DURANT STATION.

DEAR ADVOCATE: I am glad to be able to report matters in good shape at Durant. Our second Quarterly Conference was held last night, and reports from the various departments showed advancement. The assessment for foreign and domestic missions is paid in full, salaries are well up, twenty-five received into the church since Conference, and good reports from the League and Sunday-school. The latter has an enrollment of 166. We have a "Teachers' Study Circle," with fourteen members.

Our Easter service was most refreshing. The choir dispensed sweet music, and the overflowing congregation seemed to enjoy the services unusually well.

The presiding elder reports the district as progressing finely. Bro. Lagrone is doing a splendid work here, and deserves the success which his faithful efforts are bringing him.

PELICAN CIRCUIT.

DEAR BRETHREN: I am thankful to say that I am well pleased with my new field. The people here have been very kind to us. When we reached Pelican we found that the old parsonage was greatly out of repair; could not be occupied without great expense. So I went right to work talking up the parsonage question. I called a meeting of the stewards and trustees. Results of the meeting are, that we succeeded in buying a house and lot, which, with some repairing, will serve as a right comfortable home for any preacher that may be sent to Pelican. We also asked the people for a contribution for the purpose of getting a little more furniture for the parsonage, and they responded to our call. We expect, by the grace of God, to do a good year's work. We are trying to do our part, and holding on to God by faith. I am expecting great victory through his name. I praise God for full salvation. May God help us to do our duty. Let us hear from some of the other preachers.

Yours, trusting Jesus,

RINGGOLD CIRCUIT.

We are moving off fairly well, trying to lay the foundation for a successful year's work. There is much to be done. We need a revival of Holy-Ghost religion throughout this entire charge. We are praying for it; will work for it; are trusting God for it, and expecting it—a revival that will manifest itself in building and repairing churches, in establishing prayer meetings, organizing Sabbath-schools, and in paying the assessments. Then sinners will be converted to God, and believers built up and unified. We have taken Yellow Pine Mill into the plan of the work, with excellent prospects of success at that point. We have been cordially received by the church and by other denominations. We should have quite an ingathering during the year. The stewards raised the assessments for ministerial support for the year. We are hopeful. Our possibilities are so great, and our Lord so near a present help in time of need.

Fraternally,

THOS. J. MARTIN, P. C.

BAD BABIES

Are often only hungry babies. They cry and fret because they are ill-fed. The healthy mother is sure to have good babies; babies that coo and sleep and grow. Mothers who use Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription, are generally healthy and happy, and have healthy, happy children. "Favorite Prescription" prevents nausea, soothes the nerves, promotes the appetite and causes sleep to be sound and refreshing. It gives a great physical vigor and muscular elasticity so that the baby's advent is practically painless. It is the best tonic for nursing mothers, restoring strength and promoting an abundant flow of nutritive secretions.

"I can cheerfully recommend Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription as one of the best medicines for women," writes Mrs. Mary Murdock, Murdock, of 1015 Woodlawn Ave., Topeka, Kan. "I consider it the best medicine made. I know it has no equal. I am the mother of ten children and only one living—the tenth one. She is one year old and is as well and healthy as can be. She is a beauty. Of my other babies, one lived to be one year old, but she was always feeble. I tried different doctors, but none of them could tell me what my trouble was. They said I was well and strong. I was examined by surgeons but they found nothing wrong, and they were puzzled to know what my trouble was. I did not know what to do, so I thought this time I would try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I took it the entire nine months and now have a fine baby girl, and I cannot praise your medicine enough for the good it did me."

"Favorite Prescription" makes weak women strong, sick women well. Accept no substitute for the medicine which works wonders for weak women.

THURSDAY, APRIL 17, 1902.

When a man allows a single idea to dominate his life he is likely to become pessimistic, and to lose confidence in the intelligence and integrity of his fellowmen. Such a man is justly characterized as a fanatic. He is narrow-minded, and ruled by passion and sentiment rather than by reason and common sense. It appears that as knowledge increases, men of this character do not diminish in number or influence.

The plan of salvation does not embrace nor countenance the idea of commercialism, and if any man labors under the impression that by doing some one great thing, or many good little things, he can bring the Lord under obligation to save him, he will some day, soon or late, find himself deceived. In the light of the fact that salvation is by grace through faith, no man has any excuse for being deceived. Yet many will stand before God in judgment and say: "Lord, Lord, open unto us. We have done many wonderful works in thy name." But Jesus will say: "I never knew you."

There are a few Christians who seem wholly unable to maintain joyfulness of spirit. Whether it is their fault or misfortune can not always be determined, but certain it is that, like the market price of goods, they are fluctuating; sometimes buoyant, and sometimes depressed. We have met them, one day, hopeful and jubilant, nothing, apparently, but the lack of wings holding them to the earth; the next day, melancholy and despondent, ready to sink forever out of sight. To talk with them when happy was like talking to an angel. When out of heart they were as churlish as Nabal—so disagreeable that a man could not speak to them.

We stumbled a few days since on a curious interpretation of St. Paul's injunction to the women to keep silence in the churches. The interpreter says the message "was intended for the disturbers of the peace, and has reference to the listener, not to the speaker." That is to say: if any woman in the congregation did not understand what was said, whether the preacher was a man or woman, she was not permitted to ask any question in the church, but must wait until she got home and learn of her husband. How one was to learn who had no husband, the interpreter does not tell us. But is it not strange that St. Paul would allow one woman to preach in the church, and yet require all others to hold their tongues until they had an opportunity to ask their husbands? The interpretation is a short method of getting rid of a hard matter.

THE CHRIST-SPIRIT.

The expression, Christ spirit, which we often hear, refers to the temper or disposition manifested by our Lord while in the flesh. Such a temper, if it exists in a human being, is not natural. It is the product of grace. In his natural state man is not governed by the Spirit of Christ, but by his own evil spirit, which is often under the influence, if not the entire control, of the wicked one. This natural temper of man is so foreign to the Spirit of Christ that St. Paul says, "If any man have not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of his."

In making an application of the general subject as taught in the Scriptures, some men lose sight of certain distinctions that are fully justified. For example, they lose sight of the official character of our Lord, and look only at his personal temper and conduct as manifested toward those who shamefully entreated him. In doing that they make his personal conduct towards his personal enemies the rule by which to regulate the relations of all men with each other, both in their personal and official character.

Now, there is nothing clearer than that the conduct of our Lord towards his personal enemies was altogether different from that manifested towards those who despised his authority as the Son of God. Towards the one he was gentle and forbearing, for, "when he was reviled, he reviled not again; when he suffered, he threatened not." But this gentle spirit was not manifested towards those who disputed his authority, and set themselves in opposition to the truth. Towards these he was terribly severe, not only in denouncing and rebuking them, but in applying to them epithets that characterized them as children of the devil. Indeed, he did not hesitate to say to them, "Ye are of your father the devil." Who ever used severer language than did Jesus in talking to the Scribes and Pharisees?

In the Sermon on the Mount the Lord taught his disciples how to treat their personal enemies. He wholly repudiated the law of retaliation, and made non-resistance a virtue peculiar to his religion. He said, "Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them that despitefully use you and persecute you." These teachings were duplicated, enjoined and practiced by the apostles. But nowhere do we find that when truth is assailed, or the church maligned, we are commanded to keep silence. On the contrary, we are exhorted to contend for the faith, and rebuke with all authority.

One who observes closely, can not fail to see that Christ's disciples suffer and are silent under provocations that drive men of the world to self-defense, and often to avenge themselves. The reason is, one class possesses the Spirit of Christ; the other is after the flesh. But these same gentle-spirited Christians are bold to resent any insult offered their Lord, and to defend the cause they espouse against all gain-sayers. Difficulties sometimes arise between brethren, and sharpness of speech is indulged. But it does not necessarily follow that an unchristian spirit animates the parties to the contest. Truth is at stake, both parties may feel themselves in the right, and righteously contend with each other. Of course, both parties to a contest can not always be right. It was not so in the contention between St. Paul and St. Peter at Antioch. No doubt the outsiders, if they were cognizant of the difficulty, thought the contention was unseemly, but those who read St. Paul's account of the matter (see the third chapter of Galatians) will see that he was not only in the right, but that he used great plainness of speech. We can not see that he was lacking the Spirit of Christ, nor can we see that a Christian to-day, in defending the truth against maligners, and against those who attack the integrity of the church, is destitute of the Spirit of the Master. The gentlest man of whom we have any knowledge, who would not raise his hand in self-defense, is as bold as a lion defending the church and the gospel, which are dearer to him than life. In argument he is as merciless as logic, and in spirit as intolerant as truth. In defense of the truth we are sometimes compelled to be personal, but telling the truth is according to Christ.

CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP.

We read not long since in one of our exchanges a sentence something like this: "When Baptists begin to affiliate with other denominations, they begin to die." It is useless to characterize an individual who can give expression to such a sentiment. He is known and read of all. Is it true? We take the brother's word for it. All who thus die deserve an epitaph written in the words of Scripture: "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord."

Looking at the matter from an evangelical standpoint, it is easy for us to see how one who is in accord with the doctrines and practices of one denomination of Protestants to affiliate with Christians of another name. All have the same Father, the same Savior, and the same blessed Spirit who inspires all with saving faith. This naturally leads to the conclusion that the relation of one Christian to God is in nowise different from that of another. This is the vital point. It is supreme. Everything else is secondary, and non-essential. And if Baptists die when they begin to fraternize with other evangelical Christians, it must be that the local churches suffer, and not the religion or morals of those who affiliate. If a church is not sufficiently united to Christ to keep it alive when its members fellowship other believers, it ought to die.

We can not, for the life of us, understand how the exhibition of a fraternal spirit can prove detrimental to the faith or the character of the individual who manifests it. On the contrary, it seems to us that it is obliged to be both a means of grace and a lesson of no little significance to the outside world. Of course, if to unite with members of another denomination in a prayer meeting, or a praise service, or revival exercises for the promotion of piety and the salvation of sinners, and to exchange pulpits, as is sometimes the case, are infractions of specific laws of any church, then those who go into such churches voluntarily, and knowingly violate the rule, must suffer the penalty. But what defense can any church make for such a regulation? We know no church that has a law of that kind. But unwritten law is sometimes as strong as written, and it exists in that spirit which says: "When Baptists begin to affiliate with other denominations, they begin to die."

General Christian fellowship is rejected by those who entertain the idea that there is no salvation outside of the organization to which they belong. This idea is unworthy of notice. No Protestant entertains it. Others say fellowship must be determined by church relations. These say: We acknowledge the fellowship in Christ of all true believers, but unless believers are of our faith and order we can not affiliate with them. This idea has made separatists of hundreds and thousands of good Christians, and is largely responsible for the dissensions and disturbances in Christendom. A few generations from to-day will see it dead and buried beyond the power of resurrection.

General Christian fellowship will prevail. When it comes, the strong churches of to-day will still be strong, and they will lose none of their peculiarities, save those which now hamper them in the bond of bigotry and selfishness. May the good Lord hasten the day!

CHILDREN'S DAY.

The third Sunday in May is Children's Day. If, for any reason, that day can not be given to the children, then the day as near thereto as practicable shall be observed. The time is drawing near, and preparation for it should begin at once, if the work has not already begun. It is a popular day among live and active Sunday-schools, and ought to grow more so as the years go by.

The law provides that the day shall be "observed with appropriate services," and requires the Sunday-school Editor, in connection with the Secretary of the Board of Education, to prepare a suitable programme for the occasion. These worthy servants of the church have this year, as in the past, prepared the programme, and it is ready for distribution. A copy of it has not been received at this office, but, we dare say, it is up to date, and will be received with general approval.

Besides being an annual festival that brings with it great rejoicing, Children's Day, properly celebrated, is educative in two or three distinct ways. It educates the minds and hearts of the children by impressing them through song, and Scripture lesson, and short addresses, the great truths of the gospel. It also inculcates Christian beneficence by pointing out the necessity and importance of assisting others to obtain a knowledge of God and Christian education, and taking up collections for these objects. Thus, while the children are happy and rejoicing in their own surroundings, they are taught to look after the happiness of others less fortunate than themselves. A wise distribution is made of the money collected on this day. Dr. Atkins says that while the collection is "by no means as large as it ought to be, it has reached a point where it furnishes all the Sunday-school literature used in our mission fields, after supplying hundreds of needy schools throughout the Conferences." It also helps furnish literature for religious work in prisons, and in orphanages, and asylums. What better use could our children make of their money?

We hope all the schools within our patronizing territory will get ready for Children's Day. The Sunday-school Department at Nashville will supply all who make application for programmes. Rev. G. W. Bachman, at Winona, Miss., Conference colporter, will supply the wants of Mississippi. We would be glad to learn that his hands are kept busy for several weeks.

THERE ARE OTHERS.

We mean there are other improved Bibles besides "The Twentieth Century New Testament in Modern English." We have also "The Modern American Bible." It is an awkward attempt to put "the books of the Bible in Modern American form and phrase." We are not at all surprised at this effort. We expect to see several more on like order. There is no telling where the thing will stop. The attempt here made to give the Word in "American form and phrase" reminds us of the efforts of some writers at dialect story-telling, and is quite as much a failure. As a rule, good form and phrase of an educated American is not stilted, nor stiff. The rendering—if it may be so called—of this book is both, and worse. Take a sample or two: 1 Cor. xiii. 3. The Old Book says: "And though I bestow all my goods to feed the poor, and though I give my body to be burned, and have not charity, it profiteth me nothing." The modern Bible says: "And if I dole out to the hungry in mouthfuls all I possess, and if I hand over my body to be burned, but have no love, I am in no way profited." That is a great improvement, isn't it? For "Whether there be prophecies, they shall fail," is written, "Whatever declarations of God's truth there are, they shall be done away."

These quotations do not even have the merit of a poor commentary. We know nothing better adapted to bring the Word of God into contempt than these oft-repeated efforts to modernize its language. We advise our young people to let all such books alone. We have seen it stated that they are entertaining. That is, we think, an undeserved compliment. They arouse curiosity. The strange rendering of one verse leads the reader to the next verse just to see how it compares with the Old Version. They may amuse, but in the best sense they do not entertain.

BAPTIZED CHILDREN.

"The Relation of Baptized Children to the Church" is the subject of a leaflet just issued by our Publishing House. The matter was prepared at the request of the New Orleans Preachers' Meeting and read before that body by the editor of this paper. The Mississippi Conference, at its session last December, asked its publication in pamphlet form. It has been printed as requested, and offered to our people. We hope it will be ordered in large numbers by our preachers, and distributed in their charges. In this day, when so much stress is laid on the religious training of the young, and so much depends on that training, our people ought to be thoroughly informed as to the relation of children to Christ and his church. This little leaflet will assist them to some extent. The subject, of course, is not treated at large, but, if read and studied, it may whet the appetite for something more exhaustive on the question. The pamphlet may be had of Barbee & Smith, Nashville, Tenn. Orders may also be sent to the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE. Price, 5 cents per copy. One dozen copies, 30 cents.

BOOK NOTICES.

This book is just from the press. We have perused it with much pleasure. It is fresh and crisp. It is edifying and entertaining—just such a book as every young man should read. It discusses The Young Man in the Market-Place; His Surroundings; His Work; His Amusements; His Books and Reading; His Marriage; His Religion. These are live topics, well handled, and we commend them to our young friends. The book may be had of F. F. Hansell & Co., New Orleans, La., through whom the publishers sent us a copy.

This is an interesting and edifying little book. It is an enlargement of a lecture delivered by the author at the commencement of the Millersburg Female College in May, 1900. Brother Powell is thoroughly acquainted with the home builder. Two of them have had him in charge all his life—his mother and his wife. He has been remarkably fortunate, and desires, as far as possible, to let everybody know just what a good home builder is. We seriously doubt, though, whether the twentieth century woman will be any improvement over the home builders of the century past. Our young women, generally, ought to read this book. The men would not go amiss by studying its pages.

THE SAVING WORD. By A. Demarez, F. S. Bellevue, Publisher, 1123 Broadway, New York.

This is a little book of classified subjects, presented entirely in the words of Scripture, without note or comment. It treats of The Word of God; The Power of God; Of Jesus the Christ; Death, Resurrection, etc. It shows at a glance what the Scriptures say concerning the subjects treated.

The Collections Ordered by the Annual Conferences, M. E. Church, South, by Rev. Geo. H. Givan, of the Louisville Conference, is a booklet of twenty-four pages, treating of the benevolences of the church. It discusses all the collections, save for pastors' salaries. It costs only 2½ cents a copy, and may be had in any number by addressing the author, at Livermore, Ky. Its general distribution would do good.

To any preacher who will send a renewal to this office for the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE with the money, two dollars, we will send one dozen copies of the pamphlet, "Relation of Baptized Children to the Church." The price of the pamphlet is thirty cents per dozen. In sending money for renewals, preachers will please state whether the pamphlets are wanted. Otherwise they will not be sent.

PERSONAL.

The commencement sermon at Millsaps College will be preached, June 8, by Rev. I. S. Hopkins, D. D., of Chattanooga, Tenn.

Rev. W. W. Woollard, of the Aberdeen district, says "the preachers are in fine favor, and all are doing faithful work. I am now in the new district parsonage—the best, I think, in the Conference." Such notes are cheering.

A note from Rev. H. O. White, Arcadia, La., informs us of the death of Brother J. W. Tooke, a faithful, official member of our church. He died as he had lived—in full assurance of faith. A suitable memoir will be furnished in due time.

Rev. J. B. Cumming, of Mobile, assisted Rev. C. D. Atkinson in a meeting at Parker Memorial last week, preaching every evening except Saturday. His work was highly appreciated by the congregation. The work is still progressing. The fruit so far apparent is the reception of six members into the church.

Mr. John Early, for many years connected with our Publishing House, is to be married on the evening of the twenty-third in McKendree Church, Nashville, to Miss Willie Fall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Fall. We acknowledge receipt of an invitation to the wedding. We congratulate our old friend in advance, and pray the blessings of heaven on the union.

The Carrollton (Miss.) Conservative speaks in the highest terms of Prof. W. L. Clifton, president-elect of Grenada College, and his wife, both of whom have taught at Carrollton. Mr. Clifton is said to be a man of fine scholarship and exalted character. Mrs. Clifton is a musician of rare gifts, and the Conservative adds, "It would not be too much to say that, as a vocalist, she has no superior in the South."

Brother R. S. Ricketts informs us of the death of Charles B., eldest son of Bishop and Mrs. C. B. Galloway. He passed away at the family home in Jackson, Miss., Sunday morning, the thirteenth of April. The dear boy was the child of affliction almost from his infancy. We doubt not he is now happy in the presence of his Lord. The Bishop and family will have the sympathy and prayers of the whole church in this great sorrow.

We regret very much to learn of the serious illness of Rev. J. F. Scurlock, at Covington, La. He has been in feeble health for some time, and on the list of superannuates of the Louisiana Conference. He is now confined to his room, and much of the time in bed. Friends have to supply his wants. If any of the brethren and sisters can help him, they will do well. Contributions may be forwarded to Rev. J. B. Kent, 219 Carondelet street, New Orleans, who will see that the money is properly applied.

EPWORTH LEAGUE DEPARTMENT.

REV. C. D. ATKINSON, EDITOR.

The Louisiana State Epworth League Conference.

(New Orleans, La., April 3-6.)

This recent Conference has been prononnced by several as one of the best. It met in New Orleans as the gnost of the Union Epworth Lsague of that city.

The excellent programme was arranged by Prof. Thos. Carter, Rev. W. G. Evans and Miss Gussie Tooke, according to the three departments of Epworth Leagne work—Devotional, Charity and Help, and Literary. Our thonght on the devotional work was led by Dr. W. H. LaPrade, on literary work by Dr. W. H. Featherstnn, Mrs. Meyers and Mrs J. H Thompson, and on Charity and Help work by Misses Schwing, Veith and Tabor, Mrs. Dr. Jno. T. Crebbin, W. L. Bonrdet and J. L. Sutton.

The evening services were devoted to platform addresses. The first address was delivered by Prof. H. B. Carre, of Centenary College—subject: "The Place of Women in the Chnrch." He advocated a view which he believed to be biblical. Dr. H.W. Featherstnn delivered an able address on "The Christ of Our Novelists." The address on the last evening was by Rsv. M. Dickie, of Brazil.

The Junior work was given a place on the programme. The Superintendent of the Junior Work of the State, Miss Mayo, of Baton Ronge, read a thoughtful paper at the rally service for the Juniors. The Committee on Banners awarded Miss Mayo's Junior Leagne with the State banner. The banner for the best Senior Leagne report was given to Parker Memorial Epworth Leagne.

The place of next meeting was pnt in the hands of the Executive Committee. Capt. Welsh, Mayor of Alexandria, invited the Conference to his city. The Conference was also invited to hold its meetings at the Seashore Camp Grounds.

The following officers were elected: President, Prof. Thos. Carter, of New Orleans; first vice-president, Joe Wynn, of Crowley; second vice-president, Miss Annie Clingman, of Homer; third vice-president, Mrs. C. P. Meyers, of Pleasant Hill; secretary, W. D. Kleinschmidt, of Baton Rouge; treasurer, C. B. Hioke, of Grand Cane; superintendent junior work, Miss May Mayo, Baton Ronge; editor, Rsv. C. D. Atkinson. The district secretaries appointed were: New Orleans, Dr. Jno. T. Crebbin; Crowley, Percy Holt; Arcadia district, H. R. Singleton; Monroe district, J. M. Henry; Shreveport district, W. G. Evans; Baton Rouge district, Prof. C. N. Lynch.

NOTES.

Rev. W. W. Drake's sermon at the opening service of the State Conference sonnded the right keynote for that Conference.

Dr. Jno. T. Crebbin's address of welcome and Rev. A. C. Smith's response at the State Conference had the right rosnits.

Rev. H. R. Singleton was present, but too nnwell to deliver his address on "Essentials to Success in League Work" before the State Conference.

A Correction.

MR EDITOR: In answer to the invitation of Dr. Watkins for corrections to be made in the published Minutes of the Mississippi Conference, I make the following statement: South Vicksburg paid thirty-four dollars for foreign missions, twelve dollars for domestic missions, and five dollars for education. The Minutes give the charge credit for thirty-four dollars less than was collected on these three assessments. The other collections are reported correctly. Yours truly,

KIDNEY TROUBLE, LAME BACK AND RHEUMATISM

CURED BY SWAMP-ROOT.

To Prove what the Great Kidney Remedy, Swamp-Root, will do for YOU, Every Reader of "CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE" May Have a Sample Bottle Sent Free by Mail.

Among the many famous cures of Swamp-Root, investigated by "CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE" the one we publish this week for the benefit of our readers, speaks in the highest terms of the wonderful curative properties of this great kidney remedy.

T. F. McHUGH

GENTLEMEN:—It gives me great pleasure to add my testimonial to that of hundreds of others regarding the wonderful curative properties of Swamp Root. I had a lame back three years ago before leaving North Dakota for the coast. Soon after my arrival in the Puget Sound country it became very much worse. I felt certain that the coast climate had given me acute rheumatism and came to the conclusion that I could not live in this climate. Later I became convinced that what I really had was kidney trouble, and that the rheumatism was due to my kidney trouble. The lameness in my back increased rapidly and I had other symptoms which indicated that I would soon be prostrated unless I obtained relief quickly. Noticing your offer of a sample bottle of Swamp Root, free, I had a friend write for one and began taking it immediately. Within three weeks the lameness in my back began to disappear. During that Fall and Winter, I took three one-dollar bottles of Swamp Root with the result that I became completely cured. I no longer have pains in my back and can exercise violently without feeling any bad effects. I have recommended Swamp-Root to several of my acquaintances who were similarly affected and without exception they have been greatly benefited by its use.

Yours very truly,

T. F. McHugh

701 E. St. South.

Lame back is only one symptom of kidney trouble—one of many, and is Nature's timely warning to show you that the track of health is not clear.

If these danger signals are unheeded, more serious results are sure to follow: Bright's Disease, which is the worst form of kidney trouble, may steal upon you.

The great kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, is used in the leading hospitals, recommended by physicians in their private practice, and is taken by doctors themselves who have kidney ailments, because they recognize in it the greatest and most successful remedy for kidney, liver and bladder troubles.

EDITORIAL NOTE—Swamp-Root has been tested in so many ways, and has proven so successful in every case, that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of the "CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE" who have not already tried it may have a sample bottle sent absolutely free by mail. Also a book telling all about Swamp Root and containing many of the thousands upon thousands of testimonial letters received from men and women who owe their good health, in fact their very lives to the wonderful curative properties of Swamp Root. In writing, be sure and mention reading this generous offer in the NEW ORLEANS "CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE" when sending your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

If you are already convinced that Swamp-Root is what you need, you can purchase the regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles at the drug stores everywhere. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

THE SEVEN EDWARDS.

There have been several kings of England named Edward, that do not count among those of which the present one is the seventh and latest number. The first of the line we are now considering—Edward I.—was one of the bravest and most distinguished of them all. His father was Henry III., and the prince was born at Westminster (which is now a part of London, but was then a royal village of itself) in 1239.

One can imagine the feelings of a boy who found himself appointed governor of a province at thirteen years of age; if indeed he knew enough about it to feel on the subject. The district over which he was placed (nominally, of course) was Gascony, in the southwestern part of France; it being then subject to England. At fifteen Edward was married to Eleanor, of Castile, which was a province of Spain—and England thus became master, for the time, of that bit of country. At the age of twenty-five we find Edward fighting at the battle of Lewes, losing the day by his impetuosity, and taken prisoner by the enemy. Within a year, however, he had escaped, and this time was victorious.

In 1269, when thirty years of age, he joined the Crusades, fought in Palestine, took Nazareth, massacred all the Turks found within its walls, and survived three stabs given him by an assassin with a poisoned arrow, and returned home, to be immediately proclaimed King of England, his father having died. His whole life thereafter was a series of conquests and defeats, of which the former were largely in the ascendant. Six times he invaded Scotland; and, while dying, in the midst of his seventh attempt, he ordered his son to have his dead body still carried northward, at head of his troops—a command, however, that was not obeyed. Edward I. was a statesman as well as a warrior; a general as well as king. He introduced so many reforms into the English government as to entitle him to be called "The English Justinian."

Edward II. was not gifted with the sturdy qualities of his father, and must have been a bitter disappointment to him. He was born in 1284, became king in 1307, and died twenty years later. He was all his life the victim of favorites, more or less vicious, who did much toward his ruin. This turned against him, not only his subjects, but his queen; and in 1326 she returned from France, where she had been to visit her mother, and brought with her a force of 3,000 men—most of them English political fugitives. She was joined upon her arrival in England by the most powerful of the nobles and prelates, and war became a sanguinary game of chess in which queen, bishop and knights made it very interesting for the king. He retreated into Wales; the queen pursued him, checkmated him, and had him imprisoned in the castle of Kenilworth. Here at the age of forty-three, this man, who had been born in a palace, was executed, in prison, with the most revolting cruelty, by means, it is said, of hot irons cruelly inserted into his body.

Edward III. was proclaimed king in 1327—as soon as the above terrible deed was done. He was only fifteen years old, and had the mortification of seeing his mother unduly influenced by Earl Mortimer, who thus became for a time the real ruler of the country. But in 1330, when Edward was eighteen years old, he asserted his authority against this usurpation; Mortimer was executed, and the king's mother imprisoned for life. This must have been a terrible experience to a youth of that age. He appears, however, to have had no time for grieving; but immediately renewed the already long-continued attempt that England had been making to conquer Scotland.

In 1338 Edward III. took steps toward making good a claim which he had long entertained—that of being the heir to the crown of France. This was on account of his mother having been higher of rank than the mother of Philip of Valois, who was then king. (There have been rumors that the present Emperor of Germany considers the crown of England as really belonging to him, as he is a son of Queen Victoria's oldest daughter—older than was the Prince of Wales.) Edward III., however, gave up his claim, after long and bloody wars in its defense. When this king died, at fifty-three years of age, he could reflect upon much glory gained and almost as much lost; but, upon the whole, he did a great deal toward establishing the grandeur that England afterwards achieved.

It was not till 1461 that another Edward mounted the throne of England. He was the child of a Duke of York (as was Victoria, later, of a Duke of Kent), and when the weak Henry VI. failed to meet the requirements, the handsome young man, only twenty years old, being a descendant of Edward II., was accepted by the people as king, and called Edward IV. He was harassed by many wars, having for their object, so far as his enemies were concerned, the putting him off the throne; but he finally triumphed, although at one time a fugitive in Holland. During the last part of his life, he became a devotee of pleasure, and throughout his career put no particular act on record that could be called a permanent benefit to his country or his race.

Edward V. probably never knew much of what it is to be a king—except that it means sometimes to be imprisoned and murdered. He was thirteen years old when his father, Edward IV., died; and his uncle, afterward Richard III., caused himself to be appointed "protector of the realm"—but did not include among the objects of his protection the young Edward; as he imprisoned him in the tower and caused him, with his brother, to be killed. Most of our readers are familiar with this dark story, if not from history itself, from the great drama of Shakespeare, called "Richard III."

Edward VI. was son of the famous (and infamous) Henry VIII. and Jane Seymour. Several masters were at that time employed to teach him Greek, Latin, French, Philosophy and Divinity. He became a king in his tenth year—subject to another Edward (Earl of Hertford), whom Parliament appointed. This Edward was early marked by consumption as one of its victims, and he lived only to the age of sixteen. Stirring events took place during his short reign, but the varied studies administered to him by his tutors do not seem to have gone deeply enough into his nature to make him a positive force—if indeed much could be expected of a mere lad. His theological education may perhaps be quoted as an exception in this regard; for he was during his short life very strenuous upon sacred matters, and obstinate against the wishes of his older associates, only when his religious convictions were violated.

Concerning the Prince of Wales that was, and Edward VII. that is, it is almost too soon to speak of him as a king, for he has occupied that high position only a few months. He is sixty years of age, and hence may be considered of ripe experience; and if as many think, he has "sowed his wild oats," and settled down to be a righteous king and a just and generous father to his subjects, not only England, but the world, will be glad. He has certainly a great chance to make himself known as one of the most illustrious of sovereigns. Some men are overshadowed in regard to fame by that of their father's; but a distinguished mother really adds to a man's chances for renown, and makes it easier for him to achieve it. Indeed, the proverb, "A great man must have had a great mother," is now generally believed.

But Edward VII. was also fortunate in his father, Prince Albert. Though not of great and overshadowing ability, he had sound and engaging qualities, and was a man of just and equable temperament. He was loved in England as well as one could be who came from a foreign country to marry their queen.—Everywhere.

A HELPING FUND.

We have many calls to send the ADVOCATE to poor, aged persons at a reduced rate. This we always do. Are there not many persons, well-to-do in this world's goods, who will send us money—any sum they may see fit to give—to supply the ADVOCATE to persons who would like to have it, but are unable to pay anything? We will gladly send it to such for one dollar a year. We hope to get many responses to this appeal. Let those who respond designate the names of those to whom they desire the paper sent, or give the money to their pastors, and let them send the names. If names are not sent, the editor will do the best he can. Who will first respond?

On Jellies
preserves and pickles, spread a thin coating of
PURE REFINED PARAFFINE
Will keep them absolutely moisture and acid proof. Pure Refined Paraffine is also useful in a dozen other ways about the house. Full directions in each package. Sold everywhere.

SISTER GEORGIA SMITH (nee Ferguson) was born in Warren county, Miss., Aug. 4, 1841, and departed this life Jan. 18, 1902. She was united in holy matrimony to Mr. R. F. Smith in 1868, who died with yellow fever in 1878. Mrs. Florence Fletcher is the only surviving child of the sainted mother. Sister Smith became a member of the M. E. Church, South, in early life, and was ever afterward a bright, cheerful Christian. She was a woman of sterling worth and character, and her earnest piety was commensurate with her benevolence, and in her the poor and destitute always found a kind, sympathetic, and liberal friend. She had no acquaintance with the principle of selfishness, and wherever she found sickness and suffering, she was a ministering angel, and a prominent feature of her religion was, "To visit the fatherless and widows in their affictions, and to keep herself unspotted from the world." Her friends were many, and enemies she had none. She held in the highest degree sacred the character and reputation of others, and was never betrayed into a discussion of the foibles and errors of her friends. Her Christian life was by the day, and she never permitted the fire of God's love to burn dimly upon the altar of her heart. She had acquired by successful training the secret of a happy life. The weary feet that went so often on errands of love and mercy will no longer tread the pathway of life; the hands that ministered so unweariedly to the wants of the sick and dying are cold and still, and the heart that was so kind and tender is still in the cold grave. Her last hours were peaceful and joyous, and she died like a Christian philosopher. Just as she entered the valley and shadow of death, although it had been cloudy for several days, the clouds lifted, and a beautiful gleam of sunlight shone fully upon her face, in token of the great Light whose effulgent rays make all aglow the Jordan of death. As a former pastor, the writer knew her long and intimately, and never knew a more bright, cheerful Christian. Indeed, she was an Israelite in whom was no guile. How we miss her in the church and in the circle of Christian association! Farewell, dear friend; not forever. We shall greet thee again in that beautiful, sunlight clime, where sorrow and grief will find no entrance, and where tears will no more flow over the graves of our departed loved ones, for there shall be no death in the mansions of the great King.

W. W. HUBER.

A. N. BROWN, the subject of this short sketch, was born near China Grove, Miss., March 6, 1859, and died at Lake Arthur, La., July 10, 1901. "Arch," as he was called, united with the church of his parents (the M. E. Church, South) at the age of twelve, but was not converted until some years later. He moved with his father and mother to Louisiana in 1876, and settled in St. Helena parish, in which parish most of his earthly pilgrimage was spent. He was married to Miss Fliona Branch in January, 1879, to which union there was one child given. In 1882 he was left a widower with this one child, now Mrs. Geo. Mack, of St. Helena parish. In 1887 he was married to Miss Birthelle Mack. In 1898 he was again left a widower with four children, all of whom were present at their father's death, and are being cared for by relatives of the deceased. Arch was for a number of years an official member of the church. His liberality in making assessments for his pastor, and helping to both pay and collect the assessments, will be long remembered by there serving him as pastor. He stood ready at all times to make any sacrifice necessary for the extension of his Lord's kingdom. The writer knew him for many years, and can truthfully say he seemed ready times to do more than was required of one of his means. I have seldom, if ever, officiated at a funeral service sadder to myself than when, on July 11, 1901, in the presence of these four little orphans (two brothers and two sisters), with their respective families and a concourse of sorrowing friends, we lowered all that was mortal of Arch Brown into the silent grave; yet, as we turned away from the little mound of clay, we felt that we could truthfully sing,

"Asleep in Jesus, peaceful sleep,
From which none ever wake to weep."

A. W. TURNER.

WILLIAM WALSWORTH was born March 10, 1817, and died Jan. 11, 1902. He has been a member of the M. E. Church, South, about forty-five years, and left the field of action without spot or blemish. In his last hours he expressed his desire to go and be with the Lord, and calmly fell asleep in the arms of Jesus. He was laid to rest with Masonic honors, having been a member for about thirty-five years. He now sleeps in Bethel Cemetery, awaiting the sound of the trump; then to be raised and given a seat in the Grand Lodge above, in the house with many mansions. He was a devoted husband, a loving father, and a true and faithful citizen, always ready to administer consolation to the sick and distressed; therefore, be it Resolved, 1. That in the death of Brother Walsworth, Weston Lodge has lost one of her true and zealous members, and as a fraternity, we greatly mourn our loss.

2. That the above proceedings be published in the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE; also in the Jackson Independent; and a copy be sent to the bereaved family.

ALBARN FINLEY BROWN, son of Mary A. and B. D. Brown, was born July 11, 1868, in Marshall county, Miss., and died Dec. 13, 1901, near Waterford, at the home of his parents. Last Summer he was employed by the street-car company of Memphis, and after a few days' service he received injuries in a wreck that, perhaps, caused his death. During the months of his sickness his patience and gentleness drew him closer to his family and friends. Finley professed faith in Christ in July, 1900, at Lebanon Camp Ground. From early childhood he was taught to respect the ministry and love the church of his fathers. The last dollar that passed from his hands was paid to his pastor. He learned the lesson of self-reliance early in life, and thus became the efficient helper of father and family. His advance in years was marked by a steady growth in those splendid virtues so much admired in a noble young man. Around him the admiration of friends and love of family naturally clustered. In bidding this noble young spirit good-by, his loved ones are confident that the separation is not forever, but in a brighter clime they hope to meet him again.

HIS AUNTS.

GEORGE WASHINGTON WRIGHT was born in Fayette county, Tenn., Sept. 9, 1832. His parents moved to Mississippi in 1834, and settled in the northern part of Marshall county. In 1854 he married Winnie G., a daughter of Rev. C. B. Harris, an itinerant Methodist preacher. At the beginning of the war he enlisted in Company D, 31st Mississippi. He served three years under Bragg; was wounded at the battle of Atlanta, and returned to his old home in Marshall county, where he spent the latter part of his life. About thirty years ago he joined the Methodist Church. For fifteen years he served his church as steward. He moved to Holly Springs in 1887, where he died Feb. 2, 1902. He was buried from the Methodist Church, Rev. J. A. Biwen and Rev. Walter G. Harbin officiating. During his last hours he loved to talk of the Master he had faithfully served. The hope of heaven was ever before his eyes. His patient endurance of long and severe suffering, and his resignation to the Divine will, make his work ended a benediction. His death was triumphant.

W. G. H.

ROBERT LEWELLEN LANE was born Oct. 7, 1867, in Lincoln county, Miss., and died at his father's home in Smith county, Jan. 16, 1902. He was the son of Rev. Frank and Hattie Lane. Nov. 23, 1887, he was married to Miss Julia Pridgen, of Jackson, Miss. Seven children were born to them; six of them are still living. His Christian character was maintained from his boyhood until he was taken away from us. He was a member of the Methodist Church from early life. He was kind and gentle to all, and devoted to and proud of his children, and his greatest desire was to raise them up for the Lord. As a husband, he was tender and thoughtful, and delighted in his home, made so happy by his estimable wife and sweet children. Living as he had, his sorrow was not that death claimed him, but leaving his children and wife. Now that he is no more with them, our Heavenly Father will watch over them, and help them in time of need.

We Have It at Last

For many years we have been trying to get a Bible containing exactly the features which, to our mind, would constitute as nearly as possible especially for the use of preachers and teachers. We have contracted for a large number of a Bible which we believe to be the nearest to a perfect book we have ever seen. It contains the AUTHORIZED VERSION, DICTIONARY OF PROPER NAMES, SUBJECT INDEX, CONCORDANCE, AND MAPS. The type is long primer, self-pronouncing. It is 6x8½ inches, and only 1 inch thick. Bound in the best levant morocco, divinity circuit (overlapping edges), calf lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges. By reason of the large number contracted for we are selling this splendid Bible at only a little more than half its regular price.

Giant Flowering Caladium

Grandest foliage and flowering plant yet introduced. Leaves 3 to 5 feet long by 2 or 2½-3 feet broad; perfectly immense, and make a plant which for tropical luxuriance has no equal. Added to this wonderful foliage effect are the mammoth lily-like blossoms, 12 to 15 inches long, snow-white, with a rich and exquisite fragrance. Plants bloom perpetually all summer in the garden, or all the year round in pots. Not only is it the grandest garden or lawn plant, but as a pot plant for large windows, verandas, halls, or conservatories, it rivals the choicest palms in foliage, to say nothing of its magnificent flowers. Thrives in any soil or situation, and grows and blooms all the year, and will astonish every one with its magnificence—so novel, effective, free growing and fragrant.

These plants, which will soon bloom and reach full perfection, 25c., each; 3 for 60c.; 6 for $1.00 by mail, postpaid, guaranteed to arrive in good condition.

OUR GREAT CATALOGUE of Flower and Vegetable Seeds, Bulbs, Plants and Rare New Fruits; profusely illustrated; Large Colored Plates; 136 pages; FREE to any who expect to order. Many great novelties.

THE ORIGINAL

25 Calibre Repeater

THE 25-20 MARLIN is one of the handiest arms made and accurate to 300 yards, with light report and little recoil. Its bullet is more reliable than a 22 calibre and the barrel does not heat as rapidly. It will kill cleanly and quickly without tearing. Smokeless powder can be used in a large variety of loads, and the ammunition is cheap.

ALL MARLINS

General News.

Great Britain has spent £165,034,000 during the past three years in an effort to conquer the Boers in South Africa.

Although it has not been announced that the British and the Boer leaders have arrived at an agreement as to terms of peace, there are unmistakable indications that the negotiations are progressing favorably.

The Chinese exclusion bill has passed the House of Representatives, and is now being fought in the Senate. It is very radical, and not only excludes almost every class of Chinese, but prohibits those born in Hawaii and the Philippines from coming into the United States.

Some time ago quite a local sensation was created by the expulsion from his seat in the City Council of Alderman McMahon. He brought suit in the Civil District Court to have the action of the Council annulled. The case was tried, and the action of the Council sustained. The matter went to the State Supreme Court, and that high tribunal has ordered that the former decision be reversed, and Mr. McMahon be restored to his seat in the Council. The offense for which Mr. McMahon was unseated by his colleagues of the City Council was, that he had heard and circulated reports to the effect that at least three members of that body had been offered bribes to vote for some private interest.

A Chance to Make Money.

I have berries, grapes and peaches a year old, fresh as when picked. I used the California Cold Process. Do not heat or seal the fruit, just put it up cold, keeps perfectly fresh, and costs almost nothing; can put up a bushel in ten minutes. Last year I sold directions to over 120 families in one week; anyone will pay a dollar for directions when they see the beautiful samples of fruit. As there are many people poor like myself, I consider it my duty to give my experience to such, and feel confident anyone can make one or two hundred dollars round home in a few days. I will mail sample of fruit and full directions to any of your readers for nineteen (19) two-cent stamps, which is only the actual cost of the samples, postage, etc. FRANCIS CASEY, St. Louis, Mo.

If the label on your paper is wrong, let us know, and we will correct. If it is right, and shows that you owe us, please send the amount due. We need the money.

ADVOCATE OFFER.

Magic White Soap, advertised in our columns, is manufactured in New Orleans by a responsible company, who can be relied on to do what is promised. The soap is what is claimed for it. There is none better on the market. A fair trial has been given it at the home of the editor, and the good wife, who knows what soap is, says "it is about the best she ever used." Our lady readers would do well to give this soap a trial. Send for a box of twenty bars—one dollar; charges paid by the manufacturer.

We make the following offer: We will furnish one box of this soap, and the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for one year, for $2.50, to new subscribers. We make the same offer to all who will pay up back dues, and send $2.50 additional. Cash must accompany the order. Address

Worry kills lots of people and sometimes bankers. It impedes digestion, irritates the nervous system, and in many ways destroys the health. If you are worried with business or other troubles, Tyner's Dyspepsia Remedy will meet and baffle all ill effects. It cures indigestion and dyspepsia, tones up the stomach, and thus insures calm, refreshing sleep, and a good healthy and invigorating appetite.

WHAT A BANKER SAYS

Mr. Chas E. Currier, of the Atlanta National Bank, says: "I often use Tyner's Dyspepsia Remedy for acute indigestion, and have always found that it gives immediate relief. I consider it a medicine of very high merit."

Price 50 cents per large bottle. For sale by druggists. Six bottles for $2.50 or sent by express on receipt of price by Tyner's Dyspepsia Remedy Co., 107½ S. Forsyth St., Atlanta, Ga.

A PLAIN QUESTION: Do you really get the only Painkiller—Perry Davis'—when you ask for it? Better be sure than sorry. It has not, in 60 years, failed to stop looseness and pain in the bowels.

"Potatoes."

We once heard of a man who ate potatoes for breakfast, but at lunch his wife always gave him a nice dish of potatoes, while for dinner the dear woman thought he would enjoy nothing more than a good square meal of potatoes.

This poor man died.

My dear madam, have mercy on the poor man who has to eat potatoes all the time; give him a change. Order a "New Orleans Cook Book." It is full of the best recipes by the best cooks of this Southland—95 pages—and was designed to be serviceable. Send twenty cents in stamps to the ADVOCATE office, and secure one of these valuable books before the limited supply is exhausted.

Pipe Organ For Sale.

Has been in use in the Yazoo City Presbyterian Church for several years. It has 500 pipes, and is still an instrument with great possibilities. Its original cost was $1500, but will be sold at a sacrifice on account of arrangements for one of double the size. Churches wanting an organ will do well to correspond with Mr. E. S. CRANE, Yazoo City, Miss.

THE BEST PATENT ON THE MARKET.

W. H. MORSE, M. D., Author, Chemist, American Director (1898-1900) of the Bureau of Materia Medica, Fellow of the Society of Science (London), etc.

To the Bureau of Materia Medica: T. J. Hunt, Merom, Indiana, manufactures a Digestive Tablet which bears his name, and which deserves of this notice. I have taken clinical pains to become thoroughly acquainted with it, and as a result of my acquaintance, am able to say that it is not only all that he claims for it, but as well, it is quite unlike the ordinary digestive tablets. The tablet is the initial incident to health in all of its most coveted phases, and covers a wide range of usefulness.

If this treatment doesn't cure any case of bad health, bad blood bad taste, bad breath, bad complexion, irregular appetite, stomach trouble, bowel troubles, catarrh, scabs, and mucous discharges of throat and nose, weak kidneys, lazy liver, headache, backache lack of vivacity, liveliness, too tired to work, rest, sleep, or eat. The very best constitutional treatment in unhealthy seasons and places is HUNT'S DIGESTIVE TABLETS.

Glances at the World.

Rumors of peace in South Africa have been afloat for some time, only to be denied. They are now revived, and there seems to be at least ground for belief that negotiations are pending which will result in bringing the war to a close. It is said that President Krueger's friends are still determined on securing unqualified amnesty, and well-defined guarantees regarding absolute independence. This, of course, could not be granted, and if insisted on, the war will be prolonged. The Boer leaders, who are bearing the brunt of the fight, will be content with something less, which, though not just what they want, will make their condition less embarrassing than if they continue the war, and are finally compelled to surrender. The terms proposed are, in part, as follows: "The Boers accept a British lord commissioner, with a Boer executive, both to be resident at Pretoria. The country to be divided into districts with British district officers and a Boer committee chosen by polling by the burghers. The veto right to be reserved to the British Government. The majority of the British officers must be conversant with the Dutch language. No war tax to be levied. Both languages to be recognized in the schools and courts and in official documents. The expense of the garrisons in South Africa to be borne by Great Britain. The present Boer leaders to be retained in office so far as possible."

The Oleomargarine bill, which has been so long before Congress and stirred so much feeling, has been passed. As it went through the Senate, it is slightly different from the House bill, and will have to go to conference. But it is said the differences will not be hard to reconcile. Oleomargarine is a compound, one ingredient of which is cotton-seed oil. It is attractive in appearance, being colored in imitation of the best Jersey butter. It is healthy, quite as clean as butter, and much cheaper. Much of it is sold, and, being cheaper, injures the butter trade. The new legislation puts a tax of ten cents a pound on all the compound that is colored, and one-fourth of a cent a pound on the uncolored product, and requires dealers to label its true character. The bill was fought by the Democrats on two grounds: First, that it was not right to tax a commodity that was clean and healthy, and that was specially a benefit to the poor, to protect the producers of butter. This contention seemed just, especially in view of the fact that oleomargarine is in no sense an adulteration of butter, but a compound. Second, it was opposed on the ground that the tax imposed is an effort to raise revenue under the guise of an act to secure pure food. Notwithstanding, the bill passed, and, we presume, will soon become a law.

Notwithstanding the unpleasantness between President Roosevelt and Senator Tillman, and the other Tillman, a nephew of the senator, the President visited Charleston and the Exposition, and, if reports are true, he not only had a pleasant visit, but, as the papers characterize such things, a perfect ovation. The people were enthusiastic — as much so as if Mr. Tillman had planned and engineered the whole business. The programme was fully carried out, even to the presentation of the sword to Major Jenkins, which the younger Tillman tried to hinder. It all goes to show that common sense and courtesy still exist in the country. A little trouble followed the President back to Washington. While in Charleston, Mr. Roosevelt had a meeting (whether purposely arranged or not, we do not know) with prominent Democrats, in which he gave them to understand that in the appointment of men to office in South Carolina, he should have respect to character and fitness rather than to party loyalty, even though he had to go outside of his party to find the men. This raised a storm among the machine Republicans. They were indignant, and so expressed themselves. But nothing will come of it.

The outcome of the court-martial of Major Waller in the Philippines is the trial by court-martial of his superior officer, Gen. Jacob Smith. Major Waller was charged with violating the rules of war in killing Filipinos without trial. He did not deny the charge, but plead that he acted under orders. On this ground he was acquitted. Now, his superior officer is to give an account of himself. When Major Waller made his defense, charging that he had orders "to kill and burn," and that the age limit for killing was put as low as "ten years," Gen. Smith, it is said, "put in a rather weak denial" at first, but afterward "changed his line of defense from a claim of innocence to one of justification," saying "no troops ever faced such a treacherous enemy," and that "the ordinary rules of war were absolutely inadequate to meet the case." It will be remembered that much has been said recently of the inhuman treatment of prisoners, torturing by means of what is called the "water-cure" (pouring water down the throat), and outright butchery, etc. This court-martial will, perhaps, bring out all the facts, and the country will soon learn whether or not the United States army is made up in part of savages. That a court-martial is necessary to try such a charge is a shame.

REPORT FROM THE JACKSON DISTRICT.

BY REV. T. B. HOLLOMAN, D. D.

Our first round was closed on strictly schedule time, and not an appointment missed, despite the encounter with much rain, mud, and cold. In nearly every instance requiring long distance from the railroad, the weather was at its worst. All the new pastors were on the grounds, and had been kindly received, and were already planning for the year's work. The spirit seems to be for a better year than ever before on the district, and I am sure if the laymen shall only catch the spirit of the preachers, it will be an assured success.

The Sunday-schools of the district are taking more interest in the missionary work, and the school at Yazoo City has pledged one hundred dollars as a surplus, while the League has pledged seventy-five. If all the collections from the Sunday-schools could be applied that way, the question of collection in full on the district would be solved.

As compared with the first quarter last year, the finances are well up.

At Mt. Carmel, on the Thomasville work, we dedicated one of the neatest country churches on the district, and Pastor Terry has two others to dedicate before many more moons.

Moore at Madison, Crymes at Lake City, and Selby at Brandon, are all enjoying their brand-new parsonages; large, comfortable, respectable homes, and not a dime of debt on either.

Benton has Brother Witt in a much better home than any pastor for many years, and which, with a little improvement, will be one of our best houses.

SIGNIFICANT.

At the Quarterly Conference one pastor reported that the parsonage was leaking. The next thing we heard from that pastor he was sick of—or with shingles.

OPPORTUNE.

Seeing that their meeting was late in the quarter, and appreciating the condition of the elder, the Board at Brandon sent us a check for first quarter in full a month beforehand. This was opportune indeed, and received the heartfelt thanks of the elder. Indeed, we were beginning to feel the need of some such brotherly kindness.

During the quarter we have made several visits to Millsaps College, and were delighted always to greet a student body full of hard work and fine spirits. I dare say a more interesting set of young men can not be gotten together than are gathered here, and fewer against whom charges could be justly brought. A gentleman of the city of Jackson said to me a few days ago that the behavior was such that he was not conscious of a college of such numbers in or so near the city. Quiet, orderly, and manly, there is no tolerance with the mean and base.

Brother Park, from Winona, conducted a very successful meeting in the rooms of the Y. M. C. A. Much good was done.

We have seen some articles recently in the ADVOCATE suggesting that Millsaps was too high-priced a school for the average poor boy. Last year I had this report from one of the best students, and one who dressed neatly, and looked always well-kept, and stands well with the student body as well as the faculty: Counting matriculation, books, board, one suit of clothes purchased in Jackson, shoes, hat, and other smaller matters of expense, his account for the year was less than $120 by a few cents—actual book-keeping.

For myself, I can not see how any parent or young man can reasonably demand less than this for a ten months' term at such an institution as Millsaps College. When I told Dr. Murrah of this fact he expressed surprise that one could have so appeared and sustained himself as this young man on so small an amount. The money spent by a boy at school depends largely on the individual boy. At least, this has been my experience after carrying four through a college course.

OUR FRENCH MISSION.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: Having lately read one or two good articles in the columns of the ADVOCATE on the subject of "Home Missions," in which some good and true things were said on the subject of French missionary work in this part of the country, I am encouraged to add a few more words, that I may, if possible, awaken a little more interest in this line of work, and also make an appeal through the ADVOCATE for a little help for a very worthy cause.

As far as I know, I am the only man within the bounds of our Conference that is engaged exclusively in this work, and yet I fail to see any reason at all why we should pay any more attention to missionary work in Cuba, Mexico, Brazil, etc., than we do to this immediate section of country, for, if I mistake not, the natives of the above-named countries are Roman Catholics, just as they are here, except, probably, there may be some little difference in morals.

"But," some one will say, "haven't we Methodist preachers all through South Louisiana, and are they not doing the same work that our missionaries are doing in these other countries?"

I answer, "No." It is true that we have preachers in the larger towns through this Catholic district, and some few in the country where there are English-speaking communities, but none of these are making a specialty of trying to reach these French-speaking Catholics; and while it is true that now and then some of these people are converted and brought into the church, still the great mass of them are never brought into contact with our preachers, and a majority of them hardly know that we are on the field. Our preachers may not be to blame for this, for they are often men who, the year before, were in the northern part of the State, or from some other Conference, who have not had a chance to study these people, and who can not speak the French language, and, consequently, not adapted to the work.

Some one will probably say, and that truly, that to carry on this work efficiently, we would necessarily have to have men who speak the French language, and these we have not.

"But," I ask, "does this difficulty hinder us from sending missionaries to these other fields, where other languages are spoken?" Do we not spend a great deal of both time and money in preparing missionaries for foreign work? And why not, if necessary, do the same for this field? And, then, I do not think the difficulty is as great as some imagine, for I believe that within the bounds of the Crowley district we have not less than three or four men who could begin to do efficient missionary work within less than a year's time, if the church would take hold of the matter, and we had the means to undertake it.

I believe all of our preachers in this part of the country are of the opinion that something ought to be done that is not being done for the salvation of our French-speaking population; but there does not seem somehow to exist that enthusiasm about the enlightening and saving of these people that there is over our more distant fields of operation.

Why not invite Bishop Candler, or Dr. Lambuth, or some of the other leaders of our great church, to visit this field, in order to study its conditions and needs, just as is done elsewhere?

I do not pretend to have the clue to this French Mission work, but I do know that the work ought to be done, and that it is not likely to be done unless it is agitated by some one; and I have as yet failed to see or understand why we should go wild with enthusiasm over the work among the same kind of people just a few hundred miles away from us, while we seem to ignore entirely the "Macedonian cry" that is coming to us from as needy a people at our own door.

And now, in regard to the other matter, which I promised to mention, and I hope that the readers of the ADVOCATE will not think I have written the above as a preamble to what I am about to say, but I did it because my heart was full of it, and I could not well desist.

A little over a year ago I was appointed to this French Mission work, with a small missionary allowance. I found between fifty and sixty members, which number was increased forty-two during last year. Our people did the best they could, and the Lord blessed our labors. I have been reappointed to this work this year, and am expecting God's continued favors, but I am laboring at a great disadvantage. I have had to pay seven dollars a month house rent, and then live eight miles from our nearest point of operation. I am now trying to raise money to build us a parsonage. A nice lot has been secured of one and a quarter acres, where we have a membership of thirty-nine. Our people are ready to do all they can, but their means are very limited. They will not be able to raise more than one hundred or one hundred and fifty dollars. We will not need less than two hundred and fifty or three hundred more. Will not the readers of the ADVOCATE help us in this matter? The Woman's Home Mission Society can not help us. They have already granted as much as they are able to pay this year, and unless we get outside help, we will have to continue as we did last year, to pay house rent out of a meagre allowance that is hardly sufficient without this extra expense.

Will not a number whom God has blessed with means send to Rev. R. W. Vaughan, New Iberia, La., who will act as treasurer for this fund, a ten-dollar bill, and others greater or less amounts, according to their ability? We would like to begin work on the parsonage as soon as possible, in order to save as much of this year's rent as we can, and will be glad to receive any contributions that God's children may see fit to give us for this cause, within the next month or two.

Please, friends, do not lay this paper aside without sending us something. The smallest amount will be appreciated.

Your brother in Jesus,

MARTIN HEBERT, P. C.

LETTER FROM "GILDEROY."

Along at intervals for three weeks I heard an evangelist preach, and for four or five services he spent much time and force in showing, or trying to show, what an awful sin it was for parents and others to teach their children to say, "Our Father who art in heaven." He says this teaching is one fruitful cause of so much infidelity in the land; that whoever teaches a child to say this is cramming a lie down the child's throat; that God is the father of no one except those who are born of God. He says no one can pray an acceptable prayer till God, according to his good pleasure and by an act of sovereign power, regenerates him and makes him a new creature in Christ Jesus. Some parents at once stopped their children from repeating the Lord's Prayer.

In one form or another, for three weeks, at every service the evangelist said that when God forgave a man's sins, he forgave all future as well as all past sins, and that, no matter what the man did, nor how he lived, he would certainly and infallibly be saved. I give his words: "If one is truly born of God, he may break any one or every one of the commandments every day of his life, and still he will be saved. His sins have all been forgiven, and eternal life has been imparted to him, so that nothing he can do will destroy it. He may lose his reward, but can not lose eternal life." This was said and repeated again and again, as if it were the main, underlying truth of the gospel. Many among the young and less mature adults thought this was brand-new truth—a new gospel. The evangelist had great facility in handling his Bible, and in turning instantly to what he called proof-texts. This was often a catch-penny play on words—twisting the Holy Scriptures to support a dogma; making them mean what any well-informed ten-year-old boy ought to have known they did not mean. Many tricks of the stage are played with the Word of God. If this man found his word in any one verse, he assumed that it meant precisely the same thing in every other verse, regardless of the connection and the qualifying words. Literalism is a dangerous thing, and the unwary are easily deceived by it. There are many people who are easily carried away by every wind of doctrine that comes along. In this man's hands "eternal life" and "everlasting life" meant nothing but life without end in this world or in the next—a life which, once imparted, God himself could not destroy. The idea of "eternal" and "everlasting life" being spiritual life, as opposed to natural life—the words expressing the character of the life, and not the duration of it—seems never to have entered into his head.

Some of us who were present knew that this new doctrine, so persistently and earnestly set forth as gospel truth, was several hundred years old, and that the evangelist was threshing over old straw, from which every grain of wheat had been extracted many, many decades past. However, it served as a sensation to a new generation, who knew nothing of the mighty battles fought by giants one or two hundred years before they were born. This evangelist's new things were not true things, and his true things were not new things. He insisted first, last, and all the time, that it was utterly impossible for anyone to fall from grace, but that if anyone now experienced a change of heart, he ought to be rebaptized, no matter how often he had been baptized before. In proof of this he gives Acts xix, 1-5. He did not seem to catch the idea that this was not a rebaptism, but the first Christian baptism they had, the first in the name of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost. I hear that some clever, good people will have to be rebaptized, because this evangelist hath taught them so.

This evangelist was earnest and zealous, and said many good things, and, doubtless, did much good to many souls. There is no discount on his piety or his zeal. It seemed to me he wasted much time and strength on immaterial points, and on questions which he asserted were self-evident propositions. I could not resist the impression that he was not fully satisfied in his own mind, and was conscious that others were not satisfied. He whistled by the graveyard to keep up his own courage and to hearten up his followers. If the final perseverance of the saints is a self-evident truth, why take time to prove it at every service for three weeks? My own opinion is that every man living has in him the consciousness that he can sin and fall from grace given, and no kind or amount of proof can cause his own heart to lie to him on this subject.

This evangelist is wrong in his theology or in his psychology. Bible truth and psychological truth never contradict each other. They are both a revelation of God's will; God's will to us, or God's will in us. It is a mistake to say, "These things are contradictory, and yet they are both true." Any one truth never contradicts any other truth. The man who holds to the infallible and certain salvation of a soul, regardless of the life he lives, is most certainly wrong in his theology or in his psychology. If this interpretation is given to God's Word, it gives the lie to the inner and better consciousness of the man. If thy heart condemn thee, God is greater than thy heart, and will also condemn thee.

Christian Advocate.

IN THE PALACE OF THE PEDROS.

During the first year of one's residence in a foreign country his chief study is not only the language and customs of the people, but also their past history and the elements which have entered into their national life. Especially is this true of the missionary, who goes not to make a fortune and return home, but to spend his life in bettering the social, moral and spiritual condition of the people by whom he is surrounded.

Finding myself a resident of the Federal Capital of Brazil, I determined to visit the many places in this city where the thrilling scenes of the national tragedy of the "Land of the Southern Cross" took place. Acting on this determination, I boarded a bond (street car), and was borne along the narrow, dirty streets in the direction of Sao Christovao, a suburb of Rio, where the Palace of the Pedros is situated, the stout little mules making melancholy music as they clattered over the rough stone streets. A few minutes' ride brought us to the "Praca Repnblica," which is a large public garden in front of which Brazil was declared a Republic on Nov. 15, 1889; just opposite is the Central Railroad station, which is a neat building with modern equipment. Our way led through one of the few broad streets of Rio, in which we pass baronial halls and ancient homes in groves of royal palms, until the lifting of the purple haze indicates that we are nearing Tijnca Mountains, at the foot of which the imperial palace nestles in a lovely vale. The long drive-way leading to the entrance is shaded by bending bamboos and flowering mimosas; the arched gateway to the grounds is after the model of Roman triumphal arches, surmounted by the Brazilian seal and royal arms. The palace is a three-storied building of French Renaissance architecture; stucco, tiles, wood, and a small quantity of stone are the materials used in construction. It is constructed around a quadrangular court, in the center of which a fountain sends its silvery spray over tropical flowers. The building is in good repair generally, and contains about one hundred rooms, none of which are grand or imposing, and nothing about the place is suggestive of royalty. It would be considered an humble home for a present-day millionaire of North America. In the saloons and audience-chambers, where, in former years, Brazilian beauties met crowned heads in royal reception, and the Imperial Cabinet sat in serious session, there are now exhibited specimens of fossils, etc., of an age long past, for the old building has been converted into a National Museum. In the private chapel, overlooking the courtyard, where the royal family kneeled before the altar of the Virgin to worship, there is now the skeleton of a huge whale, about forty-five feet long, or the exact length of the chapel. It seems to have been built for this purpose, as is indeed true of the entire building. I have never seen a house so perfectly adapted to the uses of a museum. The collection itself is a creditable one; the exhibits of fish, birds, Indian relics, native precious stones and ore are especially fine, complete, and well classified, the last-named showing the immense undeveloped wealth of Brazil.

The place is well named "Boa Vista" ("Beautiful View"), as it would be difficult to find a more beautiful spot in this Switzerland of America. The majestic mountains rise thousands of feet high on three sides of the palace, and are covered to their dizzy summits with perpetual green, while glorious glimpses of the sea are seen through smiling valleys. It was in this peaceful spot that Dom John VI., driven from his throne in Portugal during the French Revolution, in which he was involved, found a home and welcome among his loyal subjects—the colonists of Brazil. Twenty thousand adventurers followed the court to Brazil, and between these and the Brazilians there arose jealous rivalries for official appointments in the gift of the government. The colony so suddenly raised to a kingdom was destined to pass through a long period of revolution, which resulted in the return of Dom John VI. to Portugal in 1821, after he had conferred upon his son, Dom Pedro, the office of Regent of Brazil. The arbitrary measures of the Cortes of Portugal aroused the Brazilians to declaration of independence, which was made on Sept. 7, 1822, and Dom Pedro was crowned First Constitutional Emperor and Perpetual Defender of Brazil. An excellent and liberal Constitution was adopted after many stormy sessions of the Assembly. During the ten years following more progress was made than during the entire three centuries previous, but in April, 1831, the people demanded a change in the ministry, and the reinstatement of certain members of the Cabinet who had been dismissed. An envoy from the people, who were assembled on Campo de Santa Anna, waited on the Emperor, urging their demands. His reply was: "I certainly shall not appoint the ministry they require. My honor and the Constitution alike forbid it, and I would abdicate, or suffer death, rather than consent to such a nomination." His Ministry, Navy and Army, even to the Imperial Guard, all forsook him, and, lonely and sad, he sat down at two o'clock in the morning and wrote out his abdication in favor of his son, Dom Pedro de Alcantara. It is dated "Boa Vista," April 7, 1831. The next night he looked for the last time on his beloved Rio, and then sailed for Portugal. The regency was held by various characters, the second being a Catholic priest. This Regency was abolished in 1840, and Dom Pedro, in his fifteenth year, was crowned second Emperor of Brazil by popular acclamation. When only seventeen years of age the boy emperor brought a bride to "Boa Vista" from Europe, in the person of the "Most Serene Princess Senhora Donna Theresa Christina Maria," sister of the King of the Two Sicilies, who, notwithstanding her lengthy name, is still enshrined in the hearts of her people.

Space forbids a delineation of the personal and official character of the excellent, good man, whose peaceful reign, extending through nearly fifty years, and whose true, noble life endeared him to all his subjects, high and low.

In 1889 the people, fearing the ascendency of the unpopular Princess Isabella, who had married Prince Louis Philippe d'Orleans, deposed the Emperor, forced the royal family to leave the country, and declared Brazil a Republic. The heart-broken Emperor died a lonely exile in Europe, thus ending the last sad scene of the monarchy.

"Boa Vista" is without an occupant, and where he, in whose veins flowed the blood royal of the ancient houses of Braganzas, Bourbons, and Hapsburgs, held his court, the public is cordially invited each Thursday and Sunday to view the relics and curios.

"The shouting and the tumult dies;
The Captains and the Kings depart;
Still stands Thine ancient sacrifice,
A broken and a contrite heart
Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget, lest we forget!"

THE TRANSFORMATION OF METHODISM.

BY REV. J. F. SCURLOCK.

CHURCH-BUILDINGS.

One historian says, "In many localities there were no houses of worship, and the missionaries preached only in private dwellings." In another place the historian says: "The church-buildings were all of them inferior. In the country they were generally of logs; perhaps a few were found in the towns barn-like and uncomfortable." The backwoods of our times can make as good a showing. Some of our churches are imposing, elegant, and inviting. They are expressions of Christian liberality and devotion. The most costly, the best-appointed buildings should be the house of God. Elegance does not detract from true piety and earnest work for the promotion of Christ's kingdom. And yet we have multitudes who will not invest their money in good churches. When a man builds himself a good house, he says, "I am here to stay;" so, when a community rears a good church, they say to saint and sinner, "We dwell here, and do not intend to give place to the world, the flesh, and the devil." Progress in this department of church work is contemplated with great pleasure. May the future witness greater advancement still!

METHODIST PEOPLE.

"Then Methodist people were humble, obscure, and poor." What a change! Their humble birth and circumstances are not to be allowed to detract from their greatness and glory. They were obscure, but are they so now? They are anything but that. They are not found in the dark corners of the country, nor on the back streets and alleys of the city; scarcely known beyond the smoke of their own chimneys. Whilst some of them are inhabitants of such places, others are found in the best circles of society, in the highest offices in the gift of the people. They have the intelligence, refinement and position which places them there. While, as the historian says, there was a time when they were "obscure," yet, within a century, they have acquired a world-wide reputation, "known and read of all men." From poverty they have grown into great wealth. They own lands for fertility and beauty unsurpassed, and these spread out before the eye, as though they had "stretched out their arms like seas, and grasped in all the shore." They have become bond-holders; they have become bankers, manufacturers, and railroad magnates. They are engaged in every laudable financial enterprise of the country. Private fortunes are numbered by the thousands, and these are as great as those acquired by men of the world. The income realized from their various investments amounts to millions. Whilst in these particulars the changes of Methodism have been very great, we earnestly wish that they had been greater.

ATTENDANCE AT CHURCH.

"Women and children would walk for miles with shoes and stockings in their hands in very wet weather, putting them on before arriving at church." We would say this is a picture to look at, and which, by its very uniqueness, interests us no little. Why not wear their shoes instead of pulling them off? But this was church-going, and some of the old brethren, who have a horror for all refinement, would say that this is an evidence of their great devotion, of which our people in this day are destitute. More people attend church now, and oftener, than ever before, in proportion to membership. Those people had no other way to go than to walk. But those long walks were only occasional. Our members more than make up for them by their frequent going. But there are some among us who think the former times better than these. Such live so constantly in the past they can not see the good of these days. Still we must confess that church-going is not as widespread, nor as frequent, as it should be, and in order to inspire greater diligence, our utmost energies should be brought into action to reach it. Going to church is the sign of life in the membership.

ENTERTAINMENT OF PREACHERS.

"At a log cabin, the home of a hunter, he was sheltered for the night, and fed upon musty cornbread—the meal beaten in a mortar—and tough lungs of a deer fried in rancid bacon grease, and corn coffee sweetened with syrup. On such fare, hungry as he was, the missionary could not break his fast, and it was fifteen miles to the next house." The preacher finished his sermon, and on a puncheon the plain food—simple "lye hominy," and bear or deer meat—was eaten. This is a gloomy description of the fare of those self-sacrificing preachers of righteousness. But it was the best, in many places, the people could afford. It was that, or nothing. How some of our modern dyspeptic pastors would live on such homely food is a matter of conjecture. But now it is not "lye hominy," "musty bread," "tough deer lungs," but nice ham, fresh beef, fat chickens, hot biscuits, batter cakes or rolls, with pastries, sweet-meats in great variety, made by thoughtful housewives. Instead of straw beds, or a few feathers stuffed into a tick called a feather-bed, preachers have such as make sleeping a luxury. There may be exceptions, but they are few. And instead of being put away for the night in a room with a dirt floor, or so open that it would afford more air than the best sanitary regulations require, they enjoy elegant apartments, as good as the best in almost every home. The change in this respect is most delightful to contemplate. Preachers, it must be admitted, are excellent judges of good bedding, good rooms, and excellent fare. I do not know of any class of men who know how, and really do enjoy good things to eat, so well as Methodist preachers. The world is advancing, and we, as a church, are advancing with it.

PREACHERS.

"Only a small number of the preachers were men of even moderate education." Of William Redwine the historian makes the following statement: "He was at this time totally without culture. He had been brought up in the backwoods, and had never seen anything of elegant life, nor mingled with people of education." This can not be said of any traveling preacher in our day. While many of them have been brought up in the backwoods, yet it can not be said of them that they have not seen anything of elegant life, nor mingled with people of education. And while many of them have limited culture, yet not a few have sufficient facility in the use of their native tongue to express themselves clearly, and even with elegance and beauty. While there were only a few men of even a moderate education in those days, now we have multitudes of scholarly preachers among us, and not a few who are regarded as learned in the arts and sciences. The law-making body of our church has raised the standard of education necessary for admission into the traveling connection, yet it has not so legislated as to make a collegiate course necessary for this step. This is not an advanced step upon the part of the ministry alone, but it has become an actual demand of the church. Education has become a great factor in the promotion of the gospel, and instead of declining, it will grow more important as the church advances in the acquisition of piety and knowledge.

We have a tolerable view of how some men preached in those times. At Oglethorpe, Ga., Dr. Pierce, the presiding elder, on one occasion called on Brother Redwine to conclude when he had finished his discourse. He arose and announced a text, "Behold, ye despisers, and wonder and perish;" then he went on to say the first of the despisers is the deist. "He stands with his legs as wide apart as if he were the Empire of France, and he won't hear any man preach who can't speak romantically and explain oratory." We make another quotation: "They preached like no others; they often stamped and screamed, wept, threatened, exhorted, and invited." If the preachers thus expounded the Word, we wonder that so many became converted and united with the church. Why it did not die is a matter of still greater surprise. Two facts throw much light on the subject. One is, that there were really some great men who traveled through the country as revivalists, or as presiding elders on large districts, who gave character both to the doctrines and dignity of the Methodist Church. A second is, that the people were, as a general thing, more ignorant in those localities where they operated. Methodism was evidently the child of providence, and over it God watched with vigilant care, and fostered it with his grace, and it could not, therefore, be a failure. Stamping and screaming among a few of our preachers of to-day still has great approbation, and they seem to think that no one can do good and effective preaching without them; but this idea is gradually dying away as echoes of the past. Few of our preachers now rant; they lighten more and thunder less. We do not see them become so excited that they jump over the book-board, and very seldom stand on the backs of the seats. A minister can be in earnest and more effective without such bodily exercise.

As one minister said, "Methodist preachers are the grandest set of men on top side of this earth," and they fill a place which no other class can, and they should never fall below the standard erected for them, and this can be prevented by being a gentleman, a Christian, and the herald of divine truth in a gospel sense. I believe our preachers, notwithstanding the multitudes of adroit or open thrusts at their ignorance, or want of progressiveness, keep abreast of the times, and are as well qualified for instructing their flocks as men of other professions are for theirs. I hope we shall have no more articles in our Advocates holding them up to the scorn and contempt of the world by exposing their want of culture for the position which they occupy.

MISSIONARY INSTITUTE.

The Missionary Institute of the Brookhaven district, Mississippi Conference, convened in Hazlehurst, Miss., April 8-10. The opening sermon was preached, Tuesday night, by Rev. B. F. Jones, the presiding elder, on the Holy Spirit as a quickener.

Wednesday morning, after devotional exercises by Rev. F. M. Williams, the Institute proper was called to order, and Rev. B. F. Lewis was elected secretary. There were two sessions a day, morning and afternoon, with a sermon at 11 A. M. and 7:45 P. M. each day. Five pastors were absent—two on account of illness in their families. The local preachers were conspicuous for their absence. One of our superannuates favored us with his presence. It is encouraging to see these brethren, who have retired from the active ranks, still interested in the work of the church.

The Institute was much encouraged and helped by the presence of Rev. T. L. Mellen, our Conference Missionary Secretary, than whom we have none better qualified, and Dr. C. F. Reid, the Superintendent of our Corean work. These brethren added greatly to the enjoyment and profit of the occasion by their interspersed talks and sermons. Mrs. I. L. Peebles, district secretary of the W. H. M. Society, was also present, and read an interesting and profitable paper on the needs of the Home Mission Society.

A varied programme had been carefully prepared, embracing the following subjects: The Purpose and Work of the Church Essentially Missionary, L. Carley; The Bible and Christian Missions, I. L. Peebles; Review of the Missionary Operations of Our Church, J. A. Moore; Educational Work in the Foreign Field, C. W. Crisler; Place of the W. F. M. Society in the Church, A. F. Watkins; Medical Missions, B. F. Lewis; The Work of the Church Extension Society Essentially Missionary, R. Bradley; The Sunday-school Missionary Society, J. W. Chambers; Missionary Work among the Indians, C. McDonald; Occupied and Unoccupied Missionary Territory in the Mississippi Conference, J. W. Sandell; The Work of the W. H. M. Society in Our Conference, E. F. Edgar; Our Missionary Literature: How Can We Increase Its Circulation? J. W. Chambers; The Best Methods of Raising Our Collections in Full, B. F. Lewis; The Holy Spirit and Missions, A. F. Watkins; The Triumphs of Foreign Missions, J. A. B. Jones. The papers read and discussions had showed wide research and careful preparation. The speakers had not confined their studies to the subjects assigned them.

Dr. Reid said of this Institute, that of all the Institutes he had attended, this one was superior to any in the scope of subjects considered, and in the literary quality and historical accuracy of the papers. He urged the Institute to publish the papers in tract form, as they were too good to be pigeon-holed. The Institute appreciated this opinion from one so well qualified to criticise.

During the discussion of the subject, "Review of the Missionary Operations of Our Church," Bro. F. M. Williams, our pastor at Beauregard, stated that in 1848—the year our first missionary went to China—he joined the Tennessee Conference, and during his active pastorate had seen the developments in that field. Bro. Williams is one of our young-old men, who is a better preacher and doing better work than he did in 1848.

The following resolution was passed:

Resolved, That we, the pastors, pledge ourselves to do our utmost to put Go Forward in every family in our several pastoral charges before our District Conference, which convenes June 25.

In looking to the advancement of the work in the district, the several pastoral charges were divided between the members of the Executive Committee, called for by a resolution adopted at a meeting of the pastors and district stewards in January last, as follows:

Under Rev. H. C. Brown, Terry, Miss.—Terry, Crystal Springs, Gallman, Bayou Pierre, Providence, Hazlehurst. Under Rev. C. W. Crisler, Brookhaven, Miss.—Beauregard, Wesson, Brookhaven, Bogue Chitto, Summit, Caseyville, Pleasant Grove. Under Rev. B. F. Lewis, Magnolia, Miss.—McComb, Fernwood, Magnolia, Adams, Topisaw, Tylertown.

It is our purpose to put our district in Class "A" this year, and high up in the class at that.

B. F. LEWIS, Sec.

A PREACHER'S WIFE REMEMBERED.

MR. EDITOR: Will you kindly allow me space to express my sincerest thanks to my fond friend, Mrs. J. S. Millikin, and her trio of charming little daughters, for the beautiful and dainty luncheon spread at our parsonage home on the seventh instant, in honor of the anniversary of my birthday?

Though all was planned from her sick-bed, no fairy queen, "to the manner born," could have executed the design, even to the smallest detail, with more becoming grace, than did Misses Irene, Marie and Marguerite, each of whom proved herself every whit the charming hostess.

This thoughtful remembrance lays us under renewed obligation too large to be expressed with the limited vocabulary at our command, but not too large to be held in grateful remembrance, and forms the brightest chapter in our itinerant life in this, the "City by the Lake."

MRS. J. E. DENSON.

UNION GOSPEL MISSION.

To the Readers of the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE:

Dear ones in the service of God, I wish to bring before your minds the twelfth anniversary and our children's second annual Rally Day of the Union Gospel Mission Sunday-school of New Orleans, La., which will take place Thursday, May 1, in open air, on Mr. J. H. Keller's lawn, near Keller Market. There will be Sunday-school delegates sent from the different missions and church Sunday-schools to take part in the Children's Day exercises. Addresses will be made by different speakers from the platform.

Now, as we appeal to you to help us in this undertaking, we are in hopes that the readers of the ADVOCATE will lend us a hand by sending contributions of money and refreshments, as we will need a great deal of help to make our Children's Day a success. Any help can be sent to E. A. Vail, superintendent of the Union Gospel Mission, 1811 Magnolia street, New Orleans, La.

It is reported in the papers that Mr. John P. Branch, of this city, a member of Centenary Methodist Church, has added to his other gifts to Randolph-Macon College a loan fund of $10,000 to aid deserving young men to complete their education. It will be called the Mary Louisa Fund, in honor and memory of his wife, a lady of exceptional culture, combined with a quick and sparkling mind.—Baltimore and Richmond Christian Advocate.

Scrofula

This root of many evils—

Glandular tumors, abscesses, pimples and other cutaneous eruptions, sore ears, inflamed eyelids, rickets, dyspepsia, catarrh, readiness to catch cold and inability to get rid of it easily, paleness, nervousness and other ailments including the consumptive tendency—

Can be completely and permanently removed, no matter how young or old the sufferer.

Hood's Sarsaparilla was given the daughter of Silas Vernooy, Wawarsing, N. Y., who had broken out with scrofula sores all over her face and head. The first bottle helped her and when she had taken six the sores were all healed and her face was smooth. He writes that she has never shown any sign of the scrofula returning.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

GRENADA, MISS.

Three beautiful, helpful, and impressive services have recently been held in Grenada. The first was held under the auspices of the Sunday-school, at the suggestion of the superintendent, Mr. J. C. Wilson. The Sunday-school Study Circle is accomplishing its mission among us, as was evidenced by this public installation service for the teachers and officers of our school. The pastor, Rev. J. M. Wyatt, in sympathy with every movement for the uplift and improvement of the Sunday-school, gave the Sunday evening preaching hour, March 9, for a general Sunday-school rally, in connection with the installation exercises. The programme, as given in the "Sunday-School Teacher" by Dr. Hamill, was used to great advantage and with marked effect. The large church was filled at an early hour on the appointed night. Some especially fine music was rendered. The twenty-two officers and teachers were duly installed, and seemed inspired to a more earnest, consecrated discharge of their duties. The entire church membership seemed newly aroused to the interests and needs of the Sunday-school work by this solemn public presentation of its leaders, and the magnificent address delivered them by Mr. Wm. Dubard. Every word of this thoughtful Christian charge to the young was golden, and worthy of being preserved in printed form, that its truths might be treasured up to enrich the lives of many others besides those who heard it. The fruit of this installation and rally service is being seen in a new enthusiasm and increased attendance at Sunday-school.

A second impressive service was on Easter day (Sunday, March 30). As is appropriate at this joyous, yet solemn occasion, the church was both artistically and fittingly decorated. Beautiful cut flowers and potted plants lent their beauty of color and sweetness of perfume as a tribute meet to nature's King. Our whole church membership seemed in that frame of mind expressed by the Psalmist when he sang, "I was glad when they said unto me, Let us go into the house of the Lord." A large, attentive and inspiring audience greeted the pastor when he announced that Easter text: "He is not here; for He is risen, as He said. Come, see the place where the Lord lay." Reverently and devoutly each heart present seemed to follow the line of argument and chain of incidents substantiating the verity of Christ's life and suffering, the completeness of the atonement, and the triumphant consummation of the whole divine plan of salvation in his resurrection from the tomb. The music prepared and rendered by our choir was beautiful and appropriate in the highest degree. But the classical music rendered did not supplant those grand old hymns of the ages, "All hail the power of Jesus' name," "He lives," and others which have strengthened the faith and cheered the hearts of millions of devout Christian worshipers.

The third service was the Easter meeting of the May McIntosh Missionary Society of Grenada Female College. This meeting was held in the college chapel Sunday afternoon, March 30, under the direction of Sister McIntosh. A number of appropriate recitations, vocal solos and choruses, demonstrated how much talent there is in Grenada College, and how that talent is being trained and consecrated to the service of the Master. This college missionary society has made a fine record during the present session; $40.30 is a good financial showing for a society of school girls. What a blessing to have one's daughter in such a Christian atmosphere, and to have such thorough missionary training go hand in hand with their intellectual pursuits! The influence of Sister McIntosh and her faithful helpers, Mrs. Hoskins, Misses Jones, Dye and Leverett, upon the lives of these young people can never be estimated. The seed here sown is in good ground, and can but spring up in after years and yield an abundant harvest in Christian life and service. May our Father sanctify and deepen all these impressions for his glory in the hearts of these lovely young women!

GRENADIAN.

COLUMBUS, MISS.

MR. EDITOR: A few months ago I read a thoughtful article from Dr. W. K. Piner, now pastor of Central Church, Memphis, on the question, "Why More Men Do Not Go to Church," and the learned writer said it was because there was not enough of the supernatural in our preaching. The inquiry was made of a bright business man, "Tell me; you know the business men of this city; why do not more men go to church?" The ready reply was, "Because you preachers preach too long." Dr. Piner dissents from this view, and offers the explanation which appears above.

Men come to church to hear the gospel of the Son of God; not to hear a dissertation on science from a man who is poorly prepared to give it; and if the gospel is not preached, the men fall away.

Rev. H. C. Morrison, editor of the Pentecostal Herald, dissents somewhat from Dr. Piner, and says it is the love of sin that keeps men from church. He maintains that religion requires not only abandonment of sin, but an open confession which would degrade the average sinner in the estimation of his fellow-men; hence he refuses to comply with the conditions of religion, and quits going to church.

Now, where the great masters have walked, I fear to tread, but I may give my opinion:

1. In the first place, there has not been any utter abandonment of the church by the men. In our church at Columbus there were more men at church last Sunday morning than women, if we leave out the I. I. and C. girls. If there has been any perceptible drift from the church by the men, a public discussion of the matter may do harm, unless the evil is more general than it appears to be.

2. Admitting that in some localities there is a drift away from the church, what is the immediate cause? I do not hesitate to say that the substitution of sensationalism for the gospel is the cause. Wherever the old gospel of sin and salvation is earnestly and intelligently preached, it holds the men.

3. Sometimes a preacher dissipates his strength on side issues, and when he comes to the pulpit, which is his throne of power, he is weak, because his nervous and mental energies have been exhausted on other things. I know a preacher who, on a recent Sunday, taught a class in Sunday-school, preached at 11 o'clock, took a collection for missions, preached at 2:30 p. m., went to the Epworth League, made a talk, baptized a baby, attended a funeral, and preached again at night. His sermon at night was "mighty poor."

On last Sunday we had the largest Sunday-school ever known in the history of our church here.

T. W. LEWIS.

POPLAR CREEK.

DEAR DOCTOR BOSWELL: After driving six days through rain, mud, and cold, I reached Poplar Creek, where the Bishop had appointed me to labor the present Conference year, the thirtieth day of December, 1901. The first Sunday in January, as the earth was covered with snow, I did not preach, but did some visiting that was very pleasant. A few days later I was called upon to preach a funeral at the church where I missed the first Sunday appointment, so I have preached the full number of appointments at that church up to date. Our first Quarterly Conference called me from my appointment the second Sunday in February, but taking the advantage of time, I sent an appointment, and preached in the afternoon of the first Sunday, so as to lose no appointment. By making up these two, as I did, I have filled every appointment this year. This circuit has six appointments.

We are holding Church Conferences, revising the roll, reaching all by letter we can, and making the best disposition we can of others. We have received one member on profession of faith and seven by letter since beginning our work here, and have found others to come in the church as soon as we can get their letters. We have improved the parsonage to the amount of $30, and are agitating the building of two new churches.

E. C. SULLIVAN.

Louisiana Conference Minutes.

At last the Minutes of the last session of the Conference have been mailed, or expressed, to the preachers, and it is hoped that by this time every charge has its quota. Some of the packages may never get to those for whom they were intended, as less than a dozen out of 136 pastors notified me of their correct addresses. Some of the errors were discovered in time to save the packages; others may have been lost on account of wrong direction. For these losses I am not responsible, nor will I be able to send a new supply from the small number that I have had printed at my own expense, the sale of which is to go to reimburse me for money expended on the cuts over and above what was available for the work in general.

Just here let me correct an error that seems to be quite general. After all the labor expended in getting the matter for the Annual in shape, the time and expense necessary to get and return the pictures, the expense incurred in soliciting advertisements, and many little incidental expenses, there is not a dollar's profit in the job, except that I get to read a daily paper, or two, for the space their advertisements occupy.

Now, in regard to errors. It goes without saying that there are errors in the Minutes; a casual glance reveals some of them. The book is far from what it should have been, and yet it is hardly probable that we can help matters by calling attention publicly to the errors we find. I would suggest that it would be best to drop me a note calling attention to the errors, as some of the brethren have done, and thus save the readers of the ADVOCATE. I will do all in my power to rectify them, and avoid falling into the same errors next time.

Respectfully, WM. G. EVANS.

A Sick Liver

Can work havoc with human happiness. It can change the cheerful philanthropist into a morose misanthrope and the optimist into a pronounced pessimist. The liver has a great deal to do with the removal of the waste of the body. When it is sluggish in its action the whole body must suffer by reason of clogging accumulations.

The excretory organs in general promptly respond to the action of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It restores the liver to healthy activity, purifies the blood, and cures diseases of the organs of digestion and nutrition.

Mr. Edward Jacobs, of Marengo, Crawford Co., Indiana, writes: "After three years of suffering with liver trouble and malaria I gave up all hopes of ever getting stout again, and the last chance was to try your medicine. I had tried all the home doctors and received but little relief. After taking three bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and one vial of his 'Pleasant Pellets,' I am stout and hearty. It is due entirely to your wonderful medicines."

The sole motive for substitution is to permit the dealer to make the little more profit paid by the sale of less meritorious medicines. He gains; you lose. Therefore, accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets assist the action of the "Discovery." They are easy to take, agree with the weakest constitution, and do not beget the pill habit.

OUR COPY, one year, $2.00; six months, $1.00. To preachers of all denominations, half price.

CORRESPONDENTS will please direct all communications, whether on business or for publication, to the Editor, 513 Camp St., New Orleans. Write with ink, and only on one side of the paper. No attention will be paid to rolled manuscripts.

OBITUARIES not over two hundred words in length will be published free of charge. All over two hundred words will be charged for at the rate of ONE CENT A WORD. Count the words and send the amount necessary with the obituary. That will save trouble all around.

THE PRINTED LABEL on a paper shows the date to which a subscription is paid. It is as good as a written receipt. When renewal is made, if the date is not moved forward after two weeks, notify us, and we will make it right. This applies also to those who request a change of address.

All Preachers of the M. E. Church, South, are authorized Agents, to whom payments may be made.

THURSDAY, APRIL 24, 1902.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

We have been crowded with communications for several weeks, and we are still crowded. Some of them, as important as they are, can wait an indefinite length of time without spoiling; others must be printed soon, else they will be out of date and useless. Some of the brethren (and sisters, too) use a great deal too much paper. This occasions delay when there is other matter on hand, for short articles, other things being equal, always have the preference. We, doubtless, make mistakes in selecting matter from the mass on hand, but it is because we are not infallible. We do the best we can.

Diotrephes loved to have the pre-eminence. His sort still survive in the church. A few are found who want the highest seats, and who propose to work in the lead, or not at all. They are hinderers. Besides, they exhibit a temper wholly inconsistent with the spirit of the gospel. They violate the teaching of the Master, which says, "Whosoever of you will be the chiefest, shall be servant of all."

The human race suffers under the paralyzing influence of sin, and battle as hard as he may against his evil propensities, and the enemies which constantly assail him, no man can win in his own strength. He can not even "turn and prepare himself to faith and calling on God unaided by the Holy Spirit," to say nothing of expelling sin, and working himself into divine favor. "It is the Spirit that quickeneth; the flesh profiteth nothing."

A poor Boston widow, when she heard of the death of Phillips Brooks, who had been her pastor, called her little girl, and said, "Daughter, our friend, Bishop Brooks, is dead." "O! Mama," replied the child, "won't the angels be glad!" What a tribute to the noble man whose chief mission on earth seemed to be to make people happy. This the child knew, and naturally supposed the angels would be glad to see him in heaven. Who will say that the child was not right?

In this day, ruled as it is by the spirit of commercialism, it requires more than ordinary courage and consecration to induce a young man of education and ambition to enter the ministry, in which there is scarcely a living while at work, let alone the prospect of accumulating anything to lay by for sickness or old age. But the fact that the ranks are filled, notwithstanding the hard life and meagre compensation, assures us that the ministry is untainted by the suspicion of being moved to service for the sake of the fleece rather than for the sake of the flock.

THE WAR AGAINST SIN.

Christianity and sin can not live together in peace. There will be antagonism. The fight will be unto death. Wicked men, who follow after their own lusts, and who brook no control, are constantly asking why this is so. They do not understand. Being free agents, they feel that they are their own masters; that no one has a right to say them nay.

It is no trouble to find an answer to those who inquire concerning this matter. The two elements are dissimilar in nature and tendency. Sin is an element of corruption and discord, and opposed to all that is good. Nothing pure and holy can thrive that comes under its influence. It is deadly. Christianity is just the contrary. It emanates from God, who is pure and holy, who has nothing in view but good, and who purposes that sin shall be overthrown. These ideas are set forth by St. Paul, who tells us that righteousness has no fellowship with unrighteousness, that light has no communion with darkness, and that Christ has no concord with Belial. For this reason he commands the disciples to separate themselves from evil-doers, and to touch not the unclean thing.

Our Lord also gives us an insight into the matter. "Think not that I am come to send peace on earth; I came not to send peace, but a sword." Of course, our Lord is not to be understood as teaching that he came to stir up strife, notwithstanding he says, "I am come to set a man at variance against his father (etc.), and a man's foes shall be they of his own household." He is to be understood as saying that the principles of his religion, implanted in the heart, will so set the recipients against evil that they will make war against evil wherever they find it. So it is said: "God set faithful Abraham at variance against his father, the idolatrous Terah. So religion sets the pious child at variance with the drunken father; for the right, the pure, the good are at variance with the wrong, the defiled, the bad." The good will join with the good, and the evil with the evil, and when these two forces meet, there will be "ferment, strife, a sword." The war is waged wherever the two principles meet, and will be continued until victory, universal and complete, shall crown the forces of our Lord.

Understand, this war is not waged on the part of the good for the sake of conquest; not for the spoils of the enemy, but for the sake of souls. Were it otherwise, the sword would be called into use as a weapon of warfare. But this is forbidden. Christ's kingdom is not of this world. "The weapons of our warfare are not carnal, but mighty through God to the pulling down of strongholds." Spiritual weapons only are used, and they are used not for the injury of the sinner, but for his good. The Lord taught the disciples a good lesson on this point when, by way of rebuke, he said, "Ye know not what manner of spirit ye are of, for the Son of man is not come to destroy men's lives, but to save them." This he said in answer to James and John, who asked to be allowed to call down fire from heaven to consume the dwellers in a certain village who declined to receive their ministrations.

The world is utterly at a loss to understand the spirit by which Christians are impelled to war against sin, and especially why they should go to so much trouble and expense, and sacrifice home and friends and native land, in order to combat the evil. The world has not learned the meaning of the words, "The love of Christ constraineth us, because we thus judge, that if one died for all, then were all dead." None but those who are saved from death know what it is to be redeemed from the power of sin. And this salvation creates in them a burning desire to save their fellow-men. This fact is discerned only by the spiritual.

In this warfare the direct effort is not always to save the sinner; it is to break up and destroy the forces of evil that continually tempt the sinner, and work his overthrow. With these evils out of the way, access to the sinner is much easier, and the chances of his conversion greatly increased. Who doubts if the liquor traffic, together with all its unholy and ruinous associations, were out of the way, there would be less temptation to dissipation, and greater desire upon the part of saloon frequenters to seek better places where they would come in contact with better society and better influences? In a word, hundreds and thousands of those who now seek the saloon at night and on Sunday would be found in the churches and in happy homes, and thus come within reach of the gospel. To bring about this result, Christian people are at war with the whisky traffic, which is the common enemy of the human race. And so with all other evils. Religion can not have full sway in any community that is dominated by any great evil. Before religion can flourish, the back-bone of the evil must be broken.

It is evidence of a sad condition, spiritually, when we see in any community the world and the church going hand in hand, or when we see evil so prevalent and so daring as to keep the mouths of Christians silent. In the one case it may be that Christians are silent because they feel powerless. In the other they have lost the life and power of godliness, else they simply have a name to live while they are dead. But where there is religious life there will be open protest and fight against sin, and in some form, in some way, the good will win. None of us should ever lose heart and give up, so long as God and one man make a majority.

DOCTRINAL PREACHING.

The time was when doctrinal preaching prevailed. It was popular and always expected. The young preachers even were looked to, more or less, as defenders of the faith. At one period, not very far back, public debates were common. Especially were baptism, the final perseverance of the saints, and the decrees, subjects of dispute. With the Calvinists and immersionists on one side, and Arminians on the other, great crowds were drawn together from afar, and for days they would listen with patience and interest to the long-drawn-out discussions. The people were grounded in the faith.

Very few public debates are now engaged in. Fierce controversial preaching is a thing of the past. But doctrinal preaching is still necessary. It is as important to-day as at any period of the church's history that the people should know why they are Christians, why they should belong to the church, and why they should submit to the ordinances of the gospel. Thorough conviction and knowledge of the truth are essential to a well-rounded Christian character. Lack of knowledge does not argue insincerity, but it puts the ignorant Christian at a great disadvantage, and if he is specially zealous, it is more likely to make him fanatical than if well-informed as to the great doctrines of the Word of God.

We have heard in these latter days that creeds are useless as promoters of the gospel; that they rather tend to divide than unify the people of God. And the exhortation is: Let us get together on the Word of God. That seems plausible enough, and might work very well, if those who make the call did not insist on placing their own peculiar interpretation on the Word. They profess to have no creed, but they have a "shibboleth," and all their converts must "frame to pronounce the word," else they are not accepted as true believers. All this goes to show that every man who accepts the gospel has opinions concerning its teachings and requirements. There is no difference between well-defined opinions entertained and proclaimed by word of month, and a creed reduced to system and published in a book, save the latter is better adapted to fix in the minds of the people the principles of the gospel, and to rally them around one common standard of truth. In the present state of things it is impossible for all men to see alike, but, as a matter of fact, many thousands do see alike, as Methodists, Baptists, Presbyterians, etc., and it seems not only reasonable, but necessary for those who see alike to be united in a body, not against their neighbors, but for the propagation of the truth as they understand it.

If Methodism deserves to live, and ought to live, then by all means we should preach our doctrines. It should be a matter of conscience with us as well as a matter of policy. In no other way can our people become thoroughly informed as to what we believe and why we believe. Nor can they become intelligent Christians without being indoctrinated. In our intelligence largely lies our strength. We ought to be able to give a reason for the hope that we entertain. Unintelligent Christians are more liable than others to be carried away by every wind of doctrine. Uninformed, they have no answers for those who assail the principles of the church to which they belong.

Our doctrines should never be preached in such a way as to offend. The truth may be preached in love. It is not necessary to demolish the structure of somebody else in order to show the beauty and strength of our own. Let us build our own structure, and then challenge comparison, if need be. Unfortunately, as preachers, we sometimes have to show up the follies and inconsistencies of others, and to expose their ugliness, but even that can be done in the spirit of love. Hard arguments and soft words should be the rule. They may not always convince those who dispute with us, but they will command respect.

Methodism has won its way in the world, and to a commanding position, by the proclamation of sound doctrine. The position must be maintained in the same way. To abandon our doctrines is to give ourselves up to liberalism, which will work our death. Decay and disintegration will set in as soon as we cease to contend for the faith once delivered to the saints. Our creed is both our drawing and cohesive power.

GENERAL STATISTICS FOR 1901.

Through the kindness of Mr. John L. Kirby, for many years assistant Sunday-school Editor, and now assistant to Dr. Tigert, Book Editor, we have been favored with advance sheets of the General Minutes, giving the statistics in detail for 1901. We take great pleasure in laying them before our readers. They are worth reading and pondering. Of course, we have space only for the aggregate numbers in each department of the work. They are as follows:

Number of Annual Conferences, 47. Number of Bishops, 11. Number of preachers: traveling, 6,293; local, 4,982. Number of members, 1,505,241—an increase of 34,721 for the year. Total number of preachers and members, 1,516,527. Baptisms: Infant, 28,698; adults, 55,903. Epworth Leagues, 3,234; Epworth League members, 115,099. Sunday-schools, 14,133; Sunday-school teachers, 103,486; Sunday-school scholars, 884,329. Total teachers and scholars, 987,815. Church property: Houses of worship, 14,692½; value of houses of worship, $23,153,299; parsonages, 4,229½; value of parsonages, $4,988,772. Benevolences: Conference fund, $171,068.06; foreign missions, $268,777.89; domestic missions, $170,325.87. Total for missions, $439,103.76; church extension, $73,747.86; American Bible Society, $10,424.17. Total benevolences, $694,343.85. Ministerial support, including Bishops, presiding elders, and pastors: $2,890,277.87. Number of schools and colleges, 142; teachers, 1,199; pupils, 18,966; endowment, $2,533,880; value of school property, $6,029,566.

The amount reported for missions does not include the collections made by the two societies, Home and Foreign, conducted by the women of the church, the fiscal year of the societies not having ended. In 1900 they collected $181,707.62. If they did as well last year (and we have reason to believe they did better) as the year before, then the collections for missions in our church for 1901 amounted to $620,811.38—an increase of $38,253.59 over the year before.

As a church, we are making progress. Let us thank God and take courage. At the same time let us remember that the heaviest part of our work is ahead of us.

NOTE FROM DR. KELLEY.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: I have just read your editorial in the ADVOCATE, of April 10, under heading, "As to Dr. Kelley's Ways." You forgot to tell your readers an important fact, viz.: that the matter you now print was taken from another paper, had been first sent to you, and did not appear in print elsewhere until after you had refused to allow it to appear in your paper. As you forgot to do me this act of brotherly courtesy, allow me to ask that you print this note.

May I add that my name did not appear as the author of the pamphlet, for the very good reason that I was not the author? The method of the distribution of the pamphlet in the North Mississippi Conference is as profound a secret to me as to you. A number of the pamphlets were sent me; most of these were sent out by the regular mails from the Nashville postoffice. A few remain, and are subject to order from anyone desiring to promote truth and righteousness.

The passage of Dr. Barbee's character, and the return of the money, in the mind of the Tennessee Conference, were and are distinct questions. On the latter questions you will find no divided front in our delegation, nor will you find in the delegation a man less a friend of Dr. Barbee than are you.

1. If Dr. Kelley will re-read the article in question, he will see that I did exactly what he says I forgot to do.

2. If Dr. Kelley had said to me in his first letter, or any subsequent one, what he says above as to the authorship of the pamphlet, and its distribution in the North Mississippi Conference, there would have been no occasion for this unpleasant correspondence. With the assurance on Dr. Kelley's part that he had nothing to do with the preparation, printing, etc., of that document, I drop the subject.

JNO. W. BOSWELL.

Rev. T. L. Lallance assisted Rev. C. D. Atkinson, of Parker Memorial, in his meeting last week. He did some good preaching, with good results.

The Women's Missionary Societies.

The Conference Missionary Societies, Home and Foreign, conducted by the women of our church, will soon meet in annual session. The special attention of the sisters living within the bounds of our patronizing territory is called to these meetings. One and all should be interested. To those who are members of these societies it is unnecessary to say a word, but this ADVOCATE goes into hundreds of homes, and is read by wives and mothers and sisters who are not identified with these great movements. That they are well-wishers, perhaps, is true, but that is not sufficient. They ought to be members; not only paying members, but active members. The good these societies are doing is incalculable, and the time is at hand when neither in city, town or country, can any of our women afford to stand by and merely look on and smile, while others do the work. We appeal to all who have held aloof so far to stand back no longer. Send your name at once to the society in your church, or the nearest one to your home, and join this noble army of women who work only for the love of their Lord. How the work would be enlarged, and the good increased, were all our sisters engaged, hand and heart, in the cause!

Seashore Camp Ground.

The season is at hand when the people begin to think of arrangements for Summer outing. Those who live within distance, and desire a quiet resting-place, with the advantages of the best Christian society and religious worship, need look no further than Seashore Camp Ground. It is in all respects an ideal place. Neat and comfortable cottages are for sale or rent. Parties interested would do well to write to those who have advertisements in our columns. There is no better place than Seashore Camp Ground.

Grenada College.

The Building Committee appointed by the Board of Trustees held a very important meeting April 16. They report five thousand dollars in hand for the new building. Plans are now being examined and considered, and so soon as they are adopted, the contract will be let. The prospects for this important institution of the church were never so bright as they are now.

J. C. PARK,
Sec'y B'd Trustees.

PERSONAL.

Bishop Galloway spent Tuesday last in the city. His principal object in coming was to see Bishop Keener. He honored the ADVOCATE office—in which, as editor, he spent years of toil—with an hour of his time. His visit was highly appreciated. The Bishop is in excellent health.

We call the special attention of our lady readers outside the city to the card of Mrs. B. I. Preston, who asks their patronage as purchasing agent. She will purchase and forward anything ladies desire at the lowest prices. Those who can not visit the city to do their shopping should correspond with Mrs. Preston.

Dr. H. M. Hamill, of our Sunday-school Department, was in the city last Sunday. He delivered a strong and interesting address before the members of the Rayne Memorial Sunday-school on the occasion of the re-opening of their room, which has just been re-modeled and beautified at large cost. Dr. Hamill also addressed the preachers at their Monday meeting. They were greatly pleased with the Doctor's work.

"Citizen" writes to the ADVOCATE as follows from Clarksdale, Miss.: "Our beloved pastor, Rev. R. M. Standefer, has been preaching some strong sermons against the blind-tigers, the sins and vices of Clarksdale. He is denouncing these sins in the most vigorous terms, and arousing the whole community to the importance of closing these dens of vice. It is useless to say that he has the support of every decent man and woman in this community; in fact, he is about the most popular man in town."

REV. C. D. ATKINSON, EDITOR.

TRI-STATE EPWORTH LEAGUE CONFERENCE,

JULY 23-AUG. 3, 1902.

Preliminary Announcement.

The fourth annual Tri-State Epworth League Conference will begin its sessions Wednesday, July 23, 1902, at the Seashore Camp Grounds, Miss.

PURPOSE.

The purpose of this gathering of Leaguers and Christian workers is to promote systematic and devotional study of the Bible; awaken a more intelligent interest and active zeal in missions; train leaders for all departments of League work, and bind into closer union the Christian forces of the Gulf States.

PLAN.

To accomplish these results classes will be conducted in Bible Study, Church History, Personal Work, Missions, and General Reform Movements. These will be held during the first part of the day, and at night distinguished speakers will occupy the platform, discussing themes of vital interest to all concerned in the forward movements of the day.

PLACE.

This year promises the most successful of all the Conferences. The trustees of the Camp Ground have shown their appreciation of the work by supplying a place of meeting with all the advantages that the splendid plant affords, and in addition have this year contributed a generous amount for expenses. No more delightful spot can be imagined than the Seashore for a gathering of this nature. It affords abundant opportunity for all recreation and pleasure, and at the same time the associations of a quarter of a century constitute it a veritable holy of holies of spiritual influence. It only remains for the Leaguers of Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana to do their part and come in and possess the land, and make this place a still greater and more permanent centre of Christian activity and blessing to this whole section of our beloved Methodism.

PROGRAMME.

The Programme Committee has in view for the coming Conference such workers as: Mr. A. C. Harte, Prof. H. B. Carre, Miss Emma Tucker, Miss Jennie Armstrong, Dr. H. W. Featherstun, Joe Ramsey, Mrs. Mary L. Hargrove, Miss Marie Wheeler, and others. Among platform speakers they hope to secure Bishop Galloway, Miss Belle Kearney, Bishop Candler, Dr. H. M. DuBose, Dr. F. N. Parker, Rev. Dr. Wilkerson, and Dr. J. R. Moore. The subjects of Home, Foreign and City Missions, Temperance, Child Saving, and Social Betterment, will be studied under the guidance of thoroughly competent leaders.

The sessions of the Institute, or Conference, will extend from Wednesday night, July 23, through Sunday night, Aug. 3.

PREPARATIONS.

Those in charge are making all possible preparation to make attendance on the Conference both cheap and comfortable. Board can be secured for $5 per week, with special rates to parties. There will be no tuition or registration fee. The regular gate fee of $1 will be charged all who come. This is the price of the season ticket as established by the Board, and will be paid on first entering the grounds. Railroad rates will be secured and final announcement made later.

PLEA.

Let all Leagues determine to be represented at this great gathering. It will mean much for our leaders in League work to attend this Conference, and have their methods improved and their enthusiasm kindled anew by contact with experts in the service. A good plan would be to have a mass meeting of Methodists in your city or community, and put the claims of the Conference before them, and then raise sufficient money for defraying expenses of delegates. This is the method employed by the Y. M. C. A. Summer School managers, and it works admirably. Don't ask people to give money to, or to spend money for, Christian work, but invite them to invest money in it. Show them that it pays handsome dividends, and they will co-operate with you.

Pray, plan and persevere, and you'll surely meet us there.

Notice.

To the Louisiana Leaguers –

DEAR FELLOW WORKERS: At our last State Conference a resolution was adopted pledging $800 to Centenary and Mansfield Colleges, to be divided according to the Conference ratio.

No duty can be more imperative than the next duty. The scriptural injunction is, "Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it." And we have here a call which should at once arouse the sympathies and enlist the co-operation of all our young people. We are invited, not to give money to, nor to spend money for, but to invest money in educating the hands and heads and hearts of the next generation of leaders in the world of thought and action. No investment pays handsomer dividends. The most potential factor for the development of our Commonwealth lies not in mines, but in minds; not in banks, but in brains; not in the diversified character of her soils, but in the strength and sweetness of the souls of her stalwart men and consecrated womanhood. These are our jewels, which we may help to prepare for solid service and shining success in the years to come.

Centenary's part of this fund will be used in putting in a heating system, and as this work will have to be commenced as soon as the present session closes, it is desired that all pledges be in by May 15, and redeemed by July 15. A ready response is requested.

The following amounts have so far been pledged: A life-long debtor to college training, $100; Felicity League, $15; Carrollton League, $15; Dryades League, $15; Louisiana Avenue, $20; Rayne Memorial, $15; First German, $15; Parker Memorial, $15; Jackson, La., $50.

Let us hear from you at once. "He gives doubly who gives quickly," in that his gift inspires another.

Bicycle Offer.

We have recently contracted for a $50 "Armada" bicycle in exchange for advertising. This machine is strictly high-grade, and a good one. We know from experience, as we have used one during the past year. As we have no particular need for this wheel, we will sell it at a considerable discount for cash.

If you want a good bicycle at a reduced rate, here is a chance to get it. Remember, any size frame, style of hand-bars, or make of tires, can be furnished.

First come, first served.

Notices.

The new church at Lucedale, of the Amerions circuit, Mississippi Conference, will be dedicated by the Rev. J. M. Morse, our presiding elder, Sunday, May 18, 1902.

The public are cordially invited to attend. All former pastors especially requested to be present.

THOS. J. O'NEIL, P. C.

On account of the recent freshet and the washouts on the railroad lines, the annual meeting of the Woman's Home Mission Society of the Mississippi Conference was postponed. The meeting will be held at Port Gibson, May 15, beginning at 8 P. M. Let every auxiliary send a delegate. Let each delegate send her name and time of her expected arrival to Mrs. E. D. Drake, Port Gibson. Let us pray for a spiritual blessing.

Natchez District Conference Changed.

Having been notified that a citizen of Centreville has the small-pox, and that, as a result of exposures to this case, there is a possibility of other cases developing about the time set for our District Conference and Missionary Institute, I have decided to postpone it. The date is hereby changed to June 25–29.

For the Annual Reunion United Confederate Veterans, to be held at Dallas, Texas, April 22 to 25, inclusive, 1902, the Texas and Pacific Railway Company will sell round-trip tickets from stations on its line in Louisiana at exceedingly low rates—in fact, at lower rates than have been announced to Dallas for a long time.

Tickets will be on sale from points in Louisiana, April 19, 20, 21, 1902, limited for return to leave Dallas, April 30, 1902, with privilege of extension to May 15, provided tickets are deposited with Joint Agent at Dallas on or before April 30, and a fee of fifty cents is paid at time of deposit. Tickets are limited for continuous passage in each direction, but for the benefit of those desiring to visit other points in Texas at special rate of one and one-third fares for the round trip will be authorized from Dallas, tickets to be sold April 25 and 26, with final limit for return May 14. These side-trip tickets will permit stop-overs at any point both going from and returning to Dallas.

Any one of our agents will be glad to arrange for sleeping-car accommodations and explain to you any points connected with the trip, or we will be glad to have you write direct to us for further information.

DID NOT KNOW SHE HAD KIDNEY TROUBLE.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It.

Gertrude Warner Scott Cured by the Great Kidney Remedy, Swamp-Root.

Women suffer untold misery because the nature of their disease is not correctly understood; in many cases when doctoring, they are led to believe that womb trouble or female weakness of some sort is responsible for their ills, when in fact disordered kidneys are the chief cause of their distressing troubles.

The mild and extraordinary effect of the world-famous kidney and bladder remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, is soon realized. It stands the highest for wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. A trial will convince any one—and you may have a sample bottle sent free, by mail.

Among the many famous cures of Swamp-Root investigated by "CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE" the one we publish this week for the benefit of our readers speaks in the highest terms of the wonderful curative properties of this great kidney remedy.

Vinton Iowa, July 15th, 1901.

DR. KILMER & CO., Binghamton, N. Y.

GENTLEMEN:—In the Summer of 1893, I was taken violently ill. My trouble began with pain in my stomach and back, so severe that it seemed as if knives were cutting me. I was treated by two of the best physicians in the county, and consulted another. None of them suspected that the cause of my trouble was kidney disease. They all told me that I had cancer of the stomach, and would die. I grew so weak that I could not walk any more than a child a month old, and I only weighed sixty pounds. One day my brother saw in a paper your advertisement of Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy. He bought me a bottle at our drug store and I took it. My family could see a change in me for the better, so they obtained more and I continued the use of Swamp-Root regularly. I was so weak and run down that it took considerable to build me up again. I am now well, thanks to Swamp-Root, and weigh 148 pounds, and am keeping house for my husband and brother on a farm. Swamp-Root cured me after the doctors had failed to do me a particle of good.

Amy's Place.

Amy shut her book with a sigh. It was a splendid book, she thought—the story of a young girl who lived among the wicked and the poor and had helped so many of them to be better. How lovely it would be to be like that!

But she had not time to think of it long; there was a great deal for Amy to do on this warm, bright day. There were dishes to be washed and the children's hands and faces. There were tables to be set and porches to be swept and errands to be done. It was night before she had much time to think of the story again.

Then, while she sat on the porch and watched the stars come out one by one, she remembered the girl in the book and she longed so to do what she had done that it gave her a real heartache.

"Why, Amy, is this you all alone?" said a voice through the dusk.

It was Mr. Mackenzie, the minister, who boarded with Amy's aunt, and who, Amy thought, was the best and greatest and nicest man in the world.

He sat down beside her, and before she knew it she had told him all her trouble.

"Well, now, that's queer!" said the minister, laughing a little soft laugh to himself. "Do you know I was thinking of a certain young girl's life as I came along, and what a useful life it was. Shall I tell you about it?"

"Yes," said Amy. But she did not say it with much enthusiasm. It seemed to her that to know about one useful girl was as much as she could stand this evening.

"Well, then," said Mr. Mackenzie, "her name is Amy, and she lives with her uncle and aunt. Her uncle and aunt are as good as gold, kind to the poor and helpful to everybody. Whenever I want a bit of God's work done, I am very apt to turn to them, and they are pretty sure to do it. Amy's aunt said to me to-day: 'If it wasn't for Amy, we couldn't leave the children. She never teaches them anything but what is right; they are better off for every hour that they stay with her.'"

The minister stopped and looked down at Amy, but all he could see was the top of her brown head.

"This afternoon," he went on, "I caught sight of a crowd of small boys who had got hold of a frog. I was just about to hurry over and give them a lecture when the smallest boy of them all stood up and lectured them for me.

"'You'd better let that frog be,' he said. 'It's nothing but a poor, dumb animal. You ought not to bother it. Amy thinks it's mean. Let it go, I tell you.'

"He talked so loud and was so thoroughly in earnest that at last they did let go, and Mr. Frog made off as fast as he could hop. I was glad for him, but I was more glad for that ring of boys. When grown folks talk boys forget, but when another boy talks they remember.

"One day Maidie came home crying from school; the girls had got her a bad mark and she wasn't going to speak to them again. Amy petted her and comforted her and brought her a nice, fresh glass of water, and when she was cooled and rested she reminded her how, when Maidie was sick, the girls brought her flowers and came to see her, and how pleased they were when she was able to go out again. 'I wouldn't forget how kind they were to me then,' said Amy, 'just for one bad mark. I guess they are sorry for it now, anyway.'

"When Maidie started back to school, after dinner, she supposed she would have to speak to the girls after all. There was more nice about them than there was horrid. And maybe they did not mean anything; maybe it was only an accident.

"Amy helped me write my sermon that week; she often does. I wished to preach upon forgiveness, and I put down all the wise, kind ideas that she had given Maidie and me. After church two ladies thanked me for the sermon; it did them good, they said. They ought to have thanked Amy. Well, how do you like my story of a girl's life?" asked the minister, standing up to go into the house.

"I—I don't know," stammered Amy. "I mean, I like it a lot, of course. Only it does not seem as if I had done anything like all that."

Mr. Mackenzie stood silent a moment, looking up at the shining stars. Then he said, solemnly:

"Amy, my dear little friend, God knows for each one of us just the place that is ours. Be thankful to him that he has given you beautiful work to do, and that he is helping you to do it to his honor."—Sally Campbell, in Good Cheer.

The Vaccination Bee.

They were beginning to think they would decline mama's invitation to her Vacciuation Bee. Still it said, "Refreshments will be served." They were fond of refreshments.

They all appealed to Phillp because he was the boy of the family. He was always ready to be appealed to. It usually made him plant his feet wide apart, thrust his hands into his pockets and look wise. Anyway, that was what he did now.

"I guess—I'll—go," said Mabel, slowly.

"Me, too," said Merry.

"An' me," Elizabeth echoed.

"That's all right," the boy of the family remarked, patronizingly. "There'll be the refreshments anyhow. I meant to go all the time. I wouldn't mind any if it hurt; but, of course, with girls it's different."

"Oh, yes, of course!" sighed Mabel, sadly. She was Philip's twin, and it came hard to be a girl. She had never minded till Philip put on pants. After that her short little petticoats had been a continual humiliation to her.

"Girls usually cry," went on the family boy, loftily. "Ho, I mean they always do! They can't bear hurting the way men can, poor things!"

"Do you suppose it will hurt, Philip?" Elizabeth breathed in awe.

This was terrible. The three little girls hung their heads and crept closer together for each other's sympathy. Of course, it was even worse for Mabel. To be the girl end of twins!

There were four invitations. The children had found them under their plates at breakfast. Mama would be pleased to have Miss Mabel's, Miss Elizabeth's, Miss Merry's and Master Philip's company at her Vaccination Bee at half-past three o'clock P. M., and would they please all bring their pluck with them? Refreshments would be served.

Nobody knew just what pluck meant, but they all knew what refreshments did! At half-past three they went upstairs to mama's room.

"I didn't bring any of—that, you know; did you, Philip?" whispered Mabel, at the door. The family boy shrugged his shoulders.

"No-o," he admitted, "but I guess I can get some easy enough when I find out what 'tis."

There were other guests at the bee! Dear old Dr. Bly was sitting there in mama's rocking-chair. He was eating some of the refreshments.

Well, they found out what a Vaccination Bee was right away, of course. The girls were all vaccinated first because they were ladies, Philip said. Philip was a little white and breathless while it went on. Perhaps he was afraid some of them would cry out or make a fuss, being just girls; but they didn't, not even little Elizabeth. She screwed her eyes tight shut and said Mother Goose rhymes to herself as fast as possible.

Then it came Philip's turn. No, no, I can't tell you what happened, and I know the three little girls will not—because they are ladies. Besides, it wasn't such a very loud one!—Annie Hamilton Donnell, in Youth's Companion.

A HELPING FUND.

We have many calls to send the ADVOCATE to poor, aged persons at a reduced rate. This we always do. Are there not many persons, well-to-do in this world's goods, who will send us money—any sum they may see fit to give—to supply the ADVOCATE to persons who would like to have it, but are unable to pay anything? We will gladly send it to such for one dollar a year. We hope to get many responses to this appeal. Let those who respond designate the names of those to whom they desire the paper sent, or give the money to their pastors, and let them send the names. If names are not sent, the editor will do the best he can. Who will first respond?

JOHN L. DUNNICA, for many years a member of Centenary Church, St. Louis, end of Carondelet Street, New Orleans, was born near Jefferson City, Mo., and died in Colorado, Jan. 27, 1902. He served both of these churches long and faithfully, occupying all the positions to which laymen are eligible. In 1856 he was married to Sarah H. Cooper, of St. Louis, by the Rev. E. M. Marvin, D. D., their pastor. He was the most devoted husband I ever saw. The only pang he seemed to feel at leaving earth was the sorrow he knew it would cause the one he loved so well. While in New Orleans, Mr. Dunnica was known not only as a successful business man, but also as a devout Christian. He loved Methodism and her ways. The class and the prayer meeting were his delight, and he was seldom absent from either. He maintained family prayers till the end of life. He was one of the original tenters on the well-known Seashore Camp Ground, and was one of the committee that selected the place and organized the association. His Christian character was of the highest type, and his life was under the absolute sway of his Lord. During six years, as an inmate of his home, I do not remember one act, word or temper, on his part, that was in the least contrary to Christian profession. His was that noble type of manhood which scorned to do not only things mean and ignoble, but which ever chose the safe course in things merely questionable, even where large pecuniary loss would ensue. He was one of those heroes of God who ever put religion into business, and are willing, for "conscience sake, to endure grief, suffering wrongfully." It need scarcely be said that he died well. It could hardly have been otherwise. Simple child-like faith had characterized him for over fifty years—it was the habit of his life—and so, when his dear wife asked, 'John, are you ready to die, trusting in the Savior?" he was quiet for only a moment, and then, in a low voice, sang, "My hope is built on nothing else than Jesus' blood and righteousness." After a few necessary directions he went home to be with his Savior. His body rests in the Rose Hill Cemetery, and he sleeps well, for he sleeps in Jesus. Mr. Dunnica and his noble wife were a second father and mother to me, and no one knows, besides myself, how much I am indebted to them for all the blessings of a beautiful Christian home during the period of my orphanage. With a sad heart, unable to be with my aunt, to whom I owe so much, and who stands entirely alone in this time of her great sorrow—because of my life and work in Japan—I pen this tribute of love to the best man I ever knew.

W. E. TOWSON.

MRS. HESTER ANN JONES (nee Nesom) was born Oct. 5, 1845; was married to Mr. A. O. Jones, Nov. 8, 1866. To them were born six children. Five of them (three sons and two daughters) are still living. Her husband died shortly after the birth of their sixth child. Sister Jones began her Christian life one year after her marriage by uniting with the M. E. Church, South, and soon became a useful, consecrated Christian. It was my privilege to become intimately acquainted with Sister Jones, being her pastor four years while on the Pine Grove circuit. During these years she was occasionally confined to her bed for two and three months at the time. I visited her frequently. It was her delight to talk on the subject of religion. She loved her Lord, and notwithstanding her suffering, she was always cheerful and happy. When her health would permit, she was never absent from the house of God. She often visited the parsonage home, making enquiries as to the needs of her pastor and his family, and then would go out among the members gathering up such things as was needful to make us comfortable. Her kind letters to us since parting with her at Pine Grove were letters of inspiration. I could never read them without my eyes filling with tears of gratitude to God that it was my privilege to know this noble Christian woman. While on a visit to her daughter, Mrs. Jno. A. Nesom, of Greenaburg, La., at night, she seemed as well as usual, ate a hearty supper, and retired for the night. Just before day of Feb. 25, 1902, she called her children to her bedside (her two youngest sons being present) and told them she was very sick. She said, "It may be death, but if it is, it is all right." She turned herself and repeated a short prayer, and then said, "Nearer, my God, to thee; nearer to thee," and passed away. Thank God for such a testimony.

F. N. SWEENEY.

MRS. LUCILLE WHITMAN, wife of Samuel Whitman, Sr., was born Jan. 4, 1844, and died March 20, 1902. Sister Whitman embraced religion and joined the M. E. Church, South, at Enterprise, Miss., in 1863. She remained a consistent member of the same until death. She was married to Samuel Whitman, Oct. 15, 1866. Only one child came to bless her home (Sam, Jr.), to whom she was very much devoted. Her daily prayers were that her husband and son (the only child) might give their hearts and lives to God, and meet her in the sweet by-and-by. Sister Whitman was left an orphan child at the age of three years, and was reared in the town of Enterprise, Miss., by her grandmother and uncle, Col. R. A. Hundly, and mother. Hers was the home of the preacher; the doors were always open to receive them, of every name and order. She was a devoted wife and fond mother, and a true friend to those in trouble. She was able to rejoice with them that rejoice, and weep with them that weep. She leaves a large circle of friends to lament the bereavement. Mother is gone, but the world is made better by her having lived in it, and her influence will never die. J. H. FOREMAN, P. C.

MISS NETTIE JOYCE was born July 19, 1849; professed religion and joined the M. E. Church, South, in early life, and remained a consistent member of the same until her death. She had been an invalid almost for six years, suffering intensely at times, but bore her affliction with Christian fortitude and resignation. On account of ill health she was deprived of the privileges of attending the services of God's house for several years, but she never lost interest in the church, and read with pleasure her church papers and periodicals, and rejoiced in the prosperity of Zion. She was personally acquainted with many of the preachers of the North Mississippi Conference, her father's house having been the home of the weary itinerant from her childhood, and in the last conversation with the writer made anxious inquiry about them and their work. She was a cheerful and liberal supporter of the church, an humble and devout Christian. In the home of her sister, Mrs. Owen, in Durant, Miss., on Dec. 21, 1901, she departed this life. Her remains were carried to Vaiden, Miss., where the funeral services were conducted by her pastor, assisted by Rev. R. I. Alinn, and her body was laid to rest to await the resurrection morn.

B. B. SULLIVAN.

MR. EDWARD WINFIELD died at his home on Bayou Wexie, La., Feb. 22, 1902. Bro. Winfield was born in 1855, and was married to Miss Rebecca Smith in 1886. Soon after marriage he identified himself with the M. E. Church, South; served as steward most of the time; was serving in that capacity when the hand of affliction was laid upon him. Though great, his suffering was of short duration, and not once was his lever-perched lips opened in complaint against his Creator, but expressed a willingness to obey the divine summons to come up higher. Loved ones hardly excepted his going until his spirit was being wafted away by the snow-white angel band. To the bereaved widow and five fatherless children we extend our heartfelt sympathies. He will be sadly missed at home and at church, but our loss is his end heaven's gain, for he is not dead; he is only away. So weep not, dear mother and children, but strive to meet him on the other shore, where sickness never comes, and parting will be no more.

W. G. ROBERTS, P. C.

ERNEST JAMES WILBOURN died in the fiftieth year of his life at his home near Torrance, Talabusha county, Miss., on Saturday morning, the eighth of February, 1902. Thus a noble spirit has passed from earth to paradise. Ernest Wilbourn was my friend. In the halcyon spring days of childhood we played, in youth's roseate summer-time we held communion, and in the autumn of maturer years we counselled together. During all that time I never heard him express an ignoble thought, nor perform an act of questionable honesty. He was a man of high ideals, and he lived up to them. The past five years of his life he suffered great physical pain, which he bore with Christian patience and fortitude. As a friend, he was true and trusted; as a brother, fond and affectionate; as a son, loving and dutiful. I come not to sully my dead friend's memory with fulsome words of flattery, but from the roses of his life to weave a fragrant chaplet, and drape it over friendship's sacred cloister in memoriam. A. C. LEIGH.

Baby's Coming

McDonald, Ga., July 18, 1900.

I advise every suffering woman to take Wine of Cardui. While I was going with my other children I was compelled to stay in bed for days at a time, but this time I have taken Wine of Cardui and Thedford's Black-Draught and have been able to do all my housework without any trouble. I am expecting every day to be confined. My husband thinks Wine of Cardui is the best medicine in the world. He takes a dose of Thedford's Black-Draught every night and gives some to the children. He has not lost a day from work this year. He tells his friends about your wonderful medicines and I tell my lady friends to use your Wine of Cardui. Mrs. GEORGIA LEE.

WINE OF CARDUI

There are thousands of women who shrink in terror at the thought of the baby's coming. But childbirth is one of the workings of Nature and it was not intended to imply torture and agony to the heroic mothers of the race. The woman who suffers torture during pregnancy and at childbirth has usually, by some indiscretion, injured the organs which make her a woman. Neglect of menstrual irregularities leads to ovarian pains, falling of the womb and leucorrhœa, and the period of pregnancy is necessarily distressing under those conditions. Wine of Cardui will regulate the menstrual function perfectly and eventually make the generative organs strong and healthy. Pregnancy and childbirth have no terrors for the women who takes this pure Wine. A strong healthy womb will bring its precious burden to maturity with little or no pain. A healthy woman need not fear childbirth. Wine of Cardui completely cures all these troubles familiarly known as "female diseases" and equips the sensitive generative organs for pregnancy and childbirth. It will save any mother much pain and suffering. All druggists sell $1.00 bottles.

We Have It at Last

For many years we have been trying to get a Bible containing exactly the features which, to our mind, would constitute as nearly as possible

especially for the use of preachers and teachers. We have contracted for a large number of a Bible which we believe to be the nearest to a perfect book we have ever seen. It contains the AUTHORIZED VERSION, DICTIONARY OF PROPER NAMES, SUBJECT INDEX, CONCORDANCE, AND MAPS. The type is long primer, self-pronouncing. It is 6x8½ inches, and only 1 inch thick. Bound in the best levant morocco, divinity circuit (overlapping edges), calf lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges. By reason of the large number contracted for we are selling this splendid Bible at only a little more than half its regular price.

Our Price, Only $5.00

Postage 20 cents additional, if mailed.

Patent Thumb Index, 35 cents extra.

White Wyandottes.

BRED TO LAY.

I want you to know that BOSWELL'S White Wyandotte hens lay in the winter, when eggs are most in demand. Why go on raising common fowls when you may have these standard-bred birds and increase the egg-production so as to startle you? Mine are the world-famed Duston stock, vigorous and prolific, correct in every way. Enough said. Send me an order for eggs now, and hatch your fall-laying pullets.

THE ORIGINAL

25 Calibre Repeater

THE 25-20 MARLIN is one of the handiest arms made and accurate in 300 yards, with light report and little recoil. Its bullet is more reliable than a 22 calibre and the barrel does not foul as rapidly. It will kill cleanly and quickly without tearing. Smokeless powder can be used in a large variety of loads, and the ammunition is cheap.

FAMOUS DYSPEPSIA CURE.

Famous for Glorious Achievements.

The recognized unfailing scientific Cure for Dyspepsia, Nervous Indigestion Constipation, Acidity, and Bilious Colic. Relief in one minute, with first dose; quickly effects a permanent Cure. Never fails. Neutralizes and eradicates dyspeptic poison. An absolute specific. Very palatable, perfectly harmless, as gentle as nature in effect. Neglected Dyspepsia and Indigestion produce "Bright's Disease," undermines the vital organs, overthrows the mental faculties, producing insanity and death

Mr. J. G. Thompson Anclote, Fla., voluntarily writes: "I suffered agonies from Dyspepsia. Walker's Famous Dyspepsia Cure quickly cured me. I gained 14 pounds in one month. My friends are astonished at my quick recovery. A wonderful medicine."

A Chance to Make Money.

I have berries, grapes and peaches a year old, fresh as when picked. I used the California Cold Process. Do not heat or seal the fruit, just put it up cold, keeps perfectly fresh, and costs almost nothing; can put up a bushel in ten minutes. Last year I sold directions to over 120 families in one week; anyone will pay a dollar for directions when they see the beautiful samples of fruit. As there are many people poor like myself, I consider it my duty to give my experience to such, and feel confident anyone can make one or two hundred dollars round home in a few days. I will mail sample of fruit and full directions to any of your readers for nineteen (19) two-cent stamps, which is only the actual cost of the samples, postage, etc. FRANCIS CASEY, St. Louis, Mo.

If the label on your paper is wrong, let us know, and we will correct. If it is right, and shows that you owe us, please send the amount due. We need the money.

ADVOCATE OFFER.

Magic White Soap, advertised in our columns, is manufactured in New Orleans by a responsible company, who can be relied on to do what is promised. The soap is what is claimed for it. There is none better on the market. A fair trial has been given it at the home of the editor, and the good wife, who knows what soap is, says "it is about the best she ever used." Our lady readers would do well to give this soap a trial. Send for a box of twenty bars—one dollar; charges paid by the manufacturer.

We make the following offer: We will furnish one box of this soap, and the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for one year, for $2.50, to new subscribers. We make the same offer to all who will pay up back dues, and send $2.50 additional. Cash must accompany the order. Address

Married Life

"The true pathos and sublime Of human life."

"The only bliss Of Paradise that has survived the fall."

This worthy goal of right-minded people often brings disappointment and misery to the bride whose womanly organs and functions are weak, defective or diseased. At this important time the judicious use of G. F. P.—Gerstle's Female Panacea, will do much to render her in all ways equal to the new functions and duties she has assumed.

"For ten years I was irregular and found no relief in the various remedies I used. Two bottles of G. F. P. cured me entirely."—Mrs. G. A. McCloud, Miccosukie, Fla.

"I was sick for a year with female complaint. The doctors did me no good. I looked so bad that all thought I could not recover. Eight bottles of G. F. P. have entirely cured me. I am doing all my housework and have'nt a pain or ache. I wish every suffering woman could have G. F. P. for it is an ideal remedy for female ailments."—Mrs. Daisy Shaw, Lula, Miss.

G. F. P.—Gerstle's Female Panacea, cures irregular, scanty, too profuse and painful monthly periods; uterine and ovarian irritations; ulcers, displacements and fullness of the womb; whites and all unnatural discharges; frigidity, barrenness and all impediments to maternity; also all associate ailments of the private organs of women. At all stages of menstrual life, from budding womanhood until after the changes that end special womanly functions, it is the best friend of and remedy for womankind. Its use strengthens all womanly organs, regulates and renders natural all sexual functions. It is sold at drug stores for $1.00 a bottle. Buy it, try it, and you will find these statements are true, for it is reliable and will not disappoint.

All ladies who are not perfectly right and well in a womanly way should write to the Ladies Health Club, care of L. Gerstle & Co., Chattanooga, Tenn., for free medical advice and instruction.

To the Bureau of Materia Medica: T. J. Hunt, Merom, Indiana, manufactures a Digestive Tablet which bears his name, and which deserves of this notice. I have taken clinical pains to become thoroughly acquainted with it, and as a result of my acquaintance, am able to say that it is not only all that he claims for it, but as well, it is quite unlike the ordinary digestive tablets. The tablet is the initial incident to health in all of its most coveted phases, and covers a wide range of usefulness.

An Appeal to Our Friends.

We make a special appeal to our friends who owe us on subscription to send us the amount due. We need the money. The amount each one owes is small, but the aggregate amounts to hundreds of dollars. Our friends must see that it is embarrassing to us to withhold the money. Please look at the label on your paper, and if you are behind, send us the amount due. We will greatly appreciate it.

The Commoner

(Mr. Bryan's Paper)

The Commoner has attained within six months from date of the first issue a circulation of 100,000 copies, a record probably never equaled in the history of American periodical literature. The unparalleled growth of this paper demonstrates that there is room in the newspaper field for a national paper devoted to the discussion of political, economic, and social problems. To the columns of The Commoner Mr. Bryan contributes his best efforts, and his review of political events as they arise from time to time can not fail to interest those who study public questions.

The Commoner's regular subscription price is $1 per year. We have arranged with Mr. Bryan whereby we can furnish his paper and NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE together for one year for $2.25. The regular subscription price of the two papers when subscribed for separately is $3 net. When remittance is made by personal check ten cents extra will be charged.

The sensation, not to say consternation, in domestic and commercial circles during the past ten days is the doings of the "Beef Trust" in raising prices on all fresh meats beyond the reach of the masses. Of course, the trust pleads that the increased price of feedstuff, which has raised the price of the live-stock, has had all to do in raising the price of the dressed article. Such an explanation would be satisfactory if the raise in the dressed article was only in proportion to the raise in the price of the live-stock. But such is not the case. The price the trust has had to pay for beef steers has increased from $1.40 to $1.60 per 100 pounds, but it has raised the price of the dressed article $4 per 100 pounds. And when it is understood that every part of a beef steer is utilized, and represents a money value—hide, bones, hoofs and horns—and that on these from 50 cents to $1 per 100 pounds is made clear, it will be seen that the trust realizes from $2.90 to $3.40 on every one hundred pounds of beef. This means a clear profit of from 33⅓ to 40 per cent. on all the money they invest in the purchase and preparation of beef. But this is not all. At the time the raise in price was made the packers had in their refrigerators millions of pounds of dressed beef purchased before the rise in the price of the live-stock. This dressed article they are selling at the high prices, which adds another large per cent. to their gains. What are the people going to do about it? Nothing, except grumble and eat beef.

According to press dispatches, Gov. Taft, on his return to the Philippines, will go by way of Rome for the purpose of consulting the Pope in regard to the friars, who, it is said, cause most of the trouble with the natives. If this is true, it puts to rest the rumor of the permanent establishment of diplomatic relations with the Vatican. This is, perhaps, a happy solution of the matter. No doubt Rome would rejoice to be recognized as a temporal power by the appointment of a government representative—a thing that the majority of the people of our country would not hear to for a moment. But when it is understood that the removal of the objectionable Catholic friars is solely with the Pope, it will not be counted as anything amiss for Gen. Taft, who has to deal with the matter as representative of our government, to consult the Pope on the subject. These friars, it is said, do not dare to return to their parishes, and the question is what to do with them. Gov. Taft will represent to the Pope that it will be in the interest of humanity and of the Catholic Church to authorize the deportation of these friars.

The dispatches printed a few days since indicate that an outrage on justice is about to be perpetrated in Cuba. Three men were recently convicted of postal frauds, and sentenced to heavy fine and imprisonment. One has already been pardoned and released by Governor-General Wood on the ground that he testified for the State. Now it is said that an agreement has been reached between President-elect Palma and friends of the convicted men whereby the other two will be pardoned as soon as Mr. Palma takes his seat. Senator Hanna, it is affirmed, really believes that one of the men is innocent, and is working for his release. That is all right. But under all the circumstances it does not seem to be in accordance with the interests of the public to arrange in advance of taking the reins of government to pardon men who are under sentence. We hope the rumor is not correct.

The Confederate Veterans' annual reunion was held this year in Dallas, Texas. As usual, the attendance was large, and the welcome accorded them was all that could be asked. Very low rates were granted by the railway authorities, and many thousand persons, besides the veterans, availed themselves of the opportunity to attend the gathering. Of course, the veterans are growing old, and their number grows less and less, and this annual reunion is to many of them the happiest occasion of the year; perhaps to some of them the only real bright thing in their lives. It is right and proper that they should meet, and receive a greeting at the hands of the people. After a few years none will be left. Gen. John B. Gordon was re-elected commander-in-chief. The next reunion will be in New Orleans.

AN INSIDIOUS PERIL.

BY DR. F. N. PARKER.

The main current in our civilization is commerce. All other activities are tributary to this. Agriculture, manufacture, education and statecraft unite to increase its volume and its power. The spirit of it is what we call commercialism. Not an evil thing in itself, but infinitely capable of evil. The heart and soul of it is the power of money—the most insidious and irresistible temptation to our inborn selfishness. It feeds the evil spirit of covetousness. The gospel is full of warning concerning this peril. To-day its warnings need to be preached with greater emphasis than ever, and its precepts exemplified by people and preachers.

A time like our own, so full of materialistic tendencies and abounding resources of wealth, needs to be taught the truth which Jesus so frequently enforced, that "a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesses." This most central of the practical truths of the spiritual kingdom is eternally antagonistic to the maxims and principles of the commercial and social life of the day. There is no surer evidence of man's alienation from God than the confidence he places in the mightiness of material resources, rather than in the grace and providential goodness of God.

There is evidence that the church of God has been affected by the spirit of commercialism so significantly present in all the walks of life. Like the church at Laodicea, the love of many has grown lukewarm, because of their trust in deceitful riches. But worse than this is the insidious and gradual diffusion of maxims and principles utterly at variance with the principles of the kingdom of God. The result is a false and ruinous view of man's eternal interests.

One of the evils it produces is to attach a commercial value to man himself. A man is often estimated by his bank account and his money-producing power rather than by the character he has or the spiritual force he exerts upon the world. One of the greatest dangers to a church is the presence in its membership of a rich man of large influence, who leads in its counsels and sets the pace of its social life, but is himself an unsaved sinner. Woe to the preacher who borrows money of him or rests under the shadow of his power.

This tendency to value members according to their financial rating has already wrought much mischief in the church. It is not surprising that this should have appeared, when you consider that the commercial spirit has infected social life with its alluring power. But the serious aspect of this fact is found in its manifestation of the diminished estimate of the worth and importance of spiritual character, which is the supreme thing for which we stand and labor. A man of extremely limited piety, but who is liberally disposed, is pretty sure of an optimistic obituary. How he stands in the sight of God, and what remains after eternal judgment has finished with him, is a matter he will have to reckon with elsewhere. There is sometimes more joy over one half-converted rich sinner than in a score of poorer men who have had the backbone of sin broken, and got themselves born again by the power of God.

This thing works both ways. There is a commercial value on the laymen; some men make a similar appraisement on the preacher. Not long ago I heard a steward speaking of "a $2,000 man." Where on earth did he get this classification? Never in heaven, surely. I suppose it will always be the case that certain men will, by their abilities, be placed in charges commanding large salaries. This is simply inevitable, but may the day never come when they shall be estimated by the pay they get. There are scores of men who are the spiritual peers of any on earth, who have toiled in obscurity and on a limited stipend. I heard of some men who wanted to get a new preacher who could draw the crowd, catch the members, and increase the revenue. Such fellow-laborers in the vineyard would do well to betake themselves to fasting and prayer, and get a yearning for souls and the filling of the Holy Ghost. It might be that then men would actually turn from darkness to light, and from the power of Satan unto God.

Raising the finances will cover a multitude of delinquencies. It sometimes makes us forget the multitude of sinners who have not been converted. O men of God, "collections in full" can not relieve that uneasy feeling which comes from estimating the spiritual results of our ministry. The growth of our work has already thrown upon the ministry work of a social and philanthropic character which demands so much time and attention, especially in the cities, that makes it difficult to give full attention to prayer and the ministry of the Word. The great spiritual and prophetic function of the preacher has been nearly snowed under by mere humanitarianism. This tendency must be resisted.

But the preachers have their own temptations growing out of the commercial spirit which presses for recognition and influence. It need not be surprising if they sometimes become commercialized themselves. They have been classified by the lay brethren as "$2,000 men," and so on, up or down, as the case may be. Can one wonder that some of them actually get to believe that this is so. When they do it is the devil's day. The moment an ambassador of Christ accepts a financial appraisement of his character and talents, he loses the value that Almighty God has placed upon him. And from this he easily passes to a fondness for the musical ring of the shekels themselves.

It is difficult at times to tell just where the legitimate frugality and business forethought of a man passes into the love of money for its own sake. But the line is passed more often by Christians than we think, and sometimes by men of limited means. It is a fearful step for a minister of Christ to take. Its effects upon his spiritual character are soon apparent. His hands, which should be lifted in mighty prayer, are holden as surely as though bound by terrible vice. The spiritual liberty of the prophet is no longer his, and the holy unction has died away amid the braying of dismal platitudes and soulless admonitions.

Nothing on earth is so incompatible with the spiritual ministry of the gospel as a commercialized life. The ends of business and the accumulation of wealth, however legitimate in themselves, divert the mind and heart from the supreme inspiration which should direct the energies of those who have the cure of souls. There may be some men who have maintained their spiritual integrity unimpaired in spite of large wealth, but it is certain that no man can fully discharge the functions of his holy office when encumbered by manifold business cares.

Woe to the man who is zealous for the dollar. It will ruin him. There has been more than one man whose spiritual influence and acceptability to his people have been ruined by his ill-concealed solicitude for compensation. His fame goes before and follows after him with a malignant clink. He works havoc in Zion.

It sometimes calls for great fortitude to resist the temptation of gold. The test is severe. But let us never forget that the kingdoms of the world, with all their glory, were offered to Christ in his lonely vigil on the mount. His resistance means fortitude of heavenly temper; character purer than gold, stronger than death, and more invincible than all the powers of darkness. His answer is the eternal challenge of faith and immortality to the temporal and material, "Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God."

MILLSAPS COLLEGE NEWS.

BY B. M. YOUNG.

Invitations have been issued by the Galloway Literary Society for their ninth anniversary celebration on April 25. Judge F. A. Critz, of West Point, Miss., will deliver the principal address. Mr. F. E. Gunter, of the Junior class, will deliver an oration upon "The American Commercial Invasion of Europe"—certainly a most timely subject. The anniversary address, upon "The Citizen and the Republic," will be presented by Rev. John R. Countiss. This is a strong programme.

The Alumni Association has elected as its orator for commencement Rev. H. B. Watkins, of Yazoo City, vice Rev. J. B. Mitchell, of Guthrie, Okla., who will not be able to attend.

Drs. T. B. Holloman and T. L. Mellen have visited us recently, and addressed the students.

Dr. A. M. Muckenfuss, professor of science, has recently contributed $250 for the purchase of apparatus for the new courses in analytical chemistry which he has instituted. With this apparatus the department will be able to conduct analyses of drinking water and food supplies. During his stay here Doctor Muckenfuss has donated hundreds of dollars to build up his department, with the result that it compares favorably with others of its kind.

On last Wednesday morning Mr. H. H. Ahrens, of the New Orleans Picayune, delivered a very delightful talk to the students in the chapel. Anticipating something good, the student body turned out in large numbers, and were liberal in their appreciation and applause.

President W. B. Murrah will leave for Nashville on April 29, attending there the meeting of the Board of Education. Returning to this city, he will go to Dallas, Texas, about May 5, to attend the General Conference.

A considerable number of the delegates to the General Conference will pass through Jackson from Virginia, the Carolinas, Georgia and Alabama, and it is possible that the college will have the benefit of the presence of some of them.

The anniversary exercises of the Lamar Literary Society took place in the college chapel on April 11. The principal speaker was the Hon. Henry L. Whitfield, State Superintendent of Education, who took for his theme the opportunities of the college man of to-day. O. W. Bradley, of the Sophomore class, was the orator of the occasion, speaking upon "The Depraved Condition of American Politics," while Allen Thompson, anniversarian, spoke upon "The Demand for College-Bred Men in the Commercial and Industrial World."

Friday night, the eighteenth, Hon. H. L. Whitfield will entertain the Kappa Alpha fraternity at his home, opposite the Blind Institute, while the annual reception of the Kappa Sigma fraternity will be given on the following Friday night at the main building of the college. The administration of the fraternities at Millsaps has never been attended with the demoralization noticed at some other institutions, and these annual receptions are among the most pleasant and wholesome events of the year.

The funeral services of Chas. B. Galloway, Jr., which took place last Monday at 11 A. M., at the First Church, were conducted by Drs. W. C. Black, T. B. Holloman, W. B. Murrah, and J. A. B. Jones, of Hazlehurst.

To the Leaguers of Louisiana.

DEAR FELLOW-LEAGUERS: At the last meeting of the Tri-State Epworth League Conference a memorial was adopted petitioning the several State Conferences of Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana to consider the advisability of holding their annual sessions in connection with the Tri-State Conference at the Seashore Camp Grounds, near Biloxi, Miss.

This memorial was duly presented at our last State Conference, and received most favorably. It was unanimously decided to submit the question to the individual Leagues for decision, and the final limit set for polling the vote was July 15. The understanding is that each League is to vote in business session, and a majority of votes cast is to decide for or against the memorial.

The president was instructed to prepare a paper setting forth the action of the Conference, and also an explanatory statement with regard to the memorial. I, therefore, take pleasure in stating, first, that the memorial in no wise contemplates the destruction of the State Conference, but rather seeks to strengthen it and guarantee its greater efficiency. The idea is, that the State Conferences shall have time allotted them for the transaction of their business, and thus preserve inviolably their integrity as organizations, and at the same time enjoy the advantages afforded by the Institute work and Platform Programme offered by the Tri-State. That many advantages will accrue from this conjunction of the Conferences is readily seen.

In the first place, the presence of so many Leaguers will in itself be an inspiration by all means to be coveted. Again, the State Conference, as now conducted, does not seem to be meeting the requirements of the situation. The paramount necessity for success in League work is well-equipped leadership. Leaders can be secured only by careful and constant training. The time of the State Conference is far too limited for anything like Institute work; hence the programme on such occasions inevitably takes an extensive rather than intensive form—that is, it is calculated to interest and entertain a general audience rather than to instruct and train our young people to become leaders and organizers. But this is exactly what must be done if the League is to justify its existence and fulfill its mission. The burden of this movement must be taken off the pastors and put where it rightly belongs—upon our young men and women. But, for the most part, they are ill-prepared to bear it; hence the necessity for some such movement as the Tri-State. A training-school is the imperative need of the hour. A reference to the preliminary announcement will show what the Tri-State can offer on this line. Please vote in the light of all the knowledge available. When the vote is taken, let the secretary forward the result at once to

NOTICE.

During this week I shall send out to all Leagues reported in our last Conference Minutes a copy of the address I was instructed to prepare by the State League. I shall enclose also copies of the preliminary announcement of the coming Tri-State Conference.

It is hoped that all Leaguers will have an opportunity to vote intelligently on the question raised by the memorial. If any League is in doubt, or wishes further light, it is suggested that action be postponed till such doubts may be resolved, or light come.

There will also be enclosed a reply postal card, on which blank will be found for pledges to the Centenary-Mansfield Fund. This has now reached the sum of $260, and is growing all the while. Let the individual Leagues attend at once to these important matters.

A reference to these columns will show the itinerary for Mississippi of the traveling secretary of the Tri-State Conference.

On May 18 Bro. Ramsey will begin his Louisiana tour, beginning at New Orleans, and touching as many points throughout the State as his time will allow. His trip is now being made out, and the hearty co-operation of all pastors and people is desired. Let all loyal Leaguers begin to plan and pray that his visit may be greatly beneficial to the cause we love so well.

Yours in the work,

THOS. CARTER,
Pres. La. State Epworth League.

OUR MISSIONARY LITERATURE: ITS VALUE. HOW CAN WE INCREASE ITS CIRCULATION?

BY REV. J. W. CHAMBERS.

Every great work gathers its own literature. In the beginning are books which explain, exhort, and enthuse, giving "line upon line and precept upon precept." Then come books detailing the experiences of those who have undertaken the work. After the work itself has been established, and the world has recognized it, comes the historical period of the work's literature. In our mission work we have gone on until we are making history faster than it can be printed. Each department of this literature must continue until the evangelization of the world is accomplished, but the larger inspiration will always be derived from narratives and histories.

Our own church has provided an abundant supply of periodical literature in the Review of Missions, Go Forward, Woman's Missionary Advocate, and Our Homes, while it has contributed no small part in the making of books of history. For even a wider instruction than is possible with such literature as we have mentioned, our Board of Missions has printed, for free distribution, a large number of folders and pamphlets, covering every phase of the mission question.

Should I attempt to measure the value of this literature, I would be compelled to attempt to measure the value of a redeemed world. Its whole object is to fire the souls of men to do their duty to God and to one another. If I narrow the view, and ask, What is the value of missionary literature to the members of the M. E. Church, South? I answer, briefly: It places facts before the people, augments their knowledge, and brings them in touch with God's plan for the redemption of the world. The world's conception of religion may justify a worldling in divorcing religion and business, but no true Christian can succeed, unless he makes a business of religion. The church must know the field, and the demands of the field, before it can supply its needs.

This literature brings the Macedonian cry. Ignorance, vice, social degradation; men, women and little children groping in the dark; blind eyes looking for light, helpless hands outstretched for aid, the weakness of childhood pleading for mother love—all these cry, and keep on crying, "Come over; come over and help us."

This literature is not the impassioned appeal of a Kelly, a Lambuth, a Park, or a Reid, which sounds the alarm, quickens intellect, and creates conscience; then passes away as a Summer dream. It is an abiding influence. The pamphlet, once read, pleads again and again by the silent witness of its own form lying upon the table. The book carries to the heart afresh its thrilling message whenever the eye rests upon it. In its productive power the difference between an address and a pamphlet is the difference between the April shower and the Spring rains. The difference between an address and a book is the difference between the overflow of the Nile and a Summer shower.

This literature gives an enlarged view, both of the goodness and mercy of God, leads men to a better understanding of God's plans, and encourages them to put forth the necessary effort to hasten forward that great day of Christly triumph, when all the kingdoms of this earth shall have become the kingdoms of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. Its value to our people will be measured by the deepening of their personal consecration, by the increase of the family of Dorcas, by the enlargement of the household of Barnabas, by the multiplication of the Philips, with their godly families, whose sons and daughters shall be the prophets of God and the ministers of light to those who sit in darkness.

What an uplift to any Christian to read Daybreak in Livingstonia, Life of Wm. Carey, Life of Irene Petrie, The Siege of Pekin, Forty-two Years among the Indians and Eskimos, China's Only Hope, Latin America, Christian Missions and Social Progress, Life of John G. Paton, Our Sisters in India, Medical Missions, and such like books!

How can we increase the circulation of periodical literature, and of such books as those just mentioned? How shall we get them read after they are circulated? Suffer me to emphasize the how.

Let the preacher digest one book of such a list as this. Let him speak of the book from the pulpit and around the fireside, calling attention to it by apt illustrations taken from it. Let the Sunday-school library become possessed of such books, and let the superintendent and teachers read, digest, recommend.

By such a course as this, in a year's time, at least, three books on missions might be well read throughout an entire community. Let Reading Circles be formed in the different Missionary Societies and in the Epworth Leagues. Full directions for this will be found in a pamphlet issued by our Board of Missions, entitled, "How to get Missionary Literature Read." Get this pamphlet, read it, circulate it, put in practice its teachings.

How can we increase its circulation? By the pastors circulating it. Why should a preacher scatter literature on missions? Literature is the fuel which, breathed upon by the Holy Spirit, bursts into such a flame that the receptive mind blazes with the truth and trembles to be employed in the destruction of the works of Satan. Why scatter literature? Because it holds the truth in steady form, and keeps it so clearly before the mind that if there be a real spirit of devotion present, it causes the reader to become anxious to know more. If it be a callous soul who attempts to read, it may be that the Christ-spirit, pleading in every line of this literature for the liberation of captive souls, may kindle afresh the sacred fires on the altar of that soul. Because you love God. You would see his "kingdom come." You desire the salvation of every soul. Because you, as a watchman upon the walls of Zion, know your people and know their needs.

A glance at the leaflets, subject to the call of any pastor, may prove helpful. The president of your League may not see the place for missions in the League. Give him The Epworth League and Missions, by Bishop Galloway. Bro. Jones loves the cause of missions, but he knows that it costs $2 to send $1. Give him Two Dollars to Send One, by Lambuth. Some of your people are not increasing in liberality as they should. Give them The Perils of Increasing Wealth, by Geo. Smith. If your older members criticise the younger, give them Methodist Young People's Societies, by W. J. I. Haven. Are some of your people holding back more than is meet? Hand them Give an Account of Thy Stewardship, by Pritchett. Has the spirit of fear crept into any heart on account of real or supposed missionary reverses? Give them Shall We Go Foward? by Reid. Are there some who neither see the wisdom or utility of missions? Hand them What Intelligent Men of the World Say of Missions, collated by Martin. Have you a young member capable of taking wider views of missions? Give him A Layman's Missionary Experience, by Prof. Lynch. Do you desire to scatter information as to the present outlook of missions? Scatter Mexico, by Winton: Opening of Corea, by Reid: Brazil, by Tarboux: Cuba, by Carter: The Forward Movement in China, by Reid. Should any complain that missions cost too much, use freely Money and Missions, by Pritchett, and The Cost of Converting the Heathen, by Brown. For firing your own zeal and keeping everybody who wills to do the will of God actively urgent in the cause, get for yourself, and circulate as far as possible among your people, Go Forward, Review of Missions, and Missionary Issues of the Twentieth Century.

May God grant to us the wisdom so to use the means of grace that our people may begin to feel that glorious throb of consecration which means the speeding on "the evangelization of the world in our generation!"

*A letter addressed to Rev. H. W. Van Hook, Biloxi, Miss., will bring to those who live in the bounds of the Mississippi Conference, in such quantities as they need, any of the above pamphlets, without any cost except the cost of writing to Bro. Van Hook.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE ENDOWMENT FUND COLLECTORS.

To the Preachers in Charge, Mississippi Conference, M. E. Church, South—

DEAR BRETHREN: Since my last communication the following appointments have been reported to me: P. D. Hardin, Vossburg and Heidelberg, H. C. Carter; B. S. Rayner, Mt. Olive, Major E. G. Mohler; Jno. W. Crisler, Newton and Hickory, W. A. Logan; E. H. Mounger, Bolton, J. M. Black; Geo. A. Guice, Shubuta, S. H. Floyd; J. W. Sandell, Bogue Chitto, R. A. Wooten—making fifteen in all. Other brethren are still "considering," and others are thinking "the plan a wrong one," though they did not say so at Conference, when the plan we are "only playing at" was adopted without a dissenting vote.

And, my beloved brethren, I am afraid there are not a few like the preacher-in-charge who wrote me a few days ago, as follows:

"DEAR BRO. MELLEN: I wish you would explain to me exactly what is meant by the Conference Endowment Fund."

For his sake, and for the sake of others like minded, permit me to say:

1. The Conference Endowment Fund plan originated in the heart and mind of the late Rev. Dr. F. M. Featherstun, through whose efforts a charter incorporating trustees to hold the fund was drafted by the late Col. W. L. Nugent (the eminent lawyer whose time, talents and labors were always subject to the demands of the church) and enacted by the Legislature of Mississippi.

2. The moving cause of the incorporating was to have somebody authorized to hold and control invested funds, the interest on which should go to help support the superannuate preachers and the widows and children of preachers who had died in the itinerant ranks.

3. The intention of the incorporators was, and still is, to secure an invested fund so large that the interest thereon would furnish a comfortable support to the beneficiaries, and not leave them dependent on the uncertain pittances distributed yearly as the Conference Claimants' Fund, and which some preachers in the Mississippi Conference never did collect in full, and some others, while collecting in full, or in part, early in the year, never turn over to Bro. Thornton, treasurer of the Joint Board of Finance, till the session of the Annual Conference. And yet Bro. Thornton is required to pay the claimants quarterly!

4. The object is to remove the reproach from us as church members, that, after paying beggarly salaries or allowances to preachers for thirty, forty, or fifty years, we superannuate them, and then, in their feebleness or ill-health or age extreme, allow them only $50, or $100, or $175, or $200, to support the man, or the man and his wife and family. And we want to make their old age comfortable, and show substantially a proper appreciation of their labors. And we want a guaranteed support for the widows and orphans of the men who "count not even life itself dear," but spend themselves in their faithful efforts to seek and to save those who are lost. To do this, it is necessary to secure a fund whose interest is not dependent on the indifference or half-hearted efforts of the ill-informed or careless.

5. Years ago what was known as the Van Houten Trust Fund came into the hands of the Mississippi Conference. A large part was lost through unfortunate investments, and for a few years no mention was made of it in our Conference Minutes. That fund has been revived through the fidelity of the heirs of the late Rev. W. P. Barton. Mrs. Sarah Lucinda Henderson, of Woodville, through Gov. J. H. Jones, gave us $500; and recently the widow and children of the late Rev. P. A. Johnston, in compliance with the request of their dying father, and as a memorial to him, gave us $500. Some years ago the Rev. W. W. Hopper, while evangelizing, collected some cash and many notes. The money he turned over to us. The notes our treasurer, the late Rev. R. J. Jones, tried in vain to collect. By direction of the trustees of the Conference Endowment Fund, he sent these notes out to divers and sundry preachers-in-charge to collect. Some answered his letters, but not a note was ever reported collected, so far as this writer has ever been informed. (This statement of facts is not intended to be "a reflection on the preachers.")

6. Anybody contributing so much as $500, or more, will have that contribution called by his name, or the name of anyone else, as the donor may direct. (We have now the Van Houten, Mrs. S. L. Henderson, and the P. A. Johnston Funds.) Smaller contributions will go to the General Endowment Fund.

The delay of the brethren in reporting names of collectors to me may utterly defeat the purpose of the resolution adopted without a dissenting vote by the Annual Conference last December, except where brethren like Governor Jones, of Woodville; Enochs, of Natchez, and T. A. Holloman, of Phœnix, Yazoo county, will make their own plans or act on their own authority. And this I urgently and respectfully beg them to do, as other matters demand my attention.

Pres. Trus. Conf. End. Fund.

FOREST DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Forest District Conference convened at Heidelberg, Miss., at 8:30 A. M., Friday, March 28, 1902, and adjourned on the evening of the twenty-ninth. Rev. T. L. Mellen, P. E., occupied the chair at each session.

The opening devotional service, led by Bro. Mellen and participated in by several of the brethren, was a season of delightful spiritual refreshing. The unction of the Holy Spirit rested upon the entire body, and

"Heaven came down our souls to meet,
While glory crowned the mercy-seat."

It was good to be there. The Preachers' Institute, instructive, spiritual, profitable, which was held during the two days preceding the Conference, may have somewhat prepared the brethren for the gracious outpouring of the Spirit, and, doubtless, did, but the history of this District Conference for several years is that the Lord has honored it with his presence and power. This year was no exception. Prayer was made in advance; the Lord was expected; he was there at every service. Blessings were received, souls were strengthened, and five or six professed salvation. The Lord's Spirit was given the right of way, and the promise is, "Them that honor me, I will honor."

The sessions were held in the Baptist Church, which was kindly tendered for the occasion, as our church was in course of demolition preparatory to re-erection on the west side of town. Bro. Hardin and his flock will soon be worshiping in practically a new house.

The unanimous suffrage of the brethren called this scribe to the secretary's table. The attendance of preachers was unusually good. With two exceptions, all the preachers in the district were there. Rev. R. D. Norsworthy was detained by sickness in the home, and Rev. John W. Crisler was caught "beyond the swelling flood," en route from the Sunday-school Convention. Beside those supplying works, only three local preachers were there. Six laymen attended. More would have been there, but they were prevented by the freshet and washouts on the railroads. The business of the Conference was expeditiously, but carefully transacted. None of the interests of the church were neglected. Sunday-schools, Epworth Leagues, missionary work, financial interests and church discipline were thoughtfully and profitably discussed. Anent the question of discipline, some one stated that the preacher needed the support of the authorities. A brother said, "Well, if we are right, our presiding elder is behind us; if we are wrong, he is still behind us." The brother was eminently correct.

Though early in the year, the reports of the preachers were encouraging, and indicative of victory. The Conference assessments in some charges are practically provided for. A few reported some claims already paid, several new churches are enterprised, and a number are undergoing repairs. Some of the parsonages are being repaired. A number of accessions were reported. There is a spirit of determination on the part of the brethren to place the district in Class A in everything. We believe it will be done.

License to preach was granted J. A. Myers, of Morton.

J. W. Thompson, supply on Scott circuit, and J. A. Myers were recommended to the Annual Conference for admission on trial.

W. H. Lane, supply on Edinburgh circuit, was recommended for deacon's orders, and T. H. Harrod, of Hickory, for elder's orders.

The following local preachers had their license renewed: W. H. Lane, J. W. Thompson, G. W. Shearer, E. B. Partin, M. D.; F. A. Lane, R. P. Fikes, S. J. Tubby, D. E. Vickers, W. D. Wallace, and Amos Kendall.

A memorial to the Board of Missions was adopted, asking for an appropriation to publish a revised edition of Byington's Choctaw Grammar, and of Dr. Allen Wright's Chahta Leksikon, for use among the Choctaws in Mississippi and the Indian Territory. In response to a similar memorial from our Annual Conference last year, the Committee on Translations recommended the publication of these revisions, but the Committee on Estimates refused to recommend the needed appropriation; hence this renewed effort.

A resolution was passed requesting "Circuit Rider" to publish in pamphlet form his articles on baptism which have appeared in the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE, and pledging to place a thousand copies in the district.

A memorial to the General Conference was adopted, urging that body to prohibit the sale by our Publishing House of cheap, light literature, and pernicious novels, and the advertising of the same in the Nashville Christian Advocate.

The following were elected delegates to the Annual Conference: W. M. Thornton, Dr. Irvin Miller, P. L. Blackwell, and O. M. Abney; alternates: George B. Harper and J. A. Lindsey.

Revs. R. A. Breland, of the Brookhaven district, and C. C. Griffin, of the Seashore, were welcome visitors to the Conference.

Raleigh was selected as the place for holding the next Conference.

Strong resolutions of thanks were, by a rising, unanimous vote, given the Baptist and Presbyterian brethren for the use of their churches; the people of Heidelberg for their cordial hospitality, and the wide-awake, consecrated pastor, Rev. Paul D. Hardin, who, as host, was tireless in his efforts to contribute to the welfare and comfort of the brethren.

Spiritual things were given precedence and prominence. The Word was dispensed three times each day, including Sunday, nearly all the brethren remaining over. The preaching was done by Revs. J. N. Ware, E. J. Taylor, R. A. Breland, Jno. D. Ellis, C. M. Crossley, R. L. Phillips, T. L. Mellen, Irvin Miller, and G. S. Harmon, in the order named.

Love-feast was conducted Sabbath morning by Rev. M. L. White; preaching in the M. E. Church, Sabbath afternoon and night, by Revs. W. W. Morse and W. P. Donnell.

Rev. T. L. Mellen is closing out his term on the district, and deserves much credit for what has been accomplished during his administration. Himself a prodigious and tireless worker, he urges his preachers to work, and the district has advanced from the rear to second place in the Conference, with every indication that it will take first place this year. The preachers are praying and working for that end. They are a consecrated set of men, many of them professing the experience and preaching the doctrine of perfect love. They are trying to outlove each other. Harmony, loyalty and unity prevail over the district. The Lord grant that the district motto may be accomplished: "A revival in each charge, not less than a thousand souls for Christ, and all collections in full."

G. S. HARMON, Sec.

MILLSAPS COLLEGE.

This institution justly holds a choice place in the heart of Mississippi Methodism. The work it is doing is phenomenal when its limited income is considered. With an income less than one-fourth of that of either of the State institutions, I believe it is making a larger contribution to our Commonwealth in citizenship and manhood than any of these favored fostered schools fed from the public treasury. It is young. Its oldest building is still new: its first graduates are yet youths; its first president is just in the prime of life; yet the young men going out from its halls are already taking high places in the professional world, and it is now evident that it is to become one of the greatest forces of the State in molding its manhood and deciding its destiny.

The reasons for its eminent success are apparent to me after ten days spent upon the campus in the homes of president, faculty, and student body, and in association with the college life.

1. The president is fitted for his work. Dr. Murrah is the right man for his position. Conservative, cultured, and consecrated to his work, he commands the respect of the faculty and the admiration of the student body. His discipline is firm, but manly. He holds a steady hand upon every department of the institution; he knows the life of the boys; he is careful of the spiritual life of those committed to his care. His interest in the revival services just closed was splendid.

2. The faculty is strong. A body of Christian gentlemen, broad in culture, reproachless in life, of recognized piety, of genuine interest in the institution, form the college of instructors. During the meeting the fervent prayers, the heartening talks of these gentlemen helped the work more than we can tell.

3. The student body is, perhaps, the best brought together in Mississippi. Twenty-eight young preachers, called to the highest service ever committed to men, are there. Two hundred and twenty-five other young men from the sturdiest, strongest homes in the State form the student life. They are young men who feel the responsibilities of life, and are preparing to meet them. The body is dominated by a strong religious influence, which centers in the Y. M. C. A. The college association has a splendid hall, 100 members, two strong Bible classes taking the regular Y. M. C. A. Bible Course, and regular devotional meetings. The association is enjoying the best year of its history, and promises still more for the future. The religious interest reached the climax in the recent revival, when this writer, assisted by the Y. M. C. A. workers, devoted ten days to evangelical services, the object of which were to lead young men to decision for life. A number were converted, a larger number settled themselves in the cement of a living faith for a fruitful life, and only eternity can reveal the effects of the meeting.

I would not hesitate a moment between Millsaps College and any institution of learning in our great State.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL DEPARTMENT.

Conducted by N. A. MOTT, Yazoo City, Miss.

To Whom All Communications for This Department Must Be Sent.

Children's Day.

Only a short time now remains before Children's Day; and we trust all our superintendents are well up in their preparations for that event. An excellent programme has been prepared by Dr. Atkins, and has been sent to every pastor. Some schools do not observe the day because of the trouble involved in preparation, and yet there is no labor connected with Sunday-school management that will yield larger results, and be more far-reaching in its influence, than the preparation and observance of Children's Day. It may not always be wise to fully carry out an elaborate programme, but have a programme of some kind, however simple, and let the day be observed.

Children's Day observance impresses the community with the value and importance of Sunday-school work; it increases the interest, stimulates zeal, and arouses enthusiasm in the school; it teaches the children the fact that the church cares for them and honors the Sunday-school; it teaches them, through song and story, that they are part of a great movement for the salvation of the world, and that their offerings will be used for the advancement of Christ's kingdom.

We would especially appeal for a larger Children's Day collection this year from every school. Let this be a banner year in this respect. The money is badly needed by our Sunday-school Boards, and they will use it wisely in advancing Sunday-school work. Our three Conferences are waking up to the importance of training their teachers, and besides assisting needy schools, if there are any such, twice the amount usually raised on Children's Day could profitably be used in Institute work.

We recently heard a superintendent say that he never appreciated the value of Children's Day collection until he attended the Utica Convention. That part of the collection used for Institute work will return to the schools increased an hundredfold.

We take the following from the Children's Visitor: "Bro. W. E. Sewell writes: 'A great spirit of conviction came upon the people (of Santa Clara, Cuba), and we received 185 candidates for membership. One hundred and one of these are under eighteen years of age.' What a rich field is this! Bro. Sewell wanted literature for a big Sunday-school of 150 members. This literature is furnished by our children and young people through the collection taken on Children's Day."

On the programme for Children's Day is a set of questions and answers on "Growth in the Service of God," which is a masterly setting of great truths in plain and simple language.

Bro. J. C. Cavett, superintendent of First Church Sunday-school, Jackson, Miss., gave his school a surprise on last temperance lesson day. He prepared a pledge during the preceding week, and had several copies made. During the closing exercises he invited the members of the school to come forward and sign the pledge, and more than one hundred did so. This was a practical way in which to enforce the truths of the lesson.

There can be no better way, says an exchange, for a teacher to command the respect and affection of the members of his or her class, than by a personal knowledge of their home relations and their peculiarities of character, and, as opportunity offers, find occasion to speak to each scholar upon the matter of their relations to Jesus Christ, and urge upon them the necessity of conversion.

Remember that the supreme object of all our teaching should be to lead the children and young people to Jesus Christ. According to our faithfulness in that will we be rewarded or condemned.

Mississippi Conference.

PORT GIBSON.

We have just closed a fine meeting at Port Gibson. We spent about two weeks with Brother Jones and his good people, assisting in a meeting, and the Lord was with us in saving power. The denominational lines in that place are very closely drawn, and, therefore, our meeting was largely confined to the college and Brother Jones' own congregation. Not only was the college greatly blessed (every young lady having made a profession of religion, with, perhaps, one or two exceptions), but the church received a great blessing, and quite a number of strong men were converted and added to the church. The penitents came to the altar, which is the old-time Methodist way. While there seems to be a great deal of prejudice in this place, as in many others, against the altar service, still, when great conviction fastened itself upon the people, there was very little trouble in persuading even strong men to seek the Lord in this old-time way. I think a man may be converted without going to the altar; nevertheless, I have never found any better way. Little as one may think of it, there is something in a place, and when one is sufficiently in earnest to come to the altar and humble himself before God and the world, he places himself where it seems easier to lead him into the kingdom of God.

Dr. Jones is not only doing a great work in the town for Methodism and for the kingdom of our Lord, but he is doing a grand work for the cause of Christian education. I was agreeably surprised to find that in so short a time he had gotten together such a fine corps of teachers and a magnificent student body. The great work he is doing for the church in the way of female education is bound to accomplish untold good in the years to come. He has improved the property very much, and is now enlarging his boarding capacity for another year. He seems to have great faith in the future of that school.

Dr. Jones is a great preacher and a man of much force, and his influence will tell upon a community anywhere the church may place him. Let the Mississippi Conference, in providing for her other institutions of learning, not forget the Port Gibson Female College.

Fraternally,

W. M. McIntosh.

ROXIE CIRCUIT.

I am glad to report that Roxie circuit is still moving upward. Our financial standing to date is far in advance of last year. Our people are hopeful of full payments on all claims. The spiritual condition of the charge is very much improved. Our Sunday-schools are in good working order. The women of the several churches are arranging to organize a Home Mission Society. We will begin work very soon on our new parsonage, located in Hamburg, Miss. This enterprise is one of great worth to the circuit, and will fill a long-felt need.

Your brother, C. C. Evans.

GULFPORT, MISS.

Dear Dr. Boswell: We closed a splendid two weeks' revival with Bro. W. D. Dominick and his flock in Gulfport last night. The Lord was with us in power and demonstration of the Spirit. Do not know the number of conversions; forty-one joined the Methodist Church on profession, and ten by certificate. Bro. Dominick's people love him. He has received in all since Conference 150 members.

Yours, W. D. Bass.

MARY WERLEIN MISSION.

Dear Bro. Boswell: A few words from this field of labor will not, I trust, be out of place. The work is composed of Mary Werlein Mission, Gretna, and Gouldsboro—two men's work. It is real hard, after doing the best I can, to see the work suffering. I trust that the next Conference will divide it, and put another man on the field. We have had several accessions during the year; have held a revival at Gretna, which, we feel, did much good. We have but few members there—in fact, there are very few Protestants of any kind in Gretna. We are raising the money to seat the church at Gouldsboro, where we expect to hold a revival in May.

Our second Quarterly Conference was held on April 11. The reports were gratifying; the finances were in excess of the assessment, so the stewards increased it some.

I have fully recovered my health, and am enjoying the blessings that the Lord is bestowing upon me. I am encouraged, and feel that the Lord is going to give us a gracious year.

Just a word or two anent my former charge, or rather the report as given in the Minutes (South Side and Poplar Springs, Mississippi Conference). The Conference collections were all paid in full, and I left there with all knowing this (a very gratifying fact to pastor and people). I see the collection for education lacks one dollar of being paid in full. The money was sent in, and reports also. This is a small matter, but I do this in justice to myself and to the good people who worked so hard for "collections in full." God abundantly bless the work.

VERNON, LA.

Dear Dr. Boswell: As this is my first year in the field of labor for the Master, I feel my responsibility, and in reaching my charge, I found that there was much to be done to get in shape for a prosperous year. I went to work with all my heart, mind, and strength, with steadfast faith in Christ. I am visiting and praying with our people in their homes, and up to date am getting along fairly well; congregations increasing, and everything is getting in a prosperous condition. We are praying for and expecting a wave of pure and undefiled religion to roll triumphantly over our work this year, and that sinners may be converted to God, and Christians brought up to a higher and a better life. I ask an interest in the prayers of the brethren. Fraternally,

Your brother in Christ,

J. C. Methvien, P. C.

The Best Medicine for Mothers

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

"Words cannot express how grateful I am for your kind advice and your 'Favorite Prescription,'" writes Mrs. D. B. Barricks, of Perrows, Campbell Co., Va. "I feel that it has cured me. I had been in poor health for four years. Suffered greatly with my right side, also with bearing down pains, and my nerves were in a dreadful state. After using four bottles of your 'Favorite Prescription' I am now well. I am the mother of two children. With the first child I suffered twenty-eight hours, and with the second I used your medicine and was sick only three hours. I believe Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription to be the best medicine in the world for suffering females. I wish you great success, and hope that God will bless you in your noble work."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser in paper covers is sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

The Commoner

(Mr. Bryan's Paper)

The Commoner has attained within six months from date of the first issue a circulation of 100,000 copies, a record probably never equaled in the history of American periodical literature. The unparalleled growth of this paper demonstrates that there is room in the newspaper field for a national paper devoted to the discussion of political, economic, and social problems. To the columns of The Commoner Mr. Bryan contributes his best efforts, and his review of political events as they arise from time to time can not fail to interest those who study public questions.

The Commoner's regular subscription price is $1 per year. We have arranged with Mr. Bryan whereby we can furnish his paper and NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE together for one year for $2.25. The regular subscription price of the two papers when subscribed for separately is $3 net. When remittance is made by personal check ten cents extra will be charged.

All Preachers of the M. E. Church, South, are authorized Agents, to whom payments may be made.

THURSDAY, MAY 1, 1902.

TAKE NOTICE.

"A Preacher's Boy," who gave his views on cheap education, has brought to this office much more matter on the subject than we can print, including a rejoinder by the "Boy." Further agitation at this time would be unprofitable.

The Christian who entertains the idea that he is to use his "light" as one would use a dark lantern, instead of using it as a candle on a candlestick, has misread his New Testament. The candle shines all around, and gives light to all that are in the house. The dark lantern shines only on a single spot and in one direction. Jesus never said let your light shine upon men, but before men. The difference is essential.

Is it not more than a little significant that in the Young Men's Christian Association of New York there are one hundred and thirty-six Hebrews, and nearly one thousand Roman Catholics? The significant thing is, not that the association receives such persons, but that men reared in anti-Christian homes, and in the atmosphere of Rome, should seek such fellowship. It indicates the constantly widening influence of the Christian religion. The kingdoms of this world are bound to become the kingdoms of our God and his Christ.

A correspondent of the New York Evangelist, writing of the churches in Texas, puts the Baptists first in point of numbers, having a membership of 190,849, and gives them credit for the payment of $60,362 to missions. These figures show the Baptists and Southern Methodists of Texas close together, the latter numbering, according to last year's statistics, 199,123 members, who paid for missions $61,297.34. The Baptists have 984 Sunday-schools, with an attendance of 57,353. The Methodists have 1,561 schools, with an attendance of 103,766.

The Central Christian Advocate, one of the bright papers of our sister Methodism, says: "One of the effects of the removal of the time-limit was not foreseen. It removes men who ought not to leave to make room for some men who must leave. In other words, we are still under the itinerancy." Brother Spencer might also have said the men who must leave are not always the men who have served five, or four, or even three years in a place. Some men must leave at the close of one year. If, as Southern Methodists, we are to keep our eyes on the Methodist Episcopal Church, we should profit as much by her mistakes as by her strokes of fortune. The effects of tampering with the itinerancy up there should warn us down here to let the time-limit alone.

THE MISSION OF THE PREACHER.

The mission of the preacher is to lost men. The commission, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature," was understood by the apostles as a command to continue the great work which our Lord had inaugurated—the work of saving the lost.

The idea of salvation was not new to the Jews. Nor was the idea that "salvation is of the Jews" new. That which was new to them was the purpose of God through the gospel to extend the offer of salvation to the whole world. That was a revelation hard to understand. Even Peter, after the resurrection and ascension of his Lord, and after receiving the commission from his mouth, had to be convinced by a vision, and the conversion of a Gentile. Long ages of separation from other nations, and the knowledge of being the recipients of special favors at the hands of God, had begotten in them a sense of self-righteousness, and the idea that no other people on earth were deserving of consideration. But the time came for them to take a larger view of the divine purpose and plans. That larger view was incorporated in the great commission to which our Lord afterwards added these words, "Ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem, and in all Judea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth." These were the very last words of Jesus.

With a revelation of the divine purpose came a reformation in the divine plan. Worship was no longer to be confined to Jerusalem. Sacrifices of blood were to cease forever. God is a Spirit. And "once in the end of the world Christ had appeared to put away sin by the sacrifice of himself." Men must repent and believe the gospel. This they could do anywhere, and at any time, and God would hear, and accept and save. The method of making known these great truths, and spreading them throughout the world, is by preaching.

Preaching is the natural and, at the same time, the most efficient method of reaching men. By preaching we mean standing face to face with men and declaring the gospel. Our Lord adopted this method, he enjoined it, and his disciples implicitly obeyed him. It will continue in the world as long as the preacher has a message for men. Nothing can take its place. Now and then some one rises up and tells us that the preacher of the future is to be a teaching preacher. This carries with it the idea that gospel preaching is to partake of the nature of school-room teaching—something on the order of the primary class-room where children are to be taught, and of the lecture-room where older people are to be instructed. The gospel contemplates nothing of the kind. If by the teaching preacher nothing more is meant than that the preacher's discourses are to be more on the instructive than on the hortatory style, or on the purely logical, it may be true, for the people seem to care less and less for the profound and the emotional, and more and more for that which explains and enforces the truth. Should such prove to be the case, we would not look upon it as a disregard of the divine order, but a change of method to meet changed conditions.

But whatever the method of preaching, the preacher can not turn aside from his mission to sinners. Whenever he does that, he becomes useless as a moral force, and unfaithful to his trust. Preachers sometimes so far depart from the letter and spirit of their calling as to treat their congregations with matter that has in it neither Christ nor gospel. This must be because they think their people have outgrown the gospel, or that they themselves are absolved from their obligations to the lost. Neither is true. Human nature and human needs are the same to-day they have ever been, and if ever a man receives a call to the work of soul-saving, he can neither flee nor resign without sin.

How a preacher who has been called of God to the ministry, and is conscious of having saved a soul from death, can so far forget his mission and its possibilities as to turn aside and waste his energies and his opportunities on side issues, or on questions that do not profit, we can not understand. It would seem that the experience of men who have thus turned aside and lost their influence as soul-savers, if not their love for souls, would be sufficient to deter all true preachers who follow after. But it is not so. In spite of the warning a few are taken in the same snare.

The only safe way is to determine as St. Paul did when he went to the Corinthians, "Not to know anything among the people save Christ and him crucified," and keep that determination in mind; adhere to it, no matter what may be the temptation. Christ sends out men, "not to baptize, but to preach the gospel;" not to follow after philosophy and the wisdom of this world, but to proclaim the truth and bring men to salvation. The gospel will never grow stale nor powerless. In the hands and at the mouth of men who know God, and whose hearts are aflame, it is still the wonderful and soul-inspiring message. The men of to-day who cling closest to the cross, and whose hearts are warmest, are the most popular and the most efficient preachers. None of us can be a Paul, or a Luther, or a Wesley; but few can be a Spurgeon, or a Hall, or a Moody; but all of us can be faithful preachers of the Word, and do our part in saving the world. And what we do will not be overlooked or forgotten in the great day. May the Lord help us to keep in mind our mission!

THE EPWORTH LEAGUE.

The General Conference is approaching, and suggestions are being made for the betterment of the League work. Among other things, it is suggested that the League be consolidated with the Sunday-school Department — at least, so far as the work of the Secretary and the Epworth Era are concerned. But we do not see how that would help the League. It would be like cutting off a dog's tail at the back of his neck to cure him of a bad habit. It would cure the bad habit, but it would kill the dog. The suggestion as to the League would save some expense, but it would kill the League. We are not ready for that. The League is doing too much good.

We do not think it would be a bad idea to consider the propriety of merging the Epworth Era and the Children's Visitor under a new name, if necessary. Epworth Visitor would sound well. The work of the League, now kept before thousands of readers, would then be brought to the attention of tens of thousands, and we would hear no more of "loss on the Epworth Era." The editorial work, slightly increased, could be done by the Sunday-school Department, and the Secretary of the League could devote the whole of his time to the work of his office.

We throw the above out merely as a hint. Dr. DuBose has given it out that the League Board has its plans matured, and will present something that will put the League on an acceptable and self-sustaining basis. He knows more about the matter than anyone else, and what he recommends will go far towards settling our views. Until we know the League's plans, we will say no more, save we regard the League as one of the most important departments of our work. It must be encouraged and strengthened.

A CAMPAIGN DOCUMENT.

In the Daily Picayune, of New Orleans, Sunday, April 27, appears a lengthy article from the pen of Mr. George Settle, of Louisville, Ky. (if we have been correctly informed), in which is set forth the possible and probable, if not the certain, doings of the coming General Conference. The prophecies are liberal, so liberal in the use of names of men spoken of as prominent, that it will not be a wonder if the lightning strikes one or two of them. Of the men for Bishop, the prophet takes thirteen chances. The document indicates that Louisville is the main source of supply. For Bishop, two belong to the Louisville Conference, and one temporarily lives in Louisville. Of nineteen named, five are now identified with Louisville, or have been but recently. One Louisville man is booked for one of four positions. Brother Settle appears to be campaigning in the interest of Louisville. Past experience ought to teach our Methodist brethren that such campaigning does no good.

FROM REV. N. G. AUGUSTUS.

EDITOR OF NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE: Inasmuch as you have made reference in your paper to the circulation of a certain document relating to the Publishing House matter, I beg leave to make a statement on the subject:

1. For its circulation in the bounds of the North Mississippi Conference, I am exclusively responsible.

2. During last Summer the following gentlemen joined me in requesting the preparation of such a statement, viz.: [The full list was not furnished. Those furnished we deem it unnecessary to publish. —ED.] These gentlemen had no further connection with the paper than to request its preparation.

3. For some cause not understood by me its preparation was delayed until just before the meeting of our Annual Conference.

4. It was circulated by me at the earliest possible moment.

5. This paper is not calculated to deceive any intelligent man. Anyone mistaking it for a Government document is not sufficiently intelligent to preach or to practice law.

6. Any assertion or intimation of a purpose to deceive on the part of anyone connected with its circulation is absolutely untrue.

7. An additional reason for its circulation through the mails is the strange reluctance of the editor of the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE to allow the use of his paper to those who wish to defend the good name of our church from the disgrace now threatened it by the misrepresentations of its Agents to the United State Senate.

A friend of mine asked the publication in your columns of an article written by myself. Upon your refusal, my friend found a place for this article in the two great secular papers of your city.

Very respectfully,

N. G. AUGUSTUS.

Holly Springs, Miss., April 14, 1902.

1. The article referred to, and which Brother Augustus' friend asked to be admitted into these columns, had appeared in three other papers before it was offered here. It was about two months after its first appearance before it came to us; then it came in the form of a clipping, accompanied by private letters from two editors indicating to Brother Augustus what direction the article ought to take. It was offered too late for these columns.

2. This ADVOCATE is the organ of the North Mississippi Conference, and Brother Augustus being a member of that Conference, we naturally thought his communication ought to have been sent here first, if he desired us to print it. Had he sent it here first, we should have printed it. This we told him in a private letter.

3. Notwithstanding the above, we told Brother Augustus (and his friend also) that if he would write an article on the same subject and in the same spirit, quoting as largely as he pleased from his St. Louis article, we would print it. We thought that a good offer, and sufficient.

BOOK NOTICES.

THE WAY OF THE PREACHER. By Rev. John A. Kern, D. D., Professor of Practical Theology in Vanderbilt University. Nashville, Tenn.: Barbee & Smith, Agents. Pages 378. Price, $1.25.

This book is a fine specimen of the printer's art. The mechanical make-up and execution is only surpassed by the contents. It is in Dr. Kern's best vein. Those preachers who have read his former work, "The Ministry to the Congregation," know what we mean, and will wish to read the volume. Being a busy editor, we have not had time to give the book a thorough reading; have only dipped into it enough to learn and appreciate its great value. The "Way of the Preacher" is thoroughly treated in a plain, common-sense way, with apt and striking illustrations. Every aspiring young preacher should at once procure and read this book. It is destined to do good.

THE CHURCH OF THE FATHERS. By Prof. Robert T. Kerlin. Nashville, Tenn.: Barbee & Smith, Agents. Pages, 348. Price, $1.25.

The book is a history of the early church from A. D. 100 to 600. It is divided into fifteen chapters. Prof. Kerlin has put into print the results of much thought and work, and has done it in excellent style. Those who desire to acquaint themselves with the history of the first centuries of Christianity would do well to read this book. It will interest and profit those who have no time to read, or means to purchase more elaborate histories.

THE SUNDAY-SCHOOL TEACHER. By Prof. H. M. Hamill, D. D., Superintendent of Training Work, M. E. Church, South. Barbee & Smith, Agents, Nashville, Tenn. Price, 50 cts.

The purpose of this book is to set forth the practical work of a Sunday-school teacher rather than to instruct teachers how to teach. The title of the work, and the name of the author, are sufficient to commend the book to our people. Just now, when so much is being done to increase interest in Sunday-school teaching, this book ought to have a wide sale.

We have received an advance copy of the Century Magazine for May. As usual, it is full of good reading. Three articles are of special interest and value: "The Great Southwest," "The Capital of Our Democracy," and "For Civic Improvement." The illustrations are superb. Two of them in colors are as artistic as anything we have recently seen. The Century is worthy of a place in any home.

PERSONAL.

Rev. H. C. Morehead, of Indianola, is holding a meeting in his charge, and is assisted by Rev. J. C. Park, of Winona.

Dr. W. H. LaPrade left last Monday for Nashville to attend the annual meeting of the Board of Education, of which he is a member.

Dr. I. W. Cooper, of Centenary College, will preach the commencement sermon for Edward McGehee College, Woodville, Miss., June 15.

We are glad to say that Rev. W. D. Burroughs, who has been sick so long, is slowly improving. May the good Lord restore him to perfect health!

We had the pleasure, on Monday last, of meeting Prof. J. M. Sullivan, of Centenary College. He visited the city on business, but took time to call on the ADVOCATE and attend the Preachers' Meeting.

Rev. W. W. Drake has been assisting Brother Dodson in a meeting at Algiers during the past week. Congregations on Sunday were large and much interested.

Dr. S. A. Steel has been spending some time at Hattiesburg, Miss., assisting Rev. W. H. Huntley, of Main Street, in a meeting. We have not been advised as to the results.

Dr. W. F. Tillett, of Vanderbilt University, will spend the coming Sabbath in this city, and has been invited to preach at Carondelet Street Church, which he is expected to do, at the morning hour of service.

Dr. Julien C. Brown, of Hot Springs, Ark., will preach the commencement sermon for the State University at Baton Rouge. Dr. Brown is one of our best and most popular preachers, and he will greatly delight his hearers.

Mrs. J. W. Raper, wife of our preacher at Charleston, Miss., has been seriously ill for some time, and was compelled to go to Memphis for treatment. We are glad to know that she has greatly improved, and hopes soon to be entirely restored.

We learn through a letter from Rev. G. W. Bachman that Rev. J. B. Stone, one of our best and most faithful preachers, is quite feeble, and confined to his room much of the time. We hope with the coming of pleasant weather that he will improve.

Rev. W. T. Woodward, of Pineville, La., writes that the foundation of a new church was laid at Tioga on April 10, and the work is progressing nicely. A new bell will be put in when the house is completed. We are glad to hear of such improvements.

Rev. C. F. Emery informs us of the death of Mrs. Martha A. Case, widow of the late Dr. D. C. Case, of New Orleans. She died at the residence of Brother Emery, Waynesboro, Miss., April 22, in the eightieth year of her age. She was buried at Ocean Springs, Miss.

Rev. W. W. Drake, of Felicity Street Church, New Orleans, will deliver the alumni address at the approaching commencement of Centenary College. Dr. J. C. Morris, of Memphis, will preach the sermon, and Hon. H. H. White, of Alexandria, will deliver the literary address, June 3, 8 p. m.

Rev. M. Dickie, who has spent several months in this city, was tendered a reception on Monday evening, April 28, at the residence of Mr. E. O. Chalmers, on Hilary street. Brother Dickie has endeared himself to the Methodists of New Orleans during his stay. He has manifested much interest in the work of missions, and has greatly aided the cause.

We received notice last week of the death of Rev. J. F. Scurlock, at Covington, La., after the paper had gone to press. Consequently, many of our Mississippi readers failed to learn the sad news. The intelligence was wholly a surprise, though we knew he had been in bad health for some time. We have as yet heard none of the particulars. Some one, of course, will give us a memoir at an early date.

Rev. W. M. Young, in a note informing us of the change of place of holding Corinth District Conference from Dumas to Corinth, July 11, adds these cheering words: "We are moving on all right; the preachers are doing well. Brother K. A. Jones is in great favor with his people (Ripley and New Albany); has two inspiring Sunday-schools, and one of the best Young Woman's Missionary Societies I have ever seen. Every interest of his church is well looked after."

Rev. C. P. Smith, writing from Fort Smith, Ark., informs us that he has lately closed a meeting, in which he was assisted by Rev. H. R. Singleton, Jr., of Ruston, La. Brother Singleton's preaching was of a high order, embracing "the very essence of the gospel, and delivered in the tender, winsome style for which Brother Singleton is noted." The result of the meeting was thirty conversions, and an accession of eighteen to the church. Brother Smith says the preacher "can come this way again at his own instance, and Central will open wide her homes and her hearts to him." Thirty-three have been added to the church since Brother Smith took charge in January.

Vanderbilt University Bulletin.

BY DR. W. F. TILLETT.

The Vanderbilt University Bulletin, for March, sets forth many facts of interest concerning the University, and especially concerning the Biblical Department. A fitting tribute is paid to Bishop McTyeire, as the originator and joint founder with Commodore Vanderbilt of this important educational plant of Southern Methodism.

The Vanderbilt family have contributed, first and last, over a million and a half dollars to the University. About one hundred and seventy-five thousand dollars covers the entire amount that the South and Southern Methodism have contributed to the University, from its origin, twenty-seven years ago—exclusive of the Furman estate, which is now in litigation in the courts. Of this amount about one hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars was given directly to the Biblical Department.

The Bulletin contains, among other things, a complete list of the names and appointments of all former Vanderbilt students who are now in the various Annual Conferences or foreign mission fields of the church. It will be, perhaps, a revelation and a surprise to many people in the church to learn that no less than 458 former Vanderbilt students are now enrolled in the itinerant ministry of the M. E. Church, South, and 32 Vanderbilt students are now in the foreign field. All classes of appointments within the itinerancy are being filled by these boys. About thirty are presiding elders; many of the most important city stations in the church are being filled by them; a large number of them, however, are serving laborious circuits, and not a few of them are on poor, hard, country missions.

Six of the editors of the official church organs are former Vanderbilt students. Twenty-four Vanderbilt men are members-elect of the approaching General Conference. Forty-five Vanderbilt graduates are now connected with the colleges and schools owned by the church, either as presidents or professors.

The sixty-six students in the Biblical Department for the current year come from twenty-four different Annual Conferences, and from twenty-three different colleges and universities. Twenty-five free scholarships, covering the cost of board in Wesley Hall, are awarded annually to college graduates pursuing the theological course of study. A loan fund is available for worthy and needy students who are not eligible to free scholarships.

Vanderbilt University is now the property of the entire church, having been accepted by the last General Conference as such. The members of the Board of Trust are taken from the church at large. All the Bishops of the church are ex-officio members of the Board.

A movement is now on foot to establish a correspondence school, which shall be open to all young ministers of Southern Methodism at small cost. The purpose of the correspondence school will be, if founded, to give direction and guidance to the young ministers of the church in pursuing their Conference course of study, and also in pursuing the theological course of study as represented in the Biblical Department of Vanderbilt.

A Correction.

In the folder, "Foreign Missions, Mississippi Conference, Statistics, 1900-01," the North Georgia is sixteenth in Class B, and is credited with $16,860, or 70 per cent. on an assessment of $24,000, when it should have been credited with $19 923.63, or 83 per cent., and placed eighth in the class. The mistake was not mine, but was that of a very careful, painstaking friend, who would not do anyone an intentional injustice or unfairness. It was purely an inadvertence—a slip of the pen while the penman nodded. Next year it is hoped that both the North Georgia and the Mississippi Conferences will be in Class A, and not a single Conference, not a single district, be in Class B. Yours faithfully,

T. L. MELLEN,
Miss. Conf. Miss'y Sec'y.

Doctors Endorse Swamp-Root.

To Prove what Swamp-Root, the Great Kidney, Liver and Bladder Remedy, will do for YOU, Every Reader of "CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE" May Have a Sample Bottle Sent Free by Mail.

A. J. HAILE, M D
East Atlanta Ga., March 1st, 1901.

GENTLEMEN:—While it has never been my habit or inclination to recommend remedies the ingredients of which are not all known to me it seems as if I should make an exception in the case of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. My experience so far as I have tested it in my practice, forces me to the conclusion that it is a remedy of the greatest value in all kidney liver bladder and other inflammatory conditions of the genito-urinary tract. I now take pleasure in prescribing Swamp-Root in all such cases with a feeling of assurance that my patients will derive great benefit from its use. I shall continue to prescribe it in other cases in my practice with the expectation of good results

Very truly yours,

A. J. Haile M.D.

GENTLEMEN: I have prescribed that wonderful remedy for kidney complaint, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, with most beneficial effect and know of many cures by its use. These patients had kidney trouble, as diagnosed by other physicians, and treated without benefit. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root effected a cure. I am a liberal man and accept a specific wherever I find it, in an accepted school or out of it. For desperate cases of kidney complaint under treatment with unsatisfactory results I turn to Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root with most flattering results. I shall continue to prescribe it and from personal observation state that Swamp-Root has great curative properties.

Truly yours,

276 9th St., Borough of Brooklyn, N. Y

The mild and extraordinary effect of the world-famous kidney, liver and bladder remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases.

Weak and unhealthy kidneys are responsible for more sickness and suffering than any other disease, therefore, when through neglect or other causes, kidney trouble is permitted to continue, fatal results are sure to follow

We often see a friend, a relative, or an acquaintance apparently well, but in a few days we may be grieved to learn of their severe illness, or sudden death, caused by that fatal type of kidney trouble—Bright's Disease.

EDITORIAL NOTE—If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the famous new discovery, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, because as soon as your kidneys are well they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone.

You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful remedy, Swamp-Root, sent absolutely free by mail, also a book telling all about Swamp Root and containing many of the thousands upon thousands of testimonial letters received from men and women who owe their good health, in fact their very lives to the great curative properties of Swamp-Root. In writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure to say that you read this generous offer in the "CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE."

If you are already convinced that Swamp-Root is what you need, you can purchase the regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles at the drug stores everywhere. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Home Circle.

The Hidden Robe.

Two maidens, very fair to look upon, started one morning on a journey—a journey across the Plain of Life. It stretched before them fair, alluring. It was bounded by a forest whose trees climbed up and hid a mountain. Beyond that, so they had heard, was a river, on the far side of which was the Palace of the King of the Land of Eternal Day.

"We are beautiful," said Ayeda, the elder. "It can not be but that He will look upon us with favor, so only our robes be white when we seek his presence."

"Can we keep them thus, the journey is so long?" replied Carita.

"With care we can, and we must care for naught else," said Ayeda. And they journeyed on.

The plain, which had been easy enough to tread at first, became rough and uncertain and full of holes. Some of these were filled with water, some with mud. To keep clear of these needed much thought, and they trod with painful care. Other travelers, too, were at their side, travelers of all ages. One, an old man, sore spent, caught hold of Ayeda's hand.

"Let me lean on thee?" he besought her, but she shook him off

"Soil my robe for thee?" she cried.

Carita heard. Swiftly she drew his hand in hers.

"He will besmirch thy robe," warned her friend.

"I can not help it," replied Carita.

Even as she spoke the old man was no longer at her side. Only a stain was on the folds of linen that hung about her.

"Ah! lend thy hand a moment, that I may rise," she implored.

And she passed into the gloom of the forest.

Carita stretched forth her hand. The hapless woman caught it, and Carita strongly pulled her up. But the mud of the pool was splashed upon her garment, and it looked soiled indeed. Strange to say, the woman she had saved was more grieved than she. Carita, indeed, gave it no thought, so intent was she upon guiding the steps of a child she had found wailing at the foot of a tree. She took the child with her into the forest shade.

"Have a care," called back Ayeda, whose snowy robe was spotless yet. "Thou wilt need both thy hands in this forest to clear thy path from thorns."

"The child needs help," was all Carita could reply; but, as she looked at her friend, her heart for a moment sank, for Ayeda's eyes had known no tears and shone like stars. She had carried no burden, and her form was erect. She had lent no aid, and her robe was unsoiled.

But poor Carita! Not only was she splashed with mud, but she had wept till her eyes were dim. She had helped this one and that, and her form was bent. She had borne the burdens of those beside her, and her strength was spent.

Ayeda's skin was soft and fair, for she had eaten plentifully of the fruit that grew by the way. Carita had plucked for the old men and for the children, and had taken but few herself, and those not of the best. Her hair, too, had turned gray since she had entered the forest. How could she hope to be admitted into the presence of the King, much less that he should smile on her? Yet any cry for help, and she turned to the spot from whence it came. She could not turn from it with Ayeda's wisdom, but ever lent her aid and soiled her robe. So with bleeding feet she climbed the mountain. So with sinking heart she faced the stream.

On the further side of the river the King's Palace rose, tower upon tower of snow-white marble and of burning gold. Gardens that bloomed with fairest flowers surrounded it. At the great gate the weary travelers stood. The warders blew their horns.

"Enter! enter!" they cried. "Enter all whose robes have neither spot nor stain, whose forms are fair, and whose eyes are bright. None other doth the King desire."

Proudly Ayeda stepped from the throng. Two sentinels in shining armor met and stayed her.

"Thy robe," said one, pointing.

"Thy face, thy form," said another. "See thou thyself."

Ayeda looked into a pool of water, near. She shrieked aloud.

"The river works many a change," spoke the sentinel. "In thy passage through those dark and silent waters thy robe was washed from thee, and one that, unknowing, thou has been weaving on thy way by thy deeds—the hidden robe of thy true soul—was thus uncovered. And in those waters all eyes that have not wept grow dim, all limbs that have not toiled grow bent. Regard thyself."

Ayeda shrieked again, and wrung her hands. Her form had shrunk to almost pygmy proportions; her garments hung stained and soiled about her. Her hard, pinched face, mean with meanest thoughts, showing but ignoble desires and selfish hopes, had no beauty for the eyes of any man.

The sentinel took Carita's hand and drew her forward. And lo! her transformation was very wonderful to see. The tears she had shed for others had made her eyes more lustrous than the stars. Her brow, noble and pure, had been molded by noblest thoughts and loftiest aspirations. The burdens not her own that she had borne had trained her limbs to grace and strength. On the new robe she wore were interweavings of bright gold wherever, on the old, had been a stain.

The great gates opened wide.

"Bride of the King," said the sentinel, "pass on."—Frances Harmer, in Christian Register.

Some Knowing Birds.

One night, during a time of unusually severe weather, the family was awakened by hearing a shrill voice cry out, "Hello, hello!"

"What's the matter, Polly?" sleepily inquired her owner.

We at one time owned a pet pigeon who seemed to dislike every member of the family but father, to whom she took a great fancy, following him about wherever he went.

One morning my father started for church, but when a short distance from the house he heard the flutter of wings, and in an instant the pigeon was on his shoulder, cooing softly and ruffling her feathers in a pretty, coaxing way.

He turned, and, taking her back to the house, deposited her on the porch, again starting on his way to church.

But again came the whir of wings, and Puff was once more on the shoulder of her beloved friend, only to be carried back to the house again.

Three times was this repeated, when poor Puff was finally shut up, allowing father to go in peace.

Puff dearly loved music, and whenever she caught the sound of the piano she would quickly fly to the door, beating against it until allowed to enter, when she would fly to the piano.—Selected.

He Had to Sneeze.

Bobby came home one day covered with dirt and bruises and trundling a broken bicycle.

"What on earth have you been doing, my child?" exclaimed his terrified mother.

"I ran over a big dog and took a fall," explained Bobby.

"Couldn't you see him and give him the road?"

"Yes, I saw him and was turning out, but when I got within about ten feet of him I shut my eyes, and before I got 'em open again I'd run into him."

"For the land's sake, what did you shut your eyes for?"

"Couldn't help it. Had to sneeze. If you think you can hold your eyes open when the sneeze comes, you just try it some day."

If the reader think Bobby's excuse was not a valid one, let him try it some day "when the sneeze comes."—Selected.

A HELPING FUND.

We have many calls to send the ADVOCATE to poor, aged persons at a reduced rate. This we always do. Are there not many persons, well-to-do in this world's goods, who will send us money—any sum they may see fit to give—to supply the ADVOCATE to persons who would like to have it, but are unable to pay anything? We will gladly send it to such for one dollar a year. We hope to get many responses to this appeal. Let those who respond designate the names of those to whom they desire the paper sent, or give the money to their pastors, and let them send the names. If names are not sent, the editor will do the best he can. Who will first respond?

CALVART W. BRELAND was born Nov. 11, 1856, and died March 12, 1902. Bro. Breland united with the M. E. Church, South, in his young manhood, and lived a consistent Christian life until death. He was fully consecrated to the work of his Lord and King. He was a faithful Sunday-school superintendent, always looking after the welfare of the children in his community. Bro. Breland loved the church, and was a friend to his pastor. To say that he was kind and affectionate as a husband and father would be putting it mildly. It seems that Bro. Breland was aware of the fact that he would not get well. His death was not as those who have no hope, but it was as one falling on sleep with a "conscience void of offence toward God and man." He leaves a loving wife and five children to mourn their loss. An hour or so before his death he called his three last children to him, told them to live for Jesus, and meet papa in heaven. After giving other directions to his wife and two oldest children, he became unconscious, from which he never recovered. May God verify his promise to the bereaved family! Bro. Breland leaves eight brothers, three of whom are preachers, and three sisters to mourn. May God bless the weeping ones, and give them the needed grace sufficient for their afflictions! "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord." W. L. BLACKWELL, Pastor.

Mrs. GOODRUM DAVIS was born in East Feliciana parish, La., Feb. 4, 1839, and died Nov. 17, 1901, on Sicily Island, La. She was the daughter of Benjamin and Mary P. Kilpatrick. Sister Davis was twice married; first to Mr. Thos. F. Owen, in Tensas parish, La., April 2, 1856. From this marriage there is one son living—Mr. Eugene Owen, of Sicily Island, La. Her second marriage was to Mr. Geofrun Davis, May 4, 1875, with whom she lived in perfect unity, bearing up under the burdens, trials, and afflictions of life with that firm Christian fidelity that gives a touch of inspiration to all that she did and said. The writer has often been impressed with the gentleness and quietness of her spirit, and felt it a privilege to be associated with one who lived so near the "throne," and talk of the dealings of God with the soul. Her sufferings were great, having died of an injury received from a fall, but she bore these with a patience worthy of a noble spirit that had learned obedience by the things that it had suffered. She joined the M. E. Church, South, and was soundly converted to God in early life. She leaves a heart-broken husband and three daughters to mourn their irreparable loss. May they catch the inspiration of her pious life, emulate her virtues, follow in her footsteps, and meet her again in the bright beyond! T. H. MCCLENDON.

On March 1 the soul of our sister, Mrs. EDD POPKINS, passed from earth to that city where there is no night. Loved by all who knew her, she died as she lived, and when the Master said, "It is enough; come up higher," her spirit returned to the God who gave it. The call was sudden, but we feel that she was ready for the summons. For twenty years she was the efficient secretary of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Jefferson Street Methodist Church, Natchez, and we realize that our society has lost one of its most faithful workers; therefore, be it Resolved, 1. That while we mourn her loss, and our hearts are sad that her bright face is hidden from our view, we bow in submission to the will of our Father in heaven, who doeth all things well.

2. That our sympathies be extended to her husband and children, whose lives and homes are darkened by this shadow of bereavement, and pray that our kind Heavenly Father will comfort their hearts and lead them gently to the home above, where she awaits their coming.

3. That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the Minutes of our society, a copy be sent to the family, and a copy be sent to the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

MRS. MONTGOMERY,
MRS. BOWMAN.

REUBEN M. BEASLEY, the son of Louis and Margaret Beasley, was born in Simpson county, Miss., May 3, 1834. In 1855 he married Miss Adaline Hollfield. Early in life he joined the Methodist Church at Providence, in Copiah county, near which place he has lived since boyhood days. There were given them nine children, five of whom are living—two sons and three daughters. Bro. Beasley was of a quiet and prudent disposition, faithfully attending to his own business, and cautiously avoiding causes of trouble. As the result, everyone who knew him was his friend, and he had no enemy. He was a consistent member and a faithful trustee, and nearly always in his place at Quarterly Conference. His health gave way gradually; was disabled for months, and felt that he was nearing the end. So he spoke of his readiness to depart and be at rest, making arrangements for the coffin, funeral service, and where to be buried. He was conscious to the last, bidding those present a formal farewell. The end was peace. We buried him beside his faithful wife, who had preceded him to the other world nearly twelve years, in the Providence graveyard at 4 P. M., he having died at 1 A. M., April 1, 1902. Thus ends the life of one of the most beloved and honorable of this large family connection. C. MCDONALD.

N. K. MCKEY died at his home, Myles, Miss., Feb. 19, 1902, aged sixty years. He had been for several years a member of the M. E. Church, South. To all that knew this noble husband and father the sad news will be received with deep sorrow. By nature he was a very timid man, though he had a cheerful, sunny heart, full of hope and tender sympathy. His hospitable doors swung open to the coming of the preachers, and under that roof they delighted to abide. His religious experiences were sacred secrets with God; he reserved and timid nature was so natural that no one expected anything else of him. He seemed to know that death was hovering near, and he was making preparation for his future home. He was constantly heard praying. There are inner places into which we can not enter, where the shadow lies cool, which be filled with sunshine in the tenderness and thoughtfulness of home relation. A wise and constant friend, we feel that the place of N. K. McKey will not be filled. His memory is cherished in love, which will long remember his virtues and worthiness. Think not of the grave, bereaved ones. He is not there, but at heaven's gates, crowned with immortality, he stands smiling, beckoning you to follow. M. B. SCOTT.

Little BESSIE JORDAN, daughter of J. M. and K. B. Jordan, was born June 16, 1897, and died Feb. 25, 1902. A precious bud, with the freshness of the morning dew still sparkling upon her brow, has been plucked from earth and transplanted in heavenly soil, having lived just long enough to entwine herself most fondly about her parents' hearts; and while it seems very hard to have the little ones leave us, yet, when we think they are only precious jewels to attract the loved ones in a special manner to the heavenly climes, they all should be specially comforted, and thus be drawn more closely to God. So, dear parents, while little Bessie's voice is forever hushed upon earth, think of her as she breaks forth in heavenly music, free from all earthly restraints; see her arms outstretched, inviting papa and mama home. Remember, Jesus is more able to care for her than anyone. As you can not call her back to you, God grant that you may go to her.

M. E. ROSAMOND.

BEN WATKINS was born in Leake county, Miss., Aug. 20, 1876. His parents were Porter and Eliza H. Watkins, who tried by example and precepts to train their children in the way they should go. As Ben was verging into manhood he made a profession of faith in Jesus Christ, and joined the Methodist Church at Forest Grove. He lived an acceptable member of the church until the Lord saw fit to take him hence. He suffered with typhoid fever for several weeks; then took pneumonia, which caused his death. He goes to his mother, who has preceded him to the other world, and leaves his father, brothers, sisters, and a host of friends, to mourn their loss. May the God of consolation comfort the bereaved loved ones and friends, and may they so live as to meet their Savior in the world to come! J. J. GOLDAN, Pastor.

Mrs. SALLIE F. MURPHREE, wife of W. P. Murphree, was born Sept. 25, 1852, and departed this life Nov. 19, 1901. She joined the M. E. Church, South, at the age of thirteen, and lived a beautiful Christian life, filled with good deeds. A faithful, devoted wife, a patient, loving mother has gone to reap the reward of a well-spent life. She leaves a sorrowing husband and six children, who sadly miss her. May the Lord so guide, keep and direct them that everyone may be enabled to join her after awhile, and form an unbroken family around the throne of God!

by local applications, as they can not reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed, you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that can not be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

We Have It at Last

For many years we have been trying to get a Bible containing exactly the features which, to our mind, would constitute as nearly as possible especially for the use of preachers and teachers. We have contracted for a large number of a Bible which we believe to be the nearest to a perfect book we have ever seen. It contains the AUTHORIZED VERSION, DICTIONARY OF PROPER NAMES, SUBJECT INDEX, CONCORDANCE, AND MAPS. The type is long primer, self-pronouncing. It is 6x8½ inches, and only 1 inch thick. Bound in the best levant morocco, divinity circuit (overlapping edges), calf lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges. By reason of the large number contracted for we are selling this splendid Bible at only a little more than half its regular price.

THE ORIGINAL

25 Calibre Repeater.

THE 25-20 MARLIN is one of the handiest arms made and accurate to 300 yards, with light report and little recoil. Its bullet is more reliable than a 22 calibre and the barrel does not foul as rapidly. It will kill cleanly and quickly without tearing. Smokeless powder can be used in a large variety of loads, and the ammunition is cheap.

ALL MARLINS

REV. WALKER'S

FAMOUS DYSPEPSIA CURE.

Famous for Glorious Achievements.

The recognized unfailing scientific Cure for Dyspepsia, Nervous Indigestion, Constipation, Acidity, and Bilious Colic. Relief in one minute, with first dose; quickly effects a permanent Cure. Never fails. Neutralizes and eradicates dyspepsia poison. An absolute specific. Very palatable, perfectly harmless, as gentle as nature in effect. Neglected Dyspepsia and Indigestion produce "Bright's Disease," undermines the vital organs, overthrows the mental faculties, producing insanity and death.

Mr. J. G. Thompson Anclote, Fla., voluntarily writes: "I suffered agonies from Dyspepsia. Walker's Famous Dyspepsia Cure quickly cured me. I gained 14 pounds in one month. My friends are astonished at my quick recovery. A wonderful medicine."

Mr. Leroy Turner, Sparta, Ga., "I could scarcely eat anything; two doses completely relieved me."

Box containing month's treatment, by mail, $1; checks, 10 cents extra. Address,

REV. EDWARD H. WALKER,
Box 92, Atlanta, Ga.

General News.

A trust has been organized to control the oyster output of Virginia.

The Senate has agreed to the House amendment to the oleomargarine bill.

A copper company has been organized in New Jersey with a capital of $80,000,000.

The Meat Trust has cornered the supply of lard, and in two weeks the price has risen 40 points.

Seven persons were killed, forty injured and twelve or fifteen houses demolished by a cyclone at Glenrose, Tex.

Proceedings intended to break up the Meat Trust in Missouri have been instituted by the Attorney General of that State.

The citizens of Memphis on Monday presented to Admiral Schley a handsome silver service in recognition of his services at Santiago.

A British subject will spend the remainder of his life in an American military prison for deserting to the enemy in the Philippines. He swore he was an American citizen on enlistment.

A Chance to Make Money.

I have berries, grapes and peaches a year old, fresh as when picked. I used the California Cold Process. Do not heat or seal the fruit, just put it up cold, keeps perfectly fresh, and costs almost nothing; can put up a bushel in ten minutes. Last year I sold directions to over 120 families in one week; anyone will pay a dollar for directions when they see the beautiful samples of fruit. As there are many people poor like myself, I consider it my duty to give my experience to such, and feel confident anyone can make one or two hundred dollars round home in a few days. I will mail sample of fruit and full directions to any of your readers for nineteen (19) two-cent stamps, which is only the actual cost of the samples, postage, etc. FRANCIS CASEY, St. Louis, Mo.

Complete Cure.

Can chills be completely cured? Yes! "No prescription ever effected more than a temporary suppression of the chills. I was told to try your Hughes' Tonic; one bottle made a complete cure." Sold by Druggists—50c. and $1.00 bottles.

ADVOCATE OFFER.

Magic White Soap, advertised in our columns, is manufactured in New Orleans by a responsible company, who can be relied on to do what is promised. The soap is what is claimed for it. There is none better on the market. A fair trial has been given it at the home of the editor, and the good wife, who knows what soap is, says "it is about the best she ever used." Our lady readers would do well to give this soap a trial. Send for a box of twenty bars—one dollar; charges paid by the manufacturer.

We make the following offer: We will furnish one box of this soap, and the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for one year, for $2.50, to new subscribers. We make the same offer to all who will pay up back dues, and send $2.50 additional. Cash must accompany the order. Address

JNO. W. BOSWELL,
512 Camp St., New Orleans.

Very many of our subscribers are behind in payment, and the time of many more is just expiring. Please send what is due. If you can not send the whole, send part. We need the money. Please do not wait another week!

MOZLEY'S LEMON ELIXIR.

Regulates the Liver, Stomach, Bowels and Kidneys.

For biliousness, constipation and malaria.
For indigestion, sick and nervous headache.
For sleeplessness, nervousness, heart failure, and nervous prostration.
Ladies, for natural and thorough organic regulation take Lemon Elixir.
50 cents and $1.00 a bottle at druggists.

Gratitude.

Dr. H. Mozley—Dear Sir: Since using your Lemon Elixir I have never had another attack of those fearful sick headaches, and thank God that I have at last found a medicine that will cure those awful spells.

"Potatoes."

We once heard of a man who ate potatoes for breakfast, but at lunch his wife always gave him a nice dish of potatoes, while for dinner the dear woman thought he would enjoy nothing more than a good square meal of potatoes.

This poor man died.

My dear madam, have mercy on the poor man who has to eat potatoes all the time; give him a change. Order a "New Orleans Cook Book." It is full of the best recipes by the best cooks of this Southland—95 pages—and was designed to be serviceable. Send twenty cents in stamps to the ADVOCATE office, and secure one of these valuable books before the limited supply is exhausted.

From this date no attention will be paid to manuscripts that come to this office unrolled. Let them be folded and put in an envelope. And please, brethren and sisters, use ink. Pencil writing, after passing through the mail, is often hard to read. We speak both for the printer and the editor.

Our little leaflet, "The Relation of Baptized Children to the Church," ought to have a wide circulation. We hope the preachers will call the attention of their people to it. See our offers elsewhere.

A woman's discovery FREE

By many years of constant study and experiments, I have perfected a simple, harmless vegetable remedy that will quickly cure all female diseases, as well as the piles. It is nature's own remedy, and will not only relieve, but will absolutely, thoroughly and permanently cure the ailments peculiar to women, such as falling of the womb, leucorrhea (whites), displacements, ulceration, granulation, painful or scanty periods, irregular menstruation, and all the pelvic ills of women. It positively cures rectal ulcers, piles, hemorrhoids, tumors, itching, blind or bleeding piles in either sex. It cures promptly, privately and permanently without the repugnant methods in general use by physicians. You can escape embarrassing examinations, avoid humiliating exposures, cheat the surgeon's knife and eat, bathe and in your blood.

The treatment is so simple, mild and effectual that it will not interfere with your work or occupation. Thousands and thousands of letters are being received from grateful persons from all parts of the world who have been cured by the use of this remedy. The first package is free, send for it—send to day. I know that a fair trial of it will result in your becoming its enthusiastic advocate and friend. With it I will send literature of interest and value. Do not neglect this opportunity to get cured yourself, and be in a position to advise ailing friends.

Consider well the above offer and act upon it at once. It is made in the sincere hope of aiding you and spreading the knowledge of a beneficent boon to sufferers. Earnestly, hopefully, faithfully, MRS. CORA B. MILLER, 370 Comstock Bldg., Kokomo, Ind.

THE BEST PATENT ON THE MARKET.

W. H. MORSE, M. D., Author, Chemist, American Director (1898-1900) of the Bureau of Materia Medica, Fellow of the Society of Science (London), etc.

To the Bureau of Materia Medica: T. J. Hunt, Merom, Indiana, manufactures a Digestive Tablet which bears his name, and which deserves of this notice. I have taken clinical pains to become thoroughly acquainted with it, and as a result of my acquaintance, am able to say that it is not only all that he claims for it, but as well, it is quite unlike the ordinary digestive tablets. The tablet is the initial incident to health in all of its most coveted phases, and covers a wide range of usefulness.

If this treatment doesn't cure any case of bad health, bad blood, bad taste, bad breath, bad complexion, irregular appetite, stomach trouble, bowel troubles, catarrh, scabs, and mucous discharges of throat and nose, weak kidneys, lazy liver, headache, backache, lack of vivacity, liveliness, too tired to work, rest, sleep, or eat. The very best constitutional treatment in unhealthy seasons and places is HUNT'S DIGESTIVE TABLETS.

Glances at the World.

The Beef Trust seems likely to come to grief. The authorities are after the packers, and it is said there is plenty of proof of a combine in violation of the law. In addition to this there is a boycott on all fresh meats. It is not yet general, but sufficiently so to make itself felt. The retailers are not buying near so much as they were a short time since; not that they have joined in the boycott, for prices do not affect them so long as the people buy. At present the people are refraining from the use of meat, and are likely to do so as long as the high prices are maintained. The beef men have also been headed off in another direction. The "cattle barons," as they are called, were about to make a deal whereby they would have secured control of millions of acres of grazing lands in the West and Northwest at two cents per acre for a number of years. This would have shut out all small ranch-men, and, of course, destroyed competition. Behind this movement were the packers, who, if the scheme had carried, would have profited largely. But the matter has been headed off, and to add to their discomfiture, President Roosevelt has ordered all the wire fences cut that inclose public lands. This order has created a flurry, and it is predicted that, if carried out, it will result in bloodshed, as the cattle herds will mix, and there will be trouble separating them. Nothing has transpired for a long time that has so aroused the people as the combine to raise the price of beef, and if it is not vigorously handled by the administration, there is no telling what will be the final outcome. The trust is preparing for defense.

The liquor makers and dealers of the country have declared themselves "tired of high taxes," and have determined to bombard Congress until they succeed in reducing the tax on liquor and beer. The following statement has been given out by one of the leading men in the great liquor combine: "The liquor interests have endured these high taxes and these restrictions long enough, and the trade is determined that they shall stop. All branches of the business are united for the first time, and we will make a fight. We will enter politics, and we have money. I should not be surprised if the country should see the strongest and the most powerful organization, not to be a party organization, that was ever formed in the country. There will be an organization of liquor interests, retailers, distillers, and others, in every county, in every State in the Union, and the State organization will send accredited delegates to the Federal, or national, body, and a tax will be imposed on each State organization. Such an organization is now being perfected quietly in this country, and we will defend our rights." Let the people of the country take note. These men are united in a great non partisan organization. That means they will support no man for office that does not favor their business. They have money, and will not hesitate to place it where it will do "the most good." It will be used freely. A sense of uneasiness pervades the liquor ranks on account of the growth of the prohibition sentiment. They are much more afraid of that than they are of high taxes. If the good people would stand together as they should, there would be no trouble. Their days would soon be numbered.

We take the following item from the Western Christian Advocate, of Cincinnati. Without expressing any partisan sentiment, we can say we trust the Anti-Tammany Democrats will be successful in their efforts. That organization has long been a sore on the body politic. Its disbandment would be a blessing to the country at large. "All the Anti-Tammany Democratic organizations in New York City held a conference April 23, which resulted in the formation of an organization that will oppose Tammany at the primary elections in every primary district of the city. This Greater New York Democracy will support the State ticket nominated at the regular State Convention. A committee was appointed to draft a platform. This will be so broad that all the Democrats who are opposed to Tammany as it is managed under Mr. Croker and his regents will agree to it. Since its defeat last Fall, Tammany Hall has lost all its old-time confidence, and the spirit on which it depended to win victories has departed. All the delegates who were present at this recent conference expressed their belief that they could accomplish their object and defeat Tammany at the polls this Fall and succeeding years until the organization that has so long controlled New York politics is no more."

Base-ball playing is a profitable business. That looks like a contradiction, but it is not, for the game is no longer one of pure sport, but played for money—men following ball playing as a profession. As a money-maker it is far ahead of some other "professions." The salary of a first-class player is larger than half the lawyers of the country realize a year for their services. Preaching for money does not begin to compare with playing for money. The players have their temptations and their troubles. The courts are appealed to for relief. Not long since some players engaged with a certain team, and soon, for some cause, desired to quit and join another team. An injunction was obtained restraining them from playing in any team save the one to which they first engaged. The injunction, after full hearing, was made permanent. Now the poor fellows must play where they do not want to play, or they must not play at all. These players must be exceedingly valuable. Great is base-ball!

THE MAN WITH A PITCHER.

BY REV. CHAS. F. EVANS, D. D.

On the first day of "unleaven bread" the Savior sent Peter and John into the city near by to arrange for the celebration of the feast by himself and his disciples, and though he knew the house where he intended to go, he did not mention it or its owner, but directed them to follow "a man bearing a pitcher of water" to his destination, and make arrangements there. It was a mysterious direction, but not the only one he gave. When he arranged for his triumphal entry into Jerusalem he said to two disciples, "Go into the village over against you, and as soon as ye be entered into it, ye shall find a colt tied, whereon never man sat; loose him and bring him." His reason for this we are left to infer. Doubtless, it was to train them in implicit obedience, and develop their faith qualities more and more essential as these troubled days passed. But there may have been besides these a purpose to retard his betrayal by Judas and arrest by the authorities, until he had a quiet meal, and had instituted the solemn sacrament intended to comfort his disciples in all ages. It shows his knowledge of his approaching end; his steadfast purpose to suffer it; his zeal and sympathy for his church in providing a memorial of his death that should, while bolstering their imperilled faith, comfort and direct them in all their tribulations.

This man was engaged in a menial office. He may have been a slave, or simply—a common man, whose gifts or necessities shut him up to this service. He was a man with "one talent." He is a "nameless man," so far as this narrative is concerned; so also was his master. It would be interesting to know their names, as contributing to so important an occasion as "The Last Supper." And yet the Scriptures abound with incidents of nameless characters. Political history is also full of such incidents. Though the "Letters of Junius" shook England to its throne, their author is unknown. Many great books and poems have been written by men "to fortune and to fame unknown." The men who, in a critical hour of the Confederacy, caught hold of the bridle of Gen. Lee's horse, and demanded of him that, instead of leading the charge, he should go to the rear, were true and brave patriots, but are nameless on the record. There are millions of unmarked graves of as brave soldiers as were ever promoted or knighted. There are many public documents of this and other nations whose glory is accorded to men who were simply the trumpet of unseen and nameless statesmen. Real greatness is not always bulletined and feasted and garlanded, or honored with public recognition.

On the other hand is the long roll of names, with nothing given to justify their preservation. Nearly two hundred such names of men and women are mentioned in the Bible without incident of historic interest. Romans xvi is a specimen. "Certain men clave unto him and believed, among which was Dionysius the Areopagite, and a woman named Damaris." How many who join the church now, and instantly, like Damaris, drop out of sight, either without a history or none except in the line of this "man with a pitcher." It needs the judgment day to restore the equilibrium of names, and reveal the real service and value of men. Then it will appear that only that is valuable which effects moral and spiritual results; not that which is spectacular, or creates a ripple of external results.

Was the meeting of this man simply a coincidence or a pre-arrangement? Was it merely a coincidence that Philip met the eunuch of Candace, and through him introduced the gospel into the continent of Africa? While it shows the Savior's divine discernment, it shows a divine arrangement of time and speed, of men and occasions. We hear much in this world of the "man and the occasion" meeting, of one man meeting another, and his life never afterward the same; of men reading a book or poem, and their life's current changed; of a point of vision as well as of fellowship, and the whole sweep of eternal states passing into or out of men's lives. There are no "common" states of mind, no "common" places, no "common" books, no insignificant men or times. Our lives are all cataclysmal, and every day epochal.

When we would grace an occasion we select a man with reputation and station; when we would fill a place we carefully inquire of a man's gifts, application, and skill, for fear of reflecting on our own discretion; but when God wants a man he usually goes to the "common people." From sixty to seventy-five per cent. of all the men who have attained real merit, or who have won fortune or place, are from the "common people." The reasons are not far to seek. Poverty necessitates a normal life of fresh air, sunshine, simple diet, physical exercise. These furnish a basis for a sound, vigorous, active mind. In all ages and lands the common people have been tyrannized by what is called the "ruling class," and bitter recollections of oppression have made them brave and patriotic. Poverty has made them anxious for comfort and security, and enabled them to accumulate. Social wrongs have awakened a craving for recognition, and prompted them to secure those qualities which compel it. Religious oppression and persecution have made them studious of duty and privilege, and developed their consciences. The absence of early culture has made them thoughtful and provident of their opportunities. The lack of worldly influence made them more self-reliant, and sent them to the "throne of grace." When Henry IV. of France asked the Duke of Alva if he had observed the eclipses occurring that year, he replied, "I am so busy with earthly things I have no time to look up to heaven." God wants a man who believes in himself and who relies on his Maker. Consequently, his great appreciation of common people. So many of the Scripture miracles were wrought on or for them. The Savior preached generally to this class, and adapted his sermons to their comprehension. He sought his apostles among them. The evidence of his Messiahship was in the fact that "the poor have the gospel preached unto them." He said, "Come unto me, all ye that labor," and Mark says, "The common people heard him gladly." The early church was composed chiefly of this class, and the greater part of all of our large city churches are thus constituted. Though it is said Jesus died for every man, it never occurs to some people that the church is the place for all grades of humanity, or that qualification for its altars is not found in educational, financial, or social advantages.

What the church offers is for the masses as much as the classes. Development by work, by instruction, by sympathy and appreciation and fellowship in toil, responsibility, liberality and sacrifices, is what the church offers to all men, or, at least, is under obligation to offer. And yet some people in some churches think the church is for them and "their set" alone, and let slip their best opportunity for culture and growth by ignoring the common people. If so, Peter, James and John would hardly be received into their real fellowship.

The common people afford the gospel a full chance to authenticate its claim and prove its power. Many of the advantages of Christianity overflow the rim of the church, and love benignly with a high civilization the outside world. Fine ideals, great restraint, educational maxims, refinement of manners, regard for beauty, elevated thought, gentility and morality have come to very common people. There is nothing for conversion to add but purity of heart. In such a civilization there are but two ways for the gospel to prove its power. The one is by taking a child of common man, with character wholly unformed, and developing it beyond the best examples of pagan civilization. The other is by taking a character undermined and wrecked, and restoring it. What but the gospel can take a man like Matthew or Paul, like Gough, Newton or Bunyan, and embody in him the power of God unto salvation?

Christ "is able to save unto the uttermost"—i. e., from the lowest of depths to the greatest of heights. Like the untitled and unknown artist, who took the rejected fragments of glass and wrought them into the most beautiful of mosaics in a great cathedral, the gospel picks up the common man, and fills gloriously and heroically every station in life, and builds a church worthy of its own "high calling of God."

CALIFORNIA LETTER.

BY REV. W. P. ANDREWS.

Death has been busy among our preachers this year. On New Year's Day, J. C. Pendergrast was called to his reward from San Jose. He was seventy-nine years of age, and had been a superannuate two years. Yet hardly. He sustained that relation to the Conference, but was, perhaps, never more active, and never accomplished more good during any other two years of his life. He was superintendent of the Home Department in the Sunday-school, taught a Bible class, worked in the League, etc. He did as much visiting as the pastor, riding a bicycle. He attended five services the Sunday before Christmas—his usual Sunday work. A sweeter spirit I never knew. He came to this Conference from the Holston in 1852, Dr. Simmons being the only preacher among us who was here before him. Though he was more than thirty years my senior, we were intimate friends. It was an easy task to speak at his funeral.

Next came the death of Brother J. H. Holland in Berkeley, of whom I have already written.

On the eleventh of February, Francis M. Staton, our pastor at Gilroy, my near neighbor, received his summons. He was sixty-three years old, but apparently the very picture of health up to within three hours of his death. He was a California preacher, having been admitted on trial in the Pacific Conference in 1859.

So, within less than six short weeks I was called upon to attend the funerals of three brother ministers.

And death has also been doing his work in Mississippi. It made me sad to learn of the death of Ransom J. Jones. He was once my presiding elder, and I found him to be one of the choicest of spirits. I know it is well with our brethren. I can ask for nothing better than to end my life as they did theirs.

The preachers of the Conference are all hopefully at work. We have three excellent presiding elders in Bros. Moore, Kenney, and Betts. There have been some revivals, and I am sure at our District Conferences, soon to be held, it will be found that we are gaining somewhat in membership. E. J. Harper, the new pastor at Centenary, San Francisco, is wide-awake, and succeeding as well as anyone could under the circumstances. P. T. Ramsey is doing well at Sacramento, and J. A. Batchelor at Fresno.

We have had several accessions in Salinas. I immersed four candidates a few days ago. I see from your columns that the controversy on the mode of baptism is still being waged in Mississippi and Louisiana. As a rule, the Baptists here are not so narrow as with you. They will accept Methodist immersions, as will also the Campbellites. Under the circumstances it is best for me to say but little upon the subject, giving candidates choice of mode. As I grow older I have less taste for controversy upon such subjects. Time is too precious. I would that it might soon cease everywhere.

We recently had Francis Murphy with us in a ten days' gospel temperance campaign. The old man's talks would not always read well, but he draws and holds large audiences, and reaches their hearts. His is a gospel of love. Perhaps five hundred signed the pledge. Some hard drinkers were saved.

BOARD OF CHURCH EXTENSION.

The annual session of this body has just closed. All the members were present except Bishop Keener, Drs. Cook and Vandeventer. The Board appropriated about $32,000 in donations and about $40,000 in loans. The assessment on the whole church was increased $15,000—that is, if a brother's assessment is $55 for church extension, it will be $62.50 next year; or, if only $11 on a poor circuit, it will be $12.50 next year. This increase will be very slight on the individual charge, but it will certainly bring in additional funds which are very much needed.

I call special attention of the presiding elders in the patronizing Conferences to the suggestion of the Board that at each District Conference an hour be given to the consideration of this cause. Let some brother inform himself thoroughly concerning our work, and when the proper time comes, he can speak to all present, giving such information as will stimulate our people to more intelligent and generous action.

Dr. P. H. Whisner is a man of affairs. The General Conference can do no better than to continue him in his present place, and it is hoped that he will be re-elected.

Louisville Methodism seems to be thoroughly alive and prosperous.

On Friday evening, from 6 to 8 o'clock, Dr. and Mrs. B. M. Messick gave a reception to the members of the Board and to the preachers of the Louisville district. It was a delightful affair, and the spirit of good cheer reigned supreme.

T. W. LEWIS.

"True Arminianism vs. Modern Antinomianism."

BY REV. K. M. HARRISON.

I have carefully examined the manuscript of a little book written by Rev. K. M. Harrison, of our North Mississippi Conference. This timely work is now in the press, and will be presented to the public in a few weeks. It is written in nineteen short chapters, in the form of sermons, and contains a brief, but clear statement of Arminian doctrines. The author's conclusions as to God's original purpose in man's creation, the universality of the atonement, the relations of the laws of God given by Moses and Christ, and the first resurrection, are unique and convincing. I believe it to be timely and useful to fill a niche in the circle of books. Especially is this true where the people are troubled with Martinism or modern Antinomianism.

Bro. Harrison has dedicated his book to the young preachers of his Conference, and to them, as well as to the laity, I would heartily commend it. It is very readable, and will do good wherever studied.

APROPOS GRENADA COLLEGE.

Dear Brethren of North Mississippi Conference:

We have driven up to the beginning of an era in Christian female education in Mississippi. I am glad that our Conference college had the self-confidence and moral courage to take the initiative; not that I rejoice in the backwardness of other female institutions in the State and section in this particular, but that Grenada College directors were, notwithstanding prevailing methods and theories, capable of recognizing the fact that if any college is ever to attain to greatness and influence in the mind and heart of the public, it must be conducted for the public good exclusively, and not at all for private gain, and acting on it.

This statement is made with all due respect and love for the consecrated men and women who have wrought so nobly, and in large measure successfully, at Grenada. It is also in view of the fact that no great end has been accomplished, since only a few of our Methodist host have been enlisted in the enterprise. If all the Methodist people who are educating, or will soon be educating, their children (to go no further) had been co-operating with Bros. Newell, Malone, and McIntosh, and their self-sacrificing faculties, and each of us had contributed as much prayer, means, and effort as each of them have done, gratis, Grenada College to-day would be second to nothing in woman's colleges in America.

But we all knew that thorough enlistment was unattainable under the old regime, and, consequently, what was done by any was prompted largely by obligation to loyalty, rather than from hope of large fruitage. Now, we have shifted financial base and changed steering tactics, so that whatever is accomplished shall accrue to the commonweal in every particular, and hence feel confidence in urging, and have right to expect the undivided strength of all concerned. Now, nothing remains to place Grenada College in rank with the best to be found but that all who are obligated, or to be benefited, unite in fighting her battles and paying her bills, first, last, and all the time. I doubt not this is the common consciousness among all acquainted with the situation. Now, men of means may be expected to center their liberality on Grenada College, as has been in cases of Millsaps and other male colleges. Bequests and donations from friends of female education, even without our bounds, may be expected within a very short time, as Grenada College affords one of the very few instances where such philanthropy may be expected to reach the desired end—i. e., elevating and cheapening female education.

No faculty of Grenada College ever had quite so much depending on it as has the new one which begins work with the next session. The college is no less on trial before the public; rather more so, since more people are to be interested, and more is expected than ever in standard of curriculum and scholarship. But from all sides comes the encouragement born of confidence in their thorough capability to sustain our very exalted hopes and plans.

I rise to the privilege of speaking a word for President W. L. Clifton. Being natives of the same county, and having been briefly associated in the public school work in the county (DeSoto), both as boy teachers, I can bring a word of commendation from first hand. From his very beginning he was found and recognized a scholar of high character and a teacher with excellent native qualities. Prof. Clifton lacks nothing from early training, exalted family character, and high social position, and is a Methodist of good stock, well seasoned. That he has adopted the heart-testing profession of teaching, amidst the numerous open doors into any of which he could have entered with prospects of success, evinces the still greater fact of his fidelity to self-consciousness and a life-calling. All these considerations conspire to open a bright, but responsible, future before him.

Be assured, therefore, that the Board of Directors have chosen wisely in selecting President W. L. Clifton to direct Grenada's faculty. No position in the college requires so much strength and care as does the president's chair; and, I may add, no man will experience more delight in discharging the high calling faithfully than will the new president of Grenada College.

We sent six girls last year from McNutt charge to Grenada College, and will insist on all returning, and more, if possible. Let the new president and faculty consider themselves at all times the invited guests, whenever their convenience serves, of this charge and pastor.

Yours very truly,

W. L. Anderson.

HIGHER EDUCATION OF YOUNG WOMEN BY THE CHURCH.

BY PROF. W. L. CLIFTON, PRESIDENT-ELECT GRENADA COLLEGE.

Nearly all the institutions of higher instruction, founded originally for young men only, have taken an action that makes it possible for young women to enter their doors on the same terms upon which young men are admitted.

To observant men interested in the education of young womanhood by the church schools, this step ought to be taken as a barometric indication of the pressure of the educational atmosphere of this age. Especially significant ought this movement to be, since it was not original with the schools, but was inaugurated in response to a demand of the young women themselves.

They claimed—and with truth—that the beauty and lore of the ancients are not a heritage descending to their brothers alone, but is food meet for the growth and development of their own minds as well; they felt that they, surrounded by the same wonderful laws of nature, had the same right to delve for the underlying principles; they felt that, living under the same laws, moral and ethical, they should have the same opportunity of becoming thoroughly versed in these laws; they felt that, as a companion of man, they would be the more congenial if possessed of attainments of equal standard. Putting it differently, this signifies that superficiality, blind credulity, ill-directed excitability, do not satisfy our girls or find place in this age, but, rather, thoroughly trained intellects, enlightened piety, educated and regulated zeal, are the ends desired.

But commensurate facilities are necessary in order to give our girls such education and training. The colleges intended for this purpose must, therefore, have adequate buildings, strong faculties, discriminately filled libraries, liberally equipped laboratories, and ample endowment.

To raise a school to such a standard and maintain it, is, we confess, a tremendous undertaking. But should the church, for this reason, be recalcitrant or shrinking when the importance of advancing some of its own schools to such a standard is an evident necessity? The church can not afford to shrink from, or be indifferent toward such a purpose, unless it is willing to see the legitimate patronage of these schools pass them by and go elsewhere to find the advantages desired. For, in truth, the time has passed—if it ever existed—when we could make appeal for this patronage on the ground of church loyalty alone. That may, of course, form some basis for appeal, but our chief claim must be one of merit. This the church should recognize, and then, in a movement in the direction of such achievement, Methodism would be in position to lead the van, for, being in government a great connectional system, it has peculiar advantages for correlating a great system of education. Furthermore, looking to such a step on the part of the church, the General Board of Education authorized by the General Conference has already outlined an ideal working policy for organizing such a system.

In strict conformity to this policy our colleges for girls—as all our colleges—ought to be conducted. Supposing that all our membership are acquainted with this plan, I shall mention only that feature that is here in point—that of strengthening the institutions we already have, and of raising them to a standard that will secure to them national recognition. This is, therefore, no time for new enterprises, a division of our interests, and independentism, but, rather, all our forces should be marshalled and mobilized for concentered, united effort.

Some school within the bounds of each Annual Conference should be fixed upon as the one best suited to do the work suggested above, and toward the proper equipment of this institution ought to converge all the efforts of the Conference making for the provision of this grade of education. Even with such unanimity of purpose and concert of action, however, the bringing about of the conditions desired is not the work of a year, nor of two, nor of many, but there is required an unwavering, courageous, persistent, increasing effort toward an inviting, though ever-receding ideal.

How high the calling, how tremendous the duty of a man charged with the responsibility, and clothed with the honor of directing the work of such an institution!—a work for the church and the church's Master, the value of which eternity alone can reveal.

In attempting such a work, any true man must crave the sympathetic support of all good people. He would appeal to the ministers, the heralds, as it were, of the decrees of our Boards and Conferences, for, since to their respective pastors the charges look for guidance in matters educational and religious, the ministers certainly have unrivaled opportunities for inestimable assistance in arousing interest and directing patronage. To the lay members he would appeal, for, when all is said, it is from them that the school must in the main receive its patronage and financial support.

The creating and maintaining of such a college as is herein briefly described is contemplated as the future of Grenada College. The development of such womanhood as has herein been suggested, is expected as the product of that college.

Brother, will you assure a realization of this high ideal by giving the management your unreserved and undivided support? Sister, you surely can not withhold yours.

OUR GENERAL RULES.

"There is only one condition previously required of those who desire admission into these societies—a desire to flee from the wrath to come and to be saved from their sins. But where this is truly fixed in the heart it will be shown by its fruits. It is, therefore, expected of those who continue therein that they continue to evidence their desire of salvation: 1. By doing no harm, 2. By doing good, 3. By attending upon all the ordinances of God."

Read all the rules under the foregoing divisions, and mark the following paragraph: "If there be any among us who do not observe them (all our rules), who habitually breaks any of them (no matter which), let it be known to them who watch over that soul, as they must give account. We will admonish him of his ways; we will bear with him for a season; but, then, if he repent not of his sin, he hath no more place among us."

Viewed in the light of the above paragraph, what is the character of our rules as a whole? Is it not clear that they are each and all statutory, and not a single one hortatory? They are all, without an exception, penal statutes, made binding by the same penal sanction. "If there be any among us who habitually break any of them (no matter which), we will admonish him of the error of his way; we will bear with him for a season; but, then, if he do not repent, he hath no more a place among us."

Now, is it not evident that our rules are, without exception, all statutory, with expulsion following as the only penalty for the habitual violation of any one of them? In the penalty annexed for the habitual violation of any or all of our rules there is no difference. Needless self-indulgence, such as excessive sleeping or eating, like drunkenness, is cause, when persisted in, for expulsion. Looked at in the light of the thirty-first paragraph, page 33 of our Discipline, there is no way around this conclusion. According to that paragraph, it is the duty of every pastor to admonish those who habitually put on gold and costly apparel of the error of their way, and if they do not repent, then, according to the Book of Discipline, it is the pastor's duty to remove them from our communion. We hold that our General Rules should be firmly and kindly enforced. Every pastor is required to read the General Rules to his congregation at least once a year, and is further required to say: "If there be any among us who observe them not, who habitually break any of them, let it be known to them who watch over that soul, as they who must give an account. We will admonish him of the error of his ways, but if he repent not, he hath no more place among us."

We hereby publicly affirm that for the habitual violation of any of them we will admonish him. We say in the presence of all the people that we will admonish him. But do we do it? Do we admonish our people for wearing gold and costly apparel, for high living and oversleeping? Do we turn them out for these infractions of law? Certainly not. And we feel, while reading them, that such a course would be impracticable. To do what we say we will do would depopulate the Methodist Church. What ought we to do? Continue our General Rules as they are? Continue to read them to the people, and to publicly say we will do what we know at the time we will not do—yea, can not do without self-destruction? By no means. What then? Let us retain our General Rules as a whole, but classify them, making them statutory and hortatory. Divide them into shall and ought, into penal and advisory, after which let us remove our reproach by enforcing our rules. It is our reproach that we have laws that are dead. Will not the General Conference remove the reproach, or not require our preachers to say they will do a thing that would be the undoing of Methodism?

BIBLE READING.

BY REV. J. D. NEWSOM.

The Christian Herald (New York), of Jan. 1, 1902, has a quotation from a letter written by a Mrs. Jane A. Sheldon, as follows: "I have finished my Bible to-day (Dec. 11) for the thirty-ninth time, and every time I read it I understand it better." The Herald says, "This is an unusual record." I am not a regular reader of the Christian Herald, but am a regular reader of the Christian Advocate, and I have thought it might do good to tell something of my Bible reading.

I commenced to read my Bible in my very boyhood. I thought everyone trying to be a Christian ought to read it. Before twelve years of age I had read it entirely through. I adopted the plan of reading it in lessons of five chapters a day. This has been my rule up to the present. In my youth it was subject to infractions, crowded upon by other things—working on the farm, going irregularly to school, doing errands for my father, riding distances on horseback, etc. It occurred at times that what I esteemed a religious duty was neglected for long months.

Before reaching manhood, to more effectually systematize my reading, I arranged to take in my lessons every day a part of each of the four grand divisions of the Holy Book. (1) The historical part, from Genesis to Esther; (2) the poetical part, from Job to Solomon's Song; (3) from Isaiah to Malachi; (4) the New Testament. My plan in detail is to begin with Genesis, reading two chapters daily to the end of Esther, when the book-mark noting my place in this reading was carefully placed back again at the first of Genesis, and the reading resumed as before. Then I commence with one chapter in Job, reading through that department one chapter a day; doing the same in the prophets, and the same in the New Testament, carefully keeping each book-mark for each department in its respective place. I have found it very rare to finish up two of these departments on the same day. Following this plan, I never seem to "finish" my Bible, but always to be in the midst of it.

To take my reading up to the seventeenth of March, 1849—the day I was twenty-one—to make up for any days of failure after that time, which did occur in painful, protracted sickness, and at one time from another cause, it may be seen that in the fifty-three years ending March 17, 1902, I have read 86,725 chapters. This reading made in the year 1,189 chapters of the entire Bible, will give a thorough reading of 81 times.

This plan will show to the close observer to give less reading in the New Testament in proportion than in any other part of the Bible. I think this inequality is more than made up from my selection of lessons for family prayers, and other social worship, from the New Testament, as a general rule.

By reference it may be seen that the New Testament contains 260 chapters. Reading these chapters consecutively one each day in fifty-three years, I have read the department through 74 times, and 105 chapters over. With all this reading I have not memorized the Book. My memory is not sufficiently retentive for that, but I have some familiarity with every part of it. I have not grown tired of it. I read my lesson this morning with more interest than I did fifty years ago. I have not completed a knowledge of it. I am now learning every day from the sacred Book, and I read every day to learn of God's ways and of his divine truth. It daily increases within me clearer views of the inner spiritual life and higher hopes of heaven. It is truly a daily food to my soul. I would rather miss my breakfast for the morning than my Bible lesson for the day. I am positive now that without these daily Bible counsels, long since I would have been dead and in a sinner's grave.

Mashulaville, Miss.

COMMITTEE ON ADMISSIONS.

To the Delegates to the General Conference—

Dear Brethren: The following is a suggestive method by which the Committee on Admissions may do their work more definitely and satisfactorily. Some Conference committees have already adopted this method in part. Too many committees seem not to know their prerogatives. Too often too little is known as to the fitness of the candidate for the Conference to vote intelligently. Let the committee be authorized to make a formal report to the Conference, embodying the gist of the questions answered, and deposit the examination papers with the secretary or keeper of the records. Let the General Conference authorize a uniform method.

Questions to the candidate:

1. Full name?..... District? ..... Charge?.....

2. Age at last birthday?..... Where born?.....

3. Name and age of parents?..... Are they—or were they, if deceased—members of the church in good standing? If so, of what denomination?..... Of what occupation or profession are they?..... Are they educated?..... To what extent are they able, and have they assisted you in obtaining an education?.....

4. What have been your educational advantages?..... Schools attended?..... How long at each? ..... Degrees?..... Habit of study?..... Of the Bible?..... Of other literature?.....

5. What is the condition of your health?..... Have you any chronic disease or physical disability?..... To what extent?..... Your habits of sleep?..... Recreation?..... Rest?..... Exercise?..... Work? ..... Hygiene?.....

6. Are you single or married? ..... Wife's maiden name?..... Number of children?..... Ages? ..... Have you any others dependent upon you?..... Are you in debt?..... How much?..... How contracted?..... Prospects of paying?.....

7. When and where converted? ..... Under whose preaching? ..... Joined the church?..... Acknowledged the call to preach? ..... When and where licensed to preach?..... Why do you feel called to the itinerancy?..... Are you willing to take any appointment?..... How much have you preached?..... Where?..... What fruit have you had?.....

Questions to those who speak for him:

1. Do you believe, as far as you know, that all of the foregoing questions have been faithfully answered?.....

2. What is his personal character?.....

3. His preaching ability?.....

4. His administrative qualifications?.....

5. Are there any drawbacks in this case?.....

(Signed by presiding elder, preacher-in-charge, and laymen.)

I believe all of the above questions are prudent and reasonable, and the adoption of something like this method will meet a felt want and do great good in many ways.

J. H. Shumaker.

"LIGHT AT EVENTIDE."

The following extracts from a recent letter from one of the oldest ministers of our church will, if we mistake not, touch a tender spot in the hearts of old and young alike. Such testimony, and such interpretations of the ministry and privileges of old age, are a treasure to the church he has served so long and so faithfully. The letter is addressed to a young man, the writer's former pupil and most intimate associate.

"I assure you that the best and oldest friend, I judge, you have in this world will always extend to you the most cordial sympathy and, if possible, aid. And if it so be that human interest and sympathy with loved ones on earth extend to the abode of the glorified, I know that my sainted wife would willingly become your ministering spirit to help you to the inheritance of the saints in light.

"I am well into the eighth decade—shall be seventy-three years old next eighth of July, and feel the infirmities of life creeping upon me. My mind is somewhat leaky as to recent events. I am reminded daily that I must go the way of all the earth. New acquaintances are not as interesting to me as those of other days. My company has gone before, and by faith I think they will soon welcome me on the other shore.

"I have thirty-three grandchildren living. Three are dead. I expect to meet all in heaven.

"I must say that very few evil days have come into my life, and I still take pleasure in the years as they draw nigh. There are lessons to be learned even in old age—peculiar to old age. I do enjoy life yet for what it gives me, and try in everything to give thanks; and am specially thankful that the perennial freshness and power of the life eternal begun here abide, and, I feel, will abide to the end through vigilance and the victory of faith."

The North Mississippi Conference Woman's Foreign Missionary Society will hold its twenty-third annual meeting in Grenada, June 6.

Delegates will send names to Mrs. W. M. McIntosh, Grenada, Miss. A full attendance upon the meeting is very much desired. Every society is urged to send a representative with a written report; also to instruct the delegates as to the pledge, etc., for the year just entered upon.

We trust that earnest prayer will be offered throughout the entire Conference for this meeting; that this very important work of sending the gospel to souls that are in heathen darkness may be carefully and wisely planned; that each one attending the meeting will be strengthened and better prepared for service, and that an influence will go out from this association of Christian workers that will touch and bless every auxiliary in the Conference.

We hope to have with us Miss Elizabeth Hughes, one of our returned missionaries from China.

The Small of the Back

That is where some people feel weak all the time.

They are likely to be despondent and it is not unusual to find them borrowing trouble as if they hadn't enough already.

The fact is their kidneys are weak, either naturally or because of sickness, exposure, worry or other influences.

"I am thankful to say," writes J. L. Campbell, of Sycamore, Ill., "that Hood's Sarsaparilla has cured me. For many years I was troubled with backache. At times I was so bad I had to be helped from the bed or chair. I am now well and strong and free from pain." What this great medicine did for him it has done for others.

Sunday-School Association.

LAKE CHARLES, LA., APRIL 25, 1902.

CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE: At the request of Brother Mott, I give a few notes on the late session of the Louisiana Sunday-school Association, held at Natchitoches, on April 23-24. The place being somewhat hard of access, no doubt kept many from attending. There were 71 delegates enrolled. The weather was fine. It was the universal verdict of the delegates that Natchitoches is ideal as a convention town. Beautiful homes, unbounded hospitality, local arrangements perfect, committees enthusiastic and attentive. The people of Natchitoches know a good thing, and attended every session in large numbers. The Trinity Episcopal Church, although the largest and best equipped Protestant Church, in which the convention was held, could not hold the evening congregations. The normal students were regular in attendance.

Prof. H. M. Hamill, D. D., was superb—a host in himself. Who can ever forget his masterly setting of "The Sunday-school Teacher," his conferences and normal work? Mrs. H. M. Hamill captured her hearers. Although she preceded the convention at Natchitoches, having addressed audiences on Sunday, extra sessions were called for, provided and well attended.

Mr. Lewis Collins, the General Secretary of the Texas Sunday-school Association, was well received, and his addresses were much appreciated. He showed himself a strong man, and "the right man in the right place."

Mr. J. L. Westbrook is a master of ceremonies. Much of the success of the convention was due to his judicious management.

The officers elected for the ensuing year were: President, Col. W. H. Jack, Natchitoches; corresponding secretary, Mrs. H. M. McCants, New Orleans; recording secretary, H. A. Pharr, New Iberia; treasurer, Sam'l M. Dooley, Baton Rouge; chairman Executive Committee, A. M. Mayo; Executive Committee—E. P. Mackie, S. D. Moody, John S. Talmage, J. R. Westerfield, W. L. Frantz, S. M. Dooley, C. A. Tiebout, Capt. J. N. Pharr, J. L. Westbrook and W. C. Barnett. Member International Executive Committee, E. P. Mackie; International Vice-President, S. D. Moody; Superintendent Primary Department, Miss Myrtle Shively.

Delegates to the Tenth International Convention at Denver, Col., on June 26: Col. W. H. Jack, Mrs. W. H. Jack, S. D. Moody, Miss Olive Moody, E. P. Mackie, Miss Mary K. Jack, Rev. A. C. Smith, E. C. Barrow, W. L. Frantz, J. L. Westbrook, Miss Alice Zahle, Rev. Wm. Schuhle, Mrs. Helen M. McCants, R. H. Browne, T. G. Hardie, Capt. J. N. Pharr, Mrs. J. N. Pharr, Prof. H. A. Morgan, Rev. E. L. Siler, Rev. C. C. Wier, and others to be appointed later.

A. M. MAYO.

A note from Bro. J. C. Cavett, of Jackson, Miss., informs us that the time and place of the meeting of the Mississippi State Sunday-school Association have been changed. The appointment was for Laurel, June 17-19. Another place and another time will be named, and published later.

A Call for Help.

DEAR BROTHER: Rose Pine, La., is a small town situated on the K. C. and S. R. R., with three saloons and gambling houses running wide open every day. We have organized a society here, and we feel the need of a house of worship. So we ask you to ask your members to please donate ten cents apiece to help build a M. E. Church, South, here at Rose Pine this year, and God will bless you.

W. B. MCGINNIS, Pastor.

The above letter will be sent to every member of the Louisiana Conference, with the request that he send it on to some other brother, and ask him to do likewise.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

DOWNSVILLE CHARGE.

DEAR EDITOR: This itinerant has moved twice since Conference. The parsonage needing repairing, caused us to move into another house until it could be done. The amount of one hundred and seventy-five dollars has been raised—twenty of this last year—with which to repair it. We are now comfortably domiciled within it. The house is now a fair average as a country parsonage. The lot contains twenty-five acres; six in fine Bermuda pasture, two tillable, and the balance in good woodland.

This work has recently sustained a heavy loss by the moving away of some of the best members, some officials. It is a feature of discouragement to the country charges of North Louisiana that many of her most needed members pull up and go to the larger towns.

Not that I would incur the displeasure of my old friend and benefactor, Rev. T. J. Martin, of Ringgold, the baby baptizer; nevertheless, I'll state it. After preaching Sunday night I baptized three sweet babies.

Pray that we may have notable achievements through the name of our Lord in the upbuilding of his cause on this work.

Fraternally,

H. W. LEDBETTER.

BERWICK, LA.

DEAR DOCTOR: Just closed a revival in Berwick; eight accessions. Rev. A. W. Turner came over and preached for me. He is a power, and we predict that some of these times the Bishop will read him out to a district as presiding elder.

At Morgan City we are pegging away. Our Sunday-school is fine, and we have the money on hand to recarpet the church.

I preach regularly at Douner, Gibson, Ramos, and Belle Isle. At some future date I hope to be able to write an account of the salt industry of that island for the information of your readers. The curious formation of that place reuders it a puzzle to scientific men. We have a Sunday-school there, with Bro. C. P. Petrini as superintendent. Bro. Petrini used to be associated with Bishop Parker in the ADVOCATE office.

With best wishes, etc., yours truly,

H. S. JOHNS.

BELMONT CIRCUIT.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: Belmont circuit is not the best circuit in the Corinth district, but is far ahead of what I expected to find. It has some as fine Christian people, ready to help the preacher in any way possible, as you will find anywhere. I have seven churches, and am kept very busy.

We have held our first Quarterly Conference, and I received a very nice little sum, upon which my little family and I can, I think, live till my next Conference, which is in June.

Notwithstanding the cold, bad weather and high water, I have filled nearly all my appointments. I have four Sunday-schools in good working order and one prayer meeting, which is doing good work, and hope for several others as the weather gets better.

I believe this will be a very prosperous year, spiritually, in my work. I am looking forward for good revivals at most of my churches.

With much success to the ADVOCATE and love to you, I am,

Your brother in Christ.

M. L. TUCKER.

TUPELO, MISS.

DEAR BRO. BOSWELL: We are enjoying the fruits of a two weeks' genuine revival meeting. The preaching of Rev. E. B. Ramsey, of Fulton, Ky., was in demonstration of the Spirit and of power. The best judges among our laymen think that few men in our church can equal Bro. Ramsey as a preacher. All Tupelo honor and love him for the great work he did for us. The results will abide. The church is on a higher plane of Christian living. Many penitents were converted, and 17 have united with our church. Every interest of this charge is much improved. We are happy to serve this growing church. Rev. J. A. Leech, of Okolona station, rendered valuable assistance three days during the meeting,

Yours faithfully.

J. A. BOWEN.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

HICKORY, MISS.

MR. EDITOR: To-day the best revival meeting ever held at Hickory was closed amid great rejoicing on the part of the church, because they had been brought into nearer relations with the Lord Jesus Christ, and lifted into a higher plane of Christian experience. Truly, it was good to be there, and it proved to be the gate of heaven to our souls. Bro. J. W. Crisler, the pastor, was assisted by that sweet-spirited preacher, Rev. W. M. McIntosh, of Grenada, who did all the preaching, and Rev. Newman, evangelist, from Meridian, who lead in the singing. The singing was excellent, sweet, spiritual. Surely Bro. Newman knows how to present the gospel in song. The preaching was the power of God to save, and proved to be the savor of life unto life to many. Thank God the gospel is still the power of the Lord to save unto the uttermost when presented to the people in such a loving spirit and earnestness like Bro. McIntosh preaches it. It was accompanied by the Holy Spirit sent down from heaven. The meeting began last Saturday night, and continued nine days. Sunday evening, at 3:30, he preached to men and boys only, there being present the largest number ever assembled in the church at this place. It was a wonderful service, and the Lord touched the hearts of all present.

Bro. McIntosh is truly doing the work of an evangelist, uniting the Christians, and bringing about love and loyalty to the church. He will hold a meeting for Bro. Crisler at Newton, also, in the near future, and will be at the Lake Camp Meeting in July. He will ever be remembered by the Christians of this place, and their prayers go with him. I do not know at this writing how many were converted or joined the churches. Bro. Crisler will give you the results. We give the Lord all the praise for what he has done for us through his servants.

THE HEART

The human heart, that most wonderful of engines, is scarcely larger than a man's fist. Yet in each twenty-four hours the dual heart moves approximately six tons of blood, equivalent to about two barrels of blood per hour. And this continues without ceasing from the first breath of infancy to the last sigh of age. Is it any wonder that when continued extra strain is put upon so delicate and busy an organ, it should break down? Is it any wonder that in this age of overwork there should be an increasing number of deaths attributed to heart failure?

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the organs of digestion and nutrition and purifies and enriches the blood. One of the ingredients entering into the "Discovery" is one of the best heart tonics known to medicine. Thus while through the action of "Golden Medical Discovery" the body is nourished into strength, the heart is also strengthened and an adequate blood supply is pumped to the stomach and kidneys thus improving the action of these organs.

Sick people, especially those suffering from chronic diseases, are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter free, and so obtain without charge, the opinion of a specialist on their ailments. All correspondence strictly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

"I had been troubled with catarrh of the stomach and heart trouble," writes Mr. W. H. Metchant, of Tylersburg, Clarion Co., Penna. "Had doctored for some time without relief, then I began to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I took seven bottles. Before I began to take it I weighed 119 pounds, and now I weigh 176. I am working steadily and feel like a new man. I send you many thanks."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cleanse the bowels and stimulate the sluggish liver.

(Mr. Bryan's Paper)

The Commoner has attained within six months from date of the first issue a circulation of 100,000 copies, a record probably never equaled in the history of American periodical literature. The unparalleled growth of this paper demonstrates that there is room in the newspaper field for a national paper devoted to the discussion of political, economic, and social problems. To the columns of The Commoner Mr. Bryan contributes his best efforts, and his review of political events as they arise from time to time can not fail to interest those who study public questions.

The Commoner's regular subscription price is $1 per year. We have arranged with Mr. Bryan whereby we can furnish his paper and NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE together for one year for $2.25. The regular subscription price of the two papers when subscribed for separately is $3 net. When remittance is made by personal check ten cents extra will be charged.

THURSDAY, MAY 8, 1902.

One sorrow is sometimes worth more than many blessings—men are so prone to forget. "Before I was afflicted, I went astray."

We now see through a glass darkly, and those of us who fail to discern the equality of God's ways shall know if we follow on to know the Lord.

No matter how many flies are caught on a sticking-plaster, it will catch another. So men see their fellows struggling in despair, yet foolishly allow themselves to be caught in the same snare.

There is nothing safe this side of heaven. Therefore, said Jesus, "Lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where moth and rust doth not corrupt, and where thieves do not break through nor steal."

If men were persuaded that personal happiness is enhanced more by trying to make others happy than by efforts to gratify their selfish desires, the world would at once be transformed into a paradise such as God made it in the beginning.

The experience of men who have been ruined, soul and body, by following the ways of evil does not seem to deter those who come after them. Each man imagines himself smarter than his fellows. He learns no better until certain destruction is upon him. Then it is too late.

Man's weakness is aided by divine power; otherwise, God's commands, which so often cross his will, and impose duties beyond his strength, could never be performed. Jesus said, "Without me ye can do nothing." St. Paul said, "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me."

If writers would bear in mind that readers of newspapers are after facts and truths, they would take the shortest method of giving them what they demand. Their communications would not be burdened with long strings of adjectives that add nothing to the strength and clearness of what they write. They do little else than waste time, and ink and paper.

This is the way it reads up North, no further in that direction than Cincinnati: "Sister Dorothy Coy, one of Dr. Stephenson's workers in England, is visiting friends in this country, and spending some time in looking through our various deaconess institutions. Sister Dorothy has charge of a Home in Leicester." We hope our sisters will not be uneasy. In a little while some Southern editors will be saying similar things. Then we will be happy.

THE PRESIDING ELDERSHIP.

The presiding eldership is almost as old as American Methodism. There is not a church in the whole connection that has not felt its influence for good; not one that would have been as well off as it is but for this strong arm of the service. Yet there are those among us who neither understand its functions, nor appreciate its value. They seem not to know that in an Episcopal Church, with an itinerant ministry, such as ours, the presiding eldership is indispensable.

In considering the question, let it be understood that we are looking at the office, not at the men who fill it. The presiding elder is one thing, the presiding eldership is another. We desire this distinction kept in mind because too many intelligent people believe that the value of the office is largely, if not altogether measured by the men who fill it. Men inferior in point of learning and preaching ability are sometimes put in the office, and because of this, they conclude that the office itself is second-rate. Hence, when a man is taken from a first-class pastoral charge and appointed presiding elder, they think he has been degraded—reduced from a higher to a lower rank. The fact is just the reverse.

Why this false notion prevails is because the presiding elder, in the administration of his office, has less to do directly with the spiritual interests of the pastoral charges than with the temporal. He does not come in as close contact with the people as does the pastor. And the notion is confirmed, especially in our cities, by the fact that he is not always a first-class preacher. Take the two facts together, and the discount, both of the man and the office, is natural to one who knows but little, and, perhaps, cares but little for the episcopal form of government. It occurs also occasionally that a man is appointed to the office who is not popular as a pastor, or who, for some cause, is deemed unfit for anything except presiding elder. Let that notion become current in any community, and the best man in Southern Methodism would be discounted were he appointed to a district.

Personally, we are unable to certify that any Bishop in our church ever appointed a man to the presiding eldership merely to shelve him, or because he was unacceptable as a pastor; but the idea prevails, and the fact that inferior men fill the office while better men fill the pastoral charges, stations and circuits, gives some countenance to the notion. We have seen the time more than once when we felt sure the Bishop would have done the right thing had he exercised his authority and "put brains in the saddle" (and kept them there), as a brother in Arkansas advised Bishop Morrison to do; but not having been called to advise, we kept silent.

The presiding elder is higher in rank than other elders, only because he is appointed to preside. This is understood among well-informed Methodists to mean, not only that he is to preside over Quarterly Conferences and other official gatherings of his district, but that he is to take a general oversight of everything connected with the church inside the bounds of his district. But he is more than a superintendent. He is the representative of the Episcopacy, bound by appointment to the office to keep the Bishop informed "of the state of his district." He is also the Bishop's adviser—selected by the Bishop for this purpose. As such, he stands between the people on the one hand, and the preachers on the other, and having knowledge of the whole district, and of each charge and each preacher in his district, he is the only man competent to advise as to the fitness of men for certain places, and the fitness of places for certain men. The Bishop's acquaintance is necessarily limited, and he must depend upon the presiding elders for information, and we suppose that nine times out of ten he follows their advice. This is the reason why there is such general satisfaction with the appointments, and such general success in the work. Everybody knows that dissatisfaction is the exception, not the rule.

Objection to the presiding eldership, as far as we know, is confined to the cities and larger towns. Officials think they are better able to suit themselves in the selection of a pastor than any presiding elder or Bishop. And they object to the cost, which, they say, is too great for the service rendered. The first-named objection is the outgrowth of the spirit of independence, and is utterly subversive of our itinerancy and the scriptural method of supplying the church with pastors. This view can not be sympathized with nor adopted without a complete change of constitutional Methodism. To act upon it without law is, in a measure, treason to our form of government. The second objection grows out of a narrow view or disregard of our connectional system. In Methodism we cherish the missionary spirit, and work for the general good. Our purpose is to give the same kind and quality of service to one part of the work as to another. What some charges lack in the way of an able and experienced pastor, is largely made up by the service of the presiding elder once a quarter. In many charges wholly unable to pay either a pastor or presiding elder, the coming of the presiding elder is the event of the year to the church in which the Quarterly Conference meets. And our city churches ought to remember that in paying largely for the presiding elder's support, though they may not realize the worth of their money in his services, they are bearing the burdens of others less fortunate than themselves. Thus matters are equalized. We know no city church that declines outright to assist their poor brethren, but the complaints sometimes heard concerning the heavy tax gives rise to the suspicion that there is a desire to get rid of the presiding eldership. To effect that would be a death-blow to our itinerancy.

It is often the case that a wise and consecrated presiding elder is a better judge of the needs of a church, and of the man suitable to serve it, than the members of any church can be. Not only so, but he sometimes sees and frankly confesses that the man needed is either not to be had, or that he is unavailable because another church has prior and higher claims. In that event our economy allows the Bishop to draw on another Conference, and he wisely exercises the transfer power. This shows the wisdom of our connectional system.

Untold difficulties would be encountered in supplying our work but for the presiding eldership. If there are difficulties in working our machinery as it is, we had better endure them for the sake of the advantages we have than "fly to those we know not of."

PLASTER-CASTS OF THE PAST.

"Do, somebody, rise up and save us out of the hands of these unscrupulous adventurers, who have a marvelous ambition to show the world how they can mold the Methodism of to-day on the plaster-casts of the past." So spoke "one of the best women of Ohio" a few years since in the Western Christian Advocate. Her object was to "prevent abuses by stimulating existing agencies." Her fears were aroused by the introduction of the order of deaconess in the Methodist Episcopal Church.

This good sister could see no reason why the talents of consecrated women might not be utilized, and their work systematized so as to enable them to accomplish the greatest amount of good. They might visit the sick and poor, and minister to their necessities under the direction of a wise and judicious pastor. To this nobody could object. But "an order of women" specially set apart for the work struck our Ohio sister as reflecting on the mass of Christian women in the church, because it assumed that they had "neither the wisdom nor grace to lead independent, devoted Christian lives under the ordinary rules of church government without special supervision." "Besides," she said, "it assumes that a few people have a sufficient surplus of these desirable graces to supply the lack of the less favored."

There are plenty of godly women in our churches with gifts and graces which peculiarly fit them for waiting on the sick and visiting the poor. They are in all communities, and well known to pastors and physicians. To systematize the work of such, to put means in their hands, and afford them all necessary help, can not be wrong. There is danger, though, of gathering in a class of enthusiasts who, influenced by their surroundings and the consecration service, may assume sanctity and prerogatives never intended by those instrumental in securing and legalizing the order. The danger is not lessened, but augmented by building them homes, and designating them as "the sisterhood," dressing them in a garb betokening their calling, etc. The Ohio lady says, "We want no sisterhoods in Methodism." On this side of the great Ohio we hear a loud Amen!

It would hardly be necessary to caution any body of Protestants, let alone Methodists, about "molding" their churches "on the plaster-casts of the past," were it not for the solemn awe inspired in some by the presence of Roman Catholic sisters on our streets. We question not the sincerity of those who take the veil, and seclude themselves from the world; but the garb they wear, their manner of life, and the fact of their withdrawal from society, proclaim them, in the estimation of the ignorant and unthinking, as saints in hoods, and too holy to mingle with their kind. But is Methodism to day so dead, or so busy about other things, that she must lay hold of her young women, dress them in sombre garb, or tag them with a piece of ribbon, and send them out in feeble imitation of the sisters, in order to compete with superstitious Romanism? We do not believe it. And if our sisters feel the fire burning in their bones, and are anxious to work for the Master, even to the point of sacrifice, why, just let them work. Every alley in our city slums is open. They need no introduction, no pass-word, no police attendant. All they have to do is to don a hood, a quaint bonnet, or a badge, and they are as safe and as good as any nun or deaconess on earth. Let them try it!

We are willing to see all our women at work, in an organized capacity, if need be, under the direction of our pastors and Quarterly Conferences, but we want no nuns, no imitation of nuns under the name of deaconess. We want no "plaster-casts of the past" in our church. Honestly, we do not believe the state of the church or of society demands such a perversion of the duties of our women. To become a deaconess, even after the order of the Methodist Episcopal Church, will not add one whit to the sanctity and usefulness of a good woman who purposes giving her life to Christ and his cause. That hundreds can be so persuaded we have no doubt, just as Roman Catholic girls are persuaded to take the veil, and for the same reason.

Of course, we know that the idea of Romanizing the deaconess into anything like a nun is repudiated. Our sisters and brethren who have their hearts set on a separated and consecrated order have no notion of anything of the kind, but, say what they please, they are wholly unable to show that the deaconess movement is not a movement from the home, from wifehood, from motherhood—in a word, from every sphere God, in his wisdom, designed women to fill. A good woman can be a servant of the church, and work in any capacity, and in any place that is open to her, without being a deaconess; but she can not be a deaconess in the modern sense without making sacrifices that God does not demand, and the church has no right to exact. To turn even one from her God-given mission is to rob the home, and thus do violence to society.

This matter would not look so frightful to us were it not for the fact that the promoters of the scheme propose to take young women and train them for the work. True, they do not propose to send them out until they reach the age of twenty-five. But the training is to go through years, and they must needs commence years before they reach the age of twenty-five. It is true also, we are assured, that no life-vows will be required. The women may leave the order at any time after a few years, and take up home-building, if they desire. But how many, after years of such tuition as they would receive at a training-school for deaconesses, would ever desire to make a home? Wifehood, motherhood, and home-making, we imagine, are not subjects enlarged upon at a deaconess' training-school. And yet these promoters are going to send out deaconesses to teach people how to keep house and rear children. Of course, old bachelors think they know exactly how to train children, and we suppose old maids are quite as wise as old bachelors. Old maids are not plentiful among us. Let us wait awhile before we make deaconesses of the few we have.

NEW ORLEANS PREACHERS' MEETING.

There is always a deep interest on the part of each pastor in the weekly Preachers' Meetings, especially the first meeting of the month, as this hour is given to devotional fellowship and the work accomplished during the past month.

The past month, judged by the reports given, has been one of unusual activity in New Orleans Methodism.

Every pastor present reported special evangelical services held during the past month, with one exception, though some of the services were for children only. Bro. Wynn, the beloved pastor of Louisiana Avenue, stated he had several conversions. Bro. Johnson, of Carrollton, reported two additions and a special revival service in progress for the children. Pastor of Parker Memorial reported a two weeks' meeting at his church, resulting in 12 applications for church membership. The Algiers pastor, Rev. K. W. Dodson, reported 10 applicants as the present results of his special services. Rev. J. F. Foster stated 27 children took a stand for Christ on Decision Day, 14 of whom had been received into the church. Special services for the children at Felicity resulted in 10 applications for membership. Dr. LaPrade reported 2 additions and 11 applications.

New Orleans Methodism had over 60 applications for church membership during the past month.

"FILTHY BISHOPS."

Dr. H. R. Withers, of the Little Rock Conference, has written under title of "Filthy Bishops" a pamphlet in defense of our Bishops against the unjust and shameful attacks of the Rev. H. C. Morrison, editor of the Pentecostal Herald. It is written in the forcible and lucid style for which Dr. Withers is so well noted. It is good reading, and will be the more appreciated by those who do not know Dr. Withers when they learn that he is an ardent advocate of the "second blessing." The pamphlet sells for 25 cents a copy. Address the author, Rev. H. R. Withers, D. D., Dyersburg, Tenn.

PERSONAL.

The annual meeting of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, North Mississippi Conference, will be held at Grenada, June 4—not June 6.

Rev. S. B. Myers has just closed a meeting at Corinth, Miss., in which he was assisted by Bro. J. B. Culpepper and son. As a result, one hundred applied for membership in the various churches. Sixty were received into the Methodist Church last Sunday.

About $1,600,000 has been collected, cash and subscription, for the Twentieth Century Thank-offering, M. E. Church, South—$100,000 more than the amount asked for. It is thought that the Fund will probably reach $2,000,000 when the returns are all received.

Rev. W. M. Young, in a note dated the twenty-ninth ultimo, informed us that Mrs. Ella Cameron, wife of Rev. Thos. Cameron, had a slight stroke of paralysis on the preceding Friday, and that Bro. Cameron was not well. Will the brethren remember these loved ones in their prayers?

Dr. F. N. Parker informs us of the death of Mrs. Walker, widow of the Rev. Dr. J. B. Walker, long a prominent and useful member of the Louisiana Conference. She died near Mississippi City, Miss., April 29, 1902. We expect some friend acquainted with our departed sister to furnish a memoir.

Ex-Gov. Jackson, of Maryland, recently donated to Bishop Wilson, of our church, an elegant home in Baltimore. The property is finely located, and is valued at $20,000. We get this item from the press dispatches of May 1. We rejoice with Bishop Wilson and his family in their good fortune.

Mr. Jno. T. Buck, chairman of Executive Committee of Mississippi Sunday-school Association, desires us to give notice that the State is entitled to thirty-six delegates to the International Sunday-school Convention, to meet at Denver, June 26. He requests that all workers who can go as delegates to send their names to him as soon as possible. Address him at Jackson, Miss.

The venerable Dr. B. M. Palmer, pastor of First Presbyterian Church, was struck by an electric car, in this city, on Monday evening. His right leg was fractured, three toes on his left foot crushed, and he has two contusions on the head, face and arms. He passed through the ordeal with remarkable fortitude, and is resting easy. We trust that the prayers for his recovery may be answered.

We call special attention to the card of Rev. J. B. Kent in reference to accident insurance. Bro. Kent is a well-known preacher, for some time a member of the Louisiana Conference. The company he represents offers the very best and cheapest form of accident insurance and method of identification in case of serious accident or death should occur among strangers. Correspond with Bro. Kent.

Dr. C. G. Andrews, son of the late Dr. C. G. Andrews, of the Mississippi Conference, was graduated in April from the Memphis Hospital Medical College after a three years' course in that institution. He received the highest honors from one of the chairs of medicine, and was appointed house surgeon to St. Joseph's Hospital, and also interne to the city hospital. He will serve for a year at the former hospital, preparing himself for the practice of his chosen profession.

The Names.

In publishing Brother N. G. Augustus' note last week we omitted the names of the brethren who joined him in "requesting the preparation" of the anonymous document alluded to by us in our issue of Jan. 9, 1902 (not Dec. 12, 1901, as stated in our issue of April 10, past). We notified Brother Augustus in advance that the names would be omitted, stating at the same time that if he insisted, we would print the following week. He insists, and we comply with his request. The names are as follows:

"Col. J. G. Hamilton and Rev. T. W. Dye, of Durant; Dr. J. Y. Murry, of Ripley; Dr. J. W. Sharp, of Wall Hill; Dr. F. P. Boatner, of Potts Camp; Rev. J. W. Anderson, of Byhalia; Hon. F. J. McDonnell, of Okolona, Miss., and others"

We intended no offense to Brother Augustus by omitting the names. We simply thought it was unnecessary to give them to the public. We still think so.

NOTES.

The Epworth League Educational Fund continues to grow. Has your League taken its part yet?

The preliminary announcement of the Tri-State Epworth Conference is out. The Programme Committee has planned a feast for the Leaguers of Mississippi, Alabama and Louisiana.

The President of the General Epworth League Board, Bishop Candler, and Dr. H. M. DuBose, General Secretary, have been invited to attend the Tri-State Epworth League Conference.

The Epworth Leagues of New Orleans are planning to put up a chapel for mission work.

The death of Miss Estelle Boothe, of Sardis, Miss., will be a great loss to the Epworth League cause. Her work was among the Juniors. She had been selected to take charge of the Junior work at the next Tri-State Conference.

To the Pastors and Presidents of Epworth Leagues of Louisiana:

I would respectfully call your attention to the fact that the State dues of five cents per capita for State League expenses are now due for the current year. Some of the Leagues are behind one year and some two years in the payment of these dues. Will the pastors please urge upon their Leagues the payment of these dues, that President Carter and his assistants be not handicapped in their plans for State League work? Make all remittances payable to

C. B. HICKS, State Treasurer.

Notices.

The Woman's Home Mission Society, Mississippi Conference, will meet in Port Gibson, Thursday, May 15 at 8 P. M. Every auxiliary is urged to send a delegate. The Conference at Richmond showed wonderful progress throughout the church. Come praying for a blessing on the work of home missions in Mississippi. ADDIE PURNELL, Pres.

MRS. CLARA COPE, Sec.

The meeting of the Board of Missions of the North Mississippi Conference is changed from May 13 and 14 to June 3 and 4. This change has been made for the purpose of securing a representation from the Parent Board, and for the convenience of pastor and people at Grenada.

Impure Baking Powder Seized.

The New York papers report that the Health Department of that city has seized as dangerous to health nearly two tons of cheap mixtures sold for baking powder, and dumped them into the offal scow to be destroyed. More of the powder was found in a Sixth avenue department store. The report of the analysis of the Health Department stated that it was "an alum baking powder" containing alum and pulverized rock.

The different Health Authorities seem to have different ways of repressing the sale of bad baking powders. In England they have prosecuted the grocers under the general law and broken up the traffic. In Missouri the sale of alum baking powder is actually prohibited by law. In New York they seize the unwholesome stuff and cast it into the river, without any discussion. The latter way is certainly effective.

The alum baking powders are usually offered at a low price, ten to twenty cents a pound, or with some prize, as a temptation to the housewife.

Consumers can protect themselves by buying only high-grade baking powder of established name and reputation. Do not be tempted by the grocer to take something else as "just as good" or "our own brand," for the trials show that the grocer himself is often deceived by unscrupulous makers and is selling an alum powder without knowing it.

There are several good powders on the market; let the housekeeper insist on having what she knows is right, and not be induced to risk the life of the family for an imaginary saving of a few cents.

The Mississippi Orphans' Home.

DEAR DOCTOR BOSWELL: I desire to give notice through the ADVOCATE that the regular annual meeting of the Board of Directors will take place at 9 A. M. on Wednesday, May 21, at the Home in Water Valley. Each and every member is earnestly requested to be present.

A LETTER TO OUR READERS.

NEW HAVEN, Addison Co., Vt.
Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

Gentlemen:—About a year ago I was suffering from what I supposed was rheumatism. I became so bad that I could hardly get on my feet from a sitting position. I run down in weight from one hundred and ninety-five to a hundred and forty-five pounds. I tried different kinds of medicine, but received little or no help. I saw Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root highly recommended for kidney trouble, but I never had any idea that my kidneys were effected. I thought I would try a fifty-cent bottle of Swamp-Root and see what the effect would be. I commenced taking it according to directions and in a few days I saw that it was helping me. I used the fifty-cent bottle and then bought two more dollar bottles, and they completely cured me. I have got back to my original weight, one hundred and ninety-five pounds, and I am a thorough advocate of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. Very truly,

WM. M. PARTCH.
Feb. 17, 1902.

You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, sent absolutely free by mail, also a book telling all about Swamp-Root. If you are already convinced that Swamp-Root is what you need, you can purchase the regular fifty-cent and one dollar size bottles at the drug stores everywhere. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Home Circle.

A Guilty Conscience.

Mrs. Martin stepped out of the storeroom door onto the clay porch at the end of the long grass house, and locked the door securely behind her. For it was down on the Kongo river, in Africa, and she knew by experience that everything possible must be kept under lock and key.

"I guess I'll go around back of the house," she thought, "and then the baby won't see me, and cry."

For a part of the way there was barely enough room to walk, so she seldom went that way; but, as she did so, she caught sight of a piece of brown paper, folded, and sticking in one of the palm ribs which held the grass secure along the back side.

"I wonder what that can be?" she mused. "Who could have put it there? I guess I'll look and see what it is."

She took it down and unfolded it, and found, to her great surprise, a little lump of butter inside. Now, butter costs sixty cents a pound on the Kongo, and missionaries usually make a little of it go as far as possible. Mrs. Martin tried, as a rule, not to use more than one pound of it a month.

But even while the stealing of the butter was a grave offense, it looked so funny there in the paper that Mrs. Martin smiled.

"Which of the boys could have done this?" she asked herself. And then a bright thought struck her. "I know how I'll find out. I'll just put it on the table without saying a word, and I can tell by the way the boys look at it which one of them is guilty."

Then she turned the corner, and appeared at the back end porch, where the tea-table was already spread, and her guest waiting for her. But there were no boys in sight.

She laid the greasy paper down in the center of the table, took her place, asked a blessing, and began to eat, chatting to her visitors about the news.

Not long after the little cook came along, glanced at the table, and passed into the house.

He saw the butter, and said to himself: "The teacher must have brought it with his food for the journey."

Mrs. Martin had noticed him, and knew that he had never seen the paper before.

Soon the jackwash came along the front porch, looking very dignified and the soul of innocence. She kept on chatting, and at the same time watched him closely. He, too, glanced at the table and saw the butter—and had seen them before. But he passed on and into the house for a few minutes, and then came out again and looked at the butter, and then at Mrs. Martin, and back at the butter. The expression on his face had grown so funny that Mrs. Martin could not help but smile, and say, "What is it, Matundu?"

"Nothing," he replied, and turned away.

Soon after he came back that same way, and looked so questioningly at the little paper, that she said: "You can have that butter, Matundu."

He shrugged his shoulders.

"I don't want it."

"Don't you like butter?" she asked. "Take it."

He took it, and went out to the cook-house, and she did not see him again.

An hour or two later the little cook came up to her.

"Mama, Matundu is very angry."

"Is he?" she asked, in surprise.

"Yes; he says that he didn't steal that butter, and that he will not stay and be accused of stealing. He says that he will take his book and go to town, rather than be called a thief."

Mrs. Martin laughed heartily.

"Why, I didn't call him a thief, nor accuse him of stealing. I only gave the butter to him, and asked him whether he didn't like it. I didn't even say that any one stole the butter. His conscience must be guilty."

Matundu did not go to town, nor had he intended to go, for he knew that he was guilty.

"Be sure your sins will find you out."—The Midland.

A Brass-Button Hero.

Mama, Teddy and Baby Bess were visiting at grandpa's. One morning Teddy, proud and dignified, marched into the sitting-room to show off his new suit.

"Bless me," exclaimed grandpa, "if the boy has not got on his spread eagles!"

"And see the brass buttons, grandpa!"

"I should say so! And what a polish they have!" answered grandpa.

"And say, grandpa, you used to wear brass buttons, didn't you?"

"Yes, sir-ee, when I was a soldier."

"Then am I a soldier, grandpa?"

"Let me hear the man, woman or child who dare say you are not, and I'll take after them with my old musket," answered grandpa.

The next day, when Teddy and Betsy were out in the yard making friends with Patsy O'Brian, whose father worked on the farm, grandma's old goose and goslings passed by.

"Oo, oo!" gurgled Baby Betsy, as the big mother goose with her brood went marching by. "See, see! Pretty, pretty! I's doin' to have one."

But mother goose, when she saw the intention of Baby Betsy, thought differently, for, with a hiss like unto escaping steam, and a flap of her wings, she pounced on the astonished child, and knocked her over.

"O-o-o-o," screamed Betsy.

"O-o-o-o-o!" shrieked Teddy. And, as though pursued by a million irate old ganders, the frightened lad ran for a place of safety.

But Patsy was not frightened. "Hoot! ye auld spalpeen!" he exclaimed. "Clare oot o' here, or oi'll twist yer auld squawker into a necktie."

And while by the neck and wing Patsy was bearing away the angry old goose mother, grandpa, grandma and mama came running from the house to find out the cause of all the uproar.

"What's the matter?" asked grandma.

"O, nothin' much," answered Patsy, "only the jealous auld goose knocked the bebby down."

"And where is Teddy, the soldier?" questioned grandpa.

"Here, grandpa!" and Teddy, clothes, face and hands begrimed with dirt, crawled slowly out from the smoke-house.

"Then the general ran away from a goose, and also deserted his army, did he?" asked grandpa.

"I—I—wouldn't you have run, grandpa?"

"But Patsy didn't run, and Patsy's smaller and two years younger than you, Teddy, my lad."

"Didn't Patsy run?" the now crimson-faced Teddy asked.

"No," replied grandpa, "only to pick up the old goose and run her off. I tell you," laughed grandpa, "it takes more than a pair of suspenders, a blue suit and brass buttons to make a hero!"

"I—I see!" murmured Teddy.

How Cowslip Saved Him.

In the Highlands of Scotland it is a kindly custom to give names to the cows as well as other animals. A Scotch lad had three to care for, and all three had names. The red cow was Cowslip, the dun was Bell, and the black was Meadow-Sweets.

The cows knew their names like three children, and would come when called.

"One day," the boy tells us, "I was not with them, but had been given a holiday and gone up on the side of the hill. I climbed until I was so high that I got dazed, and lost my footing upon the rocks, and came tumbling down and snapped my ankle, so I could not move.

"It was very lonesome there. It seemed to me that it was hours that I lay there, hitching along among the bracken. I thought how night would come and nobody would know where I was. I could not move for the anguish of my foot. It was no use to call, for there was naught in sight save the crows, skirting against the sky. My heart was fit to break, for I was but a lad, and mother looked to me for bread. I thought I would never see home again.

"After awhile I spied a cow beneath, grazing on a slip of turf just between a rift and the hills. She was a good long way below, but I knew her. It was Cowslip!

"I shouted as loud as I could, Cowslip! Cowslip!! When she heard her name, she left off grazing and listened.

"I called again and again. What did she do? She just came toiling up and up—till she reached me. Those hill cattle are rare climbers.

"She made a great ado over me; licked me with her rough, warm tongue, and was as pleased and as pitiful as though I were her own. Then, like a Christian, she set up a moan and moaned—so long and so loud that they heard her in the vale below.

"To hear a cow mourning like that they knew meant that she was in trouble. So they came a-searching and seeking. They could see her red and white body, though they could not see me. So they found me, and it was Cowslip saved my life."—Southern Churchman.

Consequences.

In a country town, many years ago, some children were met for a social evening at an old farm-house, and while the sport was at its height a little boy thought it would be "funny" to draw a chair out from under a little girl, and let her sit down on the floor.

He watched his opportunity, and made the attempt; but the little girl, seeing what he was doing, jumped back into the chair, and, striking her spine upon one of the projections, broke her back. For seven years, from fourteen to twenty-one, she lay upon her bed, and during all that time was carried from her chamber to the parlor but once. Thirty years have passed; I have just returned from a visit to her sick chamber. Thirty years of disability and pain as the consequences of a thoughtless deed by a little boy. A few strangers minister to her daily wants, without whose aid she would be sent to the poorhouse or home for the wretched and homeless poor. Terrible consequences to follow a thoughtless act! Let boys be careful. Let all remember that consequences walk hand in hand with every deed, and that for all our deeds God will bring us into judgment.—Christian Era.

A HELPING FUND.

We have many calls to send the ADVOCATE to poor, aged persons at a reduced rate. This we always do. Are there not many persons, well-to-do in this world's goods, who will send us money—any sum they may see fit to give—to supply the ADVOCATE to persons who would like to have it, but are unable to pay anything? We will gladly send it to such for one dollar a year. We hope to get many responses to this appeal. Let those who respond designate the names of those to whom they desire the paper sent, or give the money to their pastors, and let them send the names. If names are not sent, the editor will do the best he can. Who will first respond?

OBITUARIES.

At the tender age of two years and three months THOMAS J. CONNELL, son of Will and Lula Poitevent Connell, of Shelby, Miss., departed this life, Oct. 23, 1901. Little Thomas was one of the brightest and sweetest little boys Shelby ever knew; the joy of his mother's heart, and the pride and hope of his father's life. No bereavement like unto this—the severing of the parental tie. The bliss of parenthood is the sweetest and most sublime of any mortals ever know, the severing of this tie the deepest sorrow of all, because there is no sorrow akin to that which follows bliss. In vain do the parents listen for the voice of their little songster, but could they look over into the heavenly land and see little Thomas in his radiant beauty, never to be sick any more, never to die any more, and never to be exposed to the temptations of earth, and know that he is saved, they could, and would, thank God for his safety. Of all words in the Bible, the word "saved" means the most; saved from trouble, saved from disease, saved from eternal darkness—saved! saved! Glorious comfort to aching hearts! This life is so short, eternity so long; soon we'll all be with little Thomas. Oh, the beauty of death in childhood! The selfishness of grieved hearts is swallowed up in thankfulness for the everlasting promise Christ gave on earth, "Suffer little children to come unto me, for of such is the kingdom of heaven." We know little "sunshine boy" is one of the brightest angels of the throng. Maybap his little sister was lonely without him; they are together. Lonely it is for those left behind, but what a strong link to draw them heavenward. The sweetest natures of this earth are sometimes the soonest and most apt to become corrupted by its evils. Heaven claims them because they are most fitted to go there, and who knows but that sometimes these beautiful natures are taken from evil to come. Let us trust in our compassionate Savior, and be happy we have one; earth's journey will soon be done with. Dear parents, look to the blue skies bending o'er you; little Thomas is beyond, and, perhaps, oftentimes with you. Hope in the present; trust in the future.

One who fondly loved him,

ROSA B. MAYERS.

Mrs. T. N. JACKSON died at her home on Tangipahoa, Jan. 15, 1902. She was born in Amite county, Jan. 28, 1850, and was the only daughter of Hon. J. M. and L. V. Causey—an honored and highly respected family of this county. She was educated at Silliman Institute, Clinton, La., and was married to T. N. Jackson at Woodland, La., on April 7, 1869. The following Fall she was baptized into the fellowship of New Providence Church by Elder James Newman. She was the mother of eight children—seven sons and one daughter; all living except baby Howard, by whose side her body is now resting to await the coming back to earth again of our Lord. Sister Jackson has three living brothers; Hon. W. I. Causey, of Amite county; Frank Causey, of McComb, and Louis Causey, of Forney, Texas. At the time of her death she was a member of Tangipahoa Church, and loved for her many graces of head and heart. All the children reached home in time to see her put to rest. The funeral services were conducted at the residence by Pastor Lane, and concluded at the grave by Rev. B. N. Hatch. It was beautiful to see the brothers and sisters of Tangipahoa Church, and others, weeping with Bro. Jackson. Some of the best of the earth live on Tangipahoa. The colored people went in crowds to the grave, and many of them wept as they turned away from one who had been kind to them in life. May God bless and comfort!

J. H. LANE.

Mrs. MATILDA M. PORTER (nee McGee) was born in Jones county, Ga., Jan. 1, 1823, and moved with her parents, Joseph and Susan McGee, to Noxubee county, Miss., and settled on what is known as Dancing Rabbit Creek, where she grew to young womanhood. She was married to Mr. A. A. Porter, Nov. 18, 1838, with whom she lived happily until death separated them, Nov. 3, 1886. Sister Porter was the mother of sixteen children, eight of whom preceded her, and eight are left behind to follow on. She joined the Methodist Church in early life, and was much devoted to her church and her interest to the end of her earthly pilgrimage. She was a true wife, a faithful mother, and a good neighbor. Sister Porter had been in feeble health for more than thirty years, but for seven weeks before the end came she suffered much, yet with Christian fortitude. She gave many evidences of her readiness for the change. She passed away at the home of her son, B. F. Porter, April 11, 1902. The writer preached her funeral on Saturday, April 12, at 11 A. M., at Oragan Church. Three of her sons (J. L., T. W., and B. F. Porter), with kindred many, and a number of neighbors and friends, were present, and bear witness of their esteem and respect to the Christian mother. Her body rests in the family lot in the cemetery near by. God bless the bereaved ones.

H. M. YOUNG, Pastor.

LILLIAN WALKER, the subject of this notice, was the baby daughter of Bro. Eddie and Sister Kate Williams; born Feb. 10, 1900, and died March 28, 1902. This precious little child was one of those bright, beautiful babies with just that amount of modest shyness to attract, first, the attention, and then the love of all with whom she was thrown. The youngest of four children, and at that most interesting age just learning to talk well and running round everywhere, we do not wonder that the hearts of these fond parents should seem almost crushed with sorrow; yet they sorrow not as those who have no hope. May His grace be all-sufficient for them in this dark hour, and enable them so to live and bring up the other dear little ones that after awhile they may form an unbroken family in heaven!

J. B. CASSITY.

Mrs. ANNIE M. MCCRARY (nee Payne) was born near Creole, Mobile county, Ala., Jan. 8, 1869; was married to Mr. Henry C. Brown, April 3, 1895, with whom she lived happily till Nov. 4, 1900, when he departed this life. Mrs. Brown remained a widow till March 5, 1902, when she was married to Mr. John M. McCrery. They had just planned a bright future when death claimed its victim, and Mrs. McCrary fell on sleep in her home in Lucedale, Miss., the thirty-first day of March, 1902. This lovely woman joined the M. E. Church, South, when a small girl, and lived a consistent member of the same till God took her. Those who knew her best loved her most, for her words were so gentle, her steps so soft, her voice so sweet, and her life so attractive. When the dreaded pneumonia placed his firm grip upon her tender form, medical aid was summoned, and kindly hands ministered unto her, but soon she found she must launch into eternity. When she felt that the end was near, she called her loved ones to her, and her parting words was a request to meet her in heaven. She leaves a husband, one brother and one sister, and many friends, to mourn their loss.

T. J. O'NEAL, P. C.

MARY T. LINDSAY was born near Woodville, Miss., Dec. 17, 1815; was married to Isaac B. Draughon, July 8, 1841, and died in holy triumph at her daughter's, McNair, Miss., March 19, 1902. As one of her loved ones, who knew her well, says: "She was a devoted Christian, and loved to do personal work for the Master. Her home was always the preacher's home. She was loyal and true to her pastor. The Bible was her daily companion and guide. The last chapter she read was Deut. vi. She marked the sixth and seventh verses. She proved by a life of consecrated obedience that she loved God supremely." In the death of this good woman there passes from earth to heaven one of the most interesting characters, one of the noblest of women. She had few superiors in those characteristics that go to make the perfect women, and the influence of her self-sacrificing Christian life will be felt forever in the communities in which she has lived. May her children and her children's children, to the latest generation, imitate her Christian example!

IRA B. ROBERTSON.

Miss MARY HARRIS, who was a pious and most excellent lady, died at her home in Marshall county, Miss., March 30, 1902. For more than sixteen years she had been a faithful member of the Methodist Church. The last twelve years of her life were spent in much physical pain. She endured afflictions patiently, kept close to her Lord, and came to the end of her journey in peace and joy. She was born in October, 1851, on the Grinstead plantation, on Pearl river, in Lawrence county, Miss. An adopted daughter and other relatives remain and mourn their loss. The Lord bless and lead them gently home.

Deafness Can Not Be Cured

by local applications, as they can not reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed, you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that can not be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

I hear men praying everywhere for more faith, but when I listen carefully and get at the real heart of their prayers, very often it is not more faith at all that they are wanting, but a change from faith to sight.—Phillips Brooks.

MISS MONIE BOWEY,

No. 38 Perry Street, DETROIT, MICHIGAN.

Miss Monie Bowey.

A couple of winters ago I slipped on a frozen sidewalk and fell flat on my back. On being examined I found that I had sustained internal injuries which laid me up for more than two months. After that I noticed that I had pains in the back and groin which I never had before. I doctored and doctored for several months but as the pains increased instead of growing better I decided that I was not having the right treatment. Reading in the papers of the wonderful cures performed by Wine of Cardui I wrote to one of the parties and received a very satisfactory reply and I immediately sent for some. In a very short time I felt generally better and after seven weeks faithful use I was once more well and strong. I have never had a sick hour since and I daily bless your splendid medicine.

MONIE BOWEY.

WINE OF CARDUI is one medicine that should always be kept on hand in every home for immediate use when female weakness first makes its appearance. Miss Bowey's painful and dangerous accident would not have resulted so seriously had she taken Wine of Cardui promptly.

Wine of Cardui makes women more womanly by curing their weakness and making them stronger. Wine of Cardui cured Miss Bowey. As a medicine for all women in every trying period of their lives can you think of a better medicine for yourself, your sister, your daughter or your mother? Can you think of a more acceptable present to give your friend than a bottle of this medicine which will bring her health and happiness? You are suffering? Your duty is to rid yourself of this pain. If your daughter, mother, sister or friend is sick and in need of relief, your duty is equally great to them. Many women, now well, owe their lives to friends who brought them Wine of Cardui.

Wine of Cardui is adapted to women at any age in any walk of life. For the working woman it gives her strength for her tasks and better treatment than a doctor for very small cost.

Your druggist will sell you a $1.00 bottle of Wine of Cardui. Secure the medicine today. Take it in the privacy of your home. Relief will come to you as surely as you take it.

We Have It at Last

For many years we have been trying to get a Bible containing exactly the features which, to our mind, would constitute as nearly as possible especially for the use of preachers and teachers. We have contracted for a large number of a Bible which we believe to be the nearest to a perfect book we have ever seen. It contains the AUTHORIZED VERSION, DICTIONARY OF PROPER NAMES, SUBJECT INDEX, CONCORDANCE, AND MAPS. The type is long primer, self-pronouncing. It is 6x8½ inches, and only 1 inch thick. Bound in the best levant morocco, divinity circuit (overlapping edges), calf lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges. By reason of the large number contracted for we are selling this splendid Bible at only a little more than half its regular price.

Our Price, Only $5.00

Postage 20 cents additional, if mailed.

Patent Thumb Index, 35 cents extra.

White Wyandottes.

BRED TO LAY.

I want you to know that BOSWELL'S White Wyandotte hens lay in the winter, when eggs are most in demand. Why go on raising common fowls when you may have these standard-bred birds and increase the egg-production so as to startle you? Mine are the world-famed Duston stock, vigorous and prolific, correct in every way. Enough said. Send me an order for eggs now, and hatch your fall-laying pullets.

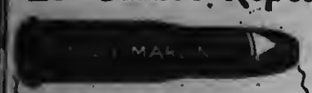
THE ORIGINAL

25 Calibre Repeater.



THE 25-20 MARLIN is one of the handiest arms made and accurate to 300 yards, with light report and little recoil. Its bullet is more reliable than a 22 calibre and the barrel does not foul as rapidly. It will kill cleanly and quickly without tearing. Smokeless powder can be used in a large variety of loads, and the ammunition is cheap.

ALL MARLINS

REV. WALKER'S

FAMOUS DYSPEPSIA CURE.

Famous for Glorious Achievements.

The recognized unfailing scientific Cure for Dyspepsia, Nervous Indigestion, Constipation, Acidity, and Bilious Colic. Relief in one minute, with first dose; quickly effects a permanent Cure. Never fails. Neutralizes and eradicates dyspeptic poisons. An absolute specific. Very palatable, perfectly harmless, as gentle as nature in effect. Neglected Dyspepsia and Indigestion produces "Bright's Disease," undermines the vital organs, overthrows the mental faculties, producing insanity and death.

Mr. J. G. Thompson, Ancleote, Fla., voluntarily writes: "I suffered agonies from Dyspepsia Walker's Famous Dyspepsia Cure quickly cured me. I gained 16 pounds in one month. My friends are astonished at my quick recovery. A wonderful medicine."

Mr. Leroy Turner, Sparta, Ga., "I could scarcely eat anything; two doses completely relieved me."

Box containing month's treatment, by mail, $1; checks, 10 cents extra. Address,

Rev. EDWARD H. WALKER,
Box 98, Atlanta, Ga.

A Chance to Make Money.

I have berries, grapes and peaches a year old, fresh as when picked. I used the California Cold Process. Do not heat or seal the fruit, just put it up cold, keeps perfectly fresh, and costs almost nothing; can put up a bushel in ten minutes. Last year I sold directions to over 120 families in one week; anyone will pay a dollar for directions when they see the beautiful samples of fruit. As there are many people poor like myself, I consider it my duty to give my experience to such, and feel confident anyone can make one or two hundred dollars round home in a few days. I will mail sample of fruit and full directions to any of your readers for nineteen (19) two-cent stamps, which is only the actual cost of the samples, postage, etc. FRANCIS CASEY, St. Louis, Mo.

ADVOCATE OFFER.

Magic White Soap, advertised in our columns, is manufactured in New Orleans by a responsible company, who can be relied on to do what is promised. The soap is what is claimed for it. There is none better on the market. A fair trial has been given it at the home of the editor, and the good wife, who knows what soap is, says "it is about the best she ever used." Our lady readers would do well to give this soap a trial. Send for a box of twenty bars—one dollar; charges paid by the manufacturer.

We make the following offer: We will furnish one box of this soap, and the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for one year, for $2.50, to new subscribers. We make the same offer to all who will pay up back dues, and send $2.50 additional. Cash must accompany the order. Address

JNO. W. BOSWELL,
512 Camp St., New Orleans.

One of the most progressive seedsmen in this country is Hon. John Lewis Childs, of Floral Park, N. Y. His large, elegant catalogue is sent free to all who apply, and it presents an array of choice new flower and vegetable seeds, bulbs, plants and fruits which is really exciting. Mr. Childs has been in business 26 years; is well known and thoroughly reliable.

I doctored for a year and a half for what the doctor told me was gall stones. I had read so much about the relief Ripans Tabules gave other people I thought I would get some. I have used eight of the five cent boxes and have not had a spell since.

One Gives Relief.

At druggists.

ANOTHER NOTICE.

Requests for special copies of the ADVOCATE come to us so often that they are burdensome, and we again remind our friends that in making such requests they must send FOUR CENTS for each copy. We can not afford to "send bill," as we are sometimes asked to do. Please, friends, bear these things in mind.

Vaccinating Bugs.

The science of medicine has reached wonderful perfection. The microbe theory in certain diseases has been proven true beyond doubt. The inoculation of chintz bugs with the microbes of contagious diseases, in order that epidemics may spread among the little pests is a practical method now in use. Dr. D. M. Bye, the eminent specialist for cancer, says that dosing with medicines, cutting with knives or burning with plasters to cure cancer is no longer to be recognized, but that he has discovered a combination of soothing balmy oils which kill the cancer microbes and cure the most malignant cases. Those who read this will confer a great favor by cutting it out and sending it to a friend who is afflicted. Book sent free, giving particulars and prices of Oils. Address Dr. D. M. BYE CO., Lock Box 462, Dallas, Tex.

A Sufferer for Twelve Months.

Every other had failed: "We had just as soon be without quinine as to be out of Hughes' Chill Tonic. One of the most wonderful cures of chills and fever came under my observation. A man suffering for about twelve months from a most obstinate attack of chills and fever tried every remedy that he could hear of, all to no purpose. I persuaded him to try a bottle of Hughes' Tonic; from that time, over twelve months ago, he has not had a chill." Sold by Druggists—50c. and $1.00 bottles.

THE THRUST OF A LANCE does not hurt more than the abdominal pains following the eating of improper food. Quick relief come with the use of Perry Davis' Painkiller. Always keep it in the house.

"Potatoes."

We once heard of a man who ate potatoes for breakfast, but at lunch his wife always gave him a nice dish of potatoes, while for dinner the dear woman thought he would enjoy nothing more than a good square meal of potatoes.

This poor man died.

My dear madam, have mercy on the poor man who has to eat potatoes all the time; give him a change. Order a "New Orleans Cook Book." It is full of the best recipes by the best cooks of this Southland—95 pages—and was designed to be serviceable. Send twenty cents in stamps to the ADVOCATE office, and secure one of these valuable books before the limited supply is exhausted.

The Wife's Health

Has much to do with the attractiveness and happiness of home. If she is physically harrassed and distressed she would be more than human to never complain, never get peevish and cross. Men do not want angels, but wives who are

"Not too bright or good
For human nature's daily food,
Homely pleasures, simple wiles,
Praise, blame, love, kisses, tears and smiles."

To keep husbands loyal, affectionate and home-loving, wives must be companionable, must have part in the pursuits and pleasures of their mates. Any woman can be simply a wife—the marriage ceremony settles that—but to secure loyal and enduring affection she must be more than mere wife, she must be friend, partner, comrade, chum. To do this she must be healthy, strong and able to "keep the pace" with him. Her greatest danger lies in her liability to special derangements from which he is exempt. To guard against this the judicious use of G. F. P. is advisable and it would be prudent and wise to keep it in the house.

G. F. P.—Gerstle's Female Panacea, cures irregular, scanty, too profuse and painful monthly periods; uterine and ovarian irritations; ulcers, displacements and falling of the womb; whites and all unnatural discharges; frigidity, barrenness and all impediments to maternity: also all associate ailments of the private organs of women. At all stages of menstrual life, from budding womanhood until after the changes that end special womanly functions, it is the best friend of and remedy for womankind. Its use strengthens all womanly organs, regulates and renders natural all sexual functions. It is sold at drug stores for $1.00 a bottle. Buy it, try it, and you will find those statements are true, for it is reliable and will not disappoint.

All ladies who are not perfectly right and well in a womanly way should write to the Ladies' Health Club, care of L. Gerstle & Co., Chattanooga, Tenn., for free medical advice and instruction.

IS THERE NO REMEDY?

BY REV. P. H. FONTAINE.

There is no doubt that intemperance is one of the greatest, if not the greatest, sins of the present day. To nearly everyone intemperance means the excessive use of alcoholic stimulants; and, further, temperance is used by a multitude to express total abstinence. The Methodist Church, as a church, has always declared that alcoholic liquors are not to be drank as beverages. There have, perhaps, always, as to day, been some false to their vows, but the great majority of Methodists to-day stand for the utter abolition of the liquor traffic.

This being my fourth charge in New Orleans, I have had ample opportunity to study this great problem — how to abolish the liquor traffic. Just think of it: there are more than 5,000 places where intoxicating liquors are sold in this city! I do not know a single large grocery here that does not sell liquor.

I shall never forget the impression made upon me when I first entered a grocery here to make a purchase, and found myself right alongside a bar. I immediately went out, but to my intense sorrow and amazement found that, go where I would, there was the bar attached to the grocery. Talking to many grocers on the subject, they tell me that a grocery that does not sell liquor can not compete with one that does. But is there not a remedy? Shall we "temperance" people be compelled to enter these groceries with bars attached, or, worse than entering ourselves, be compelled to send our children, where they will see men and women drinking, and children with buckets and pitchers bearing away this liquid damnation? It is true that the larger groceries have solicitors who go to their customers' homes and take their orders, but there are occasions when it is necessary for the father, mother, or child, to go for something to the grocery.

Now, there are in New Orleans 2,133 Methodist Church members, and we are upholding the liquor business by patronizing these barroom groceries. But what can we do?

Back of the retail grocer is the wholesale grocer, and every wholesale grocer in New Orleans sells liquor, unless I am very much in error; and having lived at the wholesale district for two years, I know something about them. Is there not a Methodist with money and brains capable of conducting a wholesale grocery? Would not our preachers urge their people in Mississippi and Louisiana to buy from this wholesale merchant, and would not our people, as well as other denominations, come to his support? There could be established here in New Orleans a first-class retail grocery, which could supply the needs of those opposed to the liquor traffic.

God grant that this subject may take hold upon the hearts and minds of all who read it, and find expression in the enterprises mentioned!

PRESIDING ELDERS.

BY REV. B. H. SHEPPARD.

MR. EDITOR: I read your editorial in the ADVOCATE, of May 8, and headed "Presiding Eldership." It put me to thinking, and so I will pen some of these thoughts for publication. You seem to think that the only trouble, or, rather, that the greatest trouble, is to be found in the towns and cities. But I suppose that, according to the place of country or city, so will the complaint be made to suit the ideas of each. But as the presiding eldership is nearly as old as our American Methodism, it has become such an arm of strength that we can not let it go. But in all charity to all men, is there not sometimes mistakes made in the men appointed to the office, and sometimes in their seeming abuse of the office? And, first, not every Methodist preacher is such a man of affairs as will adapt him to the work of presiding elder. I doubt whether the man that is a failure as a pastor is a success as a presiding elder, though we sometimes have such a condition suggested. But the presiding elder should have preaching ability and business sense enough to make him a success as a preacher or pastor. And if he has this, he will have enough to make him a success as a presiding elder. Then, if he is to properly represent the pastor and the people to the Bishop, he should be acquainted with them both, and not only with the people, but also with their ability as well as their willingness to support the pastor. In some localities one hundred members can give the pastor an abundant support, while in another it will take five hundred members to support the same pastor. Again, he should be a man of the people. Our country people are often uncultured, and if the presiding elder fails to notice them, they draw the conclusion that he feels superior to them, and the pastor must explain for the elder, when, had the elder acted as he would as a pastor, no explanation would have been necessary. And herein is the key to the situation. After all, he is a pastor in the fullest sense, and should know and love the flock of the district of which he has oversight.

The Seashore District Conference.

The Seashore District Conference met at the Methodist Church in Brooklyn, Miss., Wednesday, April 30, 1902; Rev. J. M. Morse, P. E., in the chair. Rev. W. M. Williams was elected secretary, and Rev. G. H. Thompson, assistant. All of the pastors were present except three. There were a few laymen present. Bro. Morse makes a good presiding officer, though he is not infallible.

Brooklyn is a nice mill-town on the G. and S. I. R. R., about twenty miles south of Hattiesburg. Our church has a nice new church, well finished and lighted. Bro. Ellis and his good people had made ample preparation for our entertainment, and everyone was made comfortable and fed well. Our home was with Bro. D. L. Gay, whose wife was Miss Bessie Clark, whom we had known in Newton county on our first work.

The reports from the different charges were very gratifying. Almost everyone reported increase on all lines. The spirituality was specially emphasized. There seem to be building and improvement in churches and parsonages on every work. This coast country is more hopeful than ever before. No complaint from any preacher about not getting a good support.

We had Missionary Day, Thursday, and Sunday-school Day, Friday. The discussion of the various topics was earnest and spirited, which gave life and interest to each service.

We were glad to have with us Miss Bettie Hughes, our returned missionary from China, who gave us much valuable information in regard to our mission work in China.

We also had with us Bros. R. B. Downer, of the Forest district, and C. A. Powell, of the Vicksburg district.

The preaching was done by Bros. G. H. Galloway, G. H. Thompson, W. M. Sullivan, W. H. Huntley, J. S. Parker, W. T. Griffin, B. S. Rayner, W. L. Hightower, W. H. Van Hook, and J. M. Morse. The preaching was good and spiritual. Bro. Griffin represented the Orphans' Home, and secured nearly $300 in cash and pledges.

E. McGilvry was licensed to preach, and W. B. Jones recommended for admission on trial, and T. J. Norsworthy for readmission.

We had quite a discussion as to whether we should license anyone, or recommend for admission on trial, who was not before the District Conference in person. It was a hard fight, and we give notice now that hereafter those who wish these honors conferred upon them, "must" be before the Conference in "person."

Delegates to the Annual Conference were as follows: John McClond, T. M. Evans, B. R. Blankenship, and J. A. Baxter.

The trustees of the district parsonage were directed to raise $600, to be expended in furnishing the parsonage and for sewerage.

A resolution was passed commending Judge Neville for his faithfulness in executing the law, and pledging him our hearty support in his efforts to enforce the law in this district.

Columbia was selected as the place for holding the next District Conference. We give you an invitation now to be present.

Upon the whole, we had a very pleasant and profitable session. We feel sure that we were all strengthened and encouraged. God is manifestly with us.

W. M. WILLIAMS, Sec.

The Epworth League in Mississippi.

My purpose in writing these lines is to call attention to our lack of thorough organization in the State, and to urge our Leaguers, both clerical and lay, to co-operate in this work.

I am really sorry that our friends have undertaken to hold an annual Tri-State League Conference at Seashore Camp Ground. A multiplication of such movements necessarily divides our forces and dissipates our strength. Very few young people can, or will, attend both the State and the Tri-State Conferences, and the result is, both limp for want of better support.

Seven years ago the first State Conference for Mississippi was held at Grenada, and about 160 delegates were present. A more instructive, inspiring and helpful Conference I never attended in my life. Bishop Galloway, Drs. Steel, Murrah and Featherstun; Judge Estes, Mr. Pyle, of Inka; Dr. R. W. Jones, of Oxford, and a host of others were at their best, and on Sunday afternoon the spiritual tide rose higher than I ever saw it anywhere else in all my life. The next year our cause limped for the lack of proper attention. The following year it rose to high-water mark, and about 400 were at Water Valley. Since that Conference there has never been the intelligent zeal or enthusiasm in the work that we had before. To-day the League is in the narrows between the Scylla of ecclesiastical narrowness and the Charybdis of hurtful worldliness, and it has been left to drift alone. A few brethren and sisters are afraid the League will ruin the spirituality of the church, and they never fail to give it a slap in the face. A number of young people regard the League as too insipid for them, and they rush into the popular forms of amusement to their hearts' content.

I hold that it is the greatest unkindness to these few young people who are really trying to do something for themselves and the League to receive the harsh criticism and the merciless judgments which are passed upon them. What are we doing for our young people? Brother pastor, you whose eyes follow these lines, do your young people dance and play cards? Have you been able to save them of their worldliness? If not, how do you propose to do it?

I confess that mistakes have been made, and improper leaders have been in command, but it is no cure for these ills when we offer criticism upon the methods of this work. We have discouraged the few young people we had in this work by finding fault with men and methods with which they had nothing to do. Now, can't we come together in a State League Conference, project our work on a better basis, and go forward to greater success?

Surely, there is a place for the League. There is no place in the organized forms of the church to train our young people either to become efficient leaders of religious services, or in good literature, except in the League. Let each read the chapter on the League in the Discipline, and govern himself accordingly.

Missionary Institute.

The Missionary Institute of the Sardis district, North Mississippi Conference, convened in Senatobia, Miss., April 15 and 16, at 9 A. M.; the Rev. Dr. W. T. J. Sullivan, P. E., in the chair. The opening exercises were conducted by our sweet-spirited D. W. Babb, of Batesville, Miss. The Rev. R. M. Evans was elected secretary.

The programme as rendered:

"Christ and Missions," D. W. Babb.

"The Church and Missions," S. M. Thames.

"Christian Conscience and Missions," L. M. Lipscomb.

"Christian Education and Missions," R. A. Ellis.

"Quarterly Conference Responsibility," T. H. Porter.

"Responsibility of Sunday-schools and Epworth Leagues," W. C. Harris.

"Influence of Missionary Sermons and Literature," R. M. Evans.

"Public Collections or Private—Which?" J. H. Shumaker.

We can not ask for space to give even a synopsis of the papers and addresses on the above-named topics. They were to the point, however, and evinced much thought.

The sessions were full of interest, and helpful in a large measure.

On Tuesday night the Rev. W. C. Harris delivered an instructive and enjoyable sermon from Rom. i, 14, on our indebtedness to suffering humanity. It will be long remembered for its many suggestive points.

Wednesday, at 11 A. M., the writer delivered a sermon on the witness of the Spirit, emphasizing the missionary spirit in the heart and life as among the best evidences of our acceptance with God. (1. John v, 10.)

The preachers of the district were not all present; hence the original programme could not be rendered in full.

Wednesday morning the W. F. M. S. and the H. M. S. were ably represented by Miss Laura Rayford, Mrs. Veezy, and others, presenting valuable information and arousing much interest. When we remember the words of the commission, Matt. xxviii, 7, we are not surprised at the great success that has crowned the labors of our noble women.

Our dear Bro. Shumaker, district secretary, has given much time and thought to his loved and honored commission, and deserves the appreciation and support of his district.

Our own Dr. Sullivan, P. E., contributed much to the interest of the occasion: always at the head of the class for all that looks to Zion's good.

The Rev. L. M. Lipscomb, P. C., and his most excellent wife, together with the noble citizens of the thriving little city of Senatobia, did all that the most fastidious could ask to render our visit a real treat.

Thanks to the Democrat for thoughtful attention.

With love and appreciation,

R. M. EVANS;
For the Institute.

The Theater and the University.

Can there be any close relation existing between the American theater and the American university? Are they not separate and distinct institutions? Have they not different origins, and instituted for different purposes? How can we mix them together, and make one as important as the other? The stage, in no age of the world, has been classed on an equal basis with any learned institution, and will not, perhaps, be for years to come. Our universities are for a different purpose than making stage actors. We are too far advanced in civilization, culture and refinement to consider the stage an equal educator with the university. We have too many real parts to play in life, and too many useful things to learn, to give time and study to things that merely amuse people and make them laugh. We are comparatively but a new nation just springing into life, and must necessarily give our time and attention to things that make for our progress, and the happiness and prosperity of our people.

Our universities and colleges were founded for grander and nobler purposes than making stage actors. They were instituted to develop the highest type of manhood and womanhood, and to fit our youth for important duties in Church and State. Nothing, it seems, would do more to lower and degrade our institutions of learning than to make them the rendezvous of a lot of stage students. I am glad that our best educators realize this truth, and are giving no countenance to the study of dramatic literature in our colleges and universities. Am glad, too, that the graduates of all our schools have a distaste for dramatic literature and the stage. It shows that we are advancing as a nation, and that higher and nobler things occupy the heart and mind of our educated youth.

The American stage may well lament the fact that it is getting no recruits for the stage from our great colleges and universities. It shows conclusively that the stage and theater are not held in as high estimation as are other professions and institutions. And our educated youth see it to be on the decline, and will not give it their sympathy and their support. They realize the fact that the theater had its origin in a rude, barbarous age, and that it never had the entire sympathy and support of any civilized nation; hence they look upon the stage as a very useless institution, and will not connect themselves with it. And it is useless institution. Its pretensions to education and civilization are a mere farce. To sum up its most attractive force, we find it to be only an amuser for the jolly, thoughtless crowds in our large towns and cities. It communicates no knowledge of any wants; it adds nothing whatever to the morals and religion of a people. Why, then, should we class it on an equal basis with our great colleges and universities? There is neither sense nor reason in seeking to unite the two. They are separate and distinct institutions, and their aims and purposes differ one from the other as much as does daylight from darkness. Why, then, seek to assimilate the two, and make one as important as the other in our national education and development? There should be no compromise of the two. They are two separate and distinct institutions, and should remain so.

VERITAS.

An Eloquent Appeal.

DEAR FRIEND, I. H. N.: When even those whom God has blessed with riches complain of the high rates of food, and when even necessities become luxuries, what must be the cry of the poor and the needy?

Many of us are going away for the Summer, and will leave the intense heat of our city for cooler and more invigorating climates. In your comfort and pleasure, do you think of the pain and misery of God's poor? Can you enjoy the blessings of your privileged life, unless you have given some solace to his poor? Think of the fevered babe that tosses on its narrow cot-bed in the poverty-stricken home. Then hold your own little one closer to your heart, and thank God not only for its health, but for the love and tenderness that guard it from the ills of life. Will not your happiness open your heart to the sufferings of others?

During the Summer we wish to give tickets for ice for the use of the weak and sick. Grocery tickets will be furnished where lack of work or illness has caused distress. Should the funds be sufficient, weak children, tired mothers and "shut-ins" will be given a day's outing. We hope to give these outings at various times during the hot months. This work will be done by those who will carefully investigate every case of need, and who work with loving hearts and untireless hands in the Master's work.

Will you not aid us in the work and send your mite before you leave the city? Surely the Summer will be happier for your giving. Send all contributions to the State secretary of The King's Daughters and Sons of Louisiana.

With the prayer that the happiness you give may be returned tenfold, Yours sincerely,

SOPHIE B. WRIGHT,
State Secretary,
1440 Camp Street, New Orleans, La.

The Mississippi Historical Society has issued in pamphlet form that part of Volume IV. of its publications which contains a tribute to the late Dr. T. A. S. Adams. It is from the pen of Prof. Dabney Lipscomb, of the State University. We have read the tribute with pleasure and profit. It was our fortune to know Brother Adams, to room with him during the session of the Conference just a few days before his death, and to hear his last sermon—a sermon which those who often heard him say was "the best of his life." Prof. Lipscomb portrays him as "poet, educator, and preacher." His work is well done.

By the grace of God I never fret; I repine at nothing; I am discontented with nothing. And to have persons at my ear fretting and murmuring at everything is like tearing the flesh off my bones.—Wesley.

INFANT BAPTISM.

BY AN ITINERANT.

INTRODUCTION.

It is not a matter of small consequence what relation our children shall sustain to the church: whether they shall come upon the arena of that contest in which eternal life is lost or won, in their place in the militant host, or enter in single-handed and without support.

"The whole question of the relation of children to the church is involved in the doctrine of infant baptism. The popular mind has been considerably infected by false ideas. What with the heresy of baptismal regeneration on the one side, and that of Antipedobaptism on the other, there is need of a widespread presentation of the 'truth as it is in Jesus.' Controversy for its own sake is undesirable, but where the interest of truth demands it, it is not to be shunned. We must 'contend earnestly for the faith once delivered to the saints.'"—Bishop Marvin.

The fact that Methodists preach and write so seldom on this important subject, leads me to publish this series of articles. We can not recall ever having heard a sermon preached on infant baptism by a Methodist preacher, except those preached by us, and seldom do we see a line upon this topic in our church papers, where more of our members would be likely to see and read it. On the other hand, how many sermons, and how numerous the writings of Antipedobaptist, do we hear and see upon this subject? This and the mode of baptism is their shibboleth. Because of this, and the reticence of Pedobaptist, many persons are either proselyted from our church, or greatly disturbed in faith concerning the true doctrine. Unquestionably, Methodism has lost, and will continue to lose, just here, unless her watchmen cry aloud.

The difficulty with us lies not in the lack of ground upon which to stand, and the weapons with which to defend ourselves and maintain our position, but that the argument is so overwhelmingly in our favor, and so familiar to our ministry, that we carelessly take for granted that it must be familiar to all our members. Besides, we are occupied with what we consider to be matters of more vital importance, namely: the preaching of repentance, faith, regeneration, and the witness of the Spirit. Like St. Paul, we consider that we are sent to preach the gospel rather than baptize. But we should bear in mind that this silence on our part has emboldened the opposers of infant baptism in many places, and an issue is made upon it. The writer has suffered just here until he learned how to take care of himself by meeting the opposition boldly and constantly. Since then he has fared better, baptizing the children of nearly every family, though they live among and are surrounded by Antipedobaptist. The children which we fail to baptize are where one or the other parent is a Baptist or Campbellite. Often, then, we meet with success. About the greatest difficulty we have is with parents who have been brought into the church by immersion. This is a strong argument against immersion, and, like "A Circuit Rider," we hail the day when the General Conference will strike out the obnoxious parenthetical clause. It is destructive to infant baptism, and, therefore, destructive to our XVII. Article of Faith.

With this introduction setting forth the reasons for our writing, without any apology—as none is necessary—we shall proceed to establish, in a few sections, first, the identity of the church under both the Jewish and Christian dispensations, as bearing indirectly upon our subject: then present infant baptism in its obligation and design; also the relation of baptized children to the church, followed with answers to objections of Antipedobaptist.

REV. J. F. SCURLOCK.

It was my pleasure to know the late Rev. J. F. Scurlock for a number of years, but not until the beginning of this year was it my good fortune to be intimately associated with him. During the last few months we took frequent drives, enjoying together the beautiful and romantic scenery around the historic old town of Covington; I learning many valuable lessons from his wide readings and vast store of information. I became very much attached to him, and looked forward with pleasure to a visit to his room, or a drive to the country that would give me an hour in his company. I was very much impressed with several features of his character, chief among them being his reticence concerning himself. He simply would not talk of his past. His triumphs and defeats, his griefs and joys, his loved ones and friends—of these he never spoke. He knew my enthusiasm for the cause and history of the South's great struggle; he knew my veneration for the survivors of the second war for American Independence; but not until after his death did I know that he ever wore the gray, or marched to the stirring strains of Dixie.

Another thing that impressed me was his devotion to the church to which he had given all his days. He gloried in the past, rejoiced in the present, and was hopeful for the future for his beloved Methodism. I never heard him utter a word of censure or complaint, nor give an expression of a thought of doubt or despondency, but with the hopefulness and bouyancy of youth he looked forward to the world-wide conquest of the kingdom of God.

Bro. Scurlock was ever a student. He never ceased to study. Only a few days before his death I found him reading Gibbons' Rome. The only "dead-line" in his life was physical disability. With mental and spiritual strength and vision he kept his place in the unbroken ranks that march to the battle for the freedom and redemption of the race.

Early in April he suffered a severe attack of his long-standing bronchial trouble; so severe, indeed, that it was found necessary to provide a nurse to care for him day and night. He had sufficiently recovered to be able to get out, and on Sunday, April 20, at his expressed desire, I took him to church, where he occupied his customary place for the last time. On the morning of the twenty-third I called to see him, bearing kindly greetings from friends throughout the State, but I was ten minutes too late. I found him unconscious in his chair, which he occupied after dressing himself, and taking a glass of milk only a few minutes before. His frail form was tenderly placed upon the bed, and a physician called, but before the man of science could reach him, the house of clay was without a tenant, the disembodied spirit having taken its long, long flight. As sweet and beautiful as the opening of the rose to the first rays of the morning sun, so was the opening of his vision to the eternal glories. His body keeps company with the sacred ashes of Elijah Steele, Tiff Foster, and Lewis A. Reed, whose hallowed resting place is perfumed by the odor of magnolias, which, clothed in their garments of living green, keep silent and eternal vigilance over the home of the dead. The low murmur of the Father of Waters upon the one side, and the everlasting surges of the mighty deep upon the other, join in an unending requiem to their enduring memory, while his glorified spirit has joined with theirs in swelling the song of praise to the Lamb that was slain. The righteous cease from their labors, and their works do follow them.

WHAT IS THE PROPER COURSE?

BY REV. J. M. HUGGIN.

Shall we explain sanctification in our preaching? Some of our preachers answer this question negatively. They contend that we should preach sanctification or holiness, but not explain the doctrine. As to the acceptability of such explanation, much depends upon the views held by those to whom the doctrine is explained; or, in other words, much depends upon how the doctrine is explained. However, I find many laymen and some preachers who reject the second-blessing theory of sanctification, who, at the same time, object to an explanation in the pulpit, which is in perfect harmony with the views they profess. Second-blessing people, so far as I know, do not object to the doctrine being explained according to their views. They like it. The most of them insist on it. In this they are consistent, and true to convictions.

As one who rejects the second-blessing theory of sanctification, I believe we ought also to be true to our convictions, and preach the truth as we see it. Some of our people object to this course on the ground that though the second-blessing theory is not scriptural, it leads people to a higher and better life, and, therefore, ought to be encouraged rather than opposed. This position is manifestly absurd, for if it is true, the Bible is imperfect as a revelation, and is not "the only rule," nor "the sufficient rule both of our faith and practice." Most of the heresies that have cursed the church in the past have grown out of attempts to improve God's Word, or to add something to its teaching.

Again, there are some people who reject the second-blessing theory who object to us explaining sanctification, on the ground that the peace of the church might be disturbed. If one per cent. of the church holds views which are considered erroneous by ninety-nine per cent., should the ninety-nine per cent. yield everything to the one per cent.? I should think not.

The second-blessing people occupy a position analogous to that of the extreme and exclusive immersionists. If we were to stress water baptism in our preaching as being the main thing in the economy of the gospel, and never say a word about mode, or who are proper subjects for baptism, the Campbellites would soon put all the people in the water. So, if we preach holiness without explaining it, our people generally, as some of them have already done, will put themselves under the control of second-blessing evangelists. But it is said by some that the second-blessing movement only affects a few rural sections, and, therefore, we should pay no attention to it. Admitting that this is so, I still take the position that if it is founded on an erroneous interpretation of God's Word, it should be opposed. These rural sections are regarded by the preachers who serve them as important places. A preacher's pastoral charge should be to him the most important place in the world. Temporal and eternal interests are involved. Ninety-nine per cent. of our pastors, I reckon, reject the second-blessing theory of sanctification; yet, in proportion as the second-blessing movement affects the pastoral charges, these pastors lose their hold upon the people, and as the people are deprived of the influence of the preacher-in-charge, and depend solely upon the protracted meeting, held once a year, perhaps, by an evangelist, spiritual interests must suffer. In consequence of the pastor losing his influence over the people, his temporal interests must suffer. Support of his family is withheld, and deep poverty, with consequent degradation, follow. Can any true minister of the gospel be indifferent toward such things? Certainly those whose families suffer can not. While our church papers are neutral as to the theory of sanctification, our second-blessing brethren have quite a number of organs, the almost sole purpose of which is to propagate the second-blessing theory of sanctification. These papers are published so cheaply, and their merits lauded by the evangelists so much, that in certain places they outnumber our church papers, I reckon, twenty to one. With a one-sided explanation of sanctification, both in the pulpit and in the press, what can we hope for?

The Louisiana Conference and the Auditing Committee and the Minutes.

As the Auditing Committee appointed by the late session of the Louisiana Conference has been criticised in connection with the unfortunate delay in the publication of the Annual, I desire, as a member of that committee, to offer some explanations that will throw light upon its work.

1. The delay in the publication of the Annual, as explained by the editor on the eightieth page, is not due to the delay of the Auditing Committee, but to the sickness of the editor, and the failure of the printer to fulfill his agreement. It is true that the reports of the various Boards were delayed, and some little discrepancies occur in the Annual as a result of the delayed report of the Auditing Committee. The discrepancies are less numerous than those to which we were accustomed under the old system, and would have disappeared altogether if the committee had not been rushed at the last. My purpose is, however, to explain the reasons for the delay in the committee's report. Two members of the committee were also statistical secretaries, and the third was acting treasurer of the Board of Education, so that all had double work.

2. The committee was created and appointed without previous notice, and, hence, without opportunity for any preparation for the work. The first day was well advanced before the committee was able to begin the tabulation of figures. The brethren, not being accustomed to the new plan, were not prepared to report in the new way. These difficulties will be entirely overcome at our next session, for the committee already appointed will have their sheets ready, and will, doubtless, be well advanced with their work before the Bishop calls the Conference to order, and the brethren will understand that they are to turn over their reports, with checks or vouchers, to cover entire financial report.

3. Because of inexperience also in this plan of transacting the business, the Committee of Arrangements, which had provided so well for every foreseen want, had no proper place provided for the work of the committee in receiving money and casting up accounts. Brother Miller, who has charge of our comfort at our next session, has promised to provide a convenient room for receiving reports, and a private office for checking up, which will very much facilitate the work of the committee.

4. The chairman of the committee was laid off by sickness in the midst of the engagement, and the second member was out of town by previous engagement, and later busy with statistical work, so that the third committeeman was left to wind up the affairs with the help of a new man called in at the last. This closing work had to be done in the midst of the usual buzz of Conference conversation. Naturally, some mistakes were made requiring subsequent rectification, for which there was no time in the midst of the mad panic to catch the noon trains.

5. The reports were not filed with any regard to promptness or dispatch, some being withheld until the third day of Conference, and others being withdrawn late in the session for correction, making it impossible to begin closing up affairs until a time when the report ought to have been complete. Some reports incorrectly included specials with regular collections, and there was some carelessness in the matter of losing vouchers. The Conference has passed a resolution calling for the filing of all reports by the close of the first day of Conference, and censuring those who fail to comply. We may hope that next year the reports will be filed early in the session, and that the statistical secretary's careful and oft-repeated instructions as to how to report will be followed; also that the brethren will carefully keep and present to the committee the receipts for money sent in to the treasurers before Conference. It would facilitate matters greatly if the brethren would send to the various treasurers at least a week before Conference their full assessments, and bring the vouchers with them.

As intimated above, one fact that complicated the committee's work at its most delicate and important stage was the unseeming and undignified hurry with which the Conference finished its business in order to get to the trains, adopting important reports without reading, and shutting off all discussion. I simply refer to this in order to protest against such improper transaction of the Lord's business. I do not plead it in extenuation of the delay of the Auditing Committee, for the committee would have had its report in the hands of the Conference on Saturday if it had had a fair chance in the particulars above mentioned. I am prepared to predict confidently that if the committee already appointed has a fair chance next year, it will greatly facilitate and improve the transaction of the financial business.

NOTICE.

In the ADVOCATE, of April 24, appeared an article from our missionary to the French people of this South Louisiana section, in which an appeal was made for aid in building a parsonage for this work. A more important need does not confront our church in this section than the erection of a home for our missionary. Unless something is done, the work must be abandoned sooner or later for lack of support. And we can not afford to abandon this field. The people sorely need the gospel. No better field, richer section, or flattering outlook, is to be found in Southern Methodism. These French people are as truly destitute of the gospel as are the Chinese or Indians. They are priest-ridden, and rapidly drifting into hopeless infidelity. Their only hope is in the Protestant Church, and Methodism is the only organization of Protestant forces in the field.

Bro. Hebert has done and is doing a noble work. He is a Frenchman, and the only man we have capable of doing this work. He needs the support and encouragement of our church.

Let every lover of our common cause do what he can to aid this work. Send on your money; all can aid in this way. Acknowledgments will be made from time to time in the ADVOCATE of the receipts for this fund.

The following contributions have been received: Miss Flora Watson, Bunkie, La., $1; Mrs. Sam D. Given, for Ladies' Aid, Lexington, Miss., $5; Mrs. E. C. Roger, Arnandville, La., $25.

Send all contributions to the undersigned. God will doubly bless the giver in this worthy cause.

HOME MISSION BOARD.

The fourth annual meeting of the General Board of the Woman's Home Mission Society of the M. E. Church, South, convened in Centenary Church, in the city of Richmond, Va., April 18, and closed its sessions on the twenty-third.

Delegates from nineteen Conferences responded to the roll-call. Dr. W. V. Tudor, presiding elder of West Richmond district, welcomed the body on behalf of the Methodist Churches of the city; Mrs. W. J. Maybee in the name of the Home Mission Auxiliaries, and Mrs. W. J. Young, of Lynchburg, Conference president for the Virginia Conference Society. Mrs. Robt. Somerville, of Mississippi, heartily responded to these various addresses.

Report of the treasurer, Mrs. W. D. Kirkland, showed a grand total of $50,383.39 collected for the year.

Miss Bennett spoke of the numerical and financial advance in all departments of the work since it was first projected as a department of church extension, sixteen years ago, in Centenary Church. To-day the total membership numbers 29,034—an increase during the year of 4,322. One hundred and twenty-nine parsonages have been aided by the Board and Conference Societies, and about two thousand subscribers added to Our Homes during the past year.

The following telegram was received from the Home Mission Society of the M. E. Church, signed by Mrs. Clinton B. Fisk and Mrs. D. S. Williams: "The Board of Trustees of the Woman's Home Mission Society send greetings to your national meeting. We also beg you to consider the appointment of a committee to discuss the desirability of co-operation of the two societies in a Reading Course of home mission reading."

Resolutions of sympathy were expressed by the Board for Centenary Methodist Church in the sudden death of Mr. John Morton, for so long the beloved superintendent of the Sunday-school.

Miss Purnell, president of the Woman's Home Mission Society, Mississippi Conference, made an earnest plea for aid to establish schools for the Choctaw Indians of her State. Seven hundred dollars was appropriated to this work.

Among those who attended the meeting and introduced to the body were Bishop Granbery, Revs. P. Hardy, L. T. Bosman, J. D. Lanley, and W. A. Langhone. Mrs. Sam Jones, wife of the noted evangelist, was present, and accorded a hearty welcome.

An excellent report of the Dallas Home was presented by Mrs. L. P. Smith, of Texas, showing how such industries as laundry, cooking and sewing may be used to develop character.

On Sunday morning the annual sermon was preached by Bishop Granbery from the words, "O woman, great is thy faith"—a strong exposition of the wonderful power of prayer and faith. At the evening service Rev. J. C. Baldwin, of North Carolina, discussed the factory problem in the South—the far-reaching and hurtful results of child-labor in our large factories.

The work of city missions was earnestly emphasized by the Board.

Rev. Geo. H. Wiley, who has for the past two years been engaged in establishing a mission home and school in Richmond, spoke of the great importance of this work, and the vast amount of good accomplished by the society along this line.

Three young lady missionaries—Misses Baker, Ogilbie, and Chayce, of Norfolk, Portsmouth, and Nashville, respectively—showed in their reports the good results of trained service for the Master. All three of these are graduates from the Scarritt Bible and Training-school, Kansas City, Mo.

The memorial to the General Conference, asking that the order of "Deaconess" be established, was most heartily endorsed.

On Monday evening Prof. Graham Taylor, of the Chicago Theological Seminary, delighted a large audience by his masterly exposition of the social settlement question. His subject was, "Social Incarnation." Mrs. Flaville, of Norfolk, defined the work as a systematic effort to uplift the needy; its purpose, the salvation of souls. The qualities needed are patience, unbounded faith, loving service, and a willingness to sacrifice self.

The report of the Parsonage Committee showed that $5,000 had been appropriated to parsonages for this year, and a loan fund of $2,500 created to aid needy home mission students at the Scarritt Bible and Training-school.

A valuable tract of land, containing 160 acres, was offered to the Board, subject to the appropriation of $1,000 (this year), to build a school-house in Southwest Oklahoma. A committee was appointed to consider the proposition.

It is worthy of note that the sessions throughout the entire meeting have been filled with the spirit of the Master, and while great measures were planned and discussed for the extension and development of the work, the watchword over all was love.

The hospitality of Richmond is proverbial, and we can not refrain from mentioning one of the many lovely homes—that of Mr. J. W. Ferguson, whose charming daughter was our hostess.

Salt Rheum

It may become chronic.

It may cover the body with large, inflamed, burning, itching, scaling patches and cause intense suffering. It has been known to do so.

Do not delay treatment.

The medicine taken by Mrs. Ida E. Ward, Cove Point, Md., was Hood's Sarsaparilla. She writes: "I had a disagreeable itching on my arms which I concluded was salt rheum. I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla and in two days felt better. It was not long before I was cured, and I have never had any skin disease since."

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Promises to cure and keeps the promise. It is positively unequaled for all cutaneous eruptions. Take it.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL DEPARTMENT.

Conducted by N. A. MOTT, Yazoo City, Miss

To Whom All Communications for This Department Must Be Sent.

Some Statistics.

Since receiving the Minutes of our three Conferences, we have been interested in the Sunday-school statistics contained in them, and have studied somewhat the conditions that confront us and the statistics of other churches. We find the following in our Minutes:

	Schools.	Officers and Teachers.	Scholars
Louisiana Conf.	284	1,741	14,547
Mississippi Conf.	392	2,91	19,051
North Miss. Conf.	485	2,665	21,727
Totals	1,161	6,700	55,325
Increase	102	544	3,311

COLLECTIONS.

S.-S Purposes.	Missions.	Children's Day.	Other Objects.
Louisiana Conf.	$ 4,634 66	$ 412 46	$1,413 90
Mississippi Conf.	1,134 77	413 19	919 45
North Miss. Conf.	1,913 46	697 45	590 60
Totals	$ 3 684 98	$1,523 10	$2,963 95
Increase	$ 931 94	$ 356 42	$ 90 66
Decrease

All three Conferences increased the number of their schools and their membership, and in the North Mississippi Conference there was an increase in all the collections. In the Mississippi Conference there was a falling off in the collections on Children's Day and for other objects, and in the Louisiana Conference there was a decrease only in Children's Day collections. On the whole, the increase is gratifying. Let it stimulate us to renewed endeavor.

We learn from the latest obtainable statistics that there are 276,563 white educable children in Louisiana between the ages of five and twenty years. The Catholics number about 29 per cent. of the total white population, and deducting 29 per cent. of the educable children, we have 196,360 Protestant believing educable children in the State. We give the following Sunday-school statistics:

	Schools	Officers and Teachers	Scholars
Episcopalians	51	378	3,177
Presbyterians	65	647	4,663
Baptists	225	1,350	8 500
Methodists	284	1,741	14,547
Totals	625	4,116	30,887

In Mississippi there are 253,732 white educable children, less than two per cent. of whom are Catholic. There are the following Sunday-schools:

	Schools	Officers and Teachers	Scholars
Episcopalians	55	277	1,895
Presbyterians	105	719	5,516
Baptists	590	2 059	25,000
Methodists	877	4,959	40,778
Totals	1 627	8,926	73,159

Besides these some smaller denominations have Sunday-schools also, which would increase the number of scholars in each State by possibly two per cent. From these figures we learn that the entire membership of the schools in Mississippi, including teachers and adults, is but little more than one-fourth the number of educable children, while in Louisiana it is less than one-fifth the number of Protestant educable children.

By going still deeper into the question, we learn that there are about 90,000 white children in Mississippi under five years of age, and about 80,000 Protestant white children under five years in Louisiana. Thus it will be seen that from 15,000 to 20,000 children in each State annually reach the educable age.

What a field for Christian endeavor! What a fruitful field for Sunday-school labor we have in our two Commonwealths! Could all these children be placed on the cradle roll and surrounded during their first seven years with Sunday-school influences, our churches would reap a rich harvest. Sunday-school workers, this is the vineyard into which Jesus calls us to enter. Let us lift up our eyes and see the whitening fields. Let us pray the Lord of the harvest to send forth more laborers among these little ones, because it is the redemption of such as these that promises most for the future of our beloved States.

The lessons only which have cost us pain, which we have learned in struggle, which have been born out of anguish of heart, will heal and really bless others. It is when we have passed through the bitterness of temptation, wrestling with evil and sore beset, victorious only through the grace of Christ, that we are ready to be helpers of others in temptation. It is only when we have known sorrow, when the chords of our love have been swept by it, and when we have been comforted and helped to endure, that we are fitted to become comforters of others in sorrow.—J. R. Miller, D. D.

Christ's religion is essentially missionary. To receive Christ is to receive the obligation of communicating him. Missionary sympathy is not a matter of praiseworthy and superfluous consecration on the part of a section of Christians, but on solemn and unavoidable responsibility of all.—Robert E. Speer.

GREENVILLE DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

On Thursday, April 17, at 9:30 A. M., the preachers of the Greenville district, with a few of the delegates-elect, met in session in the Methodist Church of Greenville, with Rev. T. W. Dye, P. E., in the chair. Rev. B. C. Trigg was elected secretary of the Conference. The first order of business was the discussion of missions. Many interesting talks were made on this subject, ending with a motion to appoint a committee to look into that territory between Greenville and Sardis districts that is now unoccupied by our church, and to decide whether or not it is practicable to occupy same.

The Conference met in regular session at 9 o'clock A. M. and 3 o'clock P. M. During these sessions the Sunday-school, Epworth League and educational interests were ably discussed.

At 11 o'clock A. M. and at 8 o'clock P. M. there was preaching by different preachers of the district.

The Conference endorsed the action of the Board of Trustees in changing the management of Grenada College.

This session of the Conference was both pleasing and profitable.

A collection was taken up for our Orphans' Home at Water Valley, amounting to $500.

Wm. G. Mosier was licensed to preach, and recommended to the Annual Conference for admission on trial.

Luther A. McKeon was recommended for admission on trial into the Annual Conference.

The Conference adjourned Saturday afternoon at 5 o'clock, after one of the most pleasant sessions ever held on the Greenville district.

CLARKSDALE, MISS.

We had a splendid service at the Methodist Church last Sunday. Brother Standefer took for his subject, "The Choice of Moses." He said that into every life there came a time when a choice must be made either for right or wrong, and then showed what a wise choice Moses made when he chose rather to suffer the afflictions with the people of God than to enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season. After the service he received seven persons into the church.

Our circuit court is in session here, and Judge Cook is presiding admirably. His charge to the Grand Jury was clear and strong. He said that prohibition had never been thoroughly tested in Coahoma county, and if the Grand Jury was sufficiently diligent, they could indict those who had been constantly violating the laws, and render the illicit sale of liquor practically impossible in this county. It is evident that Judge Cook is in favor of the rigid enforcement of the laws, and if criminals are not brought to justice, it will be no fault of his. With Judge Cook on the bench, and Brother Standefer in the pulpit, I think Coahoma county will soon be relieved of some of the violators of the law.

BOONEVILLE STATION.

Dear Doctor Boswell: While going about my work, a few days since, I was suddenly attacked by a ruffian or more, and it, he, or they, smote me severely on each side of my face, and clutched my throat violently, and, as a consequence, I was in bed suffering many things for certain days, but chewing nothing and swallowing little. I had a genuine case of mumps. While thus disabled, Bro. P. R. Hoyle came to my assistance, and held service for me Sunday. I am up again.

Our charge is doing first rate. The Sunday-school has grown greatly, as also the prayer meeting. Had fine service on Easter Sunday. Our new church is going up right fast, and promises to be one of great beauty and comfort. Have paid in full assessments for home and foreign missions and Bishops' Fund, and hope to pay off Conference claimants soon. Will start the building of our parsonage soon. The people here do not only raise and ship many flowers and much vegetables, but also do heartily work for the Lord, and we hope for many advances in the work this year.

Ben P. Jaco, P. C.

CORINTH, MISS.

Dear Dr. Boswell: We have just closed a great meeting here, in which Bro. J. B. Culpepper and son assisted us. One hundred applied for membership in the different churches. We received sixty into our church last Sunday, which makes a total of sixty-six this year to date. We preach to a full house, and the Sunday-school is larger than for years, with new additions each Sunday. Twenty-three additions the last two Sabbaths. God is blessing us here. The Ladies' Society is the best I have ever seen, and is doing some valuable repairs and furnishings at the parsonage.

God bless you in your work. Come to see us. Truly,

S. B. Myers.

Anxious thoughts sometimes perplex the wife who sees maternity before her. If she is treading an untried path, she sometimes frets herself into a nervous condition which is injurious and prostrating. If motherhood has already been a painful experience she is apt to shrink from the coming trial and by her very mental anxiety increase the possibility of her suffering.

There is no cause for anxiety for those prospective mothers who use Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It tranquilizes the nerves, encourages the appetite, induces refreshing sleep and produces mental cheerfulness as well as physical vigor. It gives strength and unusual elasticity so that the baby's advent is practically painless. It is the best tonic for nursing mothers.

"I am so thankful for what Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has done for me," writes Mrs. John T. Smith, of Sloan, Brit. Col., Box 50. "It helped me through the long months before baby came and I have a big, strong baby girl, the most healthy of the three, and it cured me of a disease which was taking away all my strength."

The dealer who offers a substitute for "Favorite Prescription" does so to gain the little more profit paid on the sale of less meritorious medicines. His profit is your loss, therefore accept no substitute.

The Commoner

(Mr. Bryan's Paper)

The Commoner has attained within six months from date of the first issue a circulation of 100,000 copies, a record probably never equaled in the history of American periodical literature. The unparalleled growth of this paper demonstrates that there is room in the newspaper field for a national paper devoted to the discussion of political, economic, and social problems. To the columns of The Commoner Mr. Bryan contributes his best efforts, and his review of political events as they arise from time to time can not fail to interest those who study public questions.

The Commoner's regular subscription price is $1 per year. We have arranged with Mr. Bryan whereby we can furnish his paper and New Orleans Christian Advocate together for one year for $2.25. The regular subscription price of the two papers when subscribed for separately is $3 net. When remittance is made by personal check ten cents extra will be charged.

THURSDAY, MAY 15, 1902

THE GENERAL CONFERENCE.

The fourteenth General Conference of the M. E. Church, South (being the twenty-ninth General Conference since the organization of the M. E. Church in America in 1784), convened in Dallas, Texas, May 7, 1902, at 9 A. M. The sessions are held in the Auditorium at the Texas State Fair Grounds, about two miles from the central portion of the city. The place is reached by the street car lines. The facilities for going and coming are quite sufficient, but involves expense, and much time is consumed.

The Conference was opened by Bishop Wilson, next in seniority to Bishop Keener, who is not able to be present. Dr. J. J. Tigert is secretary, and is ably assisted by our own Dr. A. F. Watkins, Rev. J. M. Barcus, and Rev. J. W. Heidt. Organization was effected without trouble or delay. Immediately after organization, His Excellency, Gov. Sayers, delivered an address of welcome in behalf of the State of Texas, which address was followed by one from Mayor Cabell, of Dallas, in behalf of the city. Hon. E. B. Perkins welcomed the laity, and Dr. G. C. Rankin, the ministry. These addresses were followed by a response from Bishop Galloway in behalf of the Conference.

The first day's session was concluded with the Bishops' Address, read by Bishop Duncan. It was long and able, and was listened to by the Conference and visitors with the utmost interest. There was frequent applause during the reading—a thing this writer never before witnessed under such circumstances. At the conclusion of the reading of the address proper, Bishop Candler read a document signed by eighty members of the United States Senate, setting forth their interpretation of the action of the Senate in regard to the payment of the War Claim. This document was presented as a supplement to the Bishops' Address, and will go far towards settling the question which has vexed us so long, and is still the occasion of great excitement.

The reading of the report of the Book Agents and the Book Committee consumed about an hour and a half of the second day's session. It was an exhaustive document. It presented not only a detailed statement of the last four years' work of the Publishing House, but gave a history of the "War Claim" from its incipiency to the day of its payment. It rehearsed all the details of the various investigations of the matter in the Book Committee, and by the United States Senate. Nothing, it seems, has been left unsaid so far as the Book Committee is concerned. The matter is now in the hands of the Committee on Publishing Interests, with instructions from the General Conference to report at the earliest day practicable. The work will require several days, and it will be quite impossible to get anything in the ADVOCATE, as to conclusions, etc., for the present issue of the paper.

As to other matters of interest we can say but little—everything is in the future. The Bishops, in their address, recommend the election of two Bishops—but whether we will have two or four or six is in the future. Our own individual notion is that we will elect two. This is only a guess.

PREPARE FOR THE REVIVAL.

We have little patience with the man who does not believe in revivals, and less with the one who tells us that we can not have revivals. Judging by the conditions that often prevail in Christian communities which make revivals necessary, we can but conclude that the time will never come when revivals will be unnecessary; and, judging by the wonderful displays of divine power in communities thought to be beyond redemption, we can but conclude that people never get beyond the reach of the grace of God.

Two things are necessary to a revival. The first is faithful preaching of the Gospel. The Gospel is the power of God unto salvation. But it is not a force that makes its way into the heart of men silently and unawares. They must hear it. Men can not call on him in whom they have not believed, nor can they believe in him of whom they have not heard, nor can they hear without a preacher. From these facts St. Paul concludes that "faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the Word of God." But the Word is useless without a preacher. Hence the Lord calls men, and sends them out with instruction to preach the Gospel to every creature.

Back of the divine command is the divine promise: "As the rain cometh down, and the snow from heaven, and returneth not thither, but watereth the earth, and maketh it bring forth and bud, that it may give seed to the sower and bread to the eater; so shall my word be that goeth forth out of my mouth; it shall not return unto me void, but it shall accomplish that which I please, and it shall prosper in the thing whereto I sent it." This Word, faithfully preached, is accompanied by the Holy Spirit, who compels men to feel its force. "It is the Spirit that quickeneth." Without his gracious influence, the Word preached would fall powerless at the feet of those who hear. We do not mean to say that the Holy Spirit compels men to believe everything a good man preaches. Not that. But that the Holy Spirit takes the great essential truths of the Gospel as preached, and applies them to the hearts of hearers in such a way as to make them irresistible. This the faithful preacher believes. It is with this confidence in the Word that he proclaims it. His reward never fails.

The next thing necessary to a revival is obedience to the Word preached. This is sure to follow faithful preaching. "My people shall be willing in the day of my power." That sounds like Calvinism. But, whether Calvinism or not, a preacher never delivered the Word in the "demonstration of the Spirit and of power" that it was not followed by signs—the edification of believers and the conversion of sinners. Who has not seen a learned and logical discourse, perfectly consistent with the truth, yet destitute of gospel power, fall without any appreciable weight upon hearers? And who has not seen the same hearers carried away as by the mighty power of God under the simple story of the cross told by a man whose heart was in his message, and who believed what he was saying? There is but one way to account for this: God honored his Word.

Some who are on the watch-tower tell us there are indications of a return to the preaching of the great doctrines of the Gospel, and that we are soon destined to see a wide-spread revival—such a revival as was never witnessed in the world. God grant that it may come to pass! We do not undertake to prophesy, but we do see signs of the coming of a better day. One of the main obstacles to the progress of the Gospel is religious exclusiveness—not religious rivalry. That is always good if not carried on through impure or selfish motives. But exclusiveness, that not only prompts to rivalry, but asserts superiority, and assumes to be the only representatives of the true church of Christ, is hateful and damaging. That spirit of exclusivism is giving way before an enlightened Christian sentiment that acknowledges God's children wherever found.

Christians everywhere are drawing closer and closer together. It is not alone a recognition of one common brotherhood, of oneness in Christ. It is a recognition of the church relations of all who have united with the people of God. When these sentiments become universal, as they will among Protestants, we may expect the Lord to come in power as never before.

Let us get ready for the revival. It may be right upon us. It may not be general for years to come. But we may make a beginning now. Let every preacher prepare his sermons with that end in view. Let every member of the church, man and woman, hear, and heed, and pray. Bring all the tithes into the store-house of the Lord, and he will pour upon you a blessing that there shall not be room enough to receive it. Such is the promise.

GROW IN GRACE—PRESS FORWARD.

We take it for granted that no Christian desires to lose his faith, or to be lacking at the coming of the Master. But there are many who have only meagre conceptions of present duty and privileges, and less of future glory. They are honest, and seem to be perfectly content with membership in the church. They attend divine service, and observe the ordinances. The broad field of Christian activity in which their intellectual and moral powers would expand, they never enter. They are born infants, and remain spiritual dwarfs all their lives. There is no excuse for this. The path of duty is plain: Grow in grace. "Add to your faith, virtue"—courage, and link together all the virtues until the chain is complete in love, which is the bond of perfectness. All the various stages of the Christian life may be entered, and their blessings enjoyed, whatever may be said as to the time of their attainment, or the processes by which they are reached. Study the Word. Enter into thy closet, pray to the Father in secret, the Spirit will be given, the soul will expand. You will grow in grace.

Press forward. Forget the things that are behind, and look for greater and better things. There is more in store for us than we have ever experienced, no matter what have been our opportunities or our attainments. We know much, and have enjoyed much, but we know only in part; "it doth not yet appear what we shall be," or what we shall learn. This life is only the school of Christ, the primary school. The glorified life, in which we shall see as we are seen, and know as we are known, will be our real life—the commencement of our real enjoyment.

Too many good people live in the past, constantly pointing to the time and place of their conversion. They have present enjoyment, and hope of future glory, but all is based on what was done for them when they first found the Lord. They have made no advance; faith has not been strengthened by good works; there has been no increase in zeal or knowledge. They simply look back, and the blessed remembrance of their conversion, together with the fact that they are alive, makes them happy. The enjoyment is all their own; they have never made anybody else happy. We sometimes think it a pity that people keep in mind the joy of their first religious experience. They might do better if they did not remember it so vividly. We know it is unfortunate that they dwell on it to the exclusion of things more profitable.

It would, perhaps, be impossible for a Christian to forget the day of his conversion, or to point to it as the beginning of happiness; but to think of it as the happiest day of his life indicates that no progress has been made, and that there is nothing better in store this side of heaven. The memory of that day, while it remains precious, should be faint compared with the thousand days of joy spent in the service of our Lord, who is always ready to bestow more and more. Every Christian can make each day happier and brighter as the years go by. St. Paul said, "Forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." And he exhorted the Hebrew saints to "leave the principles of the doctrine of Christ, and go on unto perfection." Such is the privilege of all who are "called to be saints." Let us examine ourselves, grow in grace, and press forward. "And this will we do, if God permit."

LITTLE AND UNKNOWN.

The great majority of preachers live and die unknown to fame. Perhaps it would be too much to say that it is their misfortune rather than their fault, for we are not right sure it is a misfortune. It may be according to God's will. If so, it is the most fortunate thing that could fall to their lot. And surely it is most fortunate for the world that it is so. It is through the direct agency of these obscure men that the larger number of sinners are converted and brought into the fold of Christ, and by them the greater part of the work of the church is accomplished. The statistics of any Methodist Conference will show this. We suppose the returns made to other evangelical bodies will show the same.

These industrious and consecrated men do their work humbly, and on meagre salaries, from year to year, all the while adding to the church and making the world better, and the only mention of their names is in the local paper and the Conference Minutes. Many city preachers fare but little better at the hands of the world. They may hold great revivals and preach great sermons, but beyond a paragraph or two in the daily paper, nothing is ever said. Fidelity to Christ, preaching the Word, converting souls and edifying the church, are commonplace things. Nothing else is expected of men who hold on to the old ways, content to do the work assigned them. But let one of them pick a flaw in the Bible, or denounce the creed and polity of his church, even though he may be only mediocre, in less than twenty-four hours he is notorious. Every daily paper in the land will print his name in big letters, and in a few days he is ready for the platform, strikes his picture on hand-bills, and asks fifty cents a head to hear him blaspheme.

Good men, who have no other object than to glorify God, will not get discouraged over these inequalities of the world's ways; nor will they envy the fame of the sensation-monger. Nor will they be jealous of the really great and learned men through whose piety, learning and toil they have been enabled to get a deeper insight into God's Word, and to increase their own power for good. They will stand in their lot,

"Content to be little and unknown, Loved and prized by God alone."

ANOTHER CONGRESS.

There is to be a "Negro Young People's Congress" held in Atlanta some time in August. The Western Christian Advocate says "it is to be a gathering of educators, preachers, Christian workers, Sunday school teachers, missionaries, Bishops, and all who are consecrated to faith and good works among that people." The object is to build up the kingdom of Christ, and the redemption of the youth. "Civic righteousness, better home training, better education, better moral and social atmosphere" and other objects will be discussed. The field is large, and needs to be looked after. Three hundred men and women will do the talking for the expected ten thousand visitors. A resolution is now before Congress providing for a commission to investigate the condition of the negroes in the Southern States. If that resolution is adopted, it would be a good idea for the commission to appoint a sub-committee to attend that Congress and take notes. Much can be learned.

Letter from Rev. N. G. Augustus.

Rev. J. W. Boswell, Dallas, Texas—

DEAR BROTHER: Will you oblige me by publishing this in your paper next week? A great wrong is being urged in some quarters upon our church. It is proposed to condemn our Book Agents, and refuse them re-election, because of the methods used by them in collecting our claim against the Federal Government.

If we condemn our Book Agents, either in direct terms by resolution, or by refusal to re-elect them after successful service, and then keep the money they collected from the government, we convict ourselves of inconsistency and ingratitude. If the Agents were right in the methods used to collect this money, they are entitled to the approval and gratitude of the church, and they should be re-elected to their office. If they were wrong in their methods, and are to be condemned, let us be consistent, and put away from us the money so improperly secured.

Churches should not only be honest in their business methods, but they should be appreciative and grateful towards the servants who promote their interests.

Our Book Agents should be endorsed by re-election, or the money which they collected from the government should be returned. Yours very truly,

N. G. AUGUSTUS.

An Appalling Calamity.

The Island of Martinique has been visited by an earthquake, and the result reveals a condition that beggars description. The city of St. Pierre and the surrounding country, if not the entire island, is destroyed with its inhabitants, numbering more than 30,000 souls. They were buried in fire at a moment's warning. The volcano on the British island of St. Vincent is also in action, and it is said that 800 lives have been lost in that island. The capital city, Kingston, is covered with ashes from Mount La Soufriere, which is imitating the action of Mount Pelee, and it is feared that St. Vincent will meet the fate of Martinique. Upon St. Vincent red-hot cinders are filling the fertile and well-populated valleys. All along the Windward Islands for 150 miles the ashes from St. Vincent and Martinique overhang the islands in thick clouds. Never since the world began, it is stated, have human eyes witnessed such a grewsome scene. Hundreds of flaring funeral pyres, on which the bodies of the dead are being thrown, send up their flames, to mock the still flaming volcano's work of death. It is estimated that 20,000 bodies of the dead have already been burned at St. Pierre. French soldiers form the cremation parties.

Aid is being rapidly furnished to the suffering islands, but the fear is that few human beings will be left for rescue from fire or famine. The city of New Orleans has been the first to extend a helping hand. Through the generous and sympathetic assistance of the Times-Democrat, the Bee, the Board of Trade, the Cotton Exchange, the Mayor and private citizens, a fund of four thousand dollars and considerable supplies of food have been forwarded by the French cruiser "Tage," which was at New Orleans when the catastrophe occurred. It is the beginning of relief, soon to be followed by a Federal appropriation of $200,000, and by that charity for which the cities of the United States are celebrated. Whatever can be done in the way of relief will be speedily done.

It is not at all improbable that before many years have passed the South will be pointing proudly to a new writer in the field of fiction; a writer whose present work along another line gives promise of something of enduring interest if she turns to fiction when more mature—Helen Keller. This wonderful girl from Alabama, blind, and deprived of all sense of hearing, is putting so much poetic feeling, sentiment and deep thought, and is showing such marvelous descriptive power, in her story of her life now appearing in The Ladies' Home Journal, that one can not help wondering what she would do if she were to try her hand at a romance. It is too early yet for her to think of it, as she is only twenty-one, and still in college; but it requires no stretch of the imagination to conceive of her as becoming one of the South's most famous authors by and by.

PERSONAL.

Rev. L. A. McKeown has moved from Boyle, Miss., to Benoit, where he has received a joyous welcome.

A convention of American rabbis was held in this city last week. It was proposed to change the Jewish Sabbath from Saturday to Sunday.

Our venerable Bishop Keener, accompanied by his wife and granddaughter, Miss Mary Wilkinson, left New Orleans, May 13, for their delightful Summer home at Ocean Springs, Miss.

Rev. Joe Ramsey, of Tennessee, it is announced, will be in New Orleans next Sunday, and will conduct the eleven o'clock service at Parker Memorial. Bro. Ramsey is traveling in the interest of the Tri-State Conference, to be held at Seashore Camp Ground this Summer.

Rev. W. D. Bass, writing us from Handsboro, Miss., under date of May 5, says: "We closed a very fine meeting here last night; the best that has been here in ten years. The church has been greatly revived; a good number of conversions and additions." Also we are pleased to note that Brother Bass does not forget to kindly represent the ADVOCATE at his meetings.

The condition of Rev. Dr. Palmer, who was seriously injured by a trolley car a week ago, remains satisfactory. Some anxiety, however, is aroused by the recurrence of prostatic irritation, accompanied by symptoms of kidney trouble. The Doctor has the widespread sympathy and prayers of thousands of friends, who sincerely hope for his recovery. His loss would be a severe blow to Church and State.

We have received the following from Rev. H. R. Withers, dated May 6: "DEAR DOCTOR: Since my last it has been deemed advisable to reduce the price of my pamphlet—a figure a little above cost—to facilitate circulation. There will be profit enough at ten cents, if I can sell the most of the edition. It will retail at fifteen cents; one dollar and sixty cents per dozen. It is selling well. Received many encouraging letters." Bro. Withers' address is Dyersburg, Tenn.

Church Extension. North Mississippi Conference.

By action of the Parent Board of Church Extension at its recent session, I am requested, as the chairman of the Conference Board, to appoint some one in each presiding elder's district to represent this great interest at the coming sessions of the several District Conferences, and in obedience to this action, the following are appointed: Winona district, J. R. Bingham; Sardis district, W. C. Harris; Aberdeen district, W. C. Lester; Columbus district, T. W. Lewis; Holly Springs district, J. W. Anderson; Grenada district, J. M. Bradley; Durant district, E. S Lewis; Corinth district, S. B. Myers.

I hope that these brethren will give the cause due prominence at the meeting of their several District Conferences, and I am sure all the presiding elders will give hearty co-operation.

Judge Clarke of St. Louis has convicted and fined heavily a number of grocers for selling baking powders containing alum.

The week before the Health Department of New York seized a quantity of stuff being sold for baking powder which they found was made from alum mixed with ground rock, and dumped it into the river.

The Health Authorities are thus taking effective means to prevent the introduction into our markets of injurious substitutes in place of wholesome baking powders.

As alum costs only two cents a pound, there is a great temptation for those manufacturers who make substitutes and imitation goods, to use it. Alum baking powders can be detected by the health authorities by chemical analysis, but the ordinary housekeeper, whose assistance in protecting the health of the people is important, can not make a chemical examination. She may easily know the alum powders, however, from the fact that they are sold at from ten to twenty cents for a pound can, or that some prize—like a spoon, or glass, or piece of crockery, or wooden ware—is given with the powder as an inducement.

As the people continue to realize the importance of this subject and consumers insist on having baking powder of established name and character, and as the health authorities continue their vigorous crusades, the alum danger will, it is hoped, finally be driven from our homes.

Some Good Meetings.

THE GRENADA COLLEGE.

DEAR DOCTOR: This has been a great year thus far for the salvation of souls. We have held meetings in Mt. Sterling, Ky.; Huntington, W. Va., and Vinita, I. T. The Holy Spirit has been our leader. We are now in Corinth for two weeks with Myers. My son, Burke, is with me here. The other boy is helping my son-in-law in Norvata, I. T. We expect to see two hundred saved here.

I came last Autumn to Grenada to put our two little girls under McIntosh and his able corps of teachers. I knew him and his matchless wife before. Being in Grenada in a meeting two years since, I had some opportunity for observing the work and working of the school. It resulted in our removal to the town. We have boarded for several months in the college, coming and going to and from the table, chapel, etc., with the teachers. After being connected with schools, more or less, for twenty years, I want to say that this is the nearest a large family, all feeling at home, that I ever saw. I don't think there is a happier set of girls on earth. I had rather my daughters were taught here than anywhere. Mrs. Hoskins is not only a fine teacher and lady principal, but she is a fine president when Bro. McIntosh is away. As for Sister McIntosh, she is anything and everything good. She can just beat a girl's own mother looking after her when she is sick.

I have heard that the school will change hands. Success to them. But they will succeed if they measure three-fourths of the length which the present encumbents have attained to in the opinion of the parents, in the eyes of the girls, and in the estimation of the clever citizens of Grenada. It is a marvel to me that the college is out of debt after setting so good a table, giving such splendid service, and taking such minute care of each child and each fond parent's interest. Full success to the incoming force. All honor and a full round of congratulations to the outgoing force. Happy the people who secure their presence or their services.

I have had no request or suggestion to say the above; just felt like it. Fraternally,

J. B. CULPEPPER.

For Sick Headache.

Take HORSFORD'S ACID PHOSPHATE.

Dr. H. J. WELLS, Nashville, Tenn., says: "It acts like a charm in all cases of sick headache and nervous debility." Gives quiet sleep.

What can please a healthy American boy more than a good rifle? An inferior rifle is nothing but a worthless expense, and is usually a dangerous piece, because of its poor mechanism. When buying a rifle be sure you get a high-grade one. It pays. We recently obtained one of this latter class from the Marlin Fire Arms Co., of New Haven, Conn. It is a beautiful rifle, and as for its accuracy in shooting, we never used one that gave better satisfaction. You can depend on a Marlin. W. F. BOSWELL, Manager.

NOBODY IS WISE all the time. The most prudent of us will occasionally eat under-ripe or over ripe fruit in Summer. We do not suffer long if Perry Davis' Painkiller is at hand to cure the cramps.

From this date no attention will be paid to manuscripts that come to this office rolled. Let them be folded and put in an envelope. And please, brethren and sisters, use ink. Pencil writing, after passing through the mail, is often hard to read. We speak both for the printer and the editor.

How Epworth Pianos Are Made

EPWORTH SCALE.

First of all, before a piano can be made there must be a "scale." The scale is the plan of the musical parts. If the scale is faulty, the piano will be faulty. Scale drawing is the finest art in connection with the piano industry. The strings of every note in the entire piano are different in length, tension, and thickness from every other note. Upon the correctness of the proportions of these three elements depends the evenness of tone quality. Many pianos have uneven scales. In such instruments the bass is too heavy or too light for the treble, or the tone is weak in the middle part. No amount of care in the manufacturing will make up for improper proportions of the strings. That's why so many pianos are so deficient in tone—so disappointing to the cultured musician.

In 1893 we had a rare chance to purchase complete scales and patterns from a certain well-known German piano manufacturer. We carefully tested the pianos which were made according to these patterns, and found them to possess a tone of remarkable depth, purity, and evenness. We carefully compared them with instruments of the best-known makes, and found that they compared favorably with pianos of the highest reputation and highest price. They were so superior to ordinary moderate-priced pianos that we hastened to conclude the bargain, and these superior scales and patterns became our property. They had been perfected in Germany, and were the combined result of the brains and skill of two generations of expert piano-makers.

This accounts largely for the remarkably rapid rise of our piano from a musical and artistic standpoint. It is, in fact, a "long-established make," manufactured in a modern, up-to-date factory. Every part is made by expert mechanics, exactly according to the patterns, and our pianos are therefore uniformly high-grade, sweet-toned instruments. Only the most carefully selected materials are used in their construction.

We will explain in detail how the various parts are made.

BACK.

The backs of Epworth Pianos are made of bone-dry ash and maple. The lumber is seasoned in the atmosphere for three or four years before it is cut up and put into the dry-kiln. It is kept in the dry-kiln for about three weeks, with the temperature at about 180 degrees. This drives out what little moisture there was left, and leaves the wood bone dry.

It is important that the back be exceedingly strong. The back is the foundation or skeleton which supports and sustains the entire piano. On it are held solidly the iron plate, the strings, the sounding-board, the case, etc.

Do you know how much strain the strings make? You can easily figure it out. Each string sustains an average tension of over 250 pounds. There are 224 separate strings in an upright piano. Multiply 224 by 250. The result is 56,000 pounds—twenty-eight tons. That's why it is so important to have the backs so strongly built.

The wrest plank, into which the tuning pins fasten, is made of five different layers—the grain alternately running lengthwise and crosswise. It can't split. The pins can't slip. They have to stay where the tuner puts them.

EPWORTH SOUNDING BOARD.

The sounding-board is not much seen. It's the most important part, nevertheless. It extends clear across the piano, and reaches from the wrest plank to the bottom. It's the sounding board that gives to the tone its resonance, purity and beauty. Some pianos have a tubby, thumpy quality of tone; others have a weak, thin, twangy quality. The trouble then is mainly with the sounding-board.

Makers of cheap commercial pianos slight the parts not seen. To make a sounding-board exactly right is one of the most difficult and expensive parts of the entire work. The sounding-board must present a convex surface toward the strings, as the breast of a violin. Whether the convature will remain, or will gradually flatten out, depends on how the board is made. When it flattens, the brilliancy of the tone is gone forever.

Some makers press that curve into the board, and then put on the ribs to hold it. That's a cheap, quick way. The maker saves the difference, but the piano suffers by it. That's why some pianos lose their brilliant tone after a while; the board flattens out. It is the tendency always for a board which is sprung to spring back. It's sure to in time, if the curve was pressed in. No dependence can be put in a sounding-board made that cheap way.

Now, there is a way to make the sounding-board stay curved out forever. It's simple to understand, but it costs a great deal more—takes more time and work.

This is the way the sounding-board of every one of our pianos is made:

The sounding board is made up of a number of selected pieces of quarter-sawed Vermont spruce joined perfectly, the grain running diagonally from the upper right hand corner to the lower left hand corner (as one faces the board), the wood having been seasoned for two years before making the board. Then the sounding-board (flat, and not yet ribbed) is put into a heating-box and kept at high temperature for six days to expel every particle of moisture. Then it is taken out of the heating-box, and ribs are glued firmly across its back, the ribs running transversely across the grain of the board. Then it is allowed to cool. While in the heating-box it has shrunk to the limit. There is natural moisture in the outside air; there is practically none in the kiln-heated board. But as it cools it absorbs some moisture from the air. It swells a little to come back to its normal condition. But on the back the ribs hold it absolutely. So all the expanding is done on the front. Of course, that curves it the right way. When it reaches the proper curvature it is treated to a coat of pure sandarac varish held in solution in alcohol. Both sides are completely covered with this varnish. The alcohol quickly evaporates, leaving the pores of the wood thoroughly filled and absolutely impervious to the moisture of the atmosphere.

So long as those ribs hold—and they will hold forever under ordinary conditions—that sounding board will retain its shape, and the piano will retain the resonance and richness of tone. When a sounding-board is made that way, the forces of nature hold it. When a sounding-board is made any other way, the forces of natnre are slowly, but surely flattening it. That's what's the matter with thousands of pianos. That's why cheaply made pianos soon sound so flat and tubby. In buying a piano it is well to insist on knowing how the sounding-board is made. That's one of the most important things to know.

WHAT A SAMPLE BOTTLE OF SWAMP-ROOT DID.

To Prove what Swamp-Root, the Great Kidney, Liver and Bladder Remedy, will do for YOU, Every Reader of "CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE" May Have a Sample Bottle Sent Free by Mail.

Springfield, Ohio, Feb. 21, 1901.

"Having heard that you could procure a sample bottle of Swamp-Root, free by mail, I wrote to Dr Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle and it was promptly sent. I was so pleased after trying the sample bottle that I sent to the drug store and procured a supply. I have used Swamp-Root regularly for some time and consider it unsurpassed as a remedy for torpid liver, loss of appetite and general derangement of the digestive functions. I think my trouble was due to too close confinement in my business. I can recommend it highly for all liver and kidney complaints. I am not in the habit of endorsing any medicine, but in this case I can not speak too much in praise of what Swamp-Root has done for me."

631 West High St. W. F. Lohnes.

W. F. LOHNES

The mild and extraordinary effect of the world-famous kidney and bladder remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases.

Weak and unhealthy kidneys are responsible for more sickness and suffering than any other disease, therefore, when through neglect or other causes, kidney trouble is permitted to continue, fatal results are sure to follow.

We often see a friend, a relative, or an acquaintance apparently well, but in a few days we may be grieved to learn of their severe illness, or sudden death, caused by that fatal type of kidney trouble—Bright's Disease.

EDITORIAL NOTE—If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the famous new discovery, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, because as soon as your kidneys are well they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone.

You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful remedy, Swamp-Root, sent absolutely free by mail, also a book telling all about Swamp Root and containing many of the thousands upon thousands of testimonial letters received from men and women who owe their good health, in fact their very lives to the great curative properties of Swamp-Root. In writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure to say that you read this generous offer in the NEW ORLEANS "CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE."

If you are already convinced that Swamp-Root is what you need, you can purchase the regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles at the drug stores everywhere. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Home Circle.

Fred and Carlo.

Little Fred Keith had no brother or sister to play with, and when company came he was very selfish with his playthings.

One day his father brought home a beautiful collie.

"Now, Fred," he said, "Carlo is to be your pet, but you must treat him kindly, and not be selfish."

They had grand frolics when they went for a walk together. If Fred threw a stick into the pond, Carlo would swim out and bring it back.

One bright morning in July Fred went out into the pasture to pick berries. He carried two small pails, in one of which mother had packed a nice luncheon. Carlo trotted along, carrying the empty pail in his mouth.

The blueberries hung in clusters on the low bushes, but the sun was hot, and before one pail was filled Fred decided that it was surely dinner time. He sat down in the shade of a tall laurel bush and began to eat a sandwich. Carlo smelled the meat and begged for a piece, but though his big brown eyes were wistful, and he held up both paws, Fred took no notice.

"I'm real hungry and I want it all myself. You can catch a squirrel," he said at last.

The second sandwich was half gone, and Carlo's eyes looked sad. "Carlo has been chasing a rabbit all the morning; p'rhaps he is as hungry as I am. I guess maybe he can have this ham and cake, and I'll eat the pie."

Carlo barked a joyous "Thank you!" and, somehow, Fred's pie tasted twice as good as usual. Then they ran down to the spring and drank some of the clear water.

When both pails were full they started for home. Faithful Carlo carried one pail so carefully that not a berry was spilled.

The next afternoon Fred took Carlo for a walk in the fields. Grandfather's barn, where he kept his salt hay, stood all by itself in the pasture, and near-by was an old cellar. Fred went to the edge to look over; a stone loosened, and he fell in. He tried for a long while to climb out, but each time he fell back.

Carlo ran around the edge barking; then he jumped in. Fred was glad that he did not leave him alone. He called for help until he was tired. The sun went down. Again he called with all his might, but the only answer was an echo from the old barn. By and by he laid down and cried himself to sleep.

When he awoke the moon was shining brightly. He remembered a ginger-snap that was in his pocket. "I'll give Carlo half, the dear doggy!" he thought. Out came the cooky, and his little blank-book with it. Fred shouted with delight as he emptied his pocket. It was full, like all boys' pockets, and, sure enough, there was a stubby pencil and some string.

"Dear Mother—I'm in the old cellar, and can't get out.

"FRED."

He tied the paper round Carlo's neck. Then he piled up all the rocks until he could reach high enough to help Carlo out.

"Go home, quickly, Carlo," he said; and the dog leaped away.

Lanterns were flashing into dark corners, and all the neighbors were hunting for Fred. Mrs. Keith ran to the door when she heard Carlo's bark. How she did hug him after she had read the note!

"Mother," exclaimed Fred, when he had eaten supper, and finished telling the story of his adventure, "I'm glad that I gave Carlo some dinner yesterday. If he had not helped me, I'd be in the old cellar now."

"Yes," said his mother, "Carlo is a true friend. I should be very sorry if my little boy were selfish to such a good dog."—The Morning Star.

Quiet Hints for Growing Preachers.

Many a man in the ministry fails, not because he is bad, but because he has a genius for blundering.

Christ thrusts a cross into a man's face and holds it there. Accursed is every policy which attempts to hide it or take it away.

Precious time may be squandered in a fruitless endeavor to bring the Almighty into conformity to human expectations.

A man ought to preach, not where he wants to preach, but where he can preach.

Woe to the minister who is looking for an easy job! There is more hope of a fool than him.

The men who put salary first and church second are usually the men whose salary never increases.

A servant who calls attention to himself rather than to the dinner is a servant who does not understand his business.

A man intellectually lazy will do anything rather than whip his mind to mental exercise.

A parish soon discovers when the minister is trusting to his diploma and has put his mind to bed.

Nothing grows stale so soon as brilliancy.

Spunk is good, but the servant of the Lord must be something more than a fighting cock or bull-dog.

If humanity were clothed and in its right mind, the occupation of the preacher would be gone.

Men become so zealous for the truth they lie for it.

Indeed, a man may become so wrong-headed as to think that the farther he gets from his people the nearer he is to God.

A church is an organism, and, like all organisms, refuses to be run.

It is a fatal blunder for a minister to make the decalogue and his own wishes equally binding on the consciences of his people.

Popularity is the most fearful of all tests.

Envy is a sin of weakness, and whoever is guilty of it confesses his inferiority.

The first thing that a preacher must demand of himself is that he shall be understood.

Some men can not brook obscurity. They covet popular attention. They live on public favor. To be ignored by the press is gehenna.

Fame is nothing, publicity is nothing; serving God by helping men is all.

Self-consciousness and lofty spiritual attainments do not go together.

Ministers, with rare exceptions, fall by the hands of enemies no less fatal, but far more insidious and respectable, pride, selfishness, envy, covetousness, laziness, ambition; there are a host of others.

The Real Tragedy.

"I can not understand it," said some one lately commenting on the death of a young girl who had been an earnest Christian worker. "Why should she have been taken away in the very midst of so much unfinished work for God? She was so needed, so useful—why should such a beautiful life have been taken away? There is nothing so sad as unfinished work, left in the midst by the worker."

"Oh, yes, there is," said another friend. "The saddest thing is work that is never begun. Such a death as Ethel's is just the going into a larger life. The work she leaves has already appealed to others, and some one will take it up, never fear. But the soul that has never begun any work for God, and is called to his judgment seat—that is tragedy indeed."

Was he not right? It may not be in God's plan for us that we should finish any work for him; but it is in his plan that each of us should begin something, no matter how small, that shall help to bring the coming of his kingdom, or glorify his name. In every church, in every young people's society, in every individual soul, the saddest thing is the work that is never begun for God. It might be helpful, so wide, so permanent—but the person who could begin it does not. The greatest oak may spring from a single planted acorn. But if no one plants the acorn—what then? In every life—at every time of life—some work can be begun for God. Its end none can foresee, but its beginning is always in our power. The tragedy of many a useless soul is that it has never begun the work that God gave it to do—the work that he will require, and for lack of which judgment must follow. Is this tragedy to be ours? We alone can decide that question.—Wellspring.

Are there not many persons, well-to-do in this world's goods, who will send us money—any sum they may see fit to give—to supply the ADVOCATE to persons who would like to have it, but are unable to pay anything? We will gladly send it to such for one dollar a year. We hope to get many responses to this appeal. Let those who respond designate the names of those to whom they desire the paper sent, or give the money to their pastors, and let them send the names. If names are not sent, the editor will do the best he can. Who will first respond?

OBITUARIES.

Obituaries of 200 words published free. For all words in excess of that number send one cent per word.

Brother J. W. Tooke was born in Georgia, May 28, 1834, and died at his home in Arcadia, La., March 28, 1902. He was married three times; first to Miss Mary E. Smith, Dec. 14, 1859, who died Dec. 14, 1866, leaving one child. The second marriage was to Mrs. Nannie L. Theus, March, 1868, who died June 12, 1871, leaving one child. The third time he married Miss Sallie C. Bell, Oct. 20, 1874, who, with four sons and three daughters, now mourn the loss of husband and father. Bro. Tooke joined the M. E. Church, South, at Mount Lebanon in 1879. He was one of our best men, both in church work and as a citizen, having the love and confidence of all. He was a steward, faithful and true, at the time of his death, and for many years before. No matter what work was required of him in the church, he was faithful in its performance, whether it was to lead a prayer meeting, or look after the preacher's salary, or the improvement of church property; always present to hear the Word, or counsel for the good of the cause of the Master. His was an even, happy Christian life. His service to the parish was equally efficient and satisfactory. He served as magistrate, then as clerk of the district court for fourteen years. When the war between the States came on he joined the Confederate Army, and served his country well and with honor to the close of the struggle. There is no need of eulogies for such a man as he. One has justly said of him, "To indite the whole truth of his career, or to enumerate half of his noble deeds and Christian charities, would fill a volume." His presence produced sunshine and joy wherever he went, and in his last sickness, which lasted for many months, he taught how a Christian should live, so that, when sickness comes, with calm resignation and trustfulness he ready to die. He always looked on the bright side, and now he is gone to his reward. "Well done, good and faithful servant; enter thou into the joy of thy Lord." We laid his body in the grave on Easter Sunday. His former pastor, Bro. Henderson; Prof. Carson, of Ruston, and myself conducted the funeral services according to the Discipline of our church, and then the Masonic fraternity, of which he was a member, with their impressive service, took him to his last resting-place. God is comforting the bereaved ones. May his grace be sufficient!

H. O. White.

James Bascom Phillips was born near Cold Water, Tate county, Miss., Aug. 8, 1880, and died of pneumonia at Millsaps College, Jackson, Miss., Feb. 15, 1902. James was left an orphan at an early age, and was reared by an ungodly uncle. He was converted to God and joined the Methodist Church at the age of seventeen. It is said that his piety did not suit his uncle, and he had to leave home a few months after he joined the church, and shift for himself. He felt that he was called of God to preach, but he had no education scarcely with which to begin. Bro. J. P. Featherstun, of Senatobia, hearing of him, sent for him, and took him into his own home, and sent him to school at Senatobia for two years, and then to Millsaps College. He was in his second year at college when he died. James' whole motive in life was to preach the gospel, and to the preparation for which he bent all his energies. He was a very close student, and, considering his early disadvantages, made good progress in his studies. Though he did not live to realize the great aspiration of his life to preach the gospel from the pulpit, yet his daily life was a sermon in itself, for he was a young man of sterling character and of deep piety. No one knew him but to love him, and those who knew him best loved him most. We can not understand, nor do we question the ways of Providence in taking away one so young and full of promise, for we know that he does all things well. "For my thoughts are not your thoughts, neither are your ways my ways, saith the Lord. For as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are my ways higher than your ways, and my thoughts than your thoughts."

T. H. Pontar.

Charles Johnson was born July 24, 1817, at Soins, Wayne county, N. Y., and died March 26, 1902, after an illness of more than two months at his home in Grand Gulf, Miss., at which place he had resided since 1841. Though he suffered much, no word of complaint ever passed his lips. He had been a member of the M. E. Church, South, for about sixty years. His home was ever open to the preachers, and he always contributed liberally towards the support of God's cause. He loved the church, Sunday-school, and prayer meeting, and worked faithfully in them all until he was prevented by ill health. His faith was strong to the last. He expressed himself as being ready to depart and be with his Lord, if it was the will of him that doeth all things well. Surrounded by loved ones, he talked freely of what Christ had done for us all, and addressing each one individually, prayed that the dear, heart-broken wife, who had walked by his side for more than fifty-nine years, might not grieve for him, but that she, with the children and grandchildren left behind, might so live that when the angel messenger comes to summon each to appear before the great white throne, there may be no fear, but that all will be ready to meet papa and grandpa on the shores of sweet deliverance. We miss you, dear father, but our loss is your gain. We would not recall you, but will try to come to that beautiful home.

A. F.

Died at Columbia, Miss., April 18, 1902, Castle McNeil, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Chisolm; born in Winona, Miss., Jan. 28, 1897. He was the grandson of Rev. T. W. Castle, deceased, who was an honored member of the North Mississippi Conference for many years. Little Castle was always a delicate child, and his parents had grave fears as to their being able to raise him. But he was unusually bright in mind, and beautiful in person and life. He was so affectionate and attractive that he was almost idolized by his parents. Only our Heavenly Father, to whom the secrets of all hearts are revealed, knows the sorrow of those who are thus bereft. But we mourn not as those who have no hope, for we have the assurance that he is occupying a mansion high up in heaven, more handsomely furnished than any earthly home; that he is clothed with the spotless robes of righteousness, which are more beautiful than any of the costly garments of earth; that he is enjoying the music of the heavenly choir, which is sweeter far than all the orchestras on earth; and that his companions are millions of pure little spirits like unto his own, and all the saints who have gone on before, and Jesus, his precious Savior, who said, "Let the little children come."

W. M. Williams, P. C.

Tribute of Respect.

Whereas, God, in his infinite wisdom, has removed from our midst our beloved sister in Christ, Mrs. Mary A. Armstrong, who was born June 20, 1834, and died Feb. 25, 1902; therefore, be it Resolved, 1. That the death of Sister Armstrong leaves an aching void in our hearts that never can be filled. Our church and Sunday-school have lost one of its most faithful and beloved members, but our loss is her eternal gain.

2. That while we sadly miss our beloved sister, we humbly submit to the will of God, who doeth all things well. While we try to imitate her virtues, we will double our diligence to advance the cause of Christ, and pray that a double portion of God's Spirit fall on our church and Sunday-school that she loved so well.

3. That we extend our deepest sympathy to the bereaved family, and point them in heaven, where their loved one is waiting and watching for them. May God's richest blessings rest upon her two daughters and their families!

Committee: Mrs. F. M. Jones, J. C. Keller, J. T. Wommack.

Mamie Bernice Judd, child of Mr. W. H. and Mrs. Tillie Judd, was born in Snohomish, Wash., Aug. 21, ——, and died in Williamette, Ark., April 5, 1902. Little Bernice joined the Southern Methodist Church last September in Berwick, La., and evinced a good state of faith and experience for a child of her tender years. She was very lovable and confiding; had friends by the score. She was especially the favorite of her uncle, Mr. Frank Judd, and to him the blow is, doubtless, heavy. She was taken to Bayne Falls, Mich., where the burial took place. She sleeps by the side of her grandfather. She died of dropsy, and expired in her father's arms. Weep not for her, dear parents, but follow her in the Savior's commands.

by local applications, as they can not reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed, you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that can not be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

True peace and rest lie not in outward things. There liveth no man on earth who may always have rest and peace without trouble and crosses. Wherefore yield thyself willingly to them, and seek only that true peace of the heart, which none can take away from thee, that thou mayest overcome all assaults.—Theologia Germanica.

FOR OVER SIXTY YEARS

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used for children teething. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for Diarrhœa. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

There is nothing, sir, too little for so little a creature as man. It is by studying little things that we attain the greater art of having as little misery and as much happiness as possible.—Samuel Johnson.

We Have It at Last

For many years we have been trying to get a Bible containing exactly the features which, to our mind, would constitute as nearly as possible especially for the use of preachers and teachers. We have contracted for a large number of a Bible which we believe to be the nearest to a perfect book we have ever seen. It contains the Authorized Version, Dictionary of Proper Names, Subject Index, Concordance, and Maps. The type is long primer, self-pronouncing. It is 6x8½ inches, and only 1 inch thick. Bound in the best levant morocco, divinity circuit (overlapping edges), calf lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges. By reason of the large number contracted for we are selling this splendid Bible at only a little more than half its regular price.

Our Price, Only $5.00

Postage 20 cents additional, if mailed.

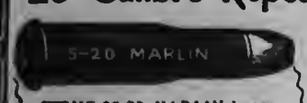
THE ORIGINAL
25 Calibre Repeater



THE 25-20 MARLIN is one of the handiest arms made and accurate to 300 yards, with light report and little recoil. Its bullet is more reliable than a 22 calibre and the barrel does not foul as rapidly. It will kill closely and quickly without tearing. Smokeless powder can be used in a large variety of loads, and the ammunition is cheap.

REV. WALKER'S
FAMOUS DYSPEPSIA CURE.

Famous for Glorious Achievements.

The recognized confiding scientific Cure for Dyspepsia, Nervous Indigestion, Constipation, Acidity, and Bilious Colic. Relief in one minute, with first dose; quickly effects a permanent Cure. Never fails. Neutralizes and eradicates dyspeptic poison. An absolute specific. Very palatable, perfectly harmless, as gentle as nature in effect. Neglected Dyspepsia and Indigestion produce "Bright's Disease," undermines the vital organs, overthrows the mental faculties, producing insanity and death.

Mr. J. G. Thompson, Ancleta, Fla., voluntarily writes: "I suffered agonies from Dyspepsia. Walker's Famous Dyspepsia Cure quickly cured me. I gained 14 pounds in one month. My friends are astonished at my quick recovery. A wonderful medicine."

A Chance to Make Money.

I have berries, grapes and peaches a year old, fresh as when picked. I used the California Cold Process. Do not heat or seal the fruit, just put it up cold, keeps perfectly fresh, and costs almost nothing; can put up a bushel in ten minutes. Last year I sold directions to over 120 families in one week; anyone will pay a dollar for directions when they see the beautiful samples of fruit. As there are many people poor like myself, I consider it my duty to give my experience to such, and feel confident anyone can make one or two hundred dollars to and home in a few days. I will mail sample of fruit and full directions to any of your readers for nineteen (19) two-cent stamps, which is only the actual cost of the samples, postage, etc. FRANCIS CASEY, St. Louis, Mo.

ADVOCATE OFFER.

Magic White Soap, advertised in our columns, is manufactured in New Orleans by a responsible company, who can be relied on to do what is promised. The soap is what is claimed for it. There is none better on the market. A fair trial has been given it at the home of the editor, and the good wife, who knows what soap is, says "it is about the best she ever used." Our lady readers would do well to give this soap a trial. Send for a box of twenty bars—one dollar; charges paid by the manufacturer.

We make the following offer: We will furnish one box of this soap, and the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for one year, for $2.50, to new subscribers. We make the same offer to all who will pay up back dues, and send $2.50 additional. Cash must accompany the order. Address

R·I·P·A·N·S

I doctored for a year and a half for what the doctor told me was gall stones. I had read so much about the relief Ripans Tabules gave other people I thought I would get some. I have used eight of the five cent boxes and have not had a spell since.

One Gives Relief.

At druggists.

ANOTHER NOTICE.

Requests for special copies of the ADVOCATE come to us so often that they are burdensome, and we again remind our friends that in making such requests they must send FOUR CENTS for each copy. We can not afford to "send bill," as we are sometimes asked to do. Please, friends, bear these things in mind.

"Potatoes."

We once heard of a man who ate potatoes for breakfast, but at lunch his wife always gave him a nice dish of potatoes, while for dinner the dear woman thought he would enjoy nothing more than a good square meal of potatoes.

This poor man died.

My dear madam, have mercy on the poor man who has to eat potatoes all the time; give him a change. Order a "New Orleans Cook Book." It is full of the best recipes by the best cooks of this Southland—95 pages—and was designed to be serviceable. Send twenty cents in stamps to the ADVOCATE office, and secure one of these valuable books before the limited supply is exhausted.

An Appeal to Our Friends.

We make a special appeal to our friends who owe us on subscription to send us the amount due. We need the money. The amount each one owes is small, but the aggregate amounts to hundreds of dollars. Our friends must see that it is embarrassing to us to withhold the money. Please look at the label on your paper, and if you are behind, send us the amount due. We will greatly appreciate it.

Bicycle Offer.

We have recently contracted for a $50 "Armada" bicycle in exchange for advertising. This machine is strictly high-grade, and a good one. We know from experience, as we have used one during the past year. As we have no particular need for this wheel, we will sell it at a considerable discount for cash.

If you want a good bicycle at a reduced rate, here is a chance to get it. Remember, any size frame, style of hand-bars, or make of tires, can be furnished

A woman's discovery
FREE

By many years of constant study and experiments, I have perfected a simple, harmless vegetable remedy that will quickly cure all female diseases as well as the pains. It is nature's own remedy, and will not only relieve, but will absolutely, thoroughly and permanently cure the ailments peculiar to women, such as falling of the womb, leucorrhea (whites), displacements, ulceration granulation, painful or scanty periods, irregular menstruation, and all the pelvic ills of women. It positively cures rectal ulcers, piles, hemorrhoids, tumors, itching, blind or bleeding piles in either sex. It cures promptly, privately and permanently without the repugnant methods in general use by physicians. You can escape embarrassing examinations, avoid humiliating exposures, cheat the surgeon's knife out of baptism in your blood.

The treatment is so simple, mild and effectual that it will not interfere with your work or occupation. Thousands and thousands of letters are being received from grateful persons from all parts of the world who have been cured by the use of this remedy. The first package is free, send for it—send to day. I know that a fair trial of it will result in your becoming its enthusiastic advocate and friend. With it I will send literature of interest and value. Do not neglect this opportunity to get cured yourself, and be in a position to advise ailing friends.

Consider well the above offer and act upon it at once. It is made in the sincere hope of aiding you and spreading the knowledge of a beneficent boon to sufferers. Earnestly, hopefully, faithfully, Mrs. CORA B. MILLER, 370 Comstock Bldg., Kokomo, Ind.

The splendid ceremonies in connection with the attaining of his majority by King Alfonso, and being crowned King of Spain, on May 17, were attended by an incident which, while insignificant in itself, for the moment created considerable excitement among those who witnessed it. Just as the royal coach emerged from the Plaza de Armas into the square in front of the palace, amid the sound of cannon, a young man among the sightseers behind the cordon suddenly pushed through the ranks of soldiers and police and rushed toward the door of the chariot with his hat in one hand and holding outstretched in the other a paper. Before he reached the door the state lackeys and equerries hurried to the scene and quickly overpowered him. The prisoner was taken to the guard room of the palace. The letter he had in his hand proved to be an address to the King, stating that the Infanta Maria Teresa had promised him her hand, and begging the King, as the brother of the Infanta, to accede to the marriage. The prisoner was carefully searched and it was found that he carried no weapon. His remarks regarding the Infauta Maria Teresa left no doubt as to his mental condition.

Too deeply to be easily torn up has become the impression that the present chaos existing in the Republican party in Congress is the result of a carefully arranged plan for the purpose of writing "Failure" over this session, so that "Failure" may be written over the administration of Theodore Roosevelt. That, in the opinion of many of the President's friends, is what the situation in the Senate and the House means. When it was announced ten days ago in several newspapers throughout the country that Cuban reciprocity was dead; that the Philippine's government bill was in articulo mortis, and that canal legislation was in its winding sheet, a great howl went up from various Republican leaders. To make a record on which the party can go before the voters with assurances of success, it is necessary to pass all three.

An effort by officers of the law in Atlanta, Ga., on May 17, to arrest negro outlaws who had barricaded themselves in a store, has resulted in the most fatal riot in the history of the city. Eight men were killed, including three policemen, a white citizen and four negroes. Six people, black and white, were wounded. The most exciting scenes prevailed at the place of the disturbance, and every available policeman, with militia called out by the Governor, had all they could do to keep down a general riot. An entire block of buildings were burned before the conflict, which began early in the morning, was terminated.

The Louisiana Legislature never made any appropriation to have the State represented at either the Buffalo or the Charleston Exposition, but Governor Heard, realizing the importance of having the products and resources of the State fairly exhibited at both places, borrowed money to the extent of $10,000, and with that sum succeeded in placing before the world at those cities a remarkably creditable exhibit. The news now comes from Charleston that the Louisiana exhibit has won 26 gold medals and diplomas, 17 silver medals and diplomas, and 23 bronze medals and diplomas. Besides these there were awarded to Louisianians 29 diplomas of honorable mention, and one special premium.

While in this country we are busily engaged in an argument as to whether or not the shipping of mules and horses to South Africa is a breach of neutrality, after the commerce has been permitted to go on without interruption for three years, the combatants in South Africa are engaged in holding conferences with a view to patching up a peace agreement. According to the latest advices, an agreement has not yet been reached, but all indications point to the probability that peace will finally result from the conference, although it may take some time to adjust matters on which an agreement has not yet been reached.

New Orleans is to have a large and thoroughly equipped flour mill, equal in every appointment to the best in Minneapolis, or any of the big milling centres of the country. Nearly all the details have been arranged, and the company organized with a capital of $250,000, mainly local. The work of active construction will be begun in a very few weeks, an agent being sent North as soon as possible to purchase the necessary machinery. In spite of being one of the leading grain centres of the country, New Orleans has been without a flour mill for years.

The disaster on the Texas coast on Sunday, coming close upon the heels of the West India calamity, will do incalculable injury to the low-lying district along the Texas waters of the Gulf. At Goliad, Texas, a great portion of the town was swept away and from 50 to 100 lives lost. The storm that almost destroyed Goliad did much damage to other coast towns, and as far in the interior as San Antonio inflicted a property loss of $100,000. In the Northwest, too, there are reports of damaging storms and cloudbursts.

Preliminary Programme for the Season at Northfield.

As the holiday season again approaches, the thoughts of many are turning toward Northfield as the place where, in previous years, amid beauty of scene, purity of country air, and inspiring associations, they have combined a pleasant and restful vacation with the spiritual privileges for which Northfield is a synonym.

In response to the interest expressed, even at this early date, by many letters of inquiry, the following announcements are sent out as preliminaries:

MOUNT HERMON BOYS' SCHOOL.

Third Summer term will extend from April 30 to Aug. 16, giving opportunity for visitors to see the actual working of the school.

In May and June, Rev. G. C. Morgan will give frequent addresses before the students of Mount Hermon School and Northfield Seminary.

"THE NORTHFIELD."

Fifteenth season will begin on June 13, and close Sept. 25. This is a beautiful hotel for the accommodation of Summer guests and those who attend the various meetings.

Northfield Seminary commencement exercises, June 14 to 18. Graduation sermon on Sunday, June 15. Commencement address by Rev. G. C. Morgan.

CAMP NORTHFIELD.

Open June 26 to Sept. 1. In '95, when first opening the camp, Mr. D. L. Moody thus expressed his purpose for it: "What I want to do is to welcome young men from the towns and cities who wish to have an enjoyable time without spending much money. We have planned for the camp, so that the expenses will be within the reach of all." The increasing attendance from year to year proves the popularity and success of Camp Northfield.

STUDENT CONFERENCE.

June 27 to July 6. The arrangement of Bible classes, study of association methods and of missions, which has made this Conference so potent a factor in the Christian life of the colleges of the United States and Canada, will be again adopted this year. Mr. G. C. Stebbins will lead the singing.

NORTHFIELD SUMMER BIBLE SCHOOL.

No more important feature has ever been introduced into the Northfield work than this. The entire month of July will be devoted to systematic, consecutive courses of Bible teaching along both normal and devotional lines. Rev. G. C. Morgan will lecture on "Crises of the Christ." His syllabus includes the following main topics: "The Call for Christ Man Fallen: I. Birth, II. Baptism, III. Temptation, IV. Transfiguration, V. Crucifixion, VI. Resurrection, VII. Ascension. The Answer of Christ—Man Redeemed." Mr. Morgan is now so closely identified with Northfield as to require no introduction. His name is a promise of mental and spiritual stimulus.

Rev. W. W. White, Ph.D., D. D., of the Bible Teachers' College, will present studies in the "Writings of Luke the Physician," aiming especially to give normal training as well as devotional insight into the subject-matter. Dr. White is known as a man, not only of fine scholarship, but of broad sympathy and marked success as a Bible teacher, and the mention of his name in this connection will be gladly welcomed.

Rev. J. W. Kelman, M. A., who has taken so important a place in the religious life and work of the students of the Edinburgh University, will also be one of the teachers in this July school.

With men of such pronounced ability and spiritual power as leaders, the possibilities of this month of solid Bible study can not be overestimated.

GENERAL CONFERENCE OF CHRISTIAN WORKERS.

Aug. 1 to 17. The list of speakers announced for these meetings gives assurance of the same strength and inspiration for life and work which so many have derived from this Conference in other years.

A series of studies in the minor prophets, by Mr. Morgan, will extend throughout the Conference.

Several "Institutes" will be held. One, led by Mr. John Willis Baer, will study aims and methods of young people's work; another will consider music in its relation to Christian work, under the direction of Prof. D. B. Towner, of Chicago.

A large number of missionaries will be present to share in the exercises of Missionary Day, Aug. 11.

POST-CONFERENCE ADDRESSES.

Aug. 19 to Sept. 7. A series of daily Bible lectures intended to continue the thought of the General Conference. Many remain to take advantage of these days of quiet Bible study. Rev. F. B. Meyer, London, England, will be one of the speakers.

Further announcements will be made as early as possible.

Inquiries regarding board, etc., should be addressed as heretofore to

How We Are to Distinguish Scriptural Sanctification from that Which Is False.

BY REV. ISAAC L. PEEBLES.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: Much is being said about sanctification and holiness nowadays, but we are sorry to have to say that much more is being said than lived. When John the Baptist began to preach he said, "Repent," and so did our Lord. When Christ gave his commission to his disciples he said, "And that repentance and remission of sins should be preached in his name among all nations, beginning at Jerusalem." (Luke xxiv, 47.) On the Day of Pentecost, Peter said, "Repent." (Acts ii, 38.) Paul said of God that he "now commandeth all men everywhere to repent." (Acts xvii, 30.) He said to the Corinthians, "For I determined not to know anything among you, save Jesus Christ, and him crucified." (I. Cor. ii, 2.) Our Lord had John to inform the backslidden churches in Asia that they must "repent." (Rev. ii and iii.) Strange to say that none of the New Testament preachers, and not even our Lord himself, said one word about sinners or Christians being, or must be, sanctified. They did not preach to the cold, lukewarm, or to the wholly backslidden, that they must be sanctified, but that they must "repent." But how are we to know Bible sanctification from the false?

1. People who have Bible sanctification do not brag on and praise themselves. They are not disposed to praise their own goodness or works, and it makes them uneasy if others do so. They feel that the Scriptures should be heeded: "Let another man praise thee, and not thine own mouth." (Prov. xxvii, 2.) "Vaunteth not itself." (I. Cor. xiii, 4.)

2. Bible sanctification makes its possessor humble. If one does good who has it, he gives God all the glory, and takes none to himself. If he feels any good in him, he says, "By the grace of God, I am what I am." (I. Cor. xv, 10.) If he has done all that is commanded, he feels as Christ expresses it when he commanded his disciples to say, "We are unprofitable servants: we have done that which was our duty to do." (Luke xvii, 10.) And, too, instead of parading his own goodness, and striving to appear as better than other Christians who are endeavoring to live right, he feels more like Paul when he said of himself, "Who am less than the least of all saints." (Eph. iii, 8.)

3. Scriptural sanctification is not a bewildering, confusing thing, but is as Isaiah said in foretelling the coming of Christ's kingdom: "The way of holiness, the unclean shall not pass over it; but it shall be for those: the wayfaring men, though fools, shall not err therein." (Isa. xxxv, 8.)

4. It enables its possessors to love everybody, and to love all true Christians better than they do themselves. Oh, that all had in their hearts Bible sanctification! What glorious times we all would have! How near to God we would keep! What love we would have for one another! But what is Bible or scriptural sanctification? It is what our Lord meant when he said, "Ye must be born again." (John iii, 7.) And also the repentance he spoke of in Luke xiii, 3. This state is accomplished as Paul and Peter declared, "Through sanctification of the Spirit." (II. Thess. ii, 13; I. Peter i, 2.) Everyone who is regenerated or born again is sanctified according to Paul and Peter, and, therefore, all such are expected to go on to perfection in sanctification or holiness. The Christian, when born again, is a babe, and he then grows to be a child, a youth, a man, and then he is said to be perfect. Plants, animals and every living thing grow from a perfect beginning to its highest perfect development. So it is with all true Christians.

Mayersville Charge, Mississippi Conference.

DEAR MR. EDITOR: The pastor and his family are being very kindly treated by the generous hearted people of this pleasant charge in the Delta, and are deeply grateful for the many favors shown them. A new and long-needed room has recently been added to the parsonage, and several other improvements have been made, which have rendered the pastor's home one of the most comfortable and convenient in our Conference. For these improvements thanks are due to the good ladies of the Mayersville Aid Society.

As this (Issaquena) county is sparsely settled with white people—the number, all told, being scarcely over eight hundred—the work of building up the church is necessarily slow, and it is impossible to make anything like as gratifying a showing in numerical increase as is possible in towns and sections of the country where people are flocking in by the hundred, and where conditions are entirely different. Many of our members live remote from church, and, in consequence, attend service only a few times a year. Some, alas! have dropped out of the church-going habit altogether. We have had nine additions to the church since Conference, and are hopeful of bringing others into the fold in the near future.

The new dram-shop law, known as the Dunn bill, passed by the late session of the Mississippi Legislature, will, by the end of the year, close up every licensed saloon in Issaquena county, as we have no towns in this county that can legally claim the necessary 500 inhabitants. As temperance sentiment is by no means strong in this section, total abstainers being the exception, it will require diligent effort on the part of temperance people to keep out "blind-tigers." The "blind-tiger," though an unmitigated evil, is rarely as harmful and corrupting, however, as the open saloon. Despite the fact that this has for years been a "wet" county, "blind-tigers" have long been operating within its borders almost unmolested, and hence the favorite argument of the whiskyites, that prohibition breeds "blind-tigers," is likely to prove a boomerang in the light of such developments. In our opinion, the new liquor law is certain to prove a great blessing to this county, as well as to other counties, and the anti-saloon statute will be as well enforced as any other law on our statute books.

We have raised in cash $65 on our $80 assessment for foreign missions, and we hope to have the entire assessment in hand at an early date. Good progress is being made on our other collections. We have at this place a live and active auxiliary of the W. F. M. S. At a recent Sunday evening rally, held in the interest of this society, the goodly sum of $15 was raised for the foreign field. The ADVOCATE has been put into several new homes this year.

Yours fraternally,

M. M. BLACK.

A Revival at Alexandria.

We have just closed a wonderful meeting at this place in the West End Church. Eighteen accessions and twenty-two conversions. The meeting continued fourteen days, and God was with us in great power from the first. Rev. D. H. Cassels, of Gloster, Miss., did all the preaching. He is a man of God, "full of faith and the Holy Ghost." My people were made to see many things as they have never seen them before, especially with reference to the great doctrine of sanctification. Upon this subject he is safe and sound, and it is good for my church that he ever came this way. His forceful preaching and earnest appeals will be long remembered by the people of Alexandria. Congregations were large all the way through; even the morning services were well attended. The various churches of the city were well represented, both by people and pastor.

Among the ministerial brethren who gave us their presence, approval and assistance, were Rev. J. D. Harper, presiding elder of the Alexandria district; Revs. C. C. Miller, of Third Street; W. T. Woodard, of Pineville; L. L. Roberts, of Lecompte, and Rev. Dr. Hoover, pastor of the Baptist Church of Alexandria.

If any of the brethren have cold, indifferent and anti-missionary members, and really want a revival, have Bro. Cassels come to you, and if they are divided on sanctification, he will bring them together. Address him at Boyce, La. He is now holding a meeting for me at this place. Large crowds are attending our services, and God is wonderfully blessing this "boy preacher." He condemns, in forceful language, every phase of sin, preaching the Word intelligently, lovingly, and with great power.

God bless the ADVOCATE and its readers, and may we all be kept by his grace till he calls us to a triumphal reunion above in the city of our God. D. E. KELLY, P. C.

INFANT BAPTISM—No. 2.

BY AN ITINERANT.

THE IDENTITY OF THE CHURCH UNDER THE JEWISH AND CHRISTIAN DISPENSATION.

In regard to the church of God, there are three theories, viz.:

1. The church of God now in the world is the same church to which Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Moses and all the prophets, belonged; and infants have a right to membership in it.

2. The only true church of God was organized by John the Baptist somewhere in the wilderness, some time during his public ministry; and infant children have no right to membership in it.

3. The only true church now in the world was organized by St. Peter in Jerusalem on the Day of Pentecost; and it would be sinful to admit infants to membership in it.

Of course, two of the above theories must be incorrect; and we will show conclusively to any candid mind, before we leave our task, that the first is the correct one—that the church of Christ has been substantially the same in all ages of the world.

SECTION 1.

The English word "church" does not occur in the Authorized Version of the Old Testament Scriptures, but is of frequent occurrence in the Authorized Version of the New Testament. But are we, therefore, to conclude that God had no church on earth in the Old Testament times? Certainly not. The Greek word "ekklesia," which is rendered "church" in the New Testament, occurs frequently in the Greek version, called the Septnagint, of the Old Testament. This word, "ekklesia," is translated "church" in our Authorized Version of the New Testament, and "congregation" in our Authorized Version of the Old Testament. For example, "I will declare thy name unto my brethren; in the midst of the congregation will I praise thee." (Ps. xxii, 22.) Paul quotes the Psalmist as follows, "I will declare thy name unto my brethren; in the midst of the church will I sing praise unto thee." (Heb. ii, 12.) In the passage quoted from the Psalmist the word, "ekklesia," is rendered "congregation;" but in the passage from Hebrews it is rendered "church."

Another example is furnished by St. Stephen, the first Christian martyr, recorded in Acts vii, 37, 38. He says: "This is that Moses, which said unto the children of Israel, a Prophet shall the Lord your God raise up unto you, of your brethren, like unto me; him shall ye hear. This is he that was in the church in the wilderness, with the angel which spake to him in Mount Sinai, and with our fathers; who received the lively oracles to give unto us." This church, this "ekklesia," in the wilderness was the congregation of the Lord which came up out of the land of Egypt. This congregation of the Lord was his church, and he called them his people. "Thus saith the Lord God of Israel, Let my people go, that they may hold a feast unto me in the wilderness." (Ex. v, 1.) The same words are repeated in chapters viii, 1, and ix, 1. By these passages we are informed that the church extended farther back than the wilderness. "My people" are "my church," and they came from the land of Egypt. To prove that this "ekklesia" was not a promiscuous assembly, but a regular ecclesiastical organization, we note St. Paul. He calls it "a house," in which Moses acted as a servant, and afterwards Christ as "a Son," "whose house," says the apostle, "are we" (Heb. iii).

"'Ekklesia' is from 'ekkeleo,' to convoke, or call together; and hence the 'ekklesia' of the Old Testament and of the New, the church in the wilderness, the congregation of the Lord, the people whom God claims as his, are a people whom God has convoked, or called together—separated from the world. 'By faith Abraham when he was called to go out into a place which he should after receive for an inheritance, obeyed; and he went out, not knowing whither he went.' (Heb. xi, 8.) 'Now the Lord had said unto Abram, Get thee out of thy country, and from thy kindred, and from thy father's house, unto a land that I shall show thee; and I will make of thee a great nation, and I will bless thee, and make thy name great; and thou shalt be a blessing; and I will bless them that bless thee, and curse him that curseth thee; and in thee shall all families of the earth be blessed.' (Gen. xii, 1–3.) Thus called, Abraham and his descendants, through Isaac and Jacob, became the congregation of the Lord, the church of God, his own peculiar people. Moses said to the church in the wilderness, 'For thou art a holy people unto the Lord thy God, and the Lord hath chosen thee to be a peculiar people unto himself, above all nations that are upon the earth.'" (Deut. xiv, 2.) (Essay on Infant Baptism, page 19.)

Of certain offenses, Jesus said to his disciples, "Tell it unto the church." (Matt. xviii, 17.) This, with all the passages cited above on the matter of the church, refer to the church before Pentecost; and none of them intimate that it should be done away on the Day of Pentecost, or any other day. And nowhere do we find one word about John the Baptist organizing a church in the wilderness, or anywhere else—not even in the river Jordan. Neither is there the least intimation of a "new church" being organized on the Day of Pentecost. Turning to the second chapter of the Acts, we read, "Then they that gladly received his word were baptized; and the same day there were added unto them about three thousand souls." (Acts ii, 41.) This is the only language in connection with Pentecost that gives an account of the relation of anyone being changed, and the statement is, "About three thousand souls were added." Added to what? Certainly not to the "new church," for there could be no "new church" before itself. Evidently, they were added to the church already in existence.

"A FEW FACTS."

BY A CIRCUIT RIDER.

Under the above caption H. B. Webster, in the American Baptist Flag, some time ago treated its readers to no less than twenty-two "facts," many of them as fictitions and contradictory as they are amusing. His article was copied in at least one paper of "the same faith and order." For the instruction of the ADVOCATE readers, a few of these "facts" are here reproduced.

"15. It is a fact that the first Baptist Church, organized by Christ and located in Jerusalem, and the only church organized by him during his personal ministry, is the model for all his churches."

If what this brother says is true—viz.: that the Baptist Church is the only church in the world—there is no hope for Methodists and others, unless men can be saved through the "uncovenanted mercy" of God, and without belonging to the church. He gives all Pedobaptists the semblance of hope, however, in his 12th, but contradictory statement to his 15th, viz.: "It is a fact that Abraham's faith and the gospel faith are the same; therefore, all who are of faith are the children of Abraham."

This is what Methodists and others have claimed from the beginning: that the covenant God made with Abraham is identical with the gospel, and that through Abraham and his posterity we have a Bible, a Savior, a gospel, and a church; that they are the stock upon which the Christian church is grafted, etc.

But this Baptist writer, who admits the identity between the Abrahamic covenant and the gospel, says the church was not founded or organized until Christ organized "the first Baptist (and only) Church in Jerusalem" several thousand years after the institution of the gospel. To be consistent, it seems to "Circuit Rider" he should have claimed that "the first Baptist Church" was organized in Abraham. But as that covenant admitted infants, maybe this is why he hesitated claiming such remote antiquity. It also seems to "Circuit Rider" that his Baptist brethren are changing the location of their first organized church. He has been under the impression all along that they claimed to date to "John the Baptist," or to "the first Baptist Church in the river Jordan." Heretofore they have claimed that the first Baptist Church was organized on the banks, or in the river Jordan, because John was not called John the Methodist, nor John the Presbyterian, but "John the Baptist."

"18. It is a fact that the Baptists for nearly 1,800 years not only gave of their substance, but many millions gave their lives to make known to the world salvation by grace."

If the Baptist Church is as old as this writer claims it to be, it has made less progress than any church in the world, true or false. However, there is not one historical fact showing that they were in existence prior to 1633, and they know it. If they date back, without interruption, from 1633 to "the first Baptist Church at Jerusalem," or to "the first Baptist Church in the river Jordan," it is by a submarine or underground passage. There is no overland route. Besides, "if they had been above ground" during the first sixteen centuries of the Christian church, "some historian would have discovered them, especially if they had been half as noisy and abusive as those are who oppose infant baptism in our day."

It may be possible that our Baptist friends, like the Masons, possess some secrets unknown on the outside, but "Circuit Rider" does not so believe. If some "Morgan" should discover and "expose" their secret underground passage back through the centuries to "the first Baptist Church at Jerusalem," or "on the banks of the Jordan," "Circuit Rider" may make the journey of exploration, provided the route is not too aqueous.

Baptists should either make known their secret archives, or else be more charitable towards the incredulous. We know they do many things "sub rosa," but some can not be deceived by their high-sounding pretensions.

LETTER FROM R. L. WEBB.

DEAR DOCTOR BOSWELL: If you have space, I should be glad to tell my many friends in Louisiana and Mississippi, through the columns of the dear old ADVOCATE, what the Lord is doing for us out in the far West.

Henleyville, the name of my charge, is a small village ten miles west of the S. P. R. R., in the upper Sacramento Valley. It consists of one store and postoffice combined, six small residences, one school, and one church, which is the only M. E. Church, South, nearer than eighteen miles. At Corning, the nearest railroad station (ten miles), there are quite a number of churches, but no M. E. Church, South. I preach at Henleyville every Sabbath at 11 A. M. and 7:30 P. M., except every fortnight, when I drive to the little town of Paskenta, which means "Under the Hill," about fifteen miles west of this place, just at the foot-hills of the Coast Range Mountains, where I preach in a school-house in the afternoon. My work, from a financial point of view, is quite small, only assessing for the support of their pastor $300, which is the very least my assessments have ever been. But I thank God. I believe his grace will keep me from murmuring, and make this very small amount adequate for the present; and I feel sure that as the work he has given me to do moves forward, the increase in salary will come also. And I want to say I was never happier, or felt the Lord more sensibly near.

We have just had a grand revival, in which more than a score of souls were converted, fourteen of which joined our church, one of whom was a Chinaman. Chong Kong is his name. I baptized him and others Easter morning. I felt a thrill go over me as I placed my hand upon his head, feeling that in him my work had at last touched the other continent. His conversion was remarkable. He said afterwards in testimony that he knew they oftimes killed people in his country for being Christians; that he expected to go back some day, and that it did not matter. "If they cuttee me all to pieces, I am going to pray to our Father in heaven." Last Sabbath I made an appeal for my collections, and Chong subscribed ten dollars.

We raised on our Conference collections last Sunday more than $53 in cash and good subscription, notwithstanding we have only a membership of thirty-nine.

We have held our third Quarterly Conference, and less than half of the preacher's salary is paid, but I've no doubt it will come. My only regrets in this matter is, I fear some of my friends, who have so generously assisted me back there, may grow weary of writing.

Brethren, one and all, have patience with me, and as the Lord liveth, I shall prove that your confidence has not been misplaced.

The field here is white unto the harvest. Pray ye the Lord of the harvest to send forth other laborers in his harvest.

With Christian greetings, I am,
Yours in the love of Christ,
R. L. WEBB.

The Columbus District Missionary Institute and Epworth League Conference.

The Columbus District Missionary Institute and Epworth League Conference convened at Crawford, Miss., May 6, 1902, at 9 A. M., and adjourned at the close of the seventh. Owing to sickness and other hindrances, the attendance was small, but, on the whole, it was a pleasant and profitable occasion.

Bro. Dorman, our much "beloved," occupied the chair, and presided, not only with "grace and dignity," but with that love characteristic of a "life hid with Christ in God." He wears worthily the emblem of affection and esteem presented to him by the preachers of the Greenville district.

The first day was devoted to the discussion of missions, under the following heads: "Missions and Civilization," "Education and Missions," "Preachers Taking Collections," "When to Take Collections," and "Resolutions, Plans, and Purposes."

We "Resolved" to put Columbus district in "Class A" on collections for missions.

The second day was devoted to the discussion of League work, according to programme published in the ADVOCATE. The reports were not encouraging, but there are a number of Leagues in the district, some of which are prosperous.

Bro. Bachman, our efficient colporter and Sunday-school agent, was present, and represented the interests entrusted to him with characteristic zeal. Among other results of his visit, Crawford Church has a set of new hymn books, and many good books were scattered throughout the district. He was the only "connectional" brother present.

G. W. Bachman, H. S. Spraggins, W. W. Mitchell, J. D. Newsom and the writer did the preaching. Some of the preachers said they were not well enough to preach, but the only excuse Bro. Dorman had was that he was "too fat."

Bro. Duncan is a success as a host, as in many other respects, and too much can not be said of the good people of Crawford in praise of their kindness to us. We parted with them, after two days in their homes, as old friends part. May God greatly bless them!

THE OUTLOOK.

BY REV. L. W. FELDEN.

I noticed some time ago that the Outlook, in commenting upon Prof. Pearson's article, in which is stated his views of the Bible, and in which the policy and polity of the Methodist Church is condemned, stated that the Methodist Church should not require its applicants for church membership to accept the Articles of Religion as being a condition of admission into its fold. I see that in a recent article entitled, "Ecclesiastical Bullying," the Outlook has expressed the same idea when it says the Presbyterian Church had no right to reject a certain applicant for admission into its ministry because he did not agree with that church in doctrine. It says the young man, "on all the cardinal points of Christian doctrine—the Trinity, the Deity of Christ, the inspiration of the Bible, the Atonement, the retribution of the world to come—was explicitly orthodox."

Pray tell me what Christian sect, even including Romish and Greek Churches, does not believe the above-named points of religion? But does believing these doctrines argue that a man will not teach any other doctrine which would be injurious to the Christian religion? If so, then Protestants, Romanists, Greeks, etc., might as well consolidate and formulate one creed expressing what they all believe. I think we would have so many exceptions to our creed-rule until it would be lost in a number of contradictory statements trying to embrace the ideas held by the consolidation as truth.

Certainly the Outlook can see the absurdity of its position if it will only remember the meaning of creed. Such actions on the part of the church would defeat its very intention, and the dissipation would, doubtless, end in total negation of all things divine, because the placing an allegorical or a mythological construction on all the deeds of the Deity which are recorded in the Bible shows nothing less than doubts concerning the infinite power of that Deity. Whenever lower criticism (exalted by the name of higher criticism) is embraced by the great spiritual lights of the church, who are receiving as fruit of their labor the salvation of souls, and who are noted for their close walks with God, instead of being embraced by men noted for their cold indifference to duty and for their speculative intellectualism, then, and not until then, need the lamps shine forth and try to bring on the break of day, because it always comes with the rising of the sun.

I think the Outlook has reached the point where it should be classed as doubtful, if not dangerous, literature.

A BIBLE READING.

BY ARTHUR ERWIN.

And he is the head of the body, the church. Col. i, 18.

For he whom God hath sent, speaketh the words of God: for God giveth not the Spirit by measure unto him. John iii, 34.

The Father loveth the Son, and hath given all things into his hand. John iii, 35.

In whom are hid all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge. Col. ii, 3.

For in him dwelleth all the fullness of the Godhead bodily. Col. ii, 9.

For it pleased the Father that in him should all fullness dwell. Col. i, 19.

There is one body, and one Spirit. Eph. iv, 4.

Now concerning spiritual gifts, brethren, I would not have you ignorant. I. Cor. xii, 1.

When he ascended up on high, he led captivity captive, and gave gifts unto men. Eph. iv, 8.

But unto every one of us is given grace according to the measure of the gift of Christ. Eph. iv, 7.

And he gave some, apostles; and some, prophets; and some, evangelists; and some, pastors and teachers. Eph. iv, 11.

For the perfecting of the saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ. Eph. iv, 12.

Now there are diversities of gifts, but the same Spirit. I. Cor. xii, 4.

But the manifestations of the Spirit is given to every man to profit withal. I. Cor. xii, 7.

For to one is given by the Spirit the word of wisdom; to another, the word of knowledge by the same Spirit. I. Cor. xii, 8.

To another, faith by the same Spirit; to another, the gifts of healing by the same Spirit. I. Cor. xii, 9.

To another, the working of miracles; to another, prophecy; to another, discerning of spirits; to another, divers kinds of tongues; to another, the interpretation of tongues. I. Cor. xii, 10.

And God hath set some in the church, first apostles, secondarily prophets, thirdly teachers, after that miracles, then gifts of healings, helps, governments, diversities of tongues. I. Cor. xii, 28.

But all these worketh that one and the self-same Spirit, dividing to every man severally as he will. I. Cor. xii, 11.

For as the body is one, and hath many members, and all the members of that one body, being many, are one body; so also is Christ. I. Cor. xii, 12.

If the foot shall say, Because I am not the hand, I am not of the body; is it therefore not of the body? I Cor. xii, 15.

And if the ear shall say, Because I am not the eye, I am not of the body; is it therefore not of the body? I. Cor. xii, 16.

And the eye can not say unto the hand, I have no need of thee: nor again the head to the feet, I have no need of you. I. Cor xii, 21.

But now hath God set the members every one of them in the body, as it hath pleased him. I. Cor. xii, 18.

That there should be no schism in the body; but that the members should have the same care one for another. I. Cor. xii, 25.

And whether one member suffer, all the members suffer with it: or one member be honored, all the members rejoice with it. I. Cor. xii, 26.

Now ye are the body of Christ, and members in particular. I. Cor. xii, 27.

Are all apostles? are all prophets? are all teachers? are all workers of miracles? I. Cor. xii, 29.

Have all the gifts of healing? do all speak with tongues? do all interpret? I. Cor. xii, 30.

Having then gifts, differing according to the grace that is given to us, whether prophecy, let us prophesy according to the proportion of faith. Rom. xii, 6.

Till we all come in the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ. Eph. iv, 13.

From whom the whole body fitly joined together and compacted by that which every joint supplieth, according to the effectual working in the measure of every part, maketh increase of the body unto the edifying of itself in love. Eph. iv, 16.

And of his fullness have all we received, and grace for grace. John i, 16.

For the law was given by Moses, but grace and truth came by Jesus Christ. John i, 17.

That ye put off concerning the former conversation the old man (the law), which is corrupt according to the deceitful lusts. Eph. iv, 22.

And that ye put on the new man (Christ), which after God is created in righteousness and true holiness. Eph. iv, 24.

In Eph. iv, 22, the old man referred to by Paul we understand to be the law, and in the twenty-fourth verse the new man, Christ, of course.

The Stimulus of Pure Blood

That is what is required by every organ of the body, for the proper performance of its functions.

It perfects all the vital processes.

W. P. Keeton, Woodstock, Ala., took Hood's Sarsaparilla to make his blood pure. He writes that he had not felt well but tired for some time. Before he had finished the first bottle of this medicine he felt better and when he had taken the second was like another man—free from that tired feeling and able to do his work.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL DEPARTMENT.

Conducted by N. A. MOTT, Yazoo City, Miss.

To Whom All Communications for This Department Must Be Sent.

Those Statistics.

Last week we gave some statistics of the children and Sunday-schools of Louisiana and Mississippi, but the limits of our space prevented our saying all we desired to say on the subject.

In the first place, let us give a few facts concerning adults. In Louisiana, out of a total white population of 729,612, there are 211,863 Catholics, and 86,444 members of Protestant Churches, or not quite 41 per cent., including Catholics, who are nominally Christian. In Mississippi, out of a total white population of 642,900, there are 227,406 nominal Christians, including 11,350 Catholics. This is a little over 35 per cent.

The International statistics of 1899 places Louisiana and Mississippi at the very foot of the column of older States, giving Louisiana only four per cent. of her population in the Sunday-schools, and Mississippi only seven per cent. These figures are entirely too low. In Mississippi about fifteen per cent. of the white population are members of the Sunday-school, and from what we know about the negroes (and we live in the heart of the cotton and negro belt), an equal, if not greater, per cent. of the negro population are in the Sunday-schools also.

Of course, in Louisiana the Catholic population cuts down the percentage, but we have reason to believe that correct statistics would give about ten per cent. of her population in the Sunday-school.

We have given these statistics because we wish our Sunday-school workers to know the conditions that surround them, as well as the obstacles they will have to overcome. The successful general knows the strength of the army of his adversary as well as that of his own. We must also study the problem of bringing our schools to the highest state of efficiency, so that they may become a great evangelizing force, and be prime factors in working out the salvation of our people.

Our schools are now studying the Book of Acts. Who has not noticed the intense earnestness, the zeal, the activity of the early church? Let us catch something of the spirit that actuated them and imitate their energy. We have the same Holy Spirit to guide us and give us success. They were in earnest, and "the hand of the Lord was with them." God grant that the Sunday-schools of Louisiana and Mississippi may lean upon the same Almighty arm, and have the same hand with them in their work.

God will hold us to a strict account as to the manner in which we improve our opportunities. He has called us to service in the Sunday-schools of our sister States. Our field of labor is among a mighty host of growing children. Not one should be forgotten or neglected. Are we doing all that we can for their salvation? It is a solemn question, and one that some day we must answer. When we stand before the Judge at the last great day, we trust that no accusing finger will be pointed at any of our workers. God grant that no childish voice will then cry out against us.

"STOP THAT LEAK.

"What leak?

"That leak you helped to make in Court Street Sunday-school.

"How?

"By dropping out.

"Now, won't you drop in again and help repair it?

"Next Sunday will be a good time to start the good work. May we not count on your help?

"We need it, and will be grateful for it.

"COME."

When you have done the best you can do then trust in God for the rest; but do not fall into the mistake of expecting him to make up for the consequences of your indifference or neglect.—Southern Churchman.

Trust, evidenced by obedience, is the stepping-stone to delight in the Lord, and the only one. Obedience is the result of trust and the condition of delight.—F. R. Havergal.

NATCHEZ DISTRICT MISSIONARY CAMPAIGN.

At a missionary meeting recently held at Gloster, the undersigned was elected District Missionary Secretary, with Rev. W. G. Forsythe, manager for the southern half of the district. The meeting of the upper half has not yet been held. The following is a summary of the progress made with the collections in the lower half up to date of meeting: Percy Creek, "Larger part of assessment already subscribed." Homo Chitto, "April was used for raising Conference Claimants' Fund, and a date for our Missionary Rally has been arranged." Woodville, "Will pay in full; Sunday-school devotes its part to support of Bro. Parker, of China." Wilkinson, "Collections being taken now." Barlow, "One church was asked for $120, and gave $135; another asked to give $30, and gave $34." Gloster's foreign mission assessment is $90, and $92 has already been paid. At Centreville half the assessment has been paid, and the balance is to be paid before the District Conference, as also the domestic mission fund. At Meadville and Liberty the pastors are at work, and the people are responding in a way that indicates success. One man of Meadville charge, who gave only $4 last year, has already promised $8 this year.

CENTREVILLE AND WHITAKER.

At our second Quarterly Conference, recently held, I was able to report that our Sunday-school, Epworth League and Home Mission Society were all doing good work. Of course, we have not yet fully tested the opportunities for good works offered our members and adherents through these and other organized movements within the church. The usefulness of any one of them appears whenever its appointed or elected leaders magnify their charge.

Our Sunday-school year at Centreville began April 1. Nearly half of our pupils receive each quarter "certificates of merit" according to the Loyal Sunday-school Army plan, being faithful in attendance, study of lesson, and in contribution of money. Those who received four of these certificates consecutively are entitled to an annual certificate, and there are about a dozen to whom these will be awarded on Children's Day.

We have been using our new church at Whitaker now for two months. It is the last house of worship that you see in Mississippi as you go south on the Y. and M. V. railroad. It has two coats of paint on the outside; it has a new organ paid for, and the insurance for three years has been paid. The total cost, including organ, has been $682.75, and we have two dollars and one cent remaining in the bank. We have yet to ceil and seat the building. When this is done, the church will have a property there worth, including the lot, $1,100 or $1,200.

The Natchez District Conference is to meet in Centreville, June 25-29, and we are planning for a revival meeting during the days just preceding the District Conference. May the Lord visit us!

BASTROP, LA.

MR. EDITOR: It was my pleasure to spend last week with Brother Crews at Minden, where Dr. Cooper was assisting him in a revival, I myself doing some work with the children and in minor ways.

From the day that I undertook to supply the unexpired term of Brother J. W. Medlock, upon his decease, as my first pastorate, I have reckoned some of my warmest and truest friends in Minden. Friends who were not only kind socially, and sympathetic religiously, but who, in a substantial way, made it possible for me to take our theological course at Vanderbilt, and furnished my infant library with some substantial books that have been untold good to me, and these kindnesses were added to on my recent visit.

This, in connection with my very high regard and warm friendship for Brother Crews and his good-natured family, together with Dr. Cooper's masterly preaching and whole-souled social character, and as a co-worker in soul-saving with some of the most excellent Christians in Methodism, made my stay in Minden refreshing to my soul, and a delight to my social nature.

Minden is very fast growing to be a town of near three thousand inhabitants, so I understand, and boasts of her good morals, hospitality and culture. The Baptists are beginning what they propose to be a ten-thousand-dollar brick church, and our church is composed of some of the leading Christians and financiers in the town.

Dr. Cooper seems to be in his place in the pulpit, and, contrary to the supposed general rule, the school-room seems to have taken none of his force from his preaching. I believe that Minden will feel the force of his attack on sin, and his inspiration to social, civic, and religious righteousness, for years to come. It seems to this writer to be a great thing, both for the church life and the cause of Christian education, to let Dr. Cooper be free to do a great deal of this kind of work. For people to know that we have a man at the head of one of our colleges who is such a gospel preacher, can not but win confidence in our church schools.

The communion service, Sunday morning, was undoubtedly the most beautiful I ever attended. The Holy Ghost seemed to pervade the audience, and the assistance of the Presbyterian pastor in the service was one of the many tokens of brotherly love that prevailed.

RUN DOWN.

When a phrase is coined out of world wide human experience it is apt to be brief and expressive. We are "run-down" we say in the endeavor to describe a relaxed physical condition, and all the terminology of medicine could not more expressively describe the actual condition than that every day phrase. It suggests the clock, perfect mechanically, but failing to record the passage of time because it is run-down.

People who have that tired out, run-down feeling will find new life in the use of Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. This great medicine is far more than a tonic. It cures diseases of the organs of digestion and nutrition, and enables the perfect digestion and assimilation of food of which come all physical strength is made.

"The reason I delayed writing was because I wanted to wait one year after I had taken the medicine before giving my statement, and now I can send a good, conscientious testimonial," writes Mr. Chas. H. Sergeant, of Plain City, Madison Co., Ohio. "During the summer and fall of 1896 I became all 'run-down,' nerves were out of order and stomach out of order. I wrote to Dr. Pierce for advice. He said I had general debility, and advised Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and, thanks to you for your advice, I used six bottles; and since I stopped taking it about one year ago, I have not taken any medicine of any kind, and have been able to work every day. My appetite is good, I can eat three square meals a day, and I do not feel that miserable burning in the stomach after eating. My blood and nerves are in good shape, and, well—in fact, I think I am in pretty good running order."

Dr. Pierre's Pleasant Pellets keep the bowels active and healthy.

The Commoner

(Mr. Bryan's Paper)

The Commoner has attained within six months from date of the first issue a circulation of 100,000 copies, a record probably never equaled in the history of American periodical literature. The unparalleled growth of this paper demonstrates that there is room in the newspaper field for a national paper devoted to the discussion of political, economic, and social problems. To the columns of The Commoner Mr. Bryan contributes his best efforts, and his review of political events as they arise from time to time can not fail to interest those who study public questions.

The Commoner's regular subscription price is $1 per year. We have arranged with Mr. Bryan whereby we can furnish his paper and NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE together for one year for $2.25. The regular subscription price of the two papers when subscribed for separately is $3 net. When remittance is made by personal check ten cents extra will be charged.

EDITORIAL CORRESPONDENCE.

The Conference is nearing the close of the second week, and very little progress has been made. There has been as much talk on the Conference floor as at any former session, and the few measures passed created very little discussion, save in two instances; but there has been a vast amount of time taken up in "points of order," and speaking to "questions of privilege;" and we may add, the time has been needlessly consumed.

The "War Claim" has occupied more time than anything else, and, we fear, the statements made on both sides, invariably as mattera of privilege, have engendered more feeling than can be subdued in a long while. The Committee on Pnblishing Interests has worked on the matter nine days, and is just ready to make a report. And it is said that the committee has discnssed no other item of bnsiness. It is hoped that the matter will be so thoroughly investigated, and a report made so clear, that the Conference will have no tronble in reaching a conclusion. There will, however, be two reports, a majority and a minority. We earnestly pray that conservative sentime its may prevail.

The qnestion of deaconesses was referred to the Committee on Revisals, and two reports have been made — one favoring the memorial from the Woman's Board of Home Missions. This memorial is not in all respects what has heretofore been proposed; but it is radical enough, as it creates the order of deaconesses, and puts the control of the deaconesses in the hands of the Woman's Board. The other report provides for the employment of trained women under the direction of auxiliary, district or Conference societies, in connection with the pastor and presiding elder. If the first report is accepted by the Conference, we will soon have deaconesses, and the good women will be satisfied until next General Conference, when, if our Northern brethren set the example, they will call for the order of elderesses, or something else. There be those among ns who sneeze every time Northern Methodists take snnff.

The qnestion of the elimination of the time-limit has about been eliminated. The temper of the body is decidedly against tampering with our itinerant system. An effort was made to do away with the limit in exceptional cases, snch as city missions, etc., but even that will not be allowed. The camel will not be suffered to get his nose in the door.

The Committee on Episcopacy will recommend the election of two new Bishops. The Conference may order more, though we hardly think it probable, notwithstanding three of the present number will ask to retire from active service, viz.: Bishops Granbery, Hargrove and Fitzgerald. Who will be elected? That is more than we can tell. Only one man is spoken of with any degree of certainty. If more than one is to be elected, all is conjecture as to who the second or third man will be.

Dnring the week we have listened to fraternal addresses by representatives of the M. E. Church, Dr. DeWitt C. Hnntington, and Licut.-Gov. Bates, of Massachusetts: Dr. F. L. Wiseman, from the British Wesleyan Chnrch, and Dr. Ralph Brecken, of the Methodist Church of Canada. We also had Rev. — Parks, from the African M. E. Chnrch. The addresses of all these representatives were heartily made and heartily received. Dr. Huntington's address was a finished production. Dr. Wiseman's talk was delivered without mannscript, and was the most entertaining and edifying of all the deliverances. It was the best of the five.

Since writing the above we may say that considerable progress has been made in the way of presenting reports from committees. On Satnrday morning the Committee on Publishing Interests reported concerning the War Claim. The paper for the majority was short and to the point. It is conservative, and yet snfficiently condemnatory, it seems to us, to satisfy anybody. Bnt it does not satisfy the minority. Their report is lengthy, going into detalls, and a labored argument to prove the criminality of the Book Committee and Book Agents, and closes by demanding the return of the entire amonnt collected from the government. It took the writer of the report an hour, or more, to read his report. It absolntely leaves nothing else for the minority to say on their side of the question. Tuesday morning is set for the consideration of the reports, and the General Conference has decided that when the matter is taken up, nothing else will be considered nntil it is disposed of. There was much excitement in the Conference room at the conclnsion of the reading of the report. Nothing else will be talked of mnch nntil this tronblesome matter is settled, not even the election of Bishops. May the good Lord direct!

JNO. W. BOSWELL.

Da"as, Texas, May 17, 1902.

UNCONSCIOUS PROFANITY.

It is a very common thing to hear onr young people unconsciously using onr Lord's very sacred appellations in a vain way. It is not an unusnal occurrence to find onr best Epworth Leaguers and Sunday school workers fall into this nnconscions profanity. Shonld yon tell them face to face that they had taken the Lord's name in a vain way, they would, no donbt, say that you were "crazy," and knew not whereof you spoke. Yet the fact remains. We live in a time when many slang expressions are nsed both among our yonng men and young women. If one will stop and listen to a conversation as carried on by the average modern boy and girl, he will be surprised at the nnmber of slang phrases thrown in here and there. These phrases, for the most part, are of an exclamatory nature, and are usnally meaningless. Bnt it is not so much against the use of modern slang that we wish to speak as it is against the use of unconsciously profaning the name of our great Creator. What do we understand it to mean when we speak of profaning the Lord's name? Do we not profane his sacred name when we nse it carelessly and without reverence? Then, dear friend, why do you so often in your meaningless exclamations use his majestic name?— The Great I Am. And why, too, do you in the same manner use his most revered name?—The Great Goodness. Christ himself would not allow his followers to call him good, but rather reserved this name for God alone.

THE PEARL OF THE ANTILLES.

On May 20 Senor J. Estrado Palma was inaugurated President of Cuba. The circumstances under which the new Republic enters upon its career are exceptionally favorable. The huge debt — over $200,000,000— which had been imposed upon the revennes of the island by Spain, has been entirely rembved. Cuba is free from debt, unless her Legislature will recognize moral obligations to the native soldiers who fought in her struggles for liberty. Not only has she been freed from the incubus of debt, but, owing to the position assnmed toward her by our government, there is no real necessity for the maintenance of a navy and a standing army. The only need of a small military force may be for the purpose of garrisoning certain fortifications and to strengthen the police force in maintaining order throughout her borders.

Dnring the three years in which the affairs of the island were managed by the officials appointed by the United States Government, improved sanitary measures were introdnced, a magnificent system of public schools has been founded, and a railroad has been perfected which traverses the island from end to end, and insnres ample means of internal transportation.

Cnba thus starts on a career of freedom with a government of her own selection. The political welfare and commercial prosperity of the country are in the hands of her rnlers and people, sustained, to some extent, by the friendship and fostering care of these United States.

THE MARTINIQUE DISASTER.

The first official estimates of the results of the explosion of Mount Pelee has been announced. This gives 29,000 as the number of people bnried in the ruins of St. Pierre. Six thonsand persons were rescned by steamships or fled to places of safety. Three thonsand were probably drowned. The relief steamers now on the scene are the American ships Cincinnati, Sterling, Potomas and Longfellow; French cruiser Suchet, and a British supply boat.

The bodies of the American and British consuls have been identified, and will be shipped to their respective countries. Both bodies are bruised by the fall of lava and stones almost beyond recognition.

PREACHERS IN THE FIFTIES.

We are all the while influencing others, and all the while being influenced by others. Many of ns professing Christ are what we are religiously through the influence of pious parents and happy Christian homes, while a large number were indelibly impressed and led to Christ through the influence of holy and consecrated ministers—men of God, who preached with power, who baptized the little ones, and participated in the revival meetings, and prayed at the family firesides. Many of such this scribe can never forget. My mind loves to run back and linger among them, and in so doing, I feel refreshed and better equipped for the trials and battles of life. Those faithful ones, no doubt, like many of ns, failed to see the resnlts for which they prayed, and feared they were doing but little for the Master; but a minister remarked to me a few days ago, while we were discnssing the seeming worthlessness of preaching, "We do not know what we are doing." Of one thing we are snre. We are impressed by an unseen power, and almost forced into the ministry. We obey with fear and trembling, and toil and weep, and pray and preach and die, seeing but little accomplished. We may be surprised beyond measure at the last day. Here I am writing of men who have been dead more than a generation. They are dead, and yet their influence lives. "The dead speak," and if suns rise and set for a few thonsand more years, many obscure, but faithful ministers will be so astounded, that they will shout through eternity at the great results of their labors.

I read of a man who kept a lighthonse, that vessels coming into port might arrive safely in the night. Early one night the wheel which he had to tnrn constantly became disabled, and it reqnired then all of his strength in a stooping posture to rnn it and flood the bay with light. He became so exhausted long before day that he thought he must quit and abandon his post. Perspiration dripped from his forehead, and he trembled in every limb. Fearing to leave his post, he toiled on until daylight, when, on looking up, behold! there stood a vessel safely in port, with five hundred sonls.

Some faithful ministers that I knew and heard preach in my early youth I can never forget, notably Rev. Nathaniel H. Lee, of the Lonisville Conference. He was one of the first Methodist ministers that this writer ever saw. He was appointed presiding elder when he looked like a boy, but no mistake was made in his appointment. He had to travel his district by private conveyance, bnt through heat and cold, wet and dry, he filled his engagements, and it was said that he mastered two languages while in his saddle. He was very attractive in appearance; was about six feet two inches in height; as straight as an arrow; clear, florid complexion; light hair, large blue eyes, which were as keen and alert as an eagle's. His voice was as clear as a bugle blast, and nnder such perfect control that he never seemed to tire. I heard him speak one cold November night in 1856 against the Baptist enterprise to translate the Bible and change "baptize" to "immerse." The chnrch auditorium was 40x60 feet, and very much crowded. The defec's in King James' trans lation had been held up to the people there by paid lecturers, and there was great cnriosity to know what could be said against the proposed translation. Dr. Lee spoke for three full honrs, and no one left the house, nor showed any signs of fatigue. The enterprise was popular before that. A nnmber of prominent people had pledged good sums of money to aid it, but if it ever moved, or showed any sign of life afterwards, I never knew it.

Notwithstanding the lapse of time, I can never forget some of the great sermons that I heard him preach. On a lovely Sunday in the Fall of 1859 I heard him from Rev. xiv, 1 to 8, inclusive. The Lamb standing on Mount Zion with his company. Oh, such a sermon! The high character of the man, the looks of the man, the voice of the man, and the grand theme of the man, I never have thought could have been improved upon. What a pity, it seems to me, that such efficient instruments for good should ever die, and such voices so faithfully nsed in behalf of the Crucified One should ever be stilled in death! H. ARMSTRONG.

On Jnne 3, the anniversary of Jefferson Davis' birth, collections will be made in every town in Mississippi in aid of the fund for the purchase of Davis' Beauvoir house, near Biloxi, Miss., for an ex-Confederate home. More than half of the amount, $10,000, has already been raised.

MR. EDITOR: Environments have but little to do with human conditionings, and sometimes will power is impotent.

During our late Conference session it was my good fortune to be lodged at the rectory, and my wants looked after by that princely host, Rev. Dr. Cramer, rector of the Episcopal Church at New Iberia, and to be entertained evenings and mornings by such companions as Dr. Hoss and Dr. Whisner. But in spite of all such environings, beside being royally feasted at the parsonage by Sister Vaughan, I left the seat of the Conferenee with a first-class case of grippe, which, up to this time, has continued to grippe me in every part of my anatomy. Unable to "preach, to sing, to pray or to die"—four things which Bishop Andrew nsed to tell us a preacher shonld at all times be prepared to do—my presiding elder advised me to take a rest. The brethren at Simmesport took the same view of the matter, and placed a sum of money in my hands—not to be counted as quarterage—sufficient to carry me though a trip of seven or eight hnndred miles among my children scattered over Lonisiana and Arkansas. With the expense fund came this advice: "Stay till yon get well."

Having obtained the furlough and means of travel, we shipped —"we" means the heroine of the parsonage (as well as the hero)— via T. and P. railroad for Texarkana, thence to Fulton. En route there was much to keep an observant passenger awake, especially one who had personal friends at or near almost every station on the road. It had been my pleasnre to preach in most of the railroad towns through which we passed, and several of them had been my home in other years. Many scenes as memorable as "the old oaken bucket" greeted ns by the way, while there were some which to us were things new "under the sun."

It has been said that railroads are great civilizers, and I suppose it is true in a closely qualified seuse. There are so many types and degrees of civilization it is most difficult to select a standard. If we choose the highest type, then there is bnt little civilization in the world. If we select the lowest, then there is practically none. While, therefore, we find many things along our great trunk lines which seems low and nncultured, we must admit that even these things are greatly improved over former conditions.

Passing from Louisiana to Arkansas, at one of our stops a party of six came aboard—five young women, one of whom carried a guitar, and a young man wearing a seersucker coat. The guitar suggested a "party" of some sort, but the seersucker coat contradicted. One of the ladies settled on the chair in front of us, and soon Mr. Seersucker was at her side. An animated conversation was at once started between them, which, together with the active state of the lady's salival glands, attracted my attention. I soon learned that they were "going to the ball" a few miles further on. I also soon discovered the cause of the salival eruption. She was "chewing terbacker to make the red juice come"—and it came, freely and thoroughly red. This state of things put me to moralizing: If I justify the girls in going to balls, how can I condemn them for chewing tobacco? Tobacco is more general in its use among civilized people than ball going. One can not see how to act with reason, and condemn the girls for chewing tobacco while justifying them in going to the ball.

There are a few ministers—of Satan—up around Chicago who, when they succeed in attaching a race course, a theatre, a billiard room, a card table, a whist club and a ball room, together with a few more satanic accessories, to the Church of God, will greatly delight "that Old Fox," and remove the necessity for chnrch courts except an occasional trial for assaults, murder, or theft. These will be about all the immoral things left out!

This visit to Arkansas has brought me to the field of my labor twenty-nine years ago, as "our beloved" on the Camden district, Little Rock Conference. At that time there was not a foot of railroad in the district. Now it is networked with iron rails. Then my locomotive was a large Kentucky horse. Now it is the "iron horse." Then it was two hard days' ride from Camden to Bright Star. Now it is a few hours only. Distance has been annihilated; time shortened tenfold!

There is still a great deal to see and hear which is familiar after so long a time and so many changes. Centers of trade have been changed, and new chnrches and postoffices have been established, but the old ones retain their old names, and old family names have been preserved by posterity.

In those days which now seem to belong to ancient times—1873—the "black lands" were shied by white people as "places of sickness and death." There were no artesian wells, no ice factories near, and the surface and cistern water of the Summer, charged with malaria, bred chills and fever everywhere. Artesian wells have been substituted for these sources of water supply, and I am told that chills and fever are almost unknown in these black lands. I am now using water furnished nearly 500 feet below the surface, coming through an overlying "bed rock" of several feet in thickness. Of course, it is "pnre and good."

One of the great privations is in the necessity of declining all invitations to preach. It is hoped that such necessity will be removed before the expiration of my furlough. My children will not let the "sinews of war" become exhausted.

I feel as one away from home, having a desire to return, bnt a necessity for remaining away. Having recovered from the fatigue of travel, I feel the good effect of the change, and hope to be well again by the first of June.

PERSONAL.

Rev. E. F. Edgar has changed his address from Magnolia to McComb, Miss.

Rev. W. H. Lewis, of Utica, Miss., kindly remembered the ADVOCATE with a list of ten snbscribers this week. We thank Brother Lewis very much.

We acknowledge receipt of an invitation to attend the commencement exercises, June 1-3, of that worthily praised institution, Belhaven College, of Jackson, Miss.

Prof. Thos. Carter and Rev. W. W. Drake attended the session of the Sunday-school Association of St. Mary parish, held at Franklin. They report a fine meeting.

The visit of Bro. Joe Ramsey made Sunday a red-letter day among the Leaguers of our city. At eleven o'clock he was at Parker Memorial, preaching with great spiritual power. At four o'clock the mass meeting at Rayne Memorial was largely attended. At night the tireless worker addressed a crowded house in Algiers, and left Monday morning for Southwest Lonisiana. Bro. Ramsey interests, instructs and inspires all who hear him. Let loyal Leaguers follow him with their prayers.

JOE RAMSEY'S TOUR IN LOUISIANA.

Sunday, Bro. Joe Ramsey, the traveling secretary of the Tri-State Epworth League Conference, began his tour in the State of Louisiana. Let all the Leaguers accompany with their prayers this faithful and energetic worker.

The work in Mississippi was a great success, and many signified their intention of taking the trip to the Seashore this Summer.

While in our State, Bro. Ramsey will stop at Lafayette, Crowley, Lake Charles, Grand Cane, Shreveport, Ruston, Arcadia, Mource, and as many other points as possible.

It is suggested that the district secretaries write to each League in their districts, and call for a special season of prayer in behalf of the work among our young people. Let all the Leaguers rally to the cause we love so well, and make this visit of our fellow-laborer fruitful of spiritual blessing.

The Leagues are urged to send in the cards recently sent out by the president. The Centenary-Mansfield fund continues to grow. It now amounts to over three hundred dollars. The following have been heard from during the past week: Lafayette, $15; Benton, $5; Baton Rouge, $15. Let us hear from you.

Aberdeen District Conference.

The Aberdeen District Conference will be held at Nettleton, commencing Thursday, June 26, at 9 A. M. The opening sermon will be preached Wednesday, at 8 P. M., by Rev. J. A. Leech. The first day will be devoted to Sunday-schools and Epworth Leagues; the second and third to reports, Minute business, and the general work of the church. Let there be a full attendance of all the members; arriving at Nettleton on Wednesday. We should have a full opening Thursday morning. The pastors should see that the recording stewards have their records up for examination. The examination of candidates will be conducted on Wednesday. All candidates should be there promptly.

The committees are: On License to Preach and Admission on Trial—J. D. Cameron, J. A. Bowen, W. C. Lester. Deacon's and Elder's Orders—K. M. Harrison, W. W. Williams, D. C. Foust.

1. The Study Circle: Its Purpose and Management. W. G. Sykes, Q. A. Oats, S. T. Harkey.

2. What Is Meant By "Pastoral Instruction of Children" In Question Three of Quarterly Conference, and the Pastor's Duty in Regard to This Instruction? J. D. Cameron, S. A. Brown, D. C. Foust.

3 How Shall the Teacher's Meeting Be Conducted, and When and Where Shall It Be Held? G. J. Leftwich, J. J. Huggins, W. C. Lester.

4. How Shall We Make Proper Use of the "Drills" Prepared By Prof. Hamill? Who Shall Conduct Them, and When? Richard Wilkinson, F. J. McDonnell, F. P. McElwrath.

5. The Necessary Literature for the Proper Study of the Lesson. J. A. Bowen, H. T. Cunningham, R. A. Tucker.

6. How May We Secure Better Pedagogical Skill in the Sunday-school? G. J. Leftwich, J. J. Huggins, J. A. Lowe.

7. The Advantages in Having the School Graded. J. H. Strain, J. A. Leech, F. P. McElwrath.

8. The Sunday-school Organized Into a Missionary Society: Its Objects and Its Methods. Mrs. Lancey, W. W. Williams, E. D. Gilmore.

9. The Difficulties in the Way of a Successful Country Sunday-school, and How Best to Overcome Them. K. M. Harrison, J. W. Ramsey, J. A. Lewis.

10. The Organization and Successful Management of the Epworth League. J. A. Bowen, Miss Sallie Kilpatrick, and Mrs. Victoria Hoyle.

How Cheap Baking Powder Is Made.

The Health Department of New York has seized a quantity of so-called cheap baking powder, which it found in that city. Attention was attracted to it by the low price at which it was being sold in the department stores. Samples were taken, and the chemist of the Health Department reported the stuff to be "an alum powder," which analysis showed to be composed chiefly of alum and pulverized rock.

The powder was declared to be dangerous to health, and several thousand pounds were carted to the offal dock and destroyed.

It is unsafe to experiment with these so-called "cheap" articles of food. They are sure to be made from alum, rock, or other injurious matter. In baking powders, the high class, cream of tartar brands are the most economical, because they go farther in use and are healthful beyond question.

From this date no attention will be paid to manuscripts that come to this office rolled. Let them be folded and put in an envelope. And please, brethren and sisters, use ink. Pencil writing, after passing through the mail, is often hard to read. We speak both for the printer and the editor.

Will the pastors serving charges to which appropriation are made please send in their reports by June 1.

If there is any brother who has made his report that has not received anything on the first quarter, please write me, and we will correct it if we can. We hope to be able to pay the second quarter by the twentieth of June. It can be easily done if every pastor will take a collection for this purpose. Only 24 charges have made a report to the treasurer. A little effort will enable us to pay the next quarter. We are making this plea for those who need. Let fifty charges report to the treasurer in the next thirty days.

Death by Neglect.

Dr. D. M. Bye, the eminent specialist, says thousands of persons die from cancer every year from no cause save neglect. If taken in time, not one case in a thousand need be fatal. The fear of the knife, or the dread of the burning, torturing plaster causes a few to neglect themselves till they pass the fatal point where a cure is impossible, but by far the greater portion die because their friends or relatives, on whom they are dependent, are insensible to their sufferings and impending danger till it is too late. Toronto Convention Report.

The Report of the Student Volunteer Convention, held recently at Toronto, is being edited by Rev. H. P. Beach, M. A., the Educational Secretary of the Movement. It will contain full reports of the platform addresses and condensed reports of the various section meetings. Other features are as follows: A bibliography, not extensive, but select and up-to-date; a classified list of incidents and illustrations found in the Report, which may be used in addresses; and a suggested outline for missionary meetings, based on the material in the book. A complete Index will make the contents of the volume easily accessible.

Although the price of the book bound in cloth is $1.50 postpaid, orders sent in immediately will be received at $1, postpaid. Friends wishing to order in advance can do so by sending a postal card to the Student Volunteer Movement, 3 West 29th street, New York City. When the book is ready for delivery all subscribers will be notified, and they can then send the money, on receipt of which the volume will be forwarded. Persons desiring to take advantage of this reduced rate should forward their orders before June 15, for the price will be $1.50 after that date.

FOR SLEEPLESSNESS

TAKE HORSFORD'S ACID PHOSPHATE.

CHANGE OF WATER is the great peril of vacation time. Pure water is scarce, hence disturbances, always serious, of the stomach and bowels. Perry Davis' Painkiller has never failed. Can it fail in your case?

What can please a healthy American boy more than a good rifle? An inferior rifle is nothing but a worthless expense, and is usually a dangerous piece, because of its poor mechanism. When buying a rifle be sure you get a high-grade one. It pays. We recently obtained one of this latter class from the Marlin Fire Arms Co., of New Haven, Conn. It is a beautiful rifle, and as for its accuracy in shooting, we never used one that gave better satisfaction. You can depend on a Marlin. W. F. BOSWELL,

More About Epworth Pianos.

STRINGS.

There are many different grades of music wire. The temptation is to use the cheap kind. Most makers figure too closely on the cost of materials. They figure that "every dollar saved is a dollar earned." So they buy cheap American or cheap imported wire. We figure differently. We figure that a broken string may cause a piano to be returned—may lose us a sale.

The expense and loss caused thereby would pay that extra cost of first-class wire for quite a number of pianos. We give the piano the benefit of the doubt, and use the best imported wire. It is expensive, of course. There is no better music wire used in any piano at any price.

ACTIONS.

The action consists of all the working parts, from the keys up to the hammers. It is necessarily of complicated and delicate mechanism. It can't be too well made.

The finest piano actions are made by concerns which make a specialty of this particular part—make nothing else. There are also similar concerns making cheap actions.

The action is not much seen. As a rule, the buyer does not think much about it. Besides, it is impossible to tell a fine action from a cheap one by looking at it. Only an "action expert" can tell the quality in advance. The customer finds it out as the years go by.

We could save a number of dollars on every piano by using a cheap action. But the action is the part which has to stand the wear. A good piano action feels just right. The touch is easy, quick, elastic, and responsive. It repeats rapidly. Above all, it lasts. It stays. It doesn't get out of order, unless by some unusual accident. A cheap action won't stay in order.

Good musicians are very particular about the feel of the action. Nothing is more disappointing than a stiff, sluggish action, or a loose, rattly one.

The actions of pianos are made up to our special order by one of the best piano action houses in this country. They are first-class in every respect.

A good action not only feels right when new, it stays right. We give an exceptionally strong warrant on the action. It's the part which has to stand the wear.

HAMMERS.

We use the best German piano hammers. They are firm, but not hard. They wear remarkably well. They don't pack down hard, as cheap hammers do. A hammer must be just the right degree of firmness to produce a clear, pure, velvety tone. If too hard, the tone jars. If too soft, it is mushy. Some cheap hammers produce a satisfactory tone for a while, but soon pack down hard. To insure the best results first, last, and all the time, we use expensive hammers made from the finest German piano felts. One can't be too particular about the hammers.

KEYS.

The keys of all our pianos are genuine ivory, with sharps of polished ebony. Ivory, as every one knows, is cut from elephants' tusks. Only the finer-grained parts are used in our keys. It is very expensive. But a fine piano ought to have fine ivory keys. There's that extra satisfaction to the player for all the years to come. (Makers of cheap pianos use low-grade, coarse-grained ivory, which soon turns yellow. Some use celluloid.)

CASES.

The principal parts of the cases of our pianos are made five ply. The center ply is the main part. It is made of the best selected seasoned and kiln-dried wood. Over the center ply, both inside and out, is glued solidly the strong crossed-banding veneer, the grain running crosswise. On the top of the cross-banding is glued solidly the beautiful veneers of fancy figured woods, the grain running lengthwise. The result is, that each part of the case is both stronger and handsomer than it could be made in any other way. Every joint is perfect. Cases made in this way costs more than when made single ply; but no part can ever split by any ordinary heat, or by age, when made this way.

The case has a great deal to do with the tone. There is more resonance in a five-ply case; the glue fills the pores of the wood wherever it touches, and makes it a better conductor of sound.

We use only the finest figured walnut, mahogany, and quartered oak veneers.

All the carving in the panels of our pianos is genuine—hand-cut in the natural wood. We speak of it because there is a lot of "imitation carving" used, which is not carving at all. The imitation has a cheap look when examined closely, and lacks the beauty of the genuine.

VARNISHING.

The greatest care is used in the varnishing. Before varnishing the case, it is sandpapered perfectly clean, and treated to a coat of filler, which is thoroughly rubbed in, effectually filling the outside pores. This makes a foundation for the varnish, and brings out the natural beauty of the grain.

Five coats of the best rubbing varnish are applied in succession, a week to ten days elapsing between coats, to allow the varnish to dry hard. It is then rubbed down with powdered pumice stone to a perfectly smooth, even surface. Then a flowing coat of the best piano polishing varnish is applied, and after it has dried perfectly hard it is polished with rotten stone by hand (the bare hand being used) until it is as smooth as a mirror.

This accounts for the beauty and brilliancy of our pianos. The natural richness of the wood is greatly enhanced by this mirror-like polish.

TUNING.

After a piano is finished, it ought to be tuned a number of times, carefully regulated, and then left standing in the warerooms a number of weeks to season. Then the tuning and regulating ought to be done over again before the piano is shipped, so that it will stand its long journey and arrive at its destination in perfect order.

The trouble with so many of the pianos nowadays is, that they are rushed through the different parts of the work, then hurried to the customer. Such pianos can not give perfect satisfaction. Pianos should never be hurried in any part of the work.

In this respect we are extremely particular. It is on an average over six months after the strings are put on before our pianos are finally finished and sent out. In that time they have received not less than eight or ten tunings.

It needs that time and those periodic tunings for the strings to properly stretch and settle. The best results can not be obtained in any other way.

It is our careful attention to all these little details which makes our pianos what they are.

HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains the linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it, or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT TO DO.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney and bladder remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

You may have a sample bottle of Swamp-Root and a book that tells more about it, both sent absolutely free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention that you read this generous offer in the NEW ORLEANS "CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE." Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Home Circle.

That "Free Bed."

"Isn't it too bad about Alice?"

"And her folks so poor."

"Then to live only to be an invalid, the doctor says, and that for many years, perhaps."

"Well, we must try to help her bear her misfortune," was Ellen Dorr's practical remark, as a number of school girls stood on the corner, commenting upon the accident of the morning.

"If her father'd been 'tending to his business, 't wouldn't have happened," observed one of a group of boys, as they passed the girls.

"Pity 'twan't him 'stead of Alice—he's no 'count."

At the ladies' aid the matter was also being discussed.

"Mrs. Nolan's just heartbroke. She set great store by Alice's teaching this Spring. She's almost washed her life away to keep her studying."

"Well, I'd never let her carry such a big basket of clothes on such slippery walks as this morning. Why didn't old man Nolan take them—that's 'bout all he's ever been good for."

"Oh, you know he sometimes drinks so much he can't go—and there he lays in a dead stupor on the bed and poor Alice in great pain on the lounge in that little house."

"I don't see how they are going to stand it, poor things."

"Well, as Christian women, we must see to it that they are made as comfortable as possible."

"It is hard to believe that Mr. Nolan was once a sober man with a good home, but it's a fact; and I'm sorry to know that a doctor is largely to blame for his fall."

"Yes," Mrs. Tagget continued, all looked up so surprised, "the doctor found him a hard case to handle, he mended so slowly—he was gloomy, morbid, and had no appetite—so he prescribed stimulants, little realizing the poor man's inherited craving for the same. From sparing doses, he soon grew to demand more and more until it's his complete master."

"Sad, indeed."

"Sad is no name for it. Think of all Mrs. Nolan, a naturally delicate, sensitive woman, has suffered, and the poor children."

"And now the prospect of Alice's being a burden instead of a help, and suffering so."

That morning Mrs. Nolan, being in great need for money to buy coal, had asked Alice to take Mrs. Long's washing home before school. Everything was covered with a glare of ice, and without the protection of even rubbers, she had slipped down some stone steps and had seriously—it was feared—injured her hip and spine.

Gloomy days followed this accident, and the only happiness Alice and her mother knew was of that "negative" order—"things might be worse."

"No, I don't dare think how much worse things might have been," said Alice one day, "if the union and the young people of the church had not been so kind."

"Yes, and they've been so regular and faithful; they mean we shall not want," added the mother, as she thought of the many good and useful things so quietly flowing in.

On this Mrs. Nolan endeavored to center her mind and that of Alice, rather than upon the hopeless prospect before them, with the father a confirmed drunkard, Alice a bed-ridden invalid, and Frank, Nellie, Hattie and Lee to be educated and cared for. "These are conditions no charity can militate against," thought Mrs. Nolan.

But she did not know what was passing in the motherly heart of good Mrs. Lyman, a most unselfish soul, always trying to bear another's burden. Ever since she was convinced of the seriousness of Alice's condition, she had been thinking hard and had written to different hospitals and sanitariums to see if there might not be help for the dear girl.

At first she was much discouraged, as letter after letter came—all offering hope with their many appliances—but all so high-priced as to be beyond their reach. But finally she received word from a sanitarium in their own State, where the young people's Christian societies maintained a "free bed."

"Oh, if I can only get Alice in there," she exclaimed; "and it's vacant just now. I am sure the young people will be glad to raise the money to send her."

It was one bright day in May, following the November in which Alice was hurt, that a party of young folks called at the humble Nolan home, with a happy surprise for its inmates. Kate Manning never knew just how she broached the delicate matter, but she realized that she had not made half her "little speech" until Alice, the whole family, and all the young folks, were crying and laughing.

"Oh, you are too good—too good," said Alice. "I can never repay you. How did you ever think of such a beautiful thing!"

"Oh, it was dear Mrs. Lyman who planned it all."

"Just like her," quietly sobbed Mrs. Nolan.

In a corner sat Alice's father, with averted face, the tears fast streaming from his eyes. He was strangely moved by what he heard. Since the accident he had done better, but the enemy still claimed him.

"Can't I be a man, and a father to my family once more?" he cried in agony of soul.

"I can, I will," he suddenly exclaimed aloud, wholly unconscious for the moment of his surroundings.

"What is it, father?" asked Alice, tenderly, for she had always felt a fondness for him.

The color came quickly to the haggard face, and, rising to his feet, Mr. Nolan, in a few brief sentences, told of the terrible struggle in his breast.

"But the victory has come at last; by God's grace I'm free."

That was a most impressive moment, one never forgotten by those present. Good Mrs. Lyman had quietly slipped in, for "she did want to see how Alice and her mother took it." And she it was who relieved the pressure by starting "Praise God, from whom all blessings flow," in which all who could control their emotions joined.

Alice Nolan was soon in a large, airy sanitarium, taking baths, electrical treatment, etc., and mending rapidly.

The friends never felt quite sure which helped Alice most—this medical attention that their love had made possible, or her father's restoration to manhood. We dare say both.—Estelle Mendell Amory, in The Standard.

Little Billy's Death.

"Billy" was a poor little tailless dog who lived in Twentieth St, New York. He was loved by every one in his neighborhood, and there was a sad time last week when he died. "Billy's" tail had not been cut off, and so far as we know no one was ever cruel to him. He never had a tail. A little round knot where a tail ought to have been was all that he could show. He was so affectionate and wanted to wag his tail as other doggies did, but, poor thing, he had none to wag. So, of necessity, for he must wag something, he taught his ears to do it. He could waggle them like a donkey's when he was pleased or make them bristle with anger when so disposed. He was the self-appointed guardian of a large family of children, and last Summer he could not be persuaded to leave the doorstep until he knew that every one of the children was safely in bed. He loved to play with the children and race up and down the street, and did not mind it a bit if the little ones hung on to his ears.

Last week he took sick, and in a day or two he died. His body was laid in state in a back yard, and all the afternoon the neighbors, the children and their parents, and some quite old people, too, came in to look at little "Billy."

When the big wagon came along and the men took the dog's body and put it in the wagon to carry it away the children were inconsolable. They gathered around their mother and wept and sobbed for their good-natured pet, the dear, little, tailless doggy "Billy," whom they had loved so much and who seemed like one of the family.—Exchange.

The First Coat of Paint.

Father was painting the woodwork of the dining-room. Robert had been watching him for some time, and thought it was very easy and pleasant work.

"I would like to try painting a little while. May I?"

"Oh! yes. There must always be a first time."

Robert took the brush. How clumsy his fingers seemed, after all! But he went bravely on, father watching in the meantime. Now and then he gave him words of encouragement and instruction, so that he went on quite bravely, and father went away for a little while.

When he came back he saw that Robert was slighting his work in places. The paint was not smooth and streaks plainly appeared.

"Robert," he said, "remember that the streaks will show plainly when the paint is dry."

"But you're going to put on two coats, aren't you?" he asked, somewhat sharply. "If you do, the last time over will cover the streaks."

"But we must put on the first coat just as well as if there were to be no second coat," said father, patiently. "It is just as important as to do the work well the last time."

Since that time Robert has grown to be a man, but he has not forgotten his father's words. He has noticed that many do work just as he started to do it that day when painting the dining room, but whenever he has been tempted to do so the words of his father have come back to him: "Do your work just as if there were to be no second coat."

"Have you thoroughly mastered all the rules in this lesson?" asked a teacher of his class in mathematics one day.

Most of the class thought that they had done their work well. One boy thoughtfully said:

"I can't say that I have the second rule, sir. But I thought I could master it when the review came."

"It isn't safe to slip over the work in that way, George," was the quiet reply. "You are not sure that you will have the time when review comes. Do you not think it would be better to master each lesson as we go along, and let the review take care of itself?"

George flushed, but he saw the point, and was not caught that way again.—Selected.

A HELPING FUND.

We have many calls to send the ADVOCATE to poor, aged persons at a reduced rate. This we always do. Are there not many persons, well-to-do in this world's goods, who will send us money—any sum they may see fit to give—to supply the ADVOCATE to persons who would like to have it, but are unable to pay anything? We will gladly send it to such for one dollar a year. We hope to get many responses to this appeal. Let those who respond designate the names of those to whom they desire the paper sent, or give the money to their pastors, and let them send the names. If names are not sent, the editor will do the best he can. Who will first respond?

In memory of Mrs. REBECCA JANE WALKER, wife of Rev. Dr. J. R. Walker:

A life hid with Christ on earth has gone to be revealed with him in heaven, and "his reward is with him." I can not weep for my old friend. I shall see her the oftener, perhaps, than had she remained longer; but as memory traverses the years of nearly half a century, I realize that earth was richer, and heaven will be fuller to me for her friendship. During my childhood she was my second mother, and in the joys and sorrows of later years her sympathy was unfailing. I always knew where to find my friend, and, thank God! I know where to find her now. Next to my own dear mother (whose closest friend she was) my earliest lessons in the Bible were learned from her, and the happy Sabbath afternoons, when she gathered her little flock about her, were precious times. Her deep reverence for God and holy things was the most potent factor in her religious life. Her devotion to her husband, like his to her, was beautiful to behold. Her tenderness for her children and grandchildren was constant and abiding. Her friendships were many and lasting. Quiet, gentle, and retiring as she was, there was an underlying strength of character which showed that her feet were planted on the Rock of Ages. Sedulously avoiding all appearance of evil, abhorring sin in every form, she was charitable almost to a fault in her judgment of others, tender with their failings, loving to enlarge on their good qualities. Though a sufferer from ill health for the greater part of her life, she was constant in her labors for others, looking well to the ways of her household, and eating not the bread of idleness. Truly, her children can rise up and call her blessed, and the heart of her husband did safely trust in her.

FANNIE MINOR MONTGOMERY.

LEMUAL LEWIS, the subject of this notice, was born in Marion county, Miss., Sept. 23, 1827, and died in New Orleans, La., April 26, 1902. He was the second son and fourth child of the late Quinea and Martha Lewis, who, in their day, were burning and shining lights in the Methodist Church. Early in life, when not more than nine years of age, he was converted and joined the church of his parents, in which communion he died. When the war between the States broke out he offered his services, and became a member of Company A in the Thirty-third Mississippi Regiment, and continued in the service until the close of the war. He made a good soldier, and, when discharged from the army, he resumed the practical duties of life. He was a man of industrious habits, honest and upright in his dealings with his fellow-man, and generous to a fault. He raised a large family, the oldest son being Steven A. Lewis, who has for many years been a conductor on the southern division of the I. C. railroad. In the latter part of his life he lived in New Orleans with this son, and was highly esteemed by all who knew him. A worthy member of the Methodist Church, as he approached the end of life he became more devout in his spirit. He was an older brother of Revs. H. P. and W. B. Lewis, of the Mississippi Conference. For some time before his death his health was precarious, and he apprehended a sudden departure, and held himself in readiness to meet his Lord at a moment's call. The summons came as he had anticipated, but, no doubt, he was ready. He was buried in Brookhaven, Miss., where he had spent many years of his active life, on Sunday, April 27, 1902. Thus, after more than seventy-four years, this life of many vicissitudes culminated, as we fondly trust, in the blessed life eternal.

ONE WHO KNEW AND LOVED HIM.

MRS. OTIS COLLINS (nee Dora Stevens Moore) was born in Crystal Springs, Miss., July 21, 1853, and died in New Orleans, La., May 2, 1902. She joined the M. E. Church, South, in her girlhood days, and became a zealous, but meek follower of her Lord and Master. On Jan. 19, 1876, she was married to Mr. Otis Collins, and for some years resided at Big Cane, La., moving from there to Lecompte, La., in 1889, where she spent the rest of her life. For a number of years Sister Collins has been an almost constant sufferer, but even in the last days of her life, while she was suffering untold agonies, she never murmured nor complained, but bore it all with Christian fortitude and humble submission, always standing on the promises of God and leaning on the arm of Jehovah for strength; and it was beautiful to see how that in her physical weakness her spiritual strength would be renewed, enabling her to say, "Thy will, Lord, be done." Her life was a benediction to those with whom she associated, and a strength to those she loved; her spirit was submission itself, and her face beamed with the tender love of God, evidencing Christ enthroned within. Thus she died with her faith stayed in God and her eyes fixed on Christ, the hope of her salvation. To the dear loved ones our hearts go out with sympathy, and may the comforting influence of the Holy Spirit be upon them!

Her pastor, L. L. ROBARTS.

CHARLOTTE M. CLARKE was born in East Feliciana parish, La., Jan. 5, 1821, and died at Eola, La., Feb. 3, 1902. She was married in 1843 to Wm. F. Gayle, who died in 1853. In 1866 she married Richard Turberville, who also preceded her by a good many years to the other shore. Sister Turberville was the mother of ten children, seven of whom survive her death. She united with the M. E. Church, South, at the old Olive Branch Church, in East Feliciana parish. For many years she exemplified the teaching of her church in her home life, and her godly example is still bearing fruit in the lives of her children, all of whom, as far as is known to this writer, are consistent members of the church of Christ. She died in great peace, and in the consolations of the gospel, after a long illness, at the residence of her son, George Torberville, surrounded by several of her children and grandchildren. How grateful should we be that she was spared so long to those whom she loved so much, and that there is such a delightful prospect of reunion beyond. "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord, for they do rest from their labors, and their works do follow them." P. M. BROWN, P. C.

BRO. ARNER ELLIOTT was born near Richmond, Va., in 1816; moved with his parents in early childhood to Tuscumbia, Ala., where he grew to manhood, and found in the person of Miss Rebecca Hanks a life companion. Moving with his young wife to Mississippi, he became a prosperous and useful citizen of Lowndes county. The last days of a life well spent were pleasantly passed in the home of his son, W. A. Elliott, in Clay county, where he peacefully passed away, April 16, 1902. As a citizen and soldier, Bro. Elliott was inferior to none, and was in many of the most important battles of the Civil War, one of which was the siege of Vicksburg. For more than fifty years he was a very useful member of the Methodist Church, serving most of the time in some official capacity, being a trustee when he died. He reared all of his children to lives of usefulness in the church, and most of his grandchildren are living lives worthy of the examples of their noble grandsire, one of them being a gifted young minister. The God of love give comfort to the bereaved family.

His pastor, E. E. LANGFORD.

TRIBUTE OF RESPECT.

Whereas, God, in his wisdom, has seen fit to remove from our church and Sunday-school Sister M. E. BLANKS, who was born Jan. 28, 1849; was married to the Rev. R. L. Blanks, Jan. 10, 1866; died Jan. 24, 1902; joined the M. E. Church when fifteen years old; lived a consistent member ever after; therefore, be it Resolved, 1. That the church and Sunday-school lose one of its best and brightest members, but our loss is her eternal gain, for we feel and know she is now basking in the smiles of her Redeemer. She leaves a husband, five sons and three daughters to mourn their loss.

2. That while we deeply sympathize with them, we can only point them to their loved one who is waiting and watching for them. While we sadly miss our sister, we humbly submit to the will of God, who doeth all things well. We will try to imitate her virtues, double our diligence to advance the cause of Christ, and pray a double portion of God's Spirit to rest upon our church and Sunday-school.

by local applications, as they can not reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed, you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that can not be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

MISS FAY LEE,

President of the Shakespearian Club, Kansas City.

Miss Fay Lee.

"Your booklet came to my home like a message of health when I had suffered with headache, backache and bearing-down pains. I was weak, nervous and hysterical and had not consulted any doctor, thinking it would pass away in time, but instead I found that the pains increased and were more frequent. I decided to try Wine of Cardui and in a short time was much improved. It seemed to act like a charm. I kept up the treatment and the result was most satisfactory. Words fail to express my gratitude for the suffering that is now saved me. I am in fine health, physically and mentally. I can only say 'thank you', but there is much more in my heart for you."

BEARING-DOWN pains are the worst that women know. If you are suffering from this trouble you need not be uncertain about it. The pains in the abdomen and back that feel as if heavy weights were pulling down on the nerves of the stomach are "bearing-down pains". They may not be particularly severe at present but they are growing worse. That headache which nearly drives you distracted now is caused by the terrible nervous tension. The nerves soon begin to give way under the strain. You perhaps jump at any unusual disturbance, or laugh or weep, hysterically, at no apparent cause. That is what Miss Fay Lee, 603½ North Seventh Street, Kansas City, Kansas, was coming to when she rescued herself by taking Wine of Cardui. The Wine made her a strong, healthy woman again, as it has made a million other women strong and healthy. By inducing regular menstruation the entire system is relieved of the terrible wasting drains. The ligaments which hold the womb in place are strengthened by a healthy flow and that organ is returned to its normal position. Returning health is the result. This is what Wine of Cardui has done for thousands of the best women in America.

If you need advice write The Ladies' Advisory Department, The Chattanooga Medicine Company, Chattanooga, Tenn., describing all your symptoms freely, and a letter of advice will be sent you. Secure a $1.00 bottle of Wine of Cardui from your druggist to-day.

We Have It at Last

For many years we have been trying to get a Bible containing exactly the features which, to our mind, would constitute as nearly as possible especially for the use of preachers and teachers. We have contracted for a large number of a Bible which we believe to be the nearest to a perfect book we have ever seen. It contains the AUTHORIZED VERSION, DICTIONARY OF PROPER NAMES, SUBJECT INDEX, CONCORDANCE, AND MAPS. The type is long primer, self-pronouncing. It is 6x8½ inches, and only 1 inch thick. Bound in the best levant morocco, divinity circuit (overlapping edges), calf lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges. By reason of the large number contracted for we are selling this splendid Bible at only a little more than half its regular price.

REV WALKER'S

FAMOUS DYSPEPSIA CURE.

Famous for Glorious Achievements

The recognized unfailing scientific Cure for Dyspepsia, Nervous Indigestion, Constipation, Acidity, and Bilious Colic. Relief in one minute, with first dose; quickly effects a permanent Cure. Never fails. Neutralizes and eradicates dyspeptic poison. An absolute specific. Very palatable, perfectly harmless, as gentle as nature in effect. Neglected Dyspepsia and Indigestion produce "Bright's Disease," undermines the vital organs, overthrows the mental faculties, producing insanity and death

Mr. J. G Thompson Anclote, Fla., voluntarily writes: "I suffered agonies from Dyspepsia. Walker's Famous Dyspepsia Cure quickly cured me I gained 14 pounds in one month My friends are astonished at my quick recovery. A wonderful medicine"

Mr. Leroy Turner, Sparta, Ga., "I could scarcely eat anything; two doses completely relieved me."

Box containing month's treatment, by mail, $1; checks, 10 cents extra. Address,

REV. EDWARD H. WALKER,
Box 92. Atlanta, Ga.

ADVOCATE OFFER.

Magic White Soap, advertised in our columns, is manufactured in New Orleans by a responsible company, who can be relied on to do what is promised. The soap is what is claimed for it. There is none better on the market. A fair trial has been given it at the home of the editor, and the good wife, who knows what soap is, says "it is about the best she ever used." Our lady readers would do well to give this soap a trial. Send for a box of twenty bars—one dollar; charges paid by the manufacturer.

We make the following offer: We will furnish one box of this soap, and the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for one year, for $2.50, to new subscribers. We make the same offer to all who will pay up back dues, and send $2.50 additional. Cash must accompany the order. Address

JNO. W. BOSWELL,
512 Camp St., New Orleans.

An Appeal to Our Friends.

We make a special appeal to our friends who owe us on subscription to send us the amount due. We need the money. The amount each one owes is small, but the aggregate amounts to hundreds of dollars. Our friends must see that it is embarrassing to us to withhold the money. Please look at the label on your paper, and if you are behind, send us the amount due. We will greatly appreciate it.

R·I·P·A·N·S

I doctored for a year and a half for what the doctor told me was gall stones. I had read so much about the relief Ripans Tabules gave other people I thought I would get some. I have used eight of the five cent boxes and have not had a spell since.

One Gives Relief.

At druggists.

General News.

Admiral Wm. T. Sampson died in Washington, D. C., last week.

Business is stagnant in London pending the peace conferences in South Africa.

The Queen Regent of Spain has conferred the order of the Golden Fleece upon President Loubet.

The United States training ship "Hartford" left New Orleans for Galveston on an order from Washington.

The President has vetoed the proposition for a general amnesty in Cuba, including those convicted of postal frauds.

The letter books of Armour & Co., showing positively that a Beef Trust exists, will be turned over to the Federal authorities.

An anarchist plot to murder Alfonzo XIII. on the day of his coronation has been discovered, and six arrests have been made.

It is Louisiana's intention to reproduce the Cabildo at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, and the purpose of Texas to construct a copy of the Alamo.

The Rev. E W. Hunter delivered a "Sunshine" sermon at St. Anna's Church, on Sunday, before the Louisiana branch of the International Sunshine Society.

The bronze statue of Frederick the Great, to be presented to this country by Emperor Wilhelm, will be the work of Prof. Uphues, and will be modeled after the statue at Potsdam.

A DANGEROUS DRINK is impure water. It brings on diarrhœa, cramps and piercing pain in the bowels. Counteract the effect of bad water with Perry Davis' Painkiller. Take it in your grip when you travel.

A Timely Production.

In commending this little volume, Bishop Morrison writes:

"The Collections—a little booklet by Rev. Geo. H. Givan, A. B., of Livermore, Ky.—is a timely production. It presents the Conference collections in their order, with such facts and suggestions on each as will awaken thought, impart information, and generate interest in the reader. The book can be read through in a few minutes, and will make its impress in that brief time. It should be in the hands of all our people. The 'common people will read it gladly.'"

Summer School, Knoxville, Tenn., June 19-30, 1902.

For the above the Queen and Crescent Route will sell from all points on its lines to Knoxville, Tenn, and return, tickets at one fare for the round trip on June 16, 17, 18, 28. 29 30, and July 11, 12 and 13, with final limit Aug. 15.

For detailed information, apply to any ticket agent, or the undersigned.

Southern Students Conference Y. M. C. A. Annual Conference of Y. W. C. A.

For the above occasions the Queen and Crescent Route will sell round-trip tickets from points east of the Mississippi river on June 13 and 14, and from points west of the Mississippi river on June 12 and 13, with final limit June 25, 1902. This offers to the public an excellent opportunity to visit Asheville at a low cost.

A Chance to Make Money.

I have berries, grapes and peaches a year old, fresh as when picked. I used the California Cold Process. Do not heat or seal the fruit, just put it up cold, keeps perfectly fresh, and costs almost nothing; can put up a bushel in ten minutes. Last year I sold directions to over 120 families in one week; anyone will pay a dollar for directions when they see the beautiful samples of fruit. As there are many people poor like myself, I consider it my duty to give my experience to such, and feel confident anyone can make one or two hundred dollars round home in a few days. I will mail sample of fruit and full directions to any of your readers for nineteen (19) two-cent stamps, which is only the actual cost of the samples, postage, etc. FRANCIS CASEY, St. Louis, Mo.

THE Daughter's Health.

"All honor to woman! to her it is given To garden the earth with the roses of Heaven."

Your daughter is the brightest ornament of your home; see to it that she is kept in the best possible health, that she may attain the highest development and perfection of womanhood. Bear in mind that a weak and frail girl-life, if continued, leads to an incomplete and unsatisfactory woman-life. So much of woman's happiness and usefulness depends upon womanly health—structural and functional perfection of the parts especially concerned in maternity, that it is a mistake, a sin, that may even cause generations yet unborn, to neglect any departure from womanly perfection. Small ails should be rightly before they become big ones; do not allow little ills to develop into real diseases.

"My daughter suffered with nervous spells, bearing down pains and backache during her monthly periods. G. P. P. cured her. It is the best remedy I ever saw for young girls."—Mrs. Mary E. Hines, Beulah, Ala.

G. P. P.—Gerstle's Female Panacea, cures irregular, scanty, too profuse and painful monthly periods; uterine and ovarian irritations; ulcers, displacements and falling of the womb; whites and all unnatural discharges; fricidity, barrenness and all impediments to maternity; also all associate ailments of the private organs of women. At all stages of menstrual life, from budding womanhood until after the changes that end special womanly functions, it is the best friend of and remedy for womankind. Its use strengthens all womanly organs, regulates and renders natural all sexual functions. It is sold at drug stores for $1.00 a bottle. Buy it, try it, and you will find these statements are true, for it is reliable and will not disappoint.

All ladies who are not perfectly right and well in a womanly way should write to the Ladies' Health Club, care of L. Gerstle & Co., Chattanooga, Tenn., for free medical advice and instruction.

It seems to be true that the most influential Boer leaders are willing to come to terms with the British, and that only details remain to be settled. It is not expected that the present negotiations signalize the actual close of the war. Isolated fighting will undoubtedly continue for some time, but concerted Boer resistance will be at an end, it is believed, in the near future. The government is reluctant to report a favorable turn of negotiations, since previous intimations of peace have been so misleading. Furthermore, a premature outburst of jubilation would be resented by the irreconcilables at Pretoria, which would retard a settlement. Their strength and influence are not underestimated by the War Office. In fact, it is said that while Botha and De Wet counsel peace, the delegates at Vereeniging are about evenly divided on the question. The war has cost Great Britain 26,000 lives and $1,114,000,000. A region divided by artificial boundaries and certain to breed conditions that bring war will pass under one flag and one law. In time, there will be one tongue and one people. Looking at the result from a philosophic standpoint, we must admit that the Boers did not conform with our ideas of free government. They denied equal rights to immigrants of other white races and they exercised a cruel oppression over the native blacks.

The United Miners, who have been in session at Huntington, W. Va., adjourned after ordering a general strike of all the miners in West Virginia and Virginia, to begin on June 7, and last until the demands of 10 to 22 per cent. increase in wages are granted. From authentic sources it is learned the mine workers, in case a strike is called, expect to have enlisted 90,000 miners and laborers in Virginia and West Virginia, which is over three-fourths of the working population of the coal sections, and they will also enlist the many trades unions and the American Federation of Labor. This, with those who will have to quit work on account of the closing of the mines, will reach a total of 125,000 idle men in the two States.

Fully realizing the importance of the coming Fall elections, President Roosevelt is making arrangements to make several trips to various parts of the country. Almost every State in the Union, through committees and Senators and Representatives, have both formally and informally invited him. The only positive speech-making date yet made is one at Pittsburg on July 4. This will not be a political address. New England is anxious to have the President during the campaign. Maine and Vermont have their elections early in September, and, if public affairs can be so arranged, Mr. Roosevelt will make one speech in each State. Neither of these States is regarded as doubtful. Republicans insist that they will each send solid Republican delegations to Congress. Notwithstanding this, the stimulating effect of Mr. Roosevelt's presence in these two early campaigns is very much desired. He will also make a tour of the Middle West. It is unusual for a President to take a hand in anything but presidential elections.

Complaint is made that the Electrical Supply Dealers' Association of the United States is a trust. Information is being collected by independent electrical supply dealers. When they act, they will ask the Attorney General to proceed against the association under the Sherman law. There are over fifty firms located in cities throughout the United States in the trust. Among the charges made against the association, are: That it was organized with the deliberate purpose of restraining trade and destroying competition. It has partitioned the selling territory of the United States into three divisions, Eastern, Western and Southern, and in these divisions it permits or prevents the sale of electrical supplies. That it fixes the wholesale and retail prices for electrical supplies arbitrarily, and within the last six months has raised the same from 25 to 100 per cent. without legal justification, and that a system of fines is maintained, which are imposed upon members for cutting prices, selling to boycotted or blacklisted dealers, or disposing of goods in any way but the way prescribed by the association; that between 5,000 and 6,000 small wholesale and retail electrical supply dealers of the United States have been forced out of business by the operations of the association.

The President, it is said, is in favor of the Hoar bill for the construction of an interoceanic canal. He is said to have expressed himself warmly on this subject to some recent callers. The Hoar bill leaves the question of routes to the President and gives him more unlimited discretion than any other proposition which has been made. The President is in favor of it chiefly because of the unsatisfactory nature of the concessions which have been made by the countries interested. Both Colombia and Nicaragua have evinced a disposition to withhold unlimited control of the canal from the United States, and the treaties which have been negotiated are not at all what the President wants. He believes that if a free hand were given him, he could get the best possible terms for the United States.

The opening of an oil gusher at Jennings, La., has naturally aroused intense enthusiasm throughout the rice district of Southwest Louisiana. In its way it is as important as the original discovery of oil at Beaumont, and means as much for the country aronnd Jennings. It was believed by many experts that oil was to be found buried in the earth on the Louisiana as well as the Texas side of the Sabine; and among the places selected as giving the best surface indications of the presence of oil was Jennings. Those who have been sinking wells there have been convinced that they would strike oil. As it is, there is now a new centre of oil production in the Southwest, this time in Louisiana, and much nearer one of the best markets for the product, the rice and sugar mills of Southwestern Louisiana and the city of New Orleans, which, with its thousands of factories and its steamship and railroad lines, will call for many millions of barrels of the Jennings product.

In his speech at Birmingham, Ala., last Saturday, the Hon. Leslie M. Shaw, Secretary of the Treasury, expressed a sentiment that should be appreciated by Americans in all sections of the Union. He said: "I do not want to talk to you in platitudes, and I will not talk to you of local political conditions. I did not come down here to solve problems of which I know nothing. Neither will I congratulate you that the war is over. On the contrary, I will give a thousand dollars never again to hear that we are at last a reunited people. I have been hearing that for thirty five years. At no time have I doubted it. During all these years I have rejoiced that sectionalism was a thing of the past. I have never believed it would help heal a breach between friends to talk about it. In the language of Mark Twain, when the guide tried to enthuse him over an Egyptian mummy that had been dead 3,000 years, 'If you have a fresh corpse, trot it out.'"

"INFANT BAPTISM."

In a ministry of twenty years I've devoted but little time to preaching baptism, notwithstanding I have given much time to its study. I fear that, as a church, we have not sufficiently emphasized the doctrine of baptism. For this reason those who oppose our views on the doctrine think we have no reason for the faith that is in us. In evidence of this fact, a leading Baptist preacher once said to me, "If you will preach your doctrine, I'll baptize a great many of your people in a week afterward." The purpose, therefore, of this paper is to show our people, as well as the Baptists, that we stand upon solid scriptural ground on the whole subject of baptism, especially as to infant baptism. To evade infant baptism, our opponents deny the existence of the church before Christ. They hold and teach that God did not have a church in the world prior to the Advent. They do this in order to extricate themselves from the irrefutable argument in favor of infant baptism founded upon infant circumcision.

But to deny or to affirm a thing does not disprove or prove it. If the Scriptures teach anything, they teach that the church of God existed long centuries before the coming of Christ. But before we attempt to establish the existence of an organic church prior to the Advent, it would, perhaps, be well to define the church.

What is the church? The church is a congregation of believers and their children, wherein the Word of God is preached and the ordinances duly administered. Our anti-Pedobaptist friends, of course, will object to the infant part of the definition, but we purpose to show that the definition is scriptural, and not a human invention.

Did such an organization called the church exist prior to Christ? Yes. In Acts vii, 38, we have the following proof: "This is he, that was in the church in the wilderness with the angel which spake to him in the Mount Sinai, and with our fathers: who received the lively oracles to give unto us." The word, "ekklesia," in the original of this text translated "church" is the same as the word in the second chapter and first verse of Revelation translated "church." So, if we had no other Scripture, that is sufficient to establish the existence of the church for fifteen hundred years before the Advent. But this is not all. Paul, in his letter to the church at Rome, speaking of God's Israel, says: "And if some of the branches be broken off, and thou, being a wild olive tree, wert grafted in among them, and with them partakest of the root and fatness of the olive tree; Boast not against the branches. . . . Be not high-minded, but fear: For if God spared not the natural branches, take heed lest he also spare not thee." (Rom. xi, 13 25.) The olive tree was the church of God that existed in the wilderness (Acts vii, 38), into which the wild olive (the Gentiles) was grafted, of which they became members through faith in Christ.

The church of Abraham was a congregation of believers who believed in the Christ as a coming Savior. The church of Paul's day was a congregation of believers who believed in the Christ already come. That the church in the wilderness was composed of believers and their children, we do not see how any fair-minded man can doubt for a moment. In this church the ordinances were administered and the Word preached.

Circumcision was the door into the church, and a sign and seal of the faith of its members. If our opponents doubt that, let them read Paul on this point. "And he received the sign of circumcision, a seal of the righteousness of the faith he had yet being uncircumcised: that he might be the father of all them that believed." (Rom. iv, 11.) God having made his covenant with Abraham, that in his seed all nations of the earth should be blessed, saying, "The promises are unto you and your children," instituted circumcision as the sign of this covenant, and commanded Abraham to put the sign on himself and his infant son Isaac. By this door of circumcision Abraham and his infant son came into the visible church of Christ. The visible sign of membership in the church while she was looking for Him, in whom all nations of the earth should be blessed, was circumcision. When Christ came, then the visible sign of the faith that looked for him passed away, and baptism, the sign of the faith that looks upon him as already come, was instituted in the place of circumcision. "But," says our opponents, "there is no proof that baptism was divinely put in the place of circumcision." On this point the Scriptures throw a flood of light. Under the old dispensation circumcision in the flesh was the outward sign of the inward circumcision of the heart, of the righteousness which is of faith. "Circumcision is that of the heart, in the spirit, and not in the letter." (Rom. ii, 29; Phil. iii, 3.) Baptism, which Paul calls circumcision made without hands (Col. ii, 11), is the visible sign of our acceptance with God, and our inheritance with Abraham. "For as many of you as have been baptized into Christ, have put on Christ. . . . And if ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's seed, and heirs of the promise," of which circumcision was the first sign. We, therefore, conclude that as baptism was instituted in lieu of circumcision, and that infants were circumcised, that believing parents ought to have their children baptized.

The many trivial objections urged against infant baptism can be urged with equal force against infant circumcision; so we will pass these objections to consider other arguments in favor of infant baptism.

We now notice the fact that the first disciples of Christ were Jews, and that, as such, they had always regarded children as members of the covenant of grace, and heirs of all its privileges and promises, and, as such, had received circumcision, the sign of the covenant, as well as believing adults. Now, when circumcision passed away, and baptism was instituted as the sign of the covenant, the promise of which were unto Abraham and his seed, was it not natural that the Jews would suppose that their children were still included in the covenant and entitled to baptism, the new sign and seal of the covenant, especially when Peter said, in the first sermon preached after Pentecost, "Repent, and be baptized, . . . for the promise is unto you and your children"? The very silence of the Scriptures in express command to baptize children is strong proof that our Lord intended the children to be baptized; to receive the sign of the covenant of which they are members. That he intended to recognize their interest in the covenant of salvation is evidenced by his saying, "Suffer the children to come unto me, for of such is the kingdom of Heaven." The usage of the church, as far as church history guides us, was to baptize the infant children of believing parents. If the disciples and the early ministers of the church did not practice infant baptism, when did it originate? And if it came in as an innovation, is it not strange that it created no discussion? And if it did, is it not strange that history makes no mention of it? For fifteen hundred years it was practiced without opposition. We, therefore, hold that if not practiced by the early church, that such an innovation could not have crept in without creating a disturbance.

To sum the whole up into one general statement: Children are born members of the invisible church, and are entitled to baptism, the visible sign of membership in the visible church.

An Appeal.

DEAR FRIENDS, I. H. N.: After long and careful consideration it has been decided not to have the usual Waifs' Outing, given by the King's Daughters and Sons of Louisiana. It has been thought best to use the money usually expended in the outing to purchase ice and grocery tickets, and thus give the actual necessities of life instead of one day's pleasure without the benefits.

We trust that the appeal for funds will meet with such a ready response that we may be able to send at various times during the Summer weak and infirm persons for a week or two in the country. We have many cases of women worn out after months of labor in the factory, or whose eyes have grown dim as they toiled over the sewing that meant their daily bread. It is these who we hope to benefit by an outing, not of a day, but for two weeks, so that they may regain their strength. Should anyone in the country, or over the lake, care to take a child for a week or two, we will be glad to send those to whom the change would mean life and health. Any information will be gladly furnished on this subject by the State secretary. The tickets for the Summer work will be ready by the end of next week, and should any reliable person send for same, they will be furnished if the fund is large enough to issue same. In October the names of those who have contributed to this fund will be published; also an account of the work done by the Summer work.

Trusting that the health, happiness and joy that you are helping to give to those not so fortunate as you may come to you with God's richest blessing, is the prayer of

Yours sincerely,

SOPHIE B. WRIGHT,
State Secretary.

A Query, and Else.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: Allow me to congratulate you for the way you ruled out the discussion brought about by the article from "A Preacher's Son." This shows us again that we have "the right man in the right place" as our editor.

Doctor, I know a preacher, a member of the Louisiana Conference, that spends some of his Sunday afternoons, between services, "playing carroms." Now, I want you, "Gilderoy," or some brother who can, to tell us if this is just right. On a recent Sunday I was in the parlor of one of his young members, and she suggested that we play "carroms," and one young man in the room said he did not think it right to play on Sunday. She told him the preacher played, and he joined in the game. This same preacher goes to his appointments on a "Sunday train," and then gets after his members for riding on the train on Sunday. I believe that as long as this sort of thing goes on this preacher's work will not flourish as it should. I know something is wrong somewhere, for there is less spirituality in this particular church than has been for years.

Did you ever see a young lady smoking cigarettes? I have, and I can tell you, if these young ladies knew what the young men, even the young men that roll them for them, thought of them after seeing them pulling at a cigarette, I do not think they would ever smoke one again. Young ladies, don't make yourselves cheap.

A YOUNG METHODIST LAYMAN.

In Memoriam of Mrs. J. B. Walker.

An excellent notice of this estimable lady appeared in the Picayune, of recent date. She was born in 1827, in Tennessee, and died April 30, 1902, at Pecan Grove, near Mississippi City. She was converted at the Nashville Camp Ground in 1843, and then joined the church, and was baptized by Bishop Andrew. How little the Bishop imagined the important place that this fair girl of sixteen was to fill in the church as the wife of one of its most distinguished servants, which she did with credit to her family and to the position her husband so long and ably filled as the pastor of the principal Methodist Church in New Orleans.

Doctor Walker was the highest expression of an itinerant preacher. He filled all its requirements to the day of his death; he preached well to the very last hour; he charmed by his sprightly converse all with whom he came in contact; he was thoroughly evangelical, and though a great reader and hard student, was never diverted from the Great Word and the middle of the current—no, not for an instant. He was great at camp meetings, excellent on the platform, and wielded a pen of incisive, cultivated spiritual power.

All this will convey what I wish to, that his wife maintained her place as his wife with useful and engaging influence, as the co-worker of her noble husband. They now rest together—below and above—in one of those many stately mansions prepared by the Son of God for the entertainment of his people.

BY AN ITINERANT.

SECTION II.

The church is often spoken of under the notion of a kingdom—"the kingdom of God;" or, very frequently, the "kingdom of heaven." (Matt. xx, 1–16; xxii, 1–14.) This kingdom, or church, our Lord told the Jews, should be taken from them. "Therefore, say I unto you, the kingdom of God shall be taken from yon, and given to a nation bringing forth fruits thereof." (Matt. xxi, 43.) The Jews are styled "the children of the kingdom." (Matt. viii, 12.) Notice that the very same kingdom of which the Jews were "children" should be the one "given to a nation bringing forth fruits thereof." Not a new kingdom, bnt the very same kingdom. Paul and Barnabas settle the qnestion, as also they do the one concerning the nation to whom the kingdom shall be given, in their address to the Jews. They say: "It was necessary that the Word of God should first have been spoken to yon; bnt seeing ye pnt it from you, and jndged yourselves unworthy of everlasting life, we turn to the Gentiles." (Acts xiii, 46.) Nothing can be clearer than the fact here stated that the church should be taken from the Jews and given to the Gentiles, because they failed to bring forth fruit.

St. Paul compares this taking of the kingdom from the Jews and giving it to the Gentiles to an olive tree, which, planted by God in patriarchal times, continued to grow throngh the Jewish dispensation; but some of the natural branches, being unfruitful, were broken off, and the branches of the wild olive tree were, "contrary to nature," grafted in their place, and were thus made to "partake of the root and fatness of the olive tree." (Rom. ii; Jer. xi, 16.)

Could there be an apter illnstration of the perpetuity of the kingdom of God, of his church, while its citizens were being changed? The identical stock, but different branches; the identical church, but different nations as members.

Again: "And they that went before, and they that followed, cried, saying, Hosanna; Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord: Blessed be the kingdom of our father David, that cometh in the name of the Lord." (Mark xi, 9, 10.) Here it is stated that the kingdom of David shall come in the name of the Lord. David was king of Israel; ruled over the Jewish Theocracy—a kind of Church and State combined. This was termed "David's kingdom." Now, this kingdom was coming in "the name of the Lord;" the identical kingdom under a new name. "And thou shalt be called by a new name, which the mouth of the Lord shall name." (Isa. lxii, 2.) Like the kingdom of Victoria is now called the kingdom of Edward. And the month of the Lord named it "my kingdom," or, "the kingdom of God." Is not this conclusive? There was no destroying the church—only calling it by a new name.

Before leaving this matter of "the kingdom," I shall answer an argument of the new church theorist in their efforts to establish their position. They exultingly fly to the passage, "Upon this rock I will build my church," and lay great emphasis on the words, "will build." Now, if their interpretation be correct, then it follows as a matter of utter impossibility to reconcile it with the passages quoted above, and numerous others in the Word of God. But the interpretation placed upon it by us brings everything into perfect harmony. Bnt again: Among the definitions which Webster gives of "build" are the following: "To increase and strengthen; to cement and knit together; to settle and establish, and preserve." Now, agreeable to these definitions are the following passages of Scriptnre: "And now, brethren, I commend you to God, and to the word of his grace, which is able to build you up, and to give you an inheritance among all them which are sanctified." (Acts xx, 32.) Here "build" means to increase or strengthen, as every school child knows. It does not mean to lay a foundation and erect thereon, for Paul is addressing the "brethren." Again: "In whom ye also are builded together for a habitation of God through the Spirit." (Eph. ii, 22.) In this passage it is readily observed that "bnilded" means to cement or knit together, and nothing else. The apostle is addressing the members of the church. Yet again: "And I will raise me np a faithful priest, that shall do according to that which is in mine heart and in my mind; and I will bnild him a sure honse." (I. Sam. ii, 35.) To settle, establish, or preserve, is what "build" in this passage implies. Examine any good commentary for the trnth of the assertion. This all comports perfectly with the conversation had between Christ and Peter at this point. (Matt. xvi, 16–20.) That npon a confession of faith, revealed of God in Christ, "npon this rock," faith, "I will bnild," enlarge, increase, strengthen, and more perfectly cement or knit together my "chnrch." This is what onr Lord intended, and what he said when he nttered the words, "Upon this rock I will build my chnrch."

SECTION III.

That the church of Christ has been snbstantially the same in all ages of the world is also proved by the title, "King," given to Christ, and the throne he occupied. Turning to Matt. ii, 2, we read, "Where is he that is born King of the Jews?" Those wise men say Jesus was born King, but some in this day, a little removed from his birthday, say he was not a King till Pentecost. There is evidently a mistake somewhere. Let ns examine further. Not one word do we find where he was made King at Pentecost, or even thereafter. I will give you the only authority I can find in support of this theory—it is human. I quote bnt one advocate as he sets forth in clear terms the views of them all.

Rev. J. M. Mathes, an authority among the Campbellites—if they have any authority—in the debate with Rev. T. S. Brooks, of the M. E. Church, being pressed by Mr. Brooks at this point, said: "The church of Christ is a kingdom, and Christ is the King. In the very nature of things, a kingdom can not exist until the king is crowned. Jesns was not crowned King until he ascended np to the right hand of God. When the Holy Spirit came down on the Day of Pentecost, he advocated the claims of Jesus to the kingdom, and testified that he was crowned King in Zion." (Mathes and Brooks' Debate, page 39.)

That "the church of Christ is a kingdom, and Christ is the King," is true; that "a kingdom can not exist until the king is crowned," depends upon what is meant by the word "crowned." If the meaning is, that a kingdom can not exist without one clothed with regal authority and power to preside at the head of affairs and hold the reins of government, this also is true; but if only the form of a ceremony is meant, it is not true. Great Britain remains a united kingdom under the rule of Edward VII., and yet he has never received a crown by any form of ceremony.

Other examples could be given, but this one will suffice. But the statement that "Jesus was not crowned King until he ascended up to the right hand of God," is wholly incorrect; and that "the Holy Spirit came down on the Day of Pentecost, and testified that he was crowned King in Zion," lacks only the evidence. Nowhere is it stated that the Holy Spirit, at Pentecost, testifies to any such thing. We shall give attention to the work of the Holy Spirit at Pentecost; also to the coronation or induction of Christ nnto his visible priestly or kingly office, in a section when we come to treat directly of infant baptism.

But the assertion of Mr. Mathes that "when the Holy Spirit came down on the Day of Pentecost, he advocated the claims of Jesns to the kingdom, and testified that he was crowned King in Zion," is utterly without confirmation. The Bible does not tell us so; neither have we any other evidence than Mr. Mathes' bald assertion. Christ did say, "My kingdom is not of this world;" but he added in the same verse, "If my kingdom were of this world, then would my servants fight, that I should not be delivered to the Jews: but now is my kingdom not from hence." (John xviii, 36.) The passage is to our purpose. Jesns was answering Pilate, who had asked him, "Art thou the King of the Jews?" "My kingdom is not of this world"—not temporal, but a spiritnal kingdom, which does not interfere with the dominion of Cæsar, or of which any other prince has reason to be jealous. "If my kingdom were of this world"—were of an external or temporal nature—"then would my servants fight." Christ has always been King over his spiritnal kingdom. "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. The same was in the beginning with God. All things were made by him; and without him was not anything made that was made. In him was life; and the life was the light of men." (John i, 1–4.) Mr. Mathes admits that Christ is King over his spiritual kingdom, or church, here on earth, since he ascended and was crowned; then there can be no possible reason why he could not have been King over that church, or kingdom, when he was here on earth, or even before; and no reason that he was not, in the absence of all evidence to the contrary. However, the visible induction of Christ into the kingly and priestly office of the visible manifestation of his spiritnal kingdom will be considered in the section on the baptism of Christ. Even then he was ascending his "father David's throne," and not a new one, as we shall see later.

Bnt to return to the evidence of Christ's kingship while here on earth. When Jesus was on trial before Pilate, the latter asked him, "Art thou a King, then? Jesus answered, Thou sayest that I am a King. To this end was I born, and for this cause came I into the world, that I should bear witness unto the truth." (John xviii, 37.) Here Jesus acknowledged that he was a King born to that end, and Pilate believed it, for he "wrote a title, and put it on the cross, and the writing was, Jesus of Nazareth, the King of the Jews." (John xix, 19.) So firmly did Pilate believe the truth of what he wrote, that upon being requested by the chief priests not to write, "The King of the Jews; but that he said, I am King of the Jews" (verse 21), he answered, "What I have written I have written" (verse 22).

The church is called the "commonwealth of Israel" (Eph. ii, 12), showing that it extended back into the past. Now, Christ is called the "King of Israel." (John i, 49.) Now, if the Jewish or Israelitish Church was destroyed at Pentecost, and Christ was never a King until he ascended up to the right hand of God in heaven, how could he be "King of Israel!"

But to establish the identity of the church by the kingship of Christ beyond all possible question, let us see what throne he occupied. Isaiah and the apostles tell us, "Of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end npon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom." (Isa. vii, 9.) "And the Lord shall give nnto him the throne of his father David; and he shall reign over the house of Jacob forever." (Luke i, 32, 33.) On these passages we give the points made by Rev. J. H. Nichols. "We see," says he, "(1) that the throne of David was the only throne promised, and the only one given to Jesus; (2) that of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end upon the throne of David, and npon his kingdom; (3) that he should reign over the house of Jacob, or Israel, forever. Did David ever sit npon the throne of that new kingdom which you say was set up at Pentecost?" Thns we establish beyond all possible donbt the identity of the church under both the Jewish and Christian dispensations.

A Home for Mississippi Dependent Old Ladies.

One of the most piteous features of onr civilization is the dependent condition of thousands of aged women from every rank of life. This is owing, of course, to the defect in our economic system which has made it difficult always for women to be bread-winners.

Prior to the Civil War our social organism was of such a character as to preclude the thought of strenuous effort upon the part of woman for self-sustenance. At the close of that mighty struggle an army of women were left without homes, and as powerless to provide for their hourly wants as little children.

Through all the years that have followed, the heart-breaking tragedy has been enacted in scores of lives through the grapple with poverty by hands too feeble or too incompetent for the encounter. Unmarried women, widows of ex-Confederates, mothers of sons who wore the grey, have known the unspeakable bitterness of drifting from one inhospitable shelter to another of relatives and friends. They have tasted the dregs of humiliation in being compelled to ask for food and clothing which was doled out by stints—not always because it was an unwelcome task, but because of the stress of want in the family.

The disabilities of old age have rendered many women, bereft of immediate kinspeople, a burden to those to whose lot it has fallen to care for them; and the situation of those hapless women is one sufficiently pathetic to move the heart of every human being who has ever known the blessedness of the mother-touch, the sacredness of a sister's love.

Philanthropy is the fruitage of the tree of hope, which struck deep its roots in the soil of human hearts that night when the heavens opened above the Judean hills, and the angel song, ushering in the new dispensation of joy and peace for all the heavy-laden, swept like a benediction over the world. As a direct result of that announcement of the coming of the Christ, benevolent institutions now blossom like crimson cacti in the desert around the globe.

Among these havens of refuge for that portion of humanity known as the unfortunate, dependent old women have not been forgotten. Many States are supporting homes for their accommodation, besides those establishments that are provided by the munificence of private individuals.

In Washington City there is an elegant building, with every comfort, for the support of high-bred old ladies who are homeless.

In Charleston, S. C., a wealthy gentleman bought some land just in the suburbs, and upon this he erected several commodious and beautiful brick structures dedicated to the use of respectable old women who are without the means of securing a livelihood.

While this agitation is going on for the purchase of a home for the veterans of our Lost Cause in Mississippi, the necessity of providing a similar institution for the old women and their daughters, whose lives and fortunes met their doom at Appomattox, has sunk deeply into my consciousness.

I am impelled to write this appeal to the people of Mississippi to establish an institution for the support of its indigent, aged ladies. Surely the noble hearts of the men and women of our dear old State, which has led so bravely in many other causes, will answer generously to this call.

If some progressive woman would take the lead in this enterprise, a State organization could be speedily formed, and from this nucleus other Unions, whose purpose would be to raise funds for the Old Ladies' Home, would quickly spring into being. After a site was obtained and sufficient money procured for the erection of the building, an appropriation could, in all probability, be secured from the Legislature for the continued maintenance of the institution.

Bodies of law-makers who are great-souled enough to appropriate two million dollars to the public schools of the State, to take the initiative in founding and sustaining an Industrial Institute and College for young women, besides upholding loyally all the other public establishments for education and charity, will not fail in this movement for the support of the mothers and daughters of our Commonwealth who are rendered financially helpless through no fault of their own.

As a woman who has known always the exquisite tenderness of a sheltered home life, and who clings with unchanging love to that heaven on earth, I appeal to you, men and women of Mississippi, in behalf of the homeless ones of my State.

As a woman who has heard the divine call for service to humanity outside the home in the boundless world of want and sorrow, I implore those who have leisure and a heart of sympathy to take up this blessed cause for the solitary lives that are cast in the shadow of loneliness and deepest poverty.

"Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, . . . ye have done it unto" Him who was the best friend of woman that the ages ever knew.

Preachers in the Fifties—No. 2.

"God buries his workmen, but carries on his work." Every preacher in the fifties, under whose ministry I sat, has grounded his arms and quit the field forever. How rapidly we are being "gathered to our fathers"! Since my transfer to the Louisiana Conference, only fourteen years ago, I can call to mind seventeen members who have laid their armor by and crossed over the last river. Who will cross next remains to be seen. There are a number of heads in full bloom for the change; yet the younger may go before the hoary-headed. What we do must be done quickly; and who of us will be remembered as we remember many who have passed away?

After the lapse of forty-seven years I call to mind the name of Abram Long. Long was a misnomer, as he was only about five feet four inches in height. He was of heavy build, and weighed about one hundred and sixty pounds. His hair was black, his eyes of a sky blue, complexion rather dark, and his face as round as an apple. He was quick of movement, and he did not whisper when he spoke. When Brother Long was about it was generally known. He brothered and sistered everybody, and called things by their names. His was not the highest order of talent; yet he was acceptable as a preacher almost anywhere. He was a good preacher, a good exhorter, and a good class leader, all in one. He let his mission be known at all times and at all places. He not only preached and talked religion in the churches, and under the great camp meeting tabernacles, but in the tents on the camp ground, at the firesides of the people, on the streets in cities, and wherever he went and whoever he met, all were addressed about their souls. I have no doubt that he led more souls to Christ in private, earnest face-to-face talks than by his pulpit ministrations. He would meet a sinner, a cordial grasp of the hand would follow, and if there was no resistance, the two were soon on their knees together in agony of soul. Many hardened sinners said they could withstand Bro. Long's pulpit appeals, but when he addressed them personally, they had either to yield or run.

I never saw nor heard of him as being the least embarrassed or intimidated under any circumstances. He was bold, courageous, and equal to any emergency. He said "sin and the devil were bold, and that unless the Lord's servants were bold, the devil would gain the day." During a meeting held under a brush arbor, Bro. Long had preached with his usual enthusiasm. A large number had responded to his appeal, but the preacher persistently extended the invitation, walking to and fro, clapping his hands, and addressing each auditor face to face. At the upper end of the arbor there was an elderly single lady named Pitkin, sitting against a post. She seemed, by her appearance, to be entirely unmoved and uninterested by her surroundings. Bro. Long stepped directly in front of her, and asked in a loud tone of voice, "Sister Pitkin, don't you love the Lord?" to which she replied instantly and emphatically, "Oh, go away, Bro. Long; I've got nuthin' agin him." "Glory to God!" shouted the preacher; "here is a sinner on the fence. All of you praying people pray that Sister Pitkin may fall off on the Lord's side."

The Woman's Foreign Missionary Conference met in New Orleans, April 24–27. The State officers were all present except some of the district secretaries and the editor of our column in the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE. The meeting was both pleasant and profitable. We had talks from three returned missionaries: Rev. Mr. Dickie, from Brazil, sent out by the Parent Board; Mrs. Smith, sent to Brazil by the Presbyterian Board, and Miss Bettie Hughes, sent by our Woman's Board to China. These old warriors, fresh from the conflict, greatly enhanced the interest of the meeting, and threw much light on our work in the foreign fields. The corresponding secretary's report shows an increase of 85 members, embodied in 4 societies, 2 of which are adult and 2 juvenile. The treasurer's report shows that there has been quite an improvement in our financial status. The grand total of receipts this year is $2,930.11, against last year's report, $1,765.88. The same State officers were elected again, except the recording secretary, who resigns in favor of Mrs. John S. Young, who was elected. After holding that office for eighteen years, the recording secretary does not feel that she is shirking when she resigns it into more competent hands. There were a few changes made in the district secretaries, as you will see from the Minutes.

The delegates were highly entertained by the Rayne Memorial people. The pastor, Dr. LaPrade, attended the meetings very regularly, and assisted in many ways. The pastors of several other New Orleans churches dropped in occasionally, and cheered the meeting by their presence and sympathy.

Rev. Mr. Dickie preached the anniversary sermon on, "Come and see," "Go and tell." It was a fine missionary sermon, much enjoyed by a large audience.

Miss Hughes made a fine address on Sunday night, and sang in the Chinese language a verse of the familiar hymn, "Just as I am." Mr. Dickie sang in Portuguese, "Jesus, lover of my soul." Both were full of pathos.

Rayne Memorial young people entertained the meeting very highly one evening with recitations on China.

In response to an invitation from Rev. P. M. Brown, the next annual meeting will be held at Bunkie.

L. PAXSON, Rec. Sec.

How good it is that, though new chapters go on with our life's story, and people drop out whom we have loved, and incidents change so that it seems quite like another tale, yet the real plot is spiritual and eternal. The true friendships and affections will all come in again, in the next volume. There is no "finis" at the end of Volume One, nor yet of Volume Two. Always to be continued, never to be concluded, are the life and love that are rooted in Jesus Christ.—Maltbie D. Babcock, D. D.

Catarrh

The cause exists in the blood. It is what causes inflammation of the mucous membrane.

It is therefore impossible to cure the disease by local applications.

It is positively dangerous to neglect it, because it always affects the stomach and deranges the general health, and is likely to develop into consumption.

Many have been radically and permanently cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla. It cleanses the blood and has a peculiar alterative and tonic effect. R. Long, California Junction, Iowa, writes: "I had catarrh three years, lost my appetite and could not sleep. My head pained me and I felt bad all over. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla and now have a good appetite, sleep well, and have no symptoms of catarrh."

SUNDAY-SCHOOL DEPARTMENT

Conducted by N. A. MOTT, Yazoo City, Miss

To Whom All Communications for This Department Must Be Sent.

Country Sunday-Schools.

There is an idea abroad that the smaller, country, backwoods Sunday-schools do not amount to much, and that they can not do good work. There never was a greater mistake. Their city neighbors may be more systematic, may be better graded, may be better equipped, and be more modern in their appointments, because of their larger attendance and greater wealth; but for effective teaching of the Word of God, for spirituality, and for results in soul-saving and leading into the church of Christ that goes to make a successful school, the smaller village or neighborhood school has equal advantages with her city neighbor.

As an evangelizing force, the schools in the country are as necessary as those in the city. Both must stand for something, or go down in disaster. Both teach from the same Bible, and both have the same Holy Spirit to illumine its pages and make effective their teaching. They have the same Commander and the same enemy to overcome. And in the matter of trained teachers—thanks to our Southern Methodism—they may now become members of the same Study Circle. Experience has proved that only a small per cent. of our officers and teachers are enabled to avail themselves of the convention and institute, but in the Study Circle all may study the most approved methods. Here all can be trained for effective Sunday-school work, and the teacher in the smallest backwoods school may learn as much about the principles of teaching as the highest in the land.

It is to be hoped that the Mississippi State Sunday-school Convention, which meets at Winona, Aug. 26, will be largely attended. While we believe that teacher-training, improvement in methods, arousing enthusiasm and developing workers, can best be done along denominational lines, and in denominational institutes and conventions, yet the interdenominational association has accomplished so much that it is entitled to our lasting gratitude and co-operation. It has done more to bring the different denominations together in a spirit of unity and brotherly love than any other agency, but its greatest work was the adoption of the international lesson scheme. It is still doing a great work, but that will ever remain its greatest glory. The Louisiana State Convention, at Natchitoches, was a success, and we trust the Winona Convention will be equally fruitful of good results.

It is nearly time for another quarterly review, and we would be glad to hear expressions from our Sunday-school workers as to the best methods of conducting it. The purpose of the review is to test the pupils' knowledge, and to fasten upon their memory the principal teachings of the lessons. It is also a test of the teacher's own thoroughness. Review day is an important occasion in the life of the school. We will be glad to publish the experience of some of our superintendents and workers as to the best methods of conducting it.

We have received a letter—which we will publish in this column next week—from Mrs. Martha Callihan, of Nakatsu, Japan, giving an interesting account of Sunday-school work in that far-off land. We trust the letter will increase the missionary zeal of our schools. The letter will be found very interesting.

The General Sunday-school Board has recommended to the General Conference several changes in the law governing Sunday-school work in our church, and we hope they will be adopted. They are mainly in the interest of the Study Circle and the institute.

The Meridian, Miss., District Sunday-school Conference will meet at Poplar Springs on the night of July 15. We trust it will be a profitable occasion.

Reading Circles and Teachers' Meetings in North Mississippi Conference.

There are four hundred and ninety-nine Sunday-schools in the North Mississippi Conference, or about that number. Among all these there are Reading Circles established at Tom Nolan, Pleasant Hill, Aberdeen, Winona, Columbus, Taska, Cleveland, Detroit, Eureka Springs, Tupelo, Okolona, Brooksville, Eupora, Holly Springs and Oxford—fifteen in all. This statement must be disappointing to all. The great desideratum for years has been better and more intelligent teachers for our Sunday-schools. The coming of the Reading Circle, having that very end in view, seems providential. The system is simple, and the books prescribed both excellent and cheap; yet in over half a year not three per cent. of our schools have availed themselves of this excellent opportunity for improvement.

I was about to suggest that the Reading Circle be held at the same time as the Teachers' Meeting, but I remember that at our last Conference at Winona only eleven Teachers' Meetings were reported organized in the entire Conference. Four of these—Aberdeen, Durant, Tupelo, and Oxford—are held where Reading Circles are found. We, at Aberdeen, to avoid two meetings a week, have our Reading Circle and Teachers' Meeting at the same time—Thursday afternoon. Where more time is needed the teachers finish their work the half hour before the Sunday-school session. I believe this plan a good one. It is not for me to seek the cause of our neglecting our opportunities. I do not despair. We have found the way to success—that one way is better teaching and teachers. There is no substitute for that way. We must find better teachers if we shall improve. There are none better to find, and, therefore, those we have must combine their talents for self-improvement. The Teachers' Meeting and the Reading Circle are the means at hand, and the only available means. Why do we neglect them?

INDIANOLA, MISS.

We have been blessed with an excellent work of grace in our church at Indianola. Protracted services began April 17, and closed on the night of the twenty-eighth. Bros. G. W. Bachman, and W. T. Grillin, manager and agent of our Orphans' Home at Water Valley, were with us part of the time, and rendered faithful service. The last-named took a collection for the Home, and received about $75. Most of this was in cash.

Bro. J. C. Park came to us on Monday, the twenty-first ultimo, and remained with us to the last service, preaching in demonstration and power of the Holy Spirit. The community was favorably impressed throughout. There were some conversions at the altar, backsliders were reclaimed, and many Christians were edified and strengthened for life's conflicts. While the results were not what we desired, and what we had hoped they would be, my book shows that we have received, since our coming here last December, twenty-five persons into membership. While our people are not very enthusiastic in their movements, the indications, as well as the achievements, show that we are going forward. Electric lights have been put in the church, new pulpit furniture has been ordered, and the ladies are still at work to further improve the interior. The Sunday-school interest and attendance continue to grow better. To our loving Lord our hearts send their praises.

RINGGOLD CHARGE.

DEAR DOCTOR: The Ringgold charge is in some respects in good condition. Our second Quarterly Conference at Grand Bayou Church, April 26 and 27, was a success. Our beloved presiding elder was on hand, carefully looking after the interests of the church. He did his work well. He is kind, but careful. He presided with becoming dignity, but was painstaking in looking after every interest of the church. He won all hearts, and carried away our best wishes. His preaching was in demonstration of the spirit and of power. We had a fine turn-out of officials. Some few were kept away by sickness. Our congregation was unusually good. A crowded church on Saturday, in the busiest part of the year, is the exception and not the rule. Crowds came on Sunday. The attendance, the order, and the preaching, were all up to our highest expectations. The dinner that was spread on Saturday was excellent and bountiful. Everyone seemed to be in excellent spirits and enjoying themselves fully. Wishing the ADVOCATE success, I am,

Fraternally,
THOS. J. MARTIN, P. C.

PELICAN CIRCUIT.

On the date of our second Quarterly Conference, Dr. Jno. T. Sawyer, P. E., was on hand; preached three able sermons for us, which were greatly appreciated. His sermons were a feast to many of us. We always enjoy having Dr. Sawyer with us. Yours in Christ,

E. L. CARGILL, P. C.

CARTHAGE, MISS.

DEAR BROTHER: Just closed a real good meeting here. Quite a good interest; eight accessions to church; a number promised to mend their lives. Bro. R. A. Breland did all the preaching. He is a preacher prince, and does good work. I hope he will have time to come to me again. At close of meeting nearly all the collection for this church was secured in cash and subscription. We shall remember Bro. Breland kindly in our prayers, and give God all the glory.

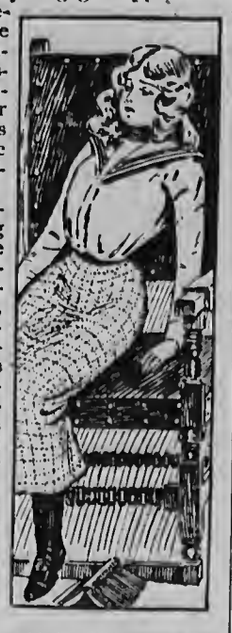
God does not give grace until the hour of trial comes. But when it does come, the amount of grace and the nature of the special grace required is vouchsafed. Do not perplex thyself with what is needed for future emergencies; to-morrow will bring its promised grace along with to-morrow's trials.—J. R. Macduff.

In Girlhood

There is a great need of motherly watchfulness and care. A growing girl needs all her strength, and if she is nervous and melancholy, and loses appetite there is surely something wrong. This is especially true as the young girl approaches that important period of change when the womanly function is established. Timely care and proper treatment at this period may save much after suffering.



The best medicine for young girls who are nervous, melancholy, and irregular of appetite, is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It cures nervousness, dizziness, and melancholy, promotes the appetite, and gives the body robust health. There is no alcohol in "Favorite Prescription" and it is entirely free from opium, cocaine, and all other narcotics.

"My daughter was troubled with dizziness and constipation and was very nervous for five years," writes Mrs. M. Carter, of 1545 4th Street, N. W., Washington, D. C. "I tried several doctors but they gave her no relief. At times she would eat nothing, had green and purple circles under her eyes, and was melancholy. A woman friend of mine told me to try your 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Pleasant Pellets' which I did. After taking one bottle of each she began to improve and is still improving. People said she looked as though she were going into a decline. She is twelve years old. There are no circles around her eyes now and she is healthy and robust, eats as much as any child, and is growing fatter every day."

Dr. Pierce's Pellets regulate the bowels.

The Commoner

(Mr. Bryan's Paper)

The Commoner has attained within six months from date of the first issue a circulation of 100,000 copies, a record probably never equaled in the history of American periodical literature. The unparalleled growth of this paper demonstrates that there is room in the newspaper field for a national paper devoted to the discussion of political, economic, and social problems. To the columns of The Commoner Mr. Bryan contributes his best efforts, and his review of political events as they arise from time to time can not fail to interest those who study public questions.

The Commoner's regular subscription price is $1 per year. We have arranged with Mr. Bryan whereby we can furnish his paper and NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, together for one year for $2.25. The regular subscription price of the two papers when subscribed for separately is $3 net. When remittance is made by personal check ten cents extra will be charged.

THURSDAY, MAY 29, 1902

EDITORIAL CORRESPONDENCE.

The week of the General Conference, closing Saturday, May 24, has been full of excitement and interest. Matters have been discussed and disposed of, which, we trust, will be to the glory of God and the good of our Southern Methodism. Our delegates will leave the Conference in a better frame of mind than when they came. Certainly there has been great disappointment on the part of many who failed to carry their points, but disappointment, we feel sure, will not result in sourness and dissatisfaction. We will have peace in the church.

The "War Claim" matter is settled. A strong and persistent effort was made to condemn the Book Committee, the Book Agents, and to secure the authority of the General Conference to unconditionally return the money secured from the government. This effort, so strongly backed by the minority of the Committee on Publishing Interests, was defeated at every point. What was called a "compromise measure," introduced by Dr. W. F. McMurry, of the St. Louis Conference, was substituted for both the majority and minority reports, and, with a slight amendment, was passed by the Conference. This report sufficiently disapproved the telegrams of the Book Agents, which mainly occasioned the trouble. It sanctioned the letter of the Bishops to the United States Senate, and pledges the return of the money if the United States Senate, by affirmative action, shall declare that voting the money for the relief of the Publishing House was due to misleading statements. This disposition of the matter is final upon the part of the church until the Senate says that that body was deceived. This action ought to satisfy the most exacting who stood with the minority.

The question of limiting the term of the presiding elders to eight years consecutively was discussed at length, and with much vigor, but the law remains unchanged. The Bishops will not be hampered—at least, for the next four years—in choosing presiding elders. The proposition, as we see it, if enacted into law, would not hamper the Episcopacy, but would infringe their constitutional rights. Effort was also made to return to the Quarterly Conference the licensing of preachers. The effort failed. Instead, the powers of the District Conference, if we are not mistaken, have been enlarged so as to try local preachers as well as license them. This is consistent. If the District Conference makes preachers, it ought to unmake them when it becomes necessary.

The deaconess question came up on Saturday, the twenty-fourth, and after prolonged discussion, the "order" was authorized. Those who favored the establishment of the "order" rallied all their strength, and by good fortune, or something else, succeeded in getting the floor, and gave the Conference a full benefit. Those opposed seemed to have but little show. Only two men, perhaps three, had opportunity to talk. The arguments advanced were weak on both sides. The matter carried through pure sentiment—nothing else. Delegates who seemed to have no strong convictions simply said, "Let us give the women a chance." It is fair to say that, though the vote cast was overwhelmingly in favor of the measure, at least one hundred delegates were absent. The vote does not fairly represent the sentiment of the Conference. Our women who favor the movement will be happy, and we hope they will succeed.

The only acrimonious debate that arose during the session, strange to say, was over a memorial to establish a commission to arbitrate differences between labor and capital, when requested to do so by both parties to a contest. The measure was discussed principally by lawyers, but strong speeches were made by preachers. The two things that defeated the proposition were: (1) It looked like (so it was said) an attempt to invade the realms of Cæsar. The argument was: the church must hold itself aloof from such questions. (2) The measure came from a labor organization, which had but recently requested the Book Agents and Book Committee to "Unionize" our Publishing House, and the fear was expressed that if the commission was created, it would not be long until it would be called on to arbitrate differences between a labor organization and the employees of the House. This was a surmise, but it had weight, and the measure was defeated.

The election of connectional officers and Bishops required two days, including one night session. Very great interest was aroused, and there was one or two surprises, but as far as we have heard, the selections give general satisfaction. Dr. E. E. Hoss was elected Bishop on the first ballot. Dr. Coke Smith, of Virginia, was elected on the third ballot. As the successor of Dr. Hoss on the Advocate, there was much speculation. The first ballot indicated the man, Dr. Geo. B. Winton. He received fifty-two votes. This turned attention to him, and he was elected on third ballot. Dr. R. J. Bigham, of the North Georgia Conference, was elected senior Book Agent. All other connectional officers were re-elected except Dr. J. H. Pritchett, Missionary Secretary. His office was abolished, and the office of Assistant Secretary was created, the office to be filled by the Missionary Board, which Board met on Friday evening, the twenty-third, and elected Dr. Seth Ward, of the Texas Conference. This is a capital selection. Dr. Ward is conceded to be the foremost man in Texas. So the Texans say.

JNO. W. BOSWELL.

Dallas, Texas, May 24, 1902.

REV. ELIJAH EMBREE HOSS, D.D., LL.D.

This distinguished minister, a member of the Holston Conference, who was elected to the office of Bishop on the first ballot yesterday morning, is the son of Henry and Anna Sevier Hoss, and was born in Washington county, Tennessee, April 14, 1849.

He was converted and joined the church at Jonesboro, Tenn., in the year 1859; was licensed to preach in 1866 at the Quarterly Conference of Jonesboro station.

He was ordained deacon by Bishop Kavanaugh in 1870, and elder by Bishop McTyeire in 1872.

He sprang from a grand old Revolutionary family, his ancestors being among the pioneers of this State, having come hither from Virginia, Maryland and Pennsylvania in the early days.

He was educated at the Ohio Wesleyan College at Delaware, Ohio, and at Emory and Henry College, Virginia.

He joined the Holston Conference in 1869 and served the following charges: Jonesboro, Greenville and Church Street Church, Knoxville, Tenn. He was transferred to the Pacific Conference in 1872 and stationed at San Francisco, Cal. In 1875 he was transferred back to the Holston Conference and stationed at Asheville, N. C.

Dr. Hoss was President of Martha Washington College at Abingdon, Va., for five years. He was then elected President of Emory and Henry College, which position he held for three years. He occupied the chair of Church History in Vanderbilt University for five years. From this position he was elected Editor of the Christian Advocate at Nashville, Tenn., the general organ of the church. He was re-elected in 1894, and again in 1898, thus completing twelve years of eminent service in this important work of the church.

Dr. Hoss is conceded to be one of the strongest men in the church, and his election to the Episcopacy, which has been foreseen for some time, will delight his myriad of friends and admirers throughout the whole Southern Methodist Church, as well as a legion among other communions.

Dr. Hoss was married Nov. 19, 1872, to Miss Abbie Clark, of Knoxville, Tenn., Rev. Geo. D. French officiating.

Dr. Hoss has been a member of six General Conferences. Was a member of the Ecumenical Conferences of 1891 and 1901; Fraternal Delegate to the Canadian Methodist Church in 1894, and to the Methodist Episcopal Church in 1900, and a member of the Joint Commission on Federation for the past eight years.—A., in Daily Advocate, May 23.

REV. ALEXANDER COKE SMITH, D.D.

He comes from South Carolina by way of Virginia. He was elected on the fourth ballot yesterday morning to the office of Bishop in the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

Dr. Smith was born on the 16th day of September, 1849, and is the son of Rev. Wm. H. Smith, of the South Carolina Conference. His mother's maiden name was Mary McLeod.

He was graduated from Wofford College, of Spartanburg, S. C., in 1872, with the degree of A. B., and in 1873 with the degree of A. M.

He was admitted into the traveling connection, joining the South Carolina Conference in 1872. He served Cheraw 1 year; Washington Street, Columbia, 3 years; Buncombe Street, Greenville, 4 years; Trinity, Charleston, 3 years; presiding elder, Columbus district, two and one-half years. In June, 1886, he was elected to the chair of Mental and Moral Philosophy in Wofford College. In 1890 he was elected one of the Missionary Secretaries. Resigned in August, to accept the chair of Practical Theology in Vanderbilt University. He resigned this chair in 1892 to return to the pastorate, and was transferred to the Virginia Conference, and was stationed at Granby Street, Norfolk, Va. Built new church, called "Epworth"; sent to Court Street, Lynchburg; in November, 1899, returned to "Epworth."

He was married to Miss Kate Kinard, Dec. 22, 1875. They have eight living children.

Dr. Smith has proven one of the most successful pastors and eloquent pulpit men in the church.

REV. GEORGE B. WINTON.

Rev. George B. Winton, the newly elected editor of the Christian Advocate at Nashville, Tenn., was born in Springfield, Mo., in 1861. He is a son of Rev. G. M. Winton, long a member of the St. Louis and Southwest Missouri Conferences. He was graduated from Morrissville College in 1881, after which he took the Theological Course at Vanderbilt University, together with post-graduate work in Philosophy. He entered the Southwest Missouri Conference in 1883, and was during that year sent to Mexico City by Bishop Keener to do special work. Returning to the United States in December, 1884, he was elected professor of Latin in the Pacific Methodist College, Santa Rosa, California, which position he held for three years. During one of these years he was editor of the Pacific Methodist, which work he continued another year while pastor at Sacramento.

In October, 1888, he was transferred to the Central Mexico Conference by Bishop Galloway, and appointed principal of the Theological Training-school at San Luis Potosi, Mexico, which position he held for seven years. During this time he edited for five years the Evangelista Mexicano, the official organ of the M. E. Church, South, in Mexico, and was also property agent and reviser of translations into Spanish. Wesley's Sermons, Hurst's Church History, the Book of Discipline, and a number of minor works have been put through the press in that language under his direction. He was from time to time during these years both presiding elder and pastor in connection with his other duties. From 1897 to the present year he was presiding elder of the San Antonio district, Mexican Border Mission Conference. In February, 1902, he was again made principal of the Theological Training-school of his church in Mexico, now located at Monterey. He has since that time also been pastor of the American Church in Monterey, which positions he leaves to assume the responsibilities of the office to which he has been elected.

Mr. Winton has been a frequent contributor to the columns of the Nashville Advocate. He has also published a number of articles in the Methodist Review, and in various periodicals of the church. He has in press in the Spanish language a "Method for Learning English." For thirteen years he has constantly preached and written in the Spanish language, of which he is said to have excellent command. He is a member of the present General Conference, as delegate from the Mexican Border Mission Conference.—Daily Advocate.

DEACONESSES.

After considerable debate, largely on the part of the friends of the measure, the General Conference by a majority passed the following bill, authorizing the creation of an order of deaconesses, in connection with the Woman's Home Mission Society of the church. The Conference lays down the following specifications for a deaconess: She must be at least twenty-three years of age, a single woman or a widow. She must be a member of the M. E. Church, South, in good standing, and must have shown a fitness for this work by active service in some line of Christian work. She must have a good English education and a certificate of good health from a reputable physician. Her application for admission to the training-school must be indorsed by the Quarterly Conference and the preacher-in-charge of the church of which she is a member. She must pass a satisfactory examination before the proper committee of the Woman's Board of Home Missions, both as to her educational and religious qualifications, before she can be placed in the training-school.

She must give two years of probationary service and study the course prescribed by the Board, after which she must have the recommendation of the superintendent of the school.

In exceptional cases, when other requirements are met and the course in the training-school is not deemed necessary, she may be nominated by the preacher-in-charge and elected to the office of deaconess by the Quarterly Conference without attending the training school.

The duties of the deaconess are to minister to the poor, care for the sick, provide for the orphan, comfort the sorrowing, seek the wandering and sinful, and do any religious or teaching work to which she may be assigned by the preacher-in-charge, employing her in the home or foreign field, and relinquishing all other pursuits, devote herself to these or other forms of Christian work to which she may be found adapted. No vows shall be required of any deaconess; nevertheless, it is expected that those who seek admission to the training-school or who apply for a certificate from the Quarterly Conference will have considered carefully the steps they are taking, and feeling themselves called of God to do this work, will enter upon it with the purpose of devoting themselves wholly to it. A deaconess shall, however, be at liberty to retire from the work after three months' notice to the Woman's Home Mission Board, and will be subject to a revoking of her certificate and dismissal if found unsuitable to the work. While engaged in active service she shall be entitled to such support as the Woman's Home Mission Board shall stipulate, and if after a long term of service she shall be disqualified by sickness or old age, she shall be cared for in a deaconess home.—Picayune.

GENERAL CONFERENCE.

LAST DAY.

The fourteenth quadrennial General Conference of the M. E. Church, South, after being in session since May 7, adjourned sine die at 1:45 o'clock on May 26. Delegates began leaving for their homes on May 25, and at one point in the session there was a scurry to gather up a quorum. The most important matter disposed of was the rescinding of part of the report of the Committee on Missions, adopted last Saturday, the tendency of which was to bring the Northern and Southern Churches' Missionary Societies into partnership in a joint Publishing House at Shanghai, China. Another unusually important matter was the adoption of a report from the Committee on Church Extension, creating a Church Insurance Board.

The date of the next Quadrennial Conference was fixed for the first Thursday in May, 1906. The Entertainment Committee will name the place one year from now. The candidates are Louisville, Birmingham, Nashville and New Orleans.

The proceedings of the last day of the Conference were begun with devotional exercises by Dr. J. W. Tarbox. Bishop Duncan resigned the chair to Bishop E. E. Hoss, the senior of the new Bishops, who was greeted with applause.

Dr. Collins Denny moved a reconsideration of part of the report of the Committee on Missions that gave at least partial control of the Publishing House to the Board of Missions. A motion to put Dr. Denny's motion on the table was carried by a vote of 60 to 53. Dr. Denny earnestly warned the congress against leaving the matter as it had been adopted, on the ground that the church was liable to forfeit the charter of its Publishing House at Nashville, Tenn, and lose, perhaps, $1,000,000 in money through litigation.

Later in the session, on an appeal from Dr. Denny and others, the Conference took the motion from the table and reconsidered the portion of the mission report which it was argued would be dangerous for the church to permit to become effective. The mission work in China, therefore, will remain, so far as publishing interests are concerned, in the hands of the Book Committee as heretofore.

Dr. Anson West, of the North Alabama Conference, entered a protest against the action of the General Conference in instituting the order of deaconesses. This protest most vigorously attacked the order of deaconesses as being at war with the history of Protestantism generally, and nowhere in the Bible could justification for the creation of the order be found.

Dr. Buttrick presented the Conference with a gavel made from the beam of the old Epworth Church in England, where Methodism was born. Bishop Hoss accepted the gavel with thanks.

The ten Bishops present signed an appeal to the church throughout the South to extend aid to the Methodist sufferers from the Goliad hurricane. Contributions were ordered sent to P. H. Whisner, Corresponding Secretary of the Church Extension Board, Louisville, Ky.

The Minutes of the session were read and approved, and formal adjournment came after the singing of hymn 232, "And Let Our Bodies Part," and prayer by Rev. W. Mahon. Bishop Wilson pronounced the benediction and the Conference was over.—Picayune.

Fold the arms of thy faith, I say, but not of thy action; bethink thee of something that thou oughtest to do, and go and do it, if it be but the sweeping of a room, or the preparing of a meal, or a visit to a friend; heed not thy feelings; do thy work.—George MacDonald.

Personal.

Dr. I. W. Cooper will dedicate the Melville Church—Rev. J. W. Lee, P. C.—on July 1. He writes us that the brethren are giving him more invitations to hold revival meetings than he can accept.

Prof. B. E. Young, of Millsaps College, was a pleasant caller at the ADVOCATE office this week. Prof. Young is in the city making ready to sail for Europe. He will spend some time in Italy, France and Germany, preparing himself more fully as a master of modern languages.

The East Mississippi Female College and Conservatory of Music arranged quite an extensive and interesting programme for its commencement exercises, May 24 to 28. We are sorry that a copy of the programme did not reach us in time for notice in our last week's issue. "E. M. F. C." is progressive in all its ways.

Dr. W. H. Watkins, an eminent physician of this city, died in Milwaukee, Wis., on May 23. He was a brother of President A. F. Watkins, of Whitworth Female College. His numerous friends in this city deeply deplore his loss. By his geniality and professional skill he endeared all to him, and his patients became his friends through life. Dr. Watkins was buried in Milwaukee on May 25. May God comfort the bereaved.

The venerable Dr. B. M. Palmer, who was so seriously hurt recently by a street car, is at this writing unconscious, and slowly sinking—not expected to survive through the day (Wednesday, May 28). The accident occurred about three weeks ago, and for several days the Doctor bore his injury with great courage, and hopes were entertained of his recovery. There is now no hope. His death will be a severe blow to the cause of Christ in this city.

The lamp with wrong chimney is like a letter without a stamp: Don't go.

Mississippi Orphans' Home.

The Board of Directors of the Mississippi Orphans' Home met in Water Valley, at the Home, May 23. There were present J H Sherard, president; J. B. Streater, secretary; Rev. M. L. Burton, treasurer; R. L. Bonnett, Yazoo City; Rev. J. M. Wyatt, Grenada; Rev. J. A. Bowen, Tupelo. Suitable resolutions were passed upon the death of Rev. R. J. Jones, vice-president. The business of the Home was carefully inquired into, the accounts audited, and the Home work found to be in prosperous condition. J H. Sherard, J. B. Streater, and Rev. M. L Burton were re-elected to their offices on the Board, and R. L Bennett was elected vice-president.

The Home now has 102 inmates, with 85 in school; 2 teachers. Plans for an addition to the building, for a kitchen and store-room, and other necessary rooms and other improvements, were laid by the Board, as the work of the Home has reached the stage where we must better equip this department as well as in other respects, as the entire work is done by the children of the Home; also to lessen the danger of fire by having the cooking done in a separate room. The health of the Home has been excellent, not a child being sick when the Board met. The farm of twenty-five acres is in onitivation; worked by the boys mostly.

The school will close June 3 or 4 with interesting exercises. Miss Hattie Eckles, of Sardis, is matron; Miss Ella Bonnar, of Washington county, housekeeper; Prof. C. K. Alexander and Mrs. W. T. Griffin, teachers.

Very Prominent Women.

The recent publication of 31 letters, in which conspicuous American women frankly tell of their experience with Wine of Cardui with the hope of aiding their suffering sisters, has attracted much attention. These letters are from women of the first rank—public speakers, club members, well-known singers, authors, social leaders, and professional women. Among the writers are: Mrs. Ida McDonald, No. 477 Beaubien St., Detroit, Mich., Supreme Deputy of the Maccabees of the World; Mrs. Clementine Richmond, of Chicago, Vice-President of the Forum Club; Mrs. Helena Blan, a prominent Society Woman of Milwaukee, Wis.; Mrs. Laura S. Webb, Vice-President of the Woman's Democratic Clubs of Northern Ohio; Miss Fay Lee, President of the Shakespearian Club, of Kansas City; and Madame Rosa Marliani, 2925 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, President of the Chicago French Singers' Association. Madame Marliani's letter follows:

"I consider Wine of Cardui better than doctors' prescriptions or any other remedy for female trouble. I have tried many, both in this country and abroad, having been a sufferer eleven years, and nothing cured me until I used your remedy. I had such excruciating pains at times that I wanted to die, and indeed a life of suffering is not alluring to anyone. Your splendid medicine strengthened my nerves, restored my appetite, and built up the entire system, and I now enjoy perfect health."

The letters of these reputable women are bringing Wine of Cardui to many sufferers, but they are not more convincing of the merits of Wine of Cardui in the treatment of female diseases than thousands of others that have been written by ladies in humbler walks of life; but these women are widely known, not only in the communities where they reside, but throughout the whole of America, and everybody who knows them will be assured that any statement they make is absolutely true.

St. Louis World's Fair.

The St. Louis World's Fair will be approximately twice as big as any former international exposition. The Centennial Exposition at Philadelphia covered 236 acres; the Paris Exposition of 1899-1900, 336 acres; the Columbian Exposition at Chicago, 633 acres; the Pan-American at Buffalo, 350 acres. The St. Louis World's Fair will cover 1,200 acres.

The construction cost of the Paris Exposition was $9,000,000; that of the Columbian Exposition, $18,322,000, and the total cost of the Pan-American Exposition was $10,000,000. The estimated cost of the St. Louis World's Fair will be $30,000,000.

"Potatoes."

We once heard of a man who ate potatoes for breakfast, but at lunch his wife always gave him a nice dish of potatoes, while for dinner the dear woman thought he would enjoy nothing more than a good square meal of potatoes.

This poor man died.

My dear madam, have mercy on the poor man who has to eat potatoes all the time; give him a change. Order a "New Orleans Cook Book." It is full of the best recipes by the best cooks of this Southland—95 pages—and was designed to be serviceable. Send twenty cents in stamps to the ADVOCATE office, and secure one of these valuable books before the limited supply is exhausted.

ANOTHER NOTICE.

Requests for special copies of the ADVOCATE come to us so often that they are burdensome, and we again remind our friends that in making such requests they must send FOUR CENTS for each copy. We can not afford to "send bill," as we are sometimes asked to do. Please, friends, bear these things in mind.

From this date no attention will be paid to manuscripts that come to this office rolled. Let them be folded and put in an envelope. And please, brethren and sisters, use ink. Pencil writing, after passing through the mail, is often hard to read. We speak both for the printer and the editor.

If the label on your paper is wrong, let us know, and we will correct. If it is right, and shows that you owe us, please send the amount due. We need the money.

A Chance to Make Money.

I have berries, grapes and peaches a year old, fresh as when picked. I used the California Cold Process. Do not heat or seal the fruit, just put it up cold, keeps perfectly fresh, and costs almost nothing; can put up a bushel in ten minutes. Last year I sold directions to over 120 families in one week; anyone will pay a dollar for directions when they see the beautiful samples of fruit. As there are many people poor like myself, I consider it my duty to give my experience to such, and feel confident anyone can make one or two hundred dollars round home in a few days. I will mail sample of fruit and full directions to any of your readers for nineteen (19) two-cent stamps, which is only the actual cost of the samples, postage, etc. FRANCIS CASEY, St. Louis, Mo.

READ WHAT THE
SAY ABOUT THE
EPWORTH ORGANS and PIANOS

The Presiding Elders' Broad View.

Because he is constantly visiting the churches and homes all over his district, the presiding elder has an extra wide view. He is in a position to know what kind of satisfaction our EPWORTH ORGANS AND PIANOS are giving, and how our business methods are liked.

We recently wrote a large number of presiding elders asking if they would kindly report whether our instruments had been seen by them, and what kind of satisfaction they were giving; also if any were out of order and needing attention. We asked permission to print their replies.

If the information proves of value to those who are interested in the advancement of music in church and home—well and good.

ARCADIA, LA., NOV. 4, 1901.

I have frequently seen and used both your organs and pianos, and I find them such as I can strongly recommend. I endorse your plan of selling.

JACKSON, LA., NOV. 7, 1901

I have seen, heard and played upon several Epworths and find them sweet toned, powerful, easy to manipulate and pleasant for accompanying the voice.

SHREVEPORT, LA., OCT. 31, 1901.
JOHN T. SAWYER, Presiding Elder Shreveport District, Louisiana Conference, M. E. Church, South.

I do not own one of your instruments, and therefore can not speak from personal experience, but, so far as I can hear, those who have them in use are satisfied with them.

BOONEVILLE, MISS., OCT. 30, 1901.
W. M YOUNG, Presiding Elder, Corinth District North Mississippi Conference, M. E. Church, South.

In my district there are quite a number of Epworth Organs and Pianos in use. I have heard them praised, but never a word of complaint. I think it very evident that by your method of dealing direct, you can give better terms than those that keep agents in the field.

CHILLICOTHE, MO., OCT 30, 1901.
MARCUS L. GRAY, Presiding Elder, Chillicothe District, Missouri Conference, M. E. Church, South.

I find Epworth Organs in various parts of this district and they are giving satisfaction; I have never heard a complaint. As to the Epworth Piano, we have had one in our own home for five years and like it better and better. To us it has been a satisfactory piano at a satisfactory price. Success to you in your work.

TUSCALOOSA, ALA., NOV. 5 1901.

We have one of your Epworth Pianos in our parlor, and we think it the best piano we ever saw. Our neighbors say it is the sweetest-toned piano they ever heard. A lady friend of ours also purchased one, and she is delighted with it. I regard your instruments by far the best for the money I ever saw.

ARKADELPHIA, ARK., NOV. 7, 1901.

After nine years' personal experience with the Williams Company and the Epworth instruments, it is with much pleasure that I recommend these organs and pianos to the public. I have had considerable experience with the Epworth Church Organs, and we had in our home an Epworth Parlor Organ for more than six years, and we now have an Epworth Piano. I find many of these instruments in my travels, and in every instance they have given full satisfaction.

TAMPA, FLA., NOV 19, 1901.

It gives me pleasure to say that our Epworth Piano, purchased more than two years ago, has given perfect satisfaction. Florida is regarded as a hard climate on pianos, but our instrument stands the test.

LAVETA, COLO., NOV. 8, 1901.
JOHN D WOOD, Presiding Elder, LaVeta District, Denver Conference, M. E. Church, South

The Epworth Piano I bought of you last January has given splendid satisfaction. A friend of mine, Mr. J. K. Kincaid, a merchant of our town, who also bought an Epworth, is delighted with his piano. Your manner of selling direct, and the extra strong warrant you give, as well as your fair and gentlemanly dealing with your customers, is making you many friends in Colorado.

GREENVILLE, N. C., NOV. 18, 1901.
J. A. BISHOP, Presiding Elder, Washington District, North Carolina Conference, M. E. Church, South.

The reasonable prices, easy terms, strong guarantee and adaptability to requirements, leads me to recommend the Williams Organs and Pianos. I have gladly referred many to this company, and have heard no adverse criticism from any source.

TYLER, TEXAS, NOV. 1, 1901.

It gives me real pleasure to recommend anything I know to be thoroughly good. Therefore, I desire to say that wherever I have known your instruments used, they have been spoken of in terms of the highest praise.

MORLEY, MO., NOV. 1, 1901.
WM. B. NORTH, Presiding Elder, Charleston District, St. Louis Conference, M. E. Church, South.

I have observed many of the Williams Organs and Pianos in the homes of our people and in our churches, and as far as I am informed, every one of them has given entire satisfaction to the purchasers. I congratulate you on your success, and take pleasure in recommending your instruments to the general public.

DO YOU GET UP WITH A LAME BACK?

HAVE YOU RHEUMATISM? DO YOU HAVE BLADDER OR URIC ACID TROUBLE?

Pain or dull ache in the back is unmistakable evidence of kidney trouble. It is nature's timely warning to show you that the track of health is not clear.

If these danger signals are unheeded, more serious results are sure to follow; Bright's disease which is the worst form of kidney trouble may steal upon you.

The mild and the extraordinary effect of the world famous kidney and bladder remedy, Dr Kilmer's Swamp-Root, is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. A trial will convince any one—and you may have a sample bottle free, by mail.

Backache and Urinary Trouble.

Among the many famous cures of Swamp Root investigated by "CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE" the one we publish this week for the benefit of our readers, speaks in the highest terms of the wonderful curative properties of this great kidney remedy.

GENTLEMEN:—When I wrote you last March for a sample bottle of Swamp-Root my wife was a great sufferer from backache rheumatism and urinary trouble. After trying the sample bottle, she bought a large bottle here at the drug store. That did her so much good she bought more. The effect of Swamp-Root was wonderful and almost immediate. She has had no return of the old trouble since.

Oct. 1901. F. THOMAS,
427 Best St., Buffalo, N. Y.

Lame back is only one symptom of kidney trouble—one of many. Other symptoms showing that you need Swamp-Root are, obliged to pass water often during the day and to get up many times at night inability to hold your urine, smarting or irritation in passing, brick dust or sediment in the urine, catarrh of the bladder, uric acid, constant headache, dizziness, sleeplessness, nervousness, irregular heart beating, rheumatism, blooding, irritability, wornout feeling, lack of ambition, loss of flesh, sallow complexion.

If your water when allowed to remain undisturbed in a glass or bottle for twenty four hours, forms a sediment or settling, or has a cloudy appearance, it is evidence that your kidneys and bladder need immediate attention.

In taking Swamp-Root you afford natural help to Nature, for Swamp-Root is the most perfect healer and gentle aid to the kidneys that is known to medical science.

Swamp-Root is the great discovery of Dr. Kilmer, the eminent kidney and bladder specialist. Hospitals use it with wonderful success in both slight and severe cases. Doctors recommend it to their patients and use it in their own families, because they recognize in Swamp-Root the greatest and most successful remedy.

To Prove What SWAMP-ROOT, the Great Kidney, Liver and Bladder Remedy, Will do for YOU, Every Reader of "CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE" May Have a Sample Bottle Absolutely Free by Mail.

If you have the slightest symptom of kidney or bladder trouble, or if there is a trace of it in your family history, send at once to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., who will gladly send you free by mail, immediately, without cost to you, a sample bottle of Swamp-Root and a book of wonderful Swamp-Root testimonials. Be sure to say that you read this generous offer in the NEW ORLEANS "CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE."

If you are already convinced that Swamp-Root is what you need, you can purchase the regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles at the drug stores. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Old Aunt Chloe.

"O, mama! what do you think our teacher said to-day? Now sit down and let me tell you." With this Ruby Ray caught her mother's hand, forcing her to sit on a big, old-fashioned sofa.

"Well, catch your breath; do not talk so fast, and let mother hear what her little girl has to say."

Ruby became very serious. "Now, mama," she said, slowly. "Miss Banks says that every member of the class ought to be useful, or to make somebody happy every day. Now, don't you know that I am too little to do any such thing? Look at my hands. They are not big enough to work." And she stretched wide her chubby fingers that were, indeed, too small to do very much work.

"My child," said mama, smiling, "there are many ways in which you may make others happy. It is not necessary to work with your hands. You may say one little word of love or encouragement. Now, I saw you assist old Mrs. Hooper down the steps and open the gate for her. That was an act of helpful kindness, though at the time you did not know. Now, my dear, try to watch every chance like that, and at the close of the day you can feel happy, knowing that you have not lived entirely for your own pleasure."

"O, mama, I am so glad that you have told me. Now, I am going to start right away to see how many people I can help."

Just at this moment the door opened, and two of Ruby's favorite playmates came in.

"Come, Ruby, we are going down to the meadow to gather violets. Just back of old Aunt Chloe's cabin the woods are blue and white with them; so hurry, get your basket and come."

"Yes, you may go, my dear," mama said, as Ruby, with an appealing look, raised her soft brown eyes to her mother.

So off they scampered like so many hungry little birds who saw a field of grain in view.

"Hush, now," said Lula, the largest girl in the crowd. "There's old Aunt Chloe at her door with that tiresome, ugly quilt. She'll be calling us to thread her needle, as she always does. Now, run just as fast as you can. Yes, she's calling. Let's pretend we don't hear."

"Come, honey," the old woman cried, in a weak, thin voice; "one of you come and thread old Aunt Chloe's needle, so she kin sew. Won't you please come, young misses? One of you, come."

But the poor old negress called in vain. There she sat in her cabin door, looking like a last year's fig that's left on the stem all shriveled and brown.

The children were too impatient to fill their baskets to think anything more of the old woman and her needle—all save Ruby, whose conscience told her that she had lost an opportunity to do good. She tried to forget; but even the violets that grew under her feet like beautiful, soft, sapphire carpets—even they, with their little flower faces peering up gladly at her through their bed of leaves, could not put from her mind the old bent form of Aunt Chloe making an effort to thread her needle.

Suddenly Ruby put down her basket, and ran as fast as her feet would carry her back to the cabin. "Here I am, Aunt Chloe, ready to thread your needles, just as many as you want." With this Ruby took from the trembling hand the thread and needle, and soon handed the threaded needle to the grateful old woman.

"God bless you, honey! Aunt Chloe gwine to pray for you so long as she lib. Yes, honey, you dunno how happy you dun make me."

Ruby's heart bounded with joy. "O, I am so glad that I came back," she said. "Aunt Chloe, I will come every day, and I will bring you enough needles to last until you finish your quilt."

With this promise she bounded away, and even the violets seemed to smile back at her, and everything was beautiful because her heart was glad, and her conscience told her that she had made a poor, lonely old creature happy through her unselfishness.—The Children's Visitor.

The Rubber Gloves.

There is nothing more innocent-looking than a charged electric wire, but few things are more dangerous. The other morning I saw a lamp-tender stop at a corner of the street and let down the globe which holds the electric lamp. He looked at it, but he did not touch it until he had taken a pair of rubber gloves out of his pocket and put them on.

Then I remembered that a workman in that same city, coming in the early morning to replace the carbons of the lamps, had been killed by the discharge of electricity remaining in the wires after the current had been shut off at the power-house. He forgot the possible danger; he neglected the assured means of safety; and he paid the penalty with forfeit of his life.

It made me think of possible remainders of peril in the surroundings of temptations which we imagine we have wholly overcome. We all know that the smell of wine excites the sleeping alcoholic appetite. We may think that we are proof against the temptation to speak evil of our neighbor; but, if we get into the circle of gossip and backbiting, we may find our sleeping appetite for malicious sarcasm reawaken. We may think that sensuality is dead, but the touch of an impure book or word or play will start it back to fearful life. We may have armed ourselves against unrighteous anger, but a moment's lack of vigilance in the face of some small provocation may give room for a storm of bitterness which we shall long repent.

We are sent into a world of temptations; and our business, like the lamp-tender's, requires us to handle matters in which a remnant of temptation may be found. Our only chance is never to touch the world without putting on the non conducting gloves of prayer. If, standing at our side, and knowing that we grow by overcoming, God does not at once and wholly answer when we pray, "Lead us not into temptation," he will surely answer when we add, "Deliver us from evil." And, as the prudent lamp-tender puts on gloves for every lamp he handles, we must protect ourselves by prayer in every new experience, not knowing where the remainder of temptation's power may lurk.—Rev. Isaac Ogden Rankin, in Christian Endeavor World.

A Promising Boy.

"A new boy came into our office to-day," said a merchant to his wife. "He was hired by the firm at the request of the senior member, who thought the boy gave promise of good things. But I feel sure he will be out of the office in less than a week."

"What makes you think so?"

"Because the first thing he wanted to know was just exactly how much he was expected to do."

Three days later the business man said to his wife: "About that boy I mentioned to you three or four days ago. Well, he is the best boy we have ever had in the office."

"How did you find that out?"

"The first morning after the boy began work he performed faithfully and systematically the exact duties assigned, which he had been so careful to have explained to him. When he had finished he came to me, and said: 'Mr. H——, I have finished all that work. Now what can I do?'

"I was a little surprised, but I gave him a small job of work and forgot all about him until he came to my room with the question: 'What next?' That settled him for me. He was the first boy who ever entered our office who volunteered to do more than the work assigned him. I predict a successful career for that boy as a business man."—The Epworth Era.

It happened in a remote country district that a fine parrot escaped from his cage and settled on the roof of a simple laborer's cottage. When it had been there a little time the laborer caught sight of it. He had never seen such a thing before; and after gazing in admiration at the bird with its curious beak and beautiful plumage, he fetched a ladder and climbed up it with a view of securing a great prize. When his head reached the level of the top of the roof, the parrot flopped a wing at him, and said, "What d'ye want?" Very much taken aback, the laborer politely touched his cap, and replied, "I beg your pardon, sir; I thought you were a bird!"—Evangelist.

A HELPING FUND.

We have many calls to send the ADVOCATE to poor, aged persons at a reduced rate. This we always do. Are there not many persons, well-to-do in this world's goods, who will send us money—any sum they may see fit to give—to supply the ADVOCATE to persons who would like to have it, but are unable to pay anything? We will gladly send it to such for one dollar a year. We hope to get many responses to this appeal. Let those who respond designate the names of those to whom they desire the paper sent, or give the money to their pastors, and let them send the names. If names are not sent, the editor will do the best he can. Who will first respond?

Mrs. MARTHA ANN CASE was born in Boyle county, K., Feb. 2, 1824, and died April 22, 1902, in Waynesboro, Miss., at the residence of her son-in-law, Rev. C. F. Emery. On her paternal side she was related to Presidents James Madison and Zachary Taylor, who were her second cousins. In 1849 she was married to the late Dr. D. C. Case, of New Madrid Mo., who moved his family to New Orleans in 1865, where they resided until 1878, when they moved to Ocean Springs, Miss., where he died in 1886. To this devoted couple were born three children, two of whom survive: Mrs. Mamie J. Emery, wife of Rev. C. F. Emery, of the Mississippi Conference, and Mrs. Fannie S. Leftwich, wife of Mr. J. B. Leftwich, of Mobile, Ala. In early youth she joined the Christian Church, but afterwards united with the M. E. Church, South, of which she was a devout and consistent member to the time of her death. It was my great pleasure to have known her quite intimately for upwards of a score of years. It was also my sad privilege, in accordance with her expressed wish a few days before her death, to conduct her funeral service at Ocean Springs, assisted by Revs. J. G. Galloway and O. Switzer, where she was laid to rest by the side of her husband, son, and little grandson. Hers was a symmetrical character. Never have I known anyone in whose life all the fruits of the Spirit were as nearly ripened as in hers. Sorely tried by bereavement and by heressing litigation growing out of the settlement of her husband's estate, yet, like Job, she maintained the integrity of her faith in God. Never have I heard her speak unkindly of any person. In her attendance upon the public ministry of the Word, as well as in her private devotions, she was a model of excellence. Her inseparable companions during all the years that I have known her were the Bible, the hymn book, and "The Golden Censer." The evening of her last Sabbath on earth was passed in singing several of the old hymns she loved so well. She enjoyed exceptionally good health up to within three years ago; but she did not need the timely warning of the physician in order to set her house in order. She had long been prepared to greet the Master at his coming. During the prayerful slumber on Sunday night preparations began for her translation. There was no struggle, no suffering, but gently her spirit took its departure in the presence of her two daughters whom she loved so dearly. As she was in life, so she was beautiful in death. Hers was a finished, completed life, prolonged nearly ten years beyond the allotted period of threescore years and ten. Her life has been such as Peter describes, whose ornament was that of a meek and quiet spirit, which is in the sight of God of great price. Her labors have ceased and her works do follow her. May He who comforted her also comfort those she loved!

C. F. EMERY.

Mr. C. H. FARRIS was born Aug. 12, 1839, and fell on sleep at his home near Bienai, Miss., March 23, 1902. Our brother had grown feeble under the weight of many years; hence his last illness, though painful at times, found him resigned and ready to depart at God's will. He found liberty in Christ by faith before he attained his majority, and at once joined the Cumberland Presbyterian Church, which he served faithfully nearly all his life; but, owing to death, removals, and the like, his church, old Mount Joy, declined and disbanded, when he united with his brethren of the M. E. Church, South, at Bienai, Miss. His body was laid to rest in Camp Ground burial-place, in the presence of his sorrowing family and many friends, with appropriate services conducted by the writer, assisted by Rev. W. C. Carlisle. Many are the testimonials to his life of usefulness and consecration, as also his unassuming manner and humble spirit. A piece of manuscript found in his much-used Bible shows his reflective and pious frame of mind. On Sabbath morning of the last day of September, 1900, he writes: "Oh, how beautiful the day!" "See the falling leaf, the cool breeze, and the blue sky." "The decay of nature reminds me of my death." "I, too, may have crossed over Jordan before one more year has rolled around." "Oh, may I die the death of the righteous; may my last days be like his!" This privilege, thus craved in his early manhood, was secured more than forty years later, for after a life of righteousness he passed on with a clear prospect of heaven. May God bless his sorrowing wife and children, and save them all in heaven!

BEN F. JACO.

Boonsville, Miss.

Mrs. HETTIE JACKSON FOOSE was born in Kosciusko, Miss., Jan. 7, 1853; was married to Rev. D. N. Foose in December, 1870, and died on March 21, 1902. The above dates are the prominent calendar record of a remarkably gracious and gifted life. From early childhood she exhibited the traits of character which made her so widely loved and her memory so tenderly revered. In the school life she won the love of all the schoolmates by the sunshine and cheer of her life, and an old preceptor said of her, "Her personality impressed me as seldom I was ever impressed during the years of my teaching." At the age of fifteen she was happily converted, and joined the Methodist Church in a meeting conducted by Bishop C. B. Galloway (then Dr. Galloway). She was the first of a large family to join the Methodist Church, and by her strong personality and abiding devotion she led the family into the church of her choice. From the date of her conversion she was an active Christian, and the fruit of her childhood devotion still abides in the community in which she spent her life. In her family she was at her best. There her patience, her fortitude, her intelligence, her indomitable energy, her exalted ideals, bore their perfect fruit, and the impress of her life upon her children will bear fruit in the years to come. But the strong character was crystallized by twenty years of lobby suffering. A greater sufferer I never knew and yet a word of impatience I never heard, nor look of weariness did I ever see on her face. Her personal pain was forgotten in her plans and purposes for the happiness and good of others. Her life was spent on the field of battle. Every day an engagement, a struggle for the development and education of her children, for the accomplishment of her mission in the world, and for the fulfillment of the daily purpose to help some one in the struggle of life. All of this accomplished in spite of constant pain. If her life was a victory, her death was a triumph. During the last days of her life in New Orleans, whither she had gone for treatment, she found daily comfort in the songs of the church and the prayers of loved ones and ministers (Dr. LaPrade and Dr. Drake). She loved that song, "Never alone," because it was an expression of her own joyous experience. A stranger, yet a friend of those last days, writes of her fortitude and patience in those weeks of suffering, and says: "It was a blessed privilege to minister to one so angelic as she, and often, by her bedside, I would feel as if Christ and the holy angels were near, and even now, when I go into the room where she died, there is a feeling in my heart that I am in a sacred, holy place." Her whole experience can be written in the word, "Victory." God will comfort the stricken family, and I believe her prayer will be answered, and they will all meet her in heaven.

J. C. PARK.

Winona, Miss.

SIMMIE GROVER MYERS, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Myers, was born Feb. 13, 1885, and died at the home of his parents, near Pulaski, Miss., Jan. 4, 1902. The tragic ending of Sim's young life was a shock to the entire community. In company with a younger brother, he was hauling wood, when the mules became frightened, and he was thrown from the wagon and mangled beneath the wheels. He lived only a few hours afterwards. Loving hands bore him a few hundred yards back to the home, but it was soon evidenced that he could not live. He said himself that his time had come, and that he was ready to go. As we stood by his bedside and watched his life quietly ebb, we wondered why one so young and promising should be suddenly snatched away, but we leave He solving to the time when He shall make all things manifest. Sim was a member of the Methodist Church, and a favorite of the entire community. He was a good, obedient boy, and left several tokens of his faith in Christ. May the God of all grace comfort the broken-hearted loved ones!

JNO. D. ELLIS.

WILLIS MARION VINCENT died at his home near Cole, La., April 9, 1902. He was born in Calcasieu parish, La., Aug. 4, 1867; married to Miss Jane Brown, Feb. 10, 1897. To them were born three bright jewels, on whom the father cherished fond hopes. Bro. Vincent, though a victim to illness for some months before death, bore it patiently, awaiting the moment when pain would cease. It was the privilege of the writer to baptize and receive him into full connection with the church. His Christian race was a short one here, but took up his crown in glory. He gave commendment concerning his bones—that they be laid in the church cemetery; and there we left him to await the last call. May the God of mercies bless his sorrowing family!

Deafness Can Not Be Cured

by local applications, as they can not reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed, you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that can not be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

We Have It at Last

For many years we have been trying to get a Bible containing exactly the features which, to our mind, would constitute as nearly as possible especially for the use of preachers and teachers. We have contracted for a large number of a Bible which we believe to be the nearest to a perfect book we have ever seen. It contains the AUTHORIZED VERSION, DICTIONARY OF PROPER NAMES, SUBJECT INDEX, CONCORDANCE, AND MAPS. The type is long primer, self-pronouncing. It is 6x8½ inches, and only 1 inch thick. Bound in the best levant morocco, divinity circuit (overlapping edges), calf lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges. By reason of the large number contracted for we are selling this splendid Bible at only a little more than half its regular price.

A Perfect Bible

Our Price, Only $5.00

Postage 20 cents additional, if mailed.

REV WALKER'S

FAMOUS DYSPEPSIA CURE.

Famous for Glorious Achievements.

The recognized unfailing scientific Cure for Dyspepsia, Nervous Indigestion, Constipation, Acidity, and Bilious ohe. Relief in one minute, with first dose; quickly effects a permanent Cure. Never fails. Neutralizes and eradicates dyspepsia poison. An absolute specific. Very palatable, perfectly harmless, as gentle as nature in effect. Neglected Dyspepsia and Indigestion produce "Bright's Disease," undermines the vita organs, overthrows the mental faculties, producing insanity and death.

Mr. J. G. Thompson, Ancioto, Fla., voluntarily writes "I suffered agonies from Dyspepsia. Walker's Famous Dyspepsia Cure quickly cured me. I gained 14 pounds in one month. My friends are astonished at my quick recovery. A wonderful medicine."

Mr Leroy Turner, Sparta, Ga., "I could scarcely eat anything; two doses completely relieved me."

ADVOCATE OFFER.

Magic White Soap, advertised in our columns, is manufactured in New Orleans by a responsible company, who can be relied on to do what is promised. The soap is what is claimed for it. There is none better on the market. A fair trial has been given it at the home of the editor, and the good wife, who knows what soap is, says "it is about the best she ever used." Our lady readers would do well to give this soap a trial. Send for a box of twenty bars—one dollar; charges paid by the manufacturer.

We make the following offer: We will furnish one box of this soap, and the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for one year, for $2.50, to new subscribers. We make the same offer to all who will pay up back dues, and send $2.50 additional. Cash must accompany the order. Address

JNO. W. BOSWELL,
512 Camp St., New Orleans.

An Appeal to Our Friends.

We make a special appeal to our friends who owe us on subscription to send us the amount due. We need the money. The amount each one owes is small, but the aggregate amounts to hundreds of dollars. Our friends must see that it is embarrassing to us to withhold the money. Please look at the label on your paper, and if you are behind, send us the amount due. We will greatly appreciate it.

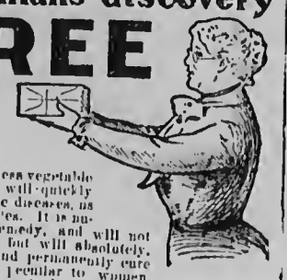
A woman's discovery FREE



By many years of constant study and experiments, I have perfected a simple, harmless vegetable remedy that will quickly cure all female diseases, as well as the piles. It is nature's own remedy, and will not only relieve, but will absolutely, thoroughly and permanently cure the ailments peculiar to women, such as falling of the womb, leucorrhea (whites), displacements, ulceration, granulation, painful or scanty periods, irregular menstruation, and all the pelvic ills of women. It positively cures rectal ulcers, piles, hemorrhoids, tumors, itching, blind or bleeding piles in either sex. It cures promptly, privately and permanently without the repugnant methods in general use by physicians. You can escape embarrassing examinations, avoid humiliating exposures, cheat the surgeon's knife out of baptism in your blood.

The treatment is so simple, mild and effectual that it will not interfere with your work or occupation. Thousands and thousands of letters are being received from grateful persons from all parts of the world who have been cured by the use of this remedy. The first package is free, send for it—send to day. I know that a fair trial of it will result in your becoming its enthusiastic advocate and friend. With it I will send literature of interest and value. Do not neglect this opportunity to get cured yourself, and be in a position to advise ailing friends.

Consider well the above offer and act upon it at once. It is made in the sincere hope of aiding you and spreading the knowledge of a beneficent boon to sufferers. Earnestly, hopefully, faithfully, MRS. CORA B MILLAR, 370 Comstock Bldg. Kokomo, Ind.

Several chapters of the world's history were concluded last week. The most important in Europe was the acceptance by the Boers of King Edward's peace proposals, which ended the bloody and otherwise costly war in South Africa. The most important in the United States, politically considered, was the close of the long and tedious debate in the Senate over the Philippines. Mr. Spooner began a speech on the subject on the twenty ninth of May, continued it the next day, and occupied five hours of the thirty-first in closing. The nature of the measure we do not fully understand. Our readers, many of them, are doubtless informed. The measure, whatever it is, of course will shape the conduct of the administration in governing the islands, and will, perhaps, be an issue in the next presidential campaign. Another matter of great importance to the people of our country is the prosecution of the Beef Trust.— We can not say that this chapter has closed. It is possibly at the beginning of the end. How the prosecution will terminate, no one can tell. The latest news is that the Trust "is weakening." But whether breaking down with its own weight, or unnerved by the accumulation of testimony, has not transpired. Nothing more outrageous in the time of profound peace, and quiet in the commercial world, was ever perpetrated than this effort of millionaire packers to squeeze the poor people of this land. They ought to be brought to justice. But we have no idea that it will be done. They may be convicted, but no law has sufficient penalty to meet the demands of the case.

A special to the Times-Democrat, of this city, contains the following item from Washington in regard to quarantine in Cuba: "Before Gen. Wood left Cuba he made arrangements with the local authorities by which the efficient system of quarantine that was established by the Americans should be maintained. The Cubans bought all the property connected with the quarantine stations, as equipped by the United States officials, paying for the same from the funds of the island. Arraugements have also been made by which officers of the United States Marine Hospital service will continue supervision of the work that was inaugurated by them. Such vessels arriving at Havana, as may be turned over to our surgeons, will be disinfected, for which a reasonable fee will be charged; and all vessels leaving for the United States must have bills of health signed by the United States officers. The disinfecting steamer 'Senator' will be kept at Havana for purposes of disinfection. At each of the ports of Matanzas, Nuevitas, Santiago and Cienfuegos an American officer will be established to superintend the quarantine work. Disinfecting property at these ports will be available for the use of our officers in the disinfection of vessels bound for the United States. It is required that the Cuban Government maintain these disinfecting barges in a state of efficiency at all times."

There was great rejoicing on Sunday last in London, and throughout all England, on account of the news of peace from South Africa. Lord Kitchener telegraphed that on the evening of May 31 the Boer representatives signed the terms of surrender which put an end to the war. The announcement had been anticipated for several days, but its receipt Sunday afternoon took the nation by surprise, as everybody had confidently believed that the House of Commons would hear the first news. King Edward was exceedingly anxious that the war should terminate before his coronation (June 26), and immediately after learning the news announced his "infinite satisfaction," and wish that peace might "speedily be followed by the restoration of prosperity in his new domains." The terms of the surrender were not made known by Lord Kitchener. This fact is taken by some to signify that the terms are not altogether such as the English authorities desired and expected. In other words, the supposition is, that the Boers have secured better terms than have heretofore been offered them. Of course, they have not received independence, but they have possibly "secured a measure of liberty and autonomy that will admit of their conduct of their own affairs." We dare say they deserve far more than they have gained.

The Clearing-House of New Orleans reports that for the month of May the banks handled clearings of $55,620,182, as compared with $48,395,608 for the corresponding month of 1901—an increase of $7,224,574, or 15 per cent. For the previous month the clearings were $56,115,366, as against $48,324,462—an increase of $7,790,904. This makes a total increase in the banking business for the two months of nearly 16 per cent., and is most encouraging. Last year the Spring and Summer business of New Orleans showed a great improvement over anything previously known here, and what was called the dull season became exceptionally active. Our present experience is even better, for there is the handsome increase of 16 per cent. over the good business of last Summer. It would seem from this that the dull season of New Orleans is rapidly disappearing.—Times-Democrat.

MY FIRST GENERAL CONFERENCE.

BY REV. S. S. KEENER, D. D.

At St. Louis in 1890, as a spectator, the General Conference was viewed by the writer; but at Dallas, as a participant, it was studied. The glory of a General Conference is in what it does not accomplish—that is, in the radical legislation which is proposed that fails of enactment, and the candidates which have a good large following who do not secure quite enough votes to be elected. There are many hair-breadth escapes for the church from hurtful legislation and ambitious men who turn every way to secure votes for certain offices in the gift of the General Conference.

There was, of course, some wise legislation enacted at the last Conference, as at each former one, or else the very usefulness of this quadrennial meeting would become questionable; but there was other legislation which seemed questionable, if not the opposite of wise; some that will call for the preventing hand of Providence to over-rule and adjust, so as to save the church from its hurtful influence. A conscientious member of that body is a hard-worked man, listening, meeting committees, guarding against what, to him, are hurtful innovations in the laws of the church, and trying to secure modifications of certain laws which seem sure to pass, and are beneficial and wise legislation. All this seems to be easy, but it is arduous work; so that, when the adjournment comes, one is weary in the extreme. There is not much time for religious enjoyment, for all is work, worry, anxiety, prayer for escapes from certain radical leaders who seem to have the ear of the Conference and control of the majority. It looks easy to speak in this legislative body, to one from the outside, but, having secured the floor after many attempts, the speaker has to take a firm grip on himself to keep from being rattled and forget everything he thought he had to say. The thing is anything but simple and easy. Happy is the man who pulls through without losing his opportunity through stage fright, or something akin to it. Then pushing through a resolution seems just like second nature. It is written, read with stentorian voice by the secretary, then put to the Conference for discussion, then finally the vote taken on it, and, lo! the man who offers it with maybe ten, or more, votes in favor of it, and the great majority vote against it with a savage delight; snowed under so far you feel like you need a railroad snow-shovel to dig you out; the blood rushes to your face, and you wonder if anyone is seeing it, while your devoted fellow-delegate punches you in the side, and gently laughs at your discomfiture and defeat. It makes one feel an humbler, if not wiser, member. Many go down under one such defeat never to rise again, feeling this General Conference can not appreciate a good thing when they see it. In fact, squelching many very smart and capable men is the fine art of this body. It is done so effectually and thoroughly that it commands your admiration all the way through. When one does speak, that awful stenographer gets everything down, and your speech goes to the printer without any possibility of being edited or corrected by yourself, and the next day you read your repetitions of thought and word with chagrin, if not shame, and you would like to choke the official for making you say such a speech. The finest speeches a man has are those he would have uttered when he failed to get the floor.

The saddest spectacle of the Conference is the funereal expression that comes over the countenances of those who came expecting to be elected Bishops, or to some other connectional office. They look as if they would never smile again. They need not wear as frontlets, "Episcopos mortuus est," for they have stamped indelibly upon their countenances how disappointing the vote has been. One dearly beloved had already considered where he should pitch his episcopal residence, and, lo! when the vote was counted there was only a score who were guilty of his own illusion. That circle of ancient formation named A. O. D. C. (Ancient Order of Defeated Candidates) had a large increase in membership. The night after the elections the writer got some of these dear brethren together, and had them initiated. No man was eligible but he who had been voted for, but defeated signally. One dear brother thought our humorous array in a circle of the slain was like laughing at a funeral. It relieved the tension of the situation with some. One delegate who had much wit said he needed about six votes for Bishop, for it would help him domestically and make him solid at home. He, alas! only got one; but when the secretary for the League Board came up he received more than a score; so he retrieved his fortunes, and went home assured he was solid. The only office that was suggested for the writer was for him to be made Father Superior to a Deaconess Home, with the editor of the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE as chief housekeeper. One secretary came near being defeated, but a friend rushed around and rounded up enough votes by the next ballot to save him from ejection. Nothing like having strong friends.

It was a memorable Conference, which will live in the history of the church, proving that all the conscience of the church does not abide in three or four Conferences, which, for four long years, have been agitating the church over the War Claim; also proving that it could not be used as a stalking-horse to ride into office.

The officers elected were generally satisfactory, and, no doubt, will fill their offices worthily and well. The two who were elevated to the bishopric will fill that office well, and the stock has not been watered by their elevation, but given strength. One was from the pastorate, in full sympathy with the rank and file of our itinerancy; the other, though long in the editorship, yet so broad and strong in his true itinerant spirit that he is still in most perfect touch with all our great system as a church.

Some legislation was so complicated that it seems doomed to be repealed at the next General Conference, in regard to our local preachers, and other legislation that was seemingly quite popular, which will drag along for a decade before it can be made effective, if even at that late date. Many of us were frequently and largely in the minority, but it was always beautiful to see how gracefully we went down with our flags nailed to the mast.

The point-of-order man was very much in evidence. He is the relentless pest of the man who has a speech boiling over in him; a sort of yellow-jacket nest that flares up right in the heat of an eloquent introduction or crowning peroration. You want to stamp him out, but you must deal patiently with him, lest he knocks your points in smithereens, and your speech proves utterly futile. Watch that hole where he comes from and keep your distance, always holding your mind on the speech to be made, in spite of this intolerable pest, who would down you by indirect methods rather than arguments true and strong in open debate.

The biggest man at home in his native city, or on his heath, seems to shrink up mighty bad in a General Conference, so that he is no longer profound in his parts or colossal in his proportions as a speaker. The number of silent candidates at a General Conference is something amazing; all looking expectant, and careful in speech and deportment, till that fatal day when the last officer has been duly elected and certified to; then there is a spontaneous naturalness springs up in these aforesaid expectant brethren. The writer was happy in the thought that he expected nothing, and returned without any disappointment on that score, and he had the lesson of being voted down several times, which shall have its usual effect of proving that he is merely a high private.

THE WAR CLAIM.

The following paper, which we quote, is the action of the late General Conference concerning the War Claim:

Whereas, The M. E. Church, South, had a just and valid claim against the United States Government for the use and abuse of property connected with the Publishing House at Nashville, Tenn., during the war between the States, which said claim was for a much larger sum, but after many years of effort to secure the payment thereof, the sum of $288,000 was accepted by representatives of the church in full settlement of all demands for loss of and damage to said property; and,

Whereas, It was charged by certain members of the Senate of the United States that in connection with the passage through Congress of a bill for payment for said claim, misleading statements were made to them by representatives of the church regarding the amount of fees which were to be paid for prosecuting said claim before Congress; and,

Whereas, An investigating committee of the United States Senate, after a full review of all the facts, concluded its report with the statement that "the church has been injured by the misconduct of its agents, but for such misconduct it (the church) is held entirely blameless;" and,

Whereas, The college of Bishops, acting for the church, transmitted a letter to the Vice-President of the United States, as the presiding officer of the Senate, containing the following tender:

"While reaffirming the justness of our claim, payment of which has been sought for twenty-five years, we insist that the church can not afford to accept it as a gratuity, or on conditions that reflect upon its honor. Inasmuch, therefore, as some Senators have affirmed on the floor of the Senate that they were induced to support the claim by misleading statements on the part of the representatives of the church—statements, however, which did not affect the merits of our claim—we hereby give this assurance: That if the Senate, by affirmative action, declares that the passage of the bill was due to such misleading statements, we will take the proper steps to have the entire amount returned to the government.

"ROBT. K. HARGROVE,

"Sec. of the College of Bishops."

And, whereas, This communication being referred to the Senate Committee on Claims, said committee reported that "misstatements and concealments" of the representatives of the church "affected only the beneficiaries of the fund, and not the United States, and the Senate should take no further action in the matter," and a resolution reciting these facts was on Feb. 21, 1899, adopted by the Senate of the United States without a dissenting voice; and,

Whereas, Upon additional communication, a letter was written to Bishop Candler, signed by and concurred in by seventy-nine Senators, including a majority of the Senators who had voted on this question, concerning the offer to repay the money realized from said claim, to the following effect:

"The resolution adopted by the Senate was a distinct reply to that offer, declining to recognize the repayment by the church of this money to the government. In view of this record, we are unable to see upon what ground there can be based the contention that the church should make a second offer and invoke a second refusal from the government, or any department thereof. The report of the committee and the resolution, both adopted by the Senate, in explicit terms exonerate the church from all blame or ground of criticism for anything which occurred in connection with the passage of the bill, and is a clear expression of opinion that there is no obligation on the part of the church to repay the money to the government, or to make further offer to do so;" therefore,

Resolved, 1. By the General Conference of the M. E. Church, South, now assembled, that the church distinctly repudiates all the acts of concealment, misstatement or unfairness on the part of any and all persons representing the church in the prosecution of this claim before Congress, either intentional or otherwise, and whether the same did, or did not, affect the vote or opinion of any Senator or representative.

2. That we indorse the purpose of our Bishops in their communication to the United States Senate, and do hereby ratify and confirm their conditional tender of the money, and make their action the act of this General Conference, and declarative of the mind of the church, and that this action be entered on the Journal of the General Conference as a final disposition of the whole matter.

From the General Secretary of the Epworth League.

To the Epworth Leaguers of the M. E. Church, South, Greetings—

DEAR FELLOW-WORKERS: The General Conference, at its late sitting in Dallas, sought by appropriate legislation to put the Epworth League on a self-supporting basis. The Era, the official organ of the League, was ordered to be published by the Book Agents, as heretofore. They were also ordered to pay the editor's salary. But all other expenses of the central office, and means for extending the work in the field, are left to be provided for by the Leagues themselves. To enable the League Board to raise a revenue for this purpose, the General Conference passed the following order, viz.: "The Epworth League Board shall have power to levy on local League Chapters an assessment not to exceed ten cents per member for each fiscal year of the quadrennium." In accordance with this order, the League Board, at a called meeting held in Dallas, May 24, last, instructed the General Secretary to issue an immediate call to the Leagues for this assessment. Reports began to come in as soon as the action of the Conference was made public. The coveted opportunity of our great organization to show its mettle and spirit is now squarely presented. Our motto, "All for Christ," includes the duty of approving ourselves to our own consciences, and of making good the faith we have in our task. The destiny of the League is now committed to its own hands.

We beg to add that the true key to our success lies in this effort at self-support, and in the increased circulation of the Epworth Era. The Era has been placed by the church beyond the peril of suspension or hurt; it is to live. Give us at once five thousand new subscriptions. To do so will mean enlargement and victory.

Very faithfully yours in the work,
H. M. DUBOSE, Gen. Sec.

It is very remarkable that God, who giveth plenteously to all creatures . . . yet in the distribution of our time seems to be strict-handed and gives it to us, not as nature gives us rivers, enough to drown us, but drop by drop, minute after minute, so that we can never have two minutes together but he takes away one when he gives up another. This should teach us to value our time, since God so values it, and by his small distribution of it, tells us it is the most precious thing we have.—Bishop Jeremy Taylor.

BY AN ITINERANT.

SECTION IV.

The identity of the Jewish and Christian churches is made still more distinct by some New Testament illustrations, and several striking passages. For example, the Parable of the Vineyard. (Matt. xxi, 33–43.) Here, the vineyard evidently represents the church with all its holy privileges, both before and after the coming of Christ. The first-named husbandmen were the Jews, who were destroyed for their wicked treatment of Christ, who came as the heir, to receive fruit from the vineyard. The second-named husbandmen were the believing Gentiles. To these the vineyard was "let out," that they might render fruit to the owner in proper seasou. Two sets of husbandmen are spoken of, but there is but one vineyard. This we regard as a conclusive illustration of the identity of the church.

Very frequently our Antipedobaptist friends quote Isaiah lxv, 15, "For the Lord God shall slay thee, and call his servants by another name," in their endeavor to destroy the Jewish church. But, unfortunately for their attempt, the passage does not mean what they would have it to mean. The prophet does not say that God will slay the church, but that he will slay his servants, and call them by another name; and this is just what he did according to the parable given above. "They say unto him, He will miserably destroy those wicked men, and will let out his vineyard unto other husbandmen" (verse 41). And, indeed, his servants were called by another name, for the "disciples were called Christians first at Antioch."

The same truth, set forth in the parable of the vineyard, is expressed when Christ represents the church under the figure of a sheepfold. (John x.) Here, Christ calls himself the Good Shepherd, and gives to the Jews, the original members of this church, this distinct and conclusive information: "And other sheep I have, which are not of this fold; them also I must bring in, and they shall hear my voice; and there shall be one fold, and one Shepherd."

The illustration of the olive tree has been considered in connection with "the kingdom," and, therefore, we refer the reader to it there. Before the coming of Christ, the Gentiles were "aliens and strangers," but after the coming of Christ, they were called into the vineyard, into the fold, and now they are "fellow-citizens with the saints and household of God." Both are reconciled unto God, in "one body," and are "built on the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner-stone." These considerations show very clearly that while the church has been operating under two dispensations, it has been one and the same church, based upon one and the same covenant. And this covenant is essentially the gospel covenant. "The Scripture, foreseeing that God would justify the heathen through faith, preached before the gospel to Abraham." (Gal. iii, 8.) "For unto us was the gospel preached, as well as unto them." (Heb. iv, 2.) It follows from the foregoing that the church has been the same in all ages, and differing only in circumstances. The difference is chiefly in this. The Jewish church was limited to the Jewish nation, and its covenant was signified by circumcision, and the Passover; whereas, in the Christian church, the Gentiles were incorporated with the Jews, so that both became one body, and the same covenant that was made with Abraham was signified by baptism and the Lord's Supper.

SECTION V.

We come now to the Abrahamic covenant. It was a covenant of perpetual duration and perpetual obligation. It is usually called the covenant of grace. It is in these words: "And I will establish my covenant betwecu me and thee and thy seed after thee in their generations for an everlasting covenant; to be a God unto thee, and to thy seed after thee." (Gen. xvii, 7.)

This covenant embraced two things, having special reference to the spiritual state of Abraham, and his generations forever.

1. God promised to be their God. This implied more than temporal blessings. With these it implied higher and spiritual blessings. "As God hath said, I will dwell in them, and I will be their God, and they shall be my people." (II. Cor. vi, 16.) The expressions, "I will be their God," "and dwell in them," are indicative of spiritual union betweeu God and his children, and are so used throughout the Scriptures.

2. This covenant is called by St. Paul the covenant of promise, because God said to Abraham, in Gen. xxii, 18, "In thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed, because thou hast heard my voice." It did not, therefore, contemplate blessings to Abraham and his seed only. It had a much wider scope, even blessings in the posterity of Abraham, for all the nations of the earth.

But by what part of his posterity, and how shall all nations be blessed? To this question we record the answer of St. Paul: "Know ye, therefore, that they which are of faith, the same are the children of Abraham. And the Scriptures, foreseeing that God would justify the heathen through faith, preached before the gospel unto Abraham, saying, In thee shall all nations be blessed. So then, they which be of faith are blessed with faithful Abraham. . . . That the blessing of Abraham might come on the Gentiles through Jesus Christ; that we might receive the promise of the Spirit through faith. Brethren, I speak after the manner of men: Though it be but a man's covenant, yet if it be confirmed, no man disannuleth or addeth thereto. Now to Abraham and his seed were the promises made. He sayeth not, And to seeds, as of many but as one, And to thy seed which is Christ. And this I say, That the covenant, that was confirmed before of God in Christ, the law, which was four hundred and thirty years after, can not disannul, that it shall make the promise of none effect. For if the inheritance be of the law, it is no more of promise; but God gave it to Abraham by promise. Wherefore, then serveth the law? It was added because of transgressions, till the seed should come to whom the promise was made." (Gal. iii, 7–19.)

"The apostle here clearly distinguishes between the law given at Sinai and the covenant which was given four hundred and thirty years before, and shows that the law could not disannul, or abrogate, the covenant, because the covenant was of promise, and having been confirmed before the law was given, it must continue till the end of time; for its stipulations reach to the latest generation of men." In his Epistle to the Romans, Paul says: "For the promise, that he should be the heir of the world, was not to Abraham, or to his seed, through the law, but through the righteousness of faith. For if they which are of the law be heirs, faith is made void, and the promise made of none effect; because the law worketh wrath; for where no law is, there is no transgression. Therefore, it is of faith, that it might be by grace; to the end the promise might be sure to all the seed; not to that only which is of the law, but to that also which is of the faith of Abraham, who is the father of us all, as it is written, I have made thee a father of many nations." (Rom. iv, 13–17.) "A father of many nations have I made thee," is written in the covenant as recorded in Gen. xvii, 5. Because this covenant which God made with Abraham is the gospel covenant, is the only reason why Abraham, in any proper sense, is called the "father of us all."

Rev. W. M. Rush, D. D., says: "The covenant that God made with Abraham is never spoken of by any of the sacred writers, either in the Old Testament or in the New Testament, as having waxed old, or as being ready to pass away. It is true that in Heb. viii, 5–18, Paul does contrast two covenants, one of which has waxed old, and had passed away; but he tells us expressly that that old covenant was the one that God made with Moses when he took the children of Israel by the hand to lead them out of the land of Egypt. There is no reference whatever, in the entire passage, to the covenant that God made with Abraham. The apostle quotes Jeremiah. We turn to Jer. xxxi, 31–34, and find that the covenant that was to pass away was the covenant that God made with the children of Israel when he brought them up out of the land of Egypt. The fact is, Paul and Jeremiah are both contrasting the Mosaic and the Christian dispensations, the former of which having served its purpose, has waxed old and passed away. Both were instituted under the grand, glorious covenant that God made with Abraham." (Essay on Infant Baptism, page 16.)

The Apostle Paul illustrated this twofold idea of the covenant by the history of Abraham's family, in the "allegory," found in Galatians iv, 22–26: "For it is written that Abraham had two sons, the one by a bondmaid, the other by a free woman. But he who was of the bond woman was born after the flesh; but he of the free woman was by promise. Which things are an allegory: for these are the two covenants; the one from the Mount Sinai, which gendereth to bondage, which is Agar. For this Agar is Mount Sinai in Arabia, and answereth to Jerusalem which now is, and is in bondage with her children. But Jerusalem which is above is free, which is the mother of us all." The word "covenants" here means testaments, as in the margin. In this allegory the bond woman and her son are the types of the Mosaic covenant, which took up into its constitution the temporal promises to Abraham; for it is a covenant that proceeds from Sinai, which answereth to Jerusalem, which afterward became the metropolis of the nation organized under the covenant of Sinai. In other words, the bond woman represents the church under the law, while her son, born after the flesh, represents the literal descendants of Abraham, who constituted the membership of the church during the period of its bondage to the law of ceremonies. In like manner, the free woman and her son are types of the spiritual part of the covenant, or of the church under the gospel, which proceeded from Jerusalem, as the law did from Sinai. Jerusalem which is from above is the spiritual Zion, the church of God under the gospel, of which the free woman, Sarah, was the type, whose membership are children of promise, not literal descendants of Abraham, but his spiritual seed, typified by Isaac, the child of promise, born to Abraham by special dispensation of God. The apostle applies this illustration of the covenants of Moses and Abraham by saying, "Now we, brethren, as Isaac was, are children of promise." And again, "So then, brethren, we are not children of the bond woman, but of the free."

We have now shown conclusively that the church of God now in the world is the same church to which Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Moses and all the prophets belonged; and now we shall show that infants have a right to membership in it, and consequently are entitled to the ordinance of baptism.

A REMINISCENCE.

The varied experiences of his first appointment become to the young itinerant the alphabet of his subsequent education. Ours will be remembered whilst memory lasts. We were read out to our first appointment at the Vicksburg Conference in 1855. We had requested our presiding elder to give us the appointment of junior preacher, as we had entered the pulpit only once; but the judgment of the Cabinet was adverse, and great was our surprise when we were read out to a large circuit comprising eight appointments, and lying in a wealthy region. Ordinarily, this would have been considered a fine appointment, but not so now. Within a few preceding years it had seen two men fall from the pulpit as fell Lucifer from heaven, the last being our immediate predecessor. At the late Conference he had been tried for immoral conduct, and expelled from the church and Conference. This calamity we well knew always left a work disorganized and demoralized, and we feared our ability to resurrect the same; but having confidence in the appointing power and implicit faith in the good providence of God, we determined to move forward and do our duty. We went at once to the work, preaching our first sermon on the Sabbath preceding Christmas Day, spending the holidays among the brethren, forming acquaintances, and striving to ascertain the exact condition of the church. As soon as convenient, we traveled over the entire field, forming acquaintances in and out of the church. After taking a full survey we thought the prospect for the future extremely gloomy. The old members of the church were cordial and encouraging, the nominal members cold and reserved, whilst the world was absolutely wanting in the common amenities of life. Often the first question asked us after being introduced was, "Where were you raised?" Being told in a neighboring county, they seemed less suspicious. Our congregations for some time were small and uninteresting, but after a while we were invited to preach a funeral discourse at a church near the residence of our presiding elder. In order to be convenient to our appointment, we decided to spend with him the preceding Saturday night, and, to our regret, found him absent, but his good lady gave us a royal entertainment. When preparing for church next morning she approached us and said, "Will you allow me a seat in your buggy to church?" We replied, "With the greatest of pleasure." In a few minutes we seated her in the buggy, and started on foot to open the gate leading to the public road. She hailed us, urging us to get in the buggy. We assured her our horse was perfectly gentle, and that we felt like taking some foot exercise. Opening the gate, she passed into the road, and again stopped and urged us to take a seat in the buggy. We insisted that she should proceed, assuring her the church was near by, and we would be on hand in aiding her to alight. She drove off moodily, but on her arrival we were present to escort her to the church door. After service we again seated her in the buggy, and requested her to return, allowing us to walk. This she did, and we thought the while, had Punch been by the roadside with his daguerreian gallery, he could have caught a picture well calculated to excite the merriment of his facetious readers, the picture being the presiding elder's wife alone in the preacher's buggy, and the preacher behind splitting the dust like a body servant. On our arrival home she squarely demanded of us an explanation of our singular conduct. We well knew, when a lady's curiosity was thoroughly aroused, that it was as imperative in its demands as the robbers on the highway. Nevertheless, we strove to appease her by assurances of our good-will and respect, and finally told her the cause of our conduct had no connection in any way with her or her family, and that it was a profound secret known to none except ourselves, and please excuse us. But she was utterly irreconcilable; so we said to her: "My good sister, you know the condition of this work when we came to it; Zion's walls prostrated, Immanuel's colors trailing in the dust, and his cause at a discount in the community, and you know the cause. On surveying it when we first came to it, we could only compare it to some magnificent city beautiful for situation, swept by a devouring tempest. It has had our prayers and our tears and best efforts to rebuild it, and not long since we made a vow to the good Lord if he would enable us to regenerate the work, we would not be seen in a buggy with a lady during our pastorate." As we talked her countenance brightened, and when we finished she laughed heartily, congratulated us warmly, and urged us to perform our vow. We requested her to keep our secret, but she protested that she would tell the elder. Knowing him as we did, we feared publicity. Not long after this incident we found the elder had shot off our vow like a wireless telegram, and that it was spread all over the circuit. To our surprise we found its publicity had done us no harm; the community was more genial, the church more hopeful, and congregations gradually increasing. The protracted-meeting season coming on, we had fine congregations, and gave to each important appointment a series of services, with fruitful results.

On Saturday before the second Sunday in August we started a protracted meeting at —— village. Having no help, we had to preach two sermons a day for several days, inviting penitents each service and securing none. The only indication of interest discernible was an increase in the congregation each day. After a while two brethren came to our relief. We preached them at alternate hours, inviting penitents as before and securing none. This phase of the meeting continuing, the visiting brethren left us alone. We continued to preach two sermons a day with no other apparent effect than a constant increase in the congregation. On Friday eve the brethren, seeing the want of room, decided to omit service on Saturday, and build a bush arbor for the accommodation of the crowd they anticipated on Sunday. Sunday came, and with it the crowd. After an hour spent in prayer meeting we introduced the eleven o'clock service by reading our text, "Behold what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us, that we should be called the sons of God." As we read this a strange power came over us, and we began to tremble. With our watch before us, we preached just one hour; then invited penitents. The altar was filled at once. We introduced altar service, calling the church around us to instruct and encourage the penitents. In one hour the altar was cleared. We made a second call; the altar was filled at once. Altar service was resumed, and just in one hour the altar was cleared. We made a third call; again the altar was filled at once, and in one hour it was again cleared. We made a fourth call, but no one came. We saw reputed infidels in the congregation weeping like children, but no one came. We then opened the doors of the church, and sixty-three happy souls, all converted within the three preceding hours, came and united with the church. That altar that day became to many a happy soul the very vestibule of heaven. This was the richest harvest we ever saw garnered in so short a time. We accepted it then, as now, as a direct answer to prayers and vows.

OCTOGENARIAN.

THE GILT-EDGED VICE.

The vice of gambling may be considered a gilt-edged vice. We shall waste a good deal of time and a good deal of breath if we consider the circumference of this subject to apprehend only those who are guilty of gambling in its vulgarer forms. With this aspect of the question I have nothing now to do. The great trouble that almost paralyzes my hope of a beautiful development of the young people over whom I am now the pastor is to get them to understand that it is really gambling when, in a beautiful parlor, they engage in a game of progressive euchre or progressive whist, with a feather-tipped fan, a dainty bit of Japanese bric-a-brac, or, where the circumstances of the people will allow, a diamond pin as a prize. I insist upon it that whatever may be pleaded in defense of games of amusement or chance, so-called, as recreation pure and simple, just as soon as an objective is furnished—call it a prize, if you will, first, second, or third—that becomes really the stake, and what before might have been recreation, ceases to be such, and really becomes gambling. We are very largely the victims of words, and if we can palliate the offense of a man high in society, who has been drinking a little, by saying he is just tippling, we have, somehow or other, lessened the sensibility of the young person, in so far as the pernicious effects of alcoholics is concerned. If we were to say he was drunk, we should create a revulsion. And so in this matter, if, instead of allowing that men and women may be communicants in good standing, and maintain social leadership, while constantly giving card-parties, at which prizes are distributed "as an impulse to skill," and all the rest of it, if we were to say that they are gamblers, we should strike a key-note that would have a very wholesome effect. We must stop allowing ourselves to be hoodwinked in that sort of fashion.

The same relation that exists between tippling and drunkenness exists between progressive euchre for a prize and the vulgarer forms of gambling outside, and I have yet to find in my pastorate of nearly twenty-three years anybody who is expert or dexterous in the dealing of cards who is equally deft in the manipulation of the pages of the Divine Book, in order to find a passage that may comfort a soul. So I have found that those who are skillful on the waxed floor in tripping the light fantastic toe are never successful in treading the beaten path to the closet of prayer. Those who are prone to bend the elbow in raising to the lips the ruby wine seldom have a taste for draining the cup of salvation.

We want to insist upon it that whatever be the prize won in a contest of cards or other games of chance, it is a direct and flagrant violation of the Eighth Commandment, which declares, "Thou shalt not steal." If we can brand gambling in all its forms with a stigma of dishonesty, we shall get to where there will be daybreak, and quicken the moral sensibilities of our young people. We hope to see them saved from this growing vice.—Rev. R. H. Gilbert, D. D., in Ecumenical Conference.

Over in England, too, our Wesleyan friends are seeing the "Open Door" to which we are pointing our Methodist people in the present Emergency Missionary Campaign. The Methodist Recorder has a ringing editorial entitled, "'Advance!' or 'Halt!'—Which?" in which it says (and the words are so precisely applicable to our own situation that we would our readers would weigh them carefully):

"We have shown that a wholly new standard of service and sacrifice for this cause must be straightway adopted amongst us, if harvests that God has given us are to be reaped; if tasks that we have deliberately undertaken are to be carried forward; if we are not to suffer, before men and angels, the reproach of those that 'began to build, but were not able to finish.' Man's extremity is God's opportunity. Between the clamant 'Advance!' that is sounded from the field, and the grim 'Halt!' that the slow-hearted church mutters at home, the committee is straitly shut up between walls that offer no human possibility of escape. To halt now means the ignominy of retrenchment on the field; to advance means, according to all human calculation, the ignoring of growing debt at home. What hope have we but in God? What course is there for those to whose hearts the world's need appeals but to fall to prayer—prayer that God will so possess and move our church that Methodism shall at last get the world-horizon and the 'world-wide heart,' and shall apply its copious energies to the evangelization of the race?"—Western Christian Advocate.

HABITUAL MISCARRIAGE

(The Bane of Weakly Wives)

Is often the result of some uterine disease, but may cause still other womb derangements and bring on many ills and miseries. It deprives the woman of personal health as well as of her rightful heritage—the blessings of maternity. This serious condition can be overcome and prevented by the judicious use of G. F. P., which will heal and tone the parts concerned in maternity so that they will properly perform their intended functions.

"I was subject to habitual miscarriage and its attendant flooding and danger to life and health. I took two bottles of G. F. P. and now have a fine, healthy baby boy."—Mrs. Emma Shorter, Prospect, Tenn.

"Four bottles of G. F. P. cured my wife and now we have a fine baby boy."—Orville Rice, Garfield, Mo.

"I can recommend G. F. P. in the highest terms, for I am now the mother of a fine fifteen pound boy, my health is improved and I am much stronger."—Mrs. Annie Hill, Prairie Point, Miss.

G. F. P.—Gerstle's Female Panacea, cures irregular, scanty, too profuse and painful monthly periods, uterine and ovarian irritations; ulcers, displacements and falling of the womb; whites and all unnatural discharges; frigidity, barrenness and all impediments to maternity; also all associate ailments of the private organs of women. At all stages of menstrual life, from budding womanhood until after the changes that end special womanly functions, it is the best friend of and remedy for womankind. Its use strengthens all womanly organs, regulates and renders natural all sexual functions. It is sold at drug stores for $1.00 a bottle. Buy it, try it, and you will find these statements are true, for it is reliable and will not disappoint.

All ladies who are not perfectly right and well in a womanly way should write to the Ladies' Health Club, care of L. Gerstle & Co., Chattanooga, Tenn., for free medical advice and instruction.

About Gavels.

Three gavels were presented to the late General Conference: one from Georgia, one from the North, and one from a "beam" of the original Epworth Church in England. The latter was presented the last day of the session by an honored layman, a native of England. The one from the North, presented by Rev. J. D. Walsh, it was said, "is made of sixteen pieces of wood and one piece of silver, and had done duty at three General Conferences." The object in presenting this gavel was not stated, but as it had done duty in the General Conference of the M. E. Church, the presentation looked significant. On motion it was "laid on the table." The motion was made in the spirit of pleasantry, but we noticed that the gavel was never used.

There are eternal palaces reared for us. God himself hath built and furnished them. His own glorious presence is the light of them, and there he means that we should live forever as his blessed kings and priests. But to live and reign there we must labor and toil here. Day by day we must work. We must be ready for every duty as it comes. If we can do but little, that little must be done.—Southern Churchman.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL DEPARTMENT

Conducted by N. A. MOTT, Yazoo City, Miss.

To Whom All Communications for This Department Must Be Sent.

Letter from Japan.

DEAR MR. MOTT: It is with pleasure I respond to your request to write a little on a subject I am so deeply interested in. For ten years I have been almost constantly engaged in Sunday-school work in Japan. Here we must ever keep before us the fact that nearly all our pupils are from heathen homes. Either Shinto—where the spirits of the ancestors are worshiped—or Buddhist, where Shaka Sama, as Buddha is called here, is the object of worship. With such children one can take nothing for granted. The lesson must be simplified, and then simplified again. The very word "God" in Japanese is Kami Sama, which means any god, and they have hundreds, you know; so the word carries none of that reverence with which we are familiar. There is no doubt that the most important work—or, at least, one of the most important branches of our Christian work—is the Sunday-school. Great issues depend upon the energy and thoroughness and consecration which we put into our teaching.

I would like to tell you a little about our two Sunday-schools here in Nakatsu, and give you some idea of the kind of work we are trying to do. We have under our care about one hundred and fifty children, of all ages, from three years up to sixteen. We hold our Sunday-schools in Japanese buildings, and have no chairs, no tables, desks, or books. A curious Sunday-school, one might think, until you come in and see how we run our work out here in the East. Of course, you know that Japanese never use chairs, and their tables are only a foot high, when they have any. The floors are covered with thick, clean mats, and on these our pupils sit upon their feet, leaving their shoes or sandals outside the paper doors. Nothing could be ruder than to wear one's shoes in on the mats, and should you do so, you would never be asked to come again. In this way a small room can accommodate a great many people. As soon as our pupils come in, we hang up on the wall big scrolls of paper, on which great characters are written, and hung so all can see. These are our singing-books. I wish you could hear our children sing. They sing many songs familiar to those at home, "When he cometh," "Jesus loves me," etc., but all in a foreign tongue. Our little organ is a great help. After the prayer, to which the children all respond, "Amen," another song is sung, and then, at a signal, the children march out to their classes, and the paper doors are closed while the lessons are taught. After they reassemble, some one reviews the lesson, while later the Ten Commandments, the Lord's Prayer, Beatitudes, etc., are taught. We close with the Doxology and the Lord's Prayer. We use for rewards a little card-book, gotten up by one of our native preachers, in which the cards are pasted each Sunday by one of our helpers. No one can receive one of these booklets until he has attended four times. Many of the children come, carrying a younger brother or sister on their backs. We have four or five faithful teachers, and one of the means by which they have become so is a Sunday-school Teachers' Meeting, which we hold on Tuesday evening of each week. We are studying the same lessons you are, and have lesson helps, prepared in Japanese, for the use of our teachers. Until we opened this Teachers' Meeting, I was distressed over the poorly prepared lessons, and the consequent lack of interest on the part of the pupils. Now the teachers go to their classes full of the lesson, enthusiastic and animated, and the children listen from beginning to end with the keenest interest. If we can only get our teachers to thoroughly prepare their lessons, so that they can present the important points in the best possible manner, and in such a way that the children have a definite idea of something, instead of a jumble of facts without any special point! That is the trouble with much of our Sunday-school teaching. It is "pointless." If we can impress but one important truth, let us emphasize that, and let others go. Better one thing thoroughly learned than a half dozen only half understood. I suppose you have learned, as I have, that all people are not natural Sunday-school teachers. It takes much study, tact, consecration, and experience, to be a real success in that line. But we can all improve, and with all the helps we have now, I believe most of us ought to make pretty good teachers. If we do not, it is our own fault. Thorough knowledge of our subject, earnest study, with the help of that wisdom which cometh from above, and the light of the Holy Spirit to guide and to lead, ought to, in a measure, at least, fit us to instruct those who look to us for help in Sunday-school.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

VICKSBURG DISTRICT.

The Vicksburg District Conference will be held at Wesley Chapel, on the Satartia charge, July 16-20. Bro. L. S. Jones will preach the opening sermon on the evening of the sixteenth, and the business session will begin on the morning of the seventeenth. Bro. T. A. Holloman will give directions about transportation. It is important that the preachers and lay delegates all attend, and be present at the opening service on Wednesday evening. Thursday will be devoted to connectional interests. All unite in an invitation to the editor of the ADVOCATE to be with us.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

SLIDELL, LA.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: We have just closed a revival of eight days at Wesley (lower coast). Rev. N. E. Alford, of Mississippi, did the preaching. He preached with much vim and zeal. The Spirit of the Lord was with us. Everyone seemed to enjoy the meeting. Our people received us cordially, and treated us with courtesy. We were entertained at the home of Sister Julia C. Edgecombe, a very hospitable woman. We had everything that was nice to eat. We enjoyed our trip down there very much, and, in despite of the mosquito, we had a good meeting. May the Lord ever bless Bro. Alford's efforts.

FROM EASTON MISSION.

DEAR BRO. BOSWELL: Having been silent for nearly half of the present year, on account of affliction, I will now, with your permission, speak out through the dear old ADVOCATE.

At the last Conference our name was read out for Castor mission, on the Arcadia district. I was quite sick with la grippe at the time, and remained sick for two months, when we reached the work on the twentieth of February, to find no parsonage to shelter our head; but, through the kindness of a good Baptist brother, a house was furnished in the interior, where we stayed for two months, and where we found a good friend in the person of Bro. W. A. Davenport, who kindly furnished us a house in Alberta, on the L. and A. R. R., where we find a generous people, who both respect and sympathize with the preacher.

As an evidence of the truth of what we write, on the night of the twenty-seventh of May the good sisters—Methodist, Baptist, and others—with Bro. Marvin Cassity, a son of Bro. J. B. Cassity (one of the old war-horses), of our Conference, as we said "Amen" to our evening prayers, there was an alarm at our door, when they announced that they had a surprise for the parsonage. To our delight there was brought flour, sugar, meat, coffee, syrup, rice, and canned goods of all kinds; so that the pantry is full, and our hearts are full of gratitude, and we take courage, and by the good Lord's help will go forward in the work.

Alberta, which is a mill-town, can boast of a moral reputation. We are a "sober" town. You never see a drunken man; never hear any profanity or obscene language.

We have two other appointments on the railroad, Ashland and Gold Donuie, where we are trying and expecting to build, and hope to be able at Conference to report one, if not two, church-buildings. There was sixty-five dollars appropriated by our Board to this mission; thirty-two dollars and a half has been received; about forty dollars has been paid by Mill Creek and Castor Churches; so you see, with seventy-two dollars and fifty cents, that we have had to supply our house and kitchen with furniture, and live, and we are yet alive, and we are happy, and will, by the grace of God, go forward. Let all our brethren pray for the success of Castor mission.

J. M. FRANKLIN.

There often comes a time in the struggle with pulmonary disease when the victim loses heart and gives up hope. The ambition to be up and around gives way before growing weakness, and the sufferer keeps to the bed.

No one who suffers from lung disease should lose heart or give up hope while there is a possibility of cure. In many cases Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has cured lung "trouble" when the cough was obstinate and deep seated, with hemorrhage, emaciation, night-sweats and general weakness. A great many men and women are living to-day in the full enjoyment of health and happiness who had been "given up" by doctors, but found a perfect and permanent cure in the use of "Golden Medical Discovery."

"My wife had hemorrhage of the lungs," writes W. A. Sanders, of Hem, Mason Co., W. Va. "She had ten hemorrhages, and the people all around here said she would never be well again. But she began to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and she soon began to gain strength and flesh. After taking ten bottles she was entirely well. Should you think this would do you any good to publish, just use it, and if any one disputes the merits of this almost omnipotent medicine they may enclose self-addressed envelope with stamp, and I will answer, the same as written in this letter."

The Commoner

(Mr. Bryan's Paper)

The Commoner has attained within six months from date of the first issue a circulation of 100,000 copies, a record probably never equaled in the history of American periodical literature. The unparalleled growth of this paper demonstrates that there is room in the newspaper field for a national paper devoted to the discussion of political, economic, and social problems. To the columns of The Commoner Mr. Bryan contributes his best efforts, and his review of political events as they arise from time to time can not fail to interest those who study public questions.

The Commoner's regular subscription price is $1 per year. We have arranged with Mr. Bryan whereby we can furnish his paper and NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE together for one year for $2.25. The regular subscription price of the two papers when subscribed for separately is $3 net. When remittance is made by personal check ten cents extra will be charged.

THE GENERAL CONFERENCE.

The General Conference closed on Monday, May 26, having been in session seventeen days. Some important matters were acted on during the two last days, and some work previously accomplished was undone. Provision was made for the better support of our superannnated preachers, and the widows and children of deceased preachers. The proposition is to raise a minimum fund of not less than $100,000 as a nucleus, to be securely invested. When that amount has been realized, seventy-five per cent. of the interest is to be used annually for the beneficiaries, and the remainder added to the principal until the amount of $5,000,000 has been reached. To raise the amount, called the "Superannuated Endowment Fund," it is made the duty of preachers-in-charge in every mission, circuit and station to call attention annually in each congregation to the fund, and ask for a voluntary contribution. The Book Committee is instructed to add to the sum annually such an amount as may be deemed wise to withdraw from the profits of the Publishing House until the minimum amount of $100,000 is secured. The endowment is also to be enlarged by donations, bequests, etc. The fund is to be put in the hands of the trustees of the M. E. Church, South, the treasurer of which is to give as security, in a good trust company, a bond for $10,000. Mr. W. F. Vandiver, of Alabama, is the author of the plan, and to him the church is indebted for carrying it successfully through the General Conference. The matter has been on his mind and heart for years. He achieved a great work, and followed up his success by contributing $1,000 to the fund. Others followed, and in a little while the amount of $10,500 was secured. Bishop Hendrix announced that he would endeavor to raise $10,000 during the ensuing quadrennium.

The Committee on Finance proposed a Board of five to meet in June to fix the assessments of the various Boards on the Annual Conferences. In making the assessments, two things are to be considered: 1. The membership in the Conferences, and, 2. The amount they pay for the support of the ministry. Heretofore one Board has taken one basis for assessment, and another Board another basis. The plan proposed by the Finance Committee, which was adopted, gives a uniform basis which will operate on all the Conferences alike. The last act of the Conference was to provide for the insurance of church property. For this purpose eleven commissioners were appointed. The details we are now unable to give.

The Conference came near getting into a tangle on the proposed Union Publishing House in China. The Committee on Missions offered a report which virtually gave the Board of Missions joint control with the Book Committee of the Union Publishing House. This report was passed. Later it was discovered that such division of responsibility was not only bad business policy, but might possibly put in jeopardy the charter of the Publishing House. On Monday, when Report No. 2 from the Committee on Publishing Interests was presented, it was made known that the report was practically the same as the one presented by the Committee on Missions, and passed. Dr. Denny, in a short and pointed speech, clearly showed that if the reports were adopted, complications would almost certainly ensue that would be damaging. The action by which the report of the Committee on Missions was adopted was reconsidered, and both it and Report No. 2 from Committee on Publishing Interests were tabled. This leaves the whole matter, so far as our church is concerned, in the hands of our Book Committee. If it shall have the effect of killing the proposed Union Publishing House in China, we shall be glad. We do not believe in such alliances. The terms proposed, if we understand them, are not commendable. We are decidedly of the opinion that Dr. Denny has saved the church a deal of trouble. In this matter Dr. Denny was ably seconded and assisted by Dr. Paul Whitehead, whose knowledge of parliamentary law enabled the Conference to reach the report of the Committee on Missions for reconsideration. The worth of two such men is incalculable.

On the last day of the session each of the newly-ordained Bishops presided for a brief period. Bishop Hoss came first. There is always some curiosity, not to say anxiety, among friends as to the outcome of a new Bishop's first attempt to handle the gavel. No fears will be entertained in the future as to Bishops Hoss and Smith. If either of them ever before presided over an ecclesiastical body as president of an Annual Conference, or as presiding elder at a Quarterly or District Conference, this writer has never heard of it, but both on the occasion showed themselves equal to the work. The Conference selected great and good and wise men for our leaders. We heard but one fear expressed, viz.: that Bishop Smith, being physically feeble, might soon break down. God grant that thrusting him out into a wider field, in which the current of his life will be changed, may result in bringing to him great vigor of body. A more robust man, in health and heart and intellect, was never elevated to the Episcopacy that Dr. E. E. Hoss. We know him as well as we know any man in Southern Methodism. Nearly seven years of intimate association with him in the office of the Christian Advocate afforded us an opportunity to study and to know the man. His faith in God is as simple as the faith of a little child in its mother. His religious experience is genuine and satisfactory. The many love-feasts we have held together, when only the Lord could see and hear, will never be forgotten. Perhaps we could say just as much of Bishop Smith, if we knew him just as well. As to him, we are willing to take the testimony of his friends, and trust him as a General Superintendent.

We feel sure that, notwithstanding a few men were greatly disappointed because of the miscarriage of their measures to which they attached paramount importance, the great body of the Conference left Dallas feeling much better than when they reached the city. For the first week, and more, disruption of the church was feared by some, and openly expressed. After the final disposition of the War Claim matter, we heard no more talk of division or disaster. If trouble comes, it will be because of agitators who want war. From all such let us join in prayer to be delivered.

THE LAW AS TO LOCAL PREACHERS.

We called attention last week to the fact that the General Conference had transferred the amenability of local preachers from the Quarterly to the District Conference, and that in so doing it had made the administration consistent in that it not only licenses proper persons to preach, but also takes cognizance of their life and official administration. It appears on further investigation that we were somewhat mistaken. Under the new law the District Conference does indeed license proper persons to preach, and renews their licenses annually, etc. It also passes on the character of all local preachers, requiring of them written reports once a year, of the extent and result of their labors. If the General Conference had stopped there, and had left the District Conference to deal in all respects with local preachers as the Quarterly Conference had done heretofore, and had made all paragraphs bearing on local preachers consistent with the main action, all would have been well. But it went further, and authorized an entirely different process for dealing with such as are accused of immorality.

The new law, though it has taken the trial of a local preacher out of the Quarterly Conference, has not placed it in the District Conference as consisteney required. Instead, it has actnally placed it in the hands of the presiding elder and a committee of his own choosing. First of all, the presiding elder is required to appoint a Committee of Investigation. This committee is to be composed of three local preachers if they can be obtained, otherwise of three members of the church. If this committee reports a trial necessary "the presiding elder shall call a Committee of Trial, composed of not less than seven nor more than thirteen official members of our church. The accused shall have the same right of challenge as has a traveling preacher." That is, he shall have the right of peremptory challenge of a given number, and the right of unlimited challenge for cause.

Observe: When the law goes into effect, it will be found that the presiding elder on hearing a report of immorality must act immediately. Not only must he forthwith appoint an Investigating Committee, but if a trial is found to be necessary, he must proceed immediately to call the Committee of Trial and dispose of the case. The District Conference is not consulted. It has no jurisdiction in the matter.

More than this. If a local preacher commits an offense outside of the district in which he resides, and to which District Conference he is said to be amenable, he may be tried by the authorities of that district. And so far as the provision of the law is concerned, he may be tried and expelled, and neither the Conference to which he belongs, nor the Conference of the district in the bounds of which he was expelled, need ever hear of it. Amenable to the District Conference indeed! Local preachers may come and go under the new law and the District Conference have nothing to do with them save to pass their character and renew their licenses. It is even possible to license a preacher without so much as asking the consent of the District Conference, as we shall show in our next issue.

The new code is defective in another particular. It makes no provision whatever for the disposition of a local elder or deacon, who, on account of unacceptability or inefficiency, fails to pass in character before the District Conference. The old law did, and paragraph 288 (page 119) in answer to question 5 is left intact. Paragraph 283 (page 118) also remains untouched. The Book Editor is not authorized to change these paragraphs, and they must go into the new Discipline just as they stand in the old. Had the General Conference authorized the postponement of the execution of the new law until June, 1906, instead of September, 1902, it would have acted wisely. And there are other difficulties in the way of its execution.

If the above interpretations and conclusions are wrong, we will thank any brother to point out the error. We will take pleasure in making proper correction.

THE WAR CLAIM.

We print elsewhere, in full, the action of the General Conference in reference to the War Claim, which has so long and so seriously disturbed our church. It would be too much to say that the action is satisfactory to everybody. We are very much of the opinion that some who voted for it are not satisfied. It purports to be a compromise, but it lacks much of being the compromise measure as brought before the Conference. It was so amended as to lose several of its original features. To the editor and many others it is not as acceptable as the report of the majority of the Committee on Publishing Interests. Of course, it is not as acceptable to the minority of that committee as the paper they presented to the Conference, but such as it is, it is, and as the work of the General Conference, it is accepted as final, and in good faith. We expect to hear no more about the matter in the public prints. As we see it, no true friend and lover of the church will agitate the subject. Let us bury the past, and turn with faith and confidence to the future.

DEATH OF DR. PALMER.

Those who read our notice, last week, of the serious illness of Dr. B. M. Palmer, will not be surprised to learn of his death. He passed quietly, and without pain, to his rest about one o'clock Wednesday, the twenty-eighth of May, in the eighty-fifth year of his age. He was born in Charleston, S. C., Jan. 25, 1818, the son of Dr. Edward Palmer, who served in the ministry more than sixty years. Dr. Palmer was licensed to preach in 1841, and after serving as pastor in Savannah, Ga., and Columbia, S. C., he came to New Orleans in 1857. Here he spent, as pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, forty-five years. He was active in the work up to the day of the accident which occasioned his death.

It was not the privilege of the writer to know Dr. Palmer personally, nor to hear him on any public occasion. But from boyhood almost his name and character have been known to us, and we have always looked upon him as one of the foremost men of our land, not only as a preacher, but as a patriotic and loyal citizen. His fame went abroad, and the honors due him were not lavished solely by his own church. Other denominations besides Presbyterians recognized his worth, and honored him for his work's sake.

Dr. Palmer evidently believed that his mission in New Orleans was providential. This was his field of operation, appointed by the Great Head of the church. Once fixed, and with ample opportunity for the exercise of his great powers, nothing could induce him to leave. Offer after offer was made him to occupy seats in important institutions of learning, including the Chair of Pastoral Theology in Princeton University, to which he was elected in 1860. The Times-Democrat, of this city, says:

"Perhaps the most flattering offer ever made Dr. Palmer was shortly after he entered this field. There was a vacancy in the New York pulpit that had been occupied by Dr. James Alexander, and the congregation of that church, then, as now, one of the foremost in New York, exhausted every argument in vain efforts to induce Dr. Palmer to leave this city. There is another and stronger instance of his love for his congregation and the people of New Orleans, and his disregard for money as money. It is known by some of his intimate friends that after he had been in New Orleans some two or three years he received a call from the richest Presbyterian Church in America, Dr. Hall's Church, in Fifth avenue, New York. He received the call, and was told that he might fill out the blank space for the amount of salary he would accept, thus being given carte blanche as to salary. The offer was declined. That is the strongest indication of his love for his people, and demonstrated more than anything his disinclination to leave this city."

Dr. Palmer was literally wedded to his church. The Master's cause occupied his thoughts, and filled his heart and hands. His last conscious utterances showed that even in death the cause was uppermost in his thoughts. The city of New Orleans, and the whole South, mourn the fall of "a great man and a prince in Israel."

From the many tributes to the worth of Dr. Palmer, printed in the Times-Democrat of the twenty-ninth, we copy the following from Dr. W. H. LaPrade, of our own church:

"Dr. Palmer was so closely and for so long a time identified with the highest interests of New Orleans that his death is universally regarded as a public calamity. Both as a minister of the gospel and as a citizen of the State his influence was far-reaching and profound, and will be permanent. His eloquence and his logical acumen and force made him pre-eminent as a public speaker, whether in the pulpit or on the platform; but I do not regard these elements of force as his greatest ones. Intense earnestness of character, profound and tenaciously-held convictions on all important matters, an unfailing sympathy and a broad catholicity, combined with child-like faith in Christ, made him the man of power he was. Dr. Palmer, like all permanently-influential men, was definite to the point of dogmatism in his ethical and religious type. He impressed one as feeling absolutely sure of his foundations. He was so certain of the truth of his doctrines that he could afford to be catholic, having the tolerance that is born of perfect assurance. He had, too, that hatred of iniquity which is inseparable from love of righteousness, and without which no man can rise to the height of a supreme ethical occasion.

"I have been impressed always, when listening to Dr. Palmer, with the fact that his utterances were not simply from the heart, in the sense of being sincere, but were revelations of the personality of the man. He seemed to project himself as well as his thought upon his audience, as though himself and his thought were inseparable—as, indeed, they were. This was the secret of his sustained power in public life.

"Dr. Palmer was as tender as a woman, as all great men are. He was an ideal comforter, having learned, as few men have learned, from the heart of the Master and the ministrations of sorrow. He was loved, not simply admired. Protestant and Presbyterian to the core, a man of well-defined creed for the defense of which he stood always ready, he is mourned by men of all creeds for his goodness and his greatness."

PLEASE HELP.

We desire to raise a small amount of money—thirty or forty dollars—to assist a poor, sick preacher in securing a change of locality for a month or two. He has been sick a long time, and destitute. A change to a congenial atmosphere, where he can also have a change of water and diet, may save his life and restore him to health. He is a good man, and has been useful. Small sums will be thankfully received. We will faithfully apply the money. Who will respond? Read Matt. xxv, 31–40.

BOOK NOTICE.

THE MODE OF WATER BAPTISM; OR, FACTS PLAINLY STATED. By "A Circuit Rider" of the Mississippi Conference. Pages, 110. Price, 20 cents.

We thank the author of the above-named book for a copy. The greater part of the matter contained in these pages appeared as original communications in this ADVOCATE in 1901. No series of articles during the year attracted so much attention. They were heartily received, and cordially endorsed by many people. The author has revised and enlarged and put the matter in a convenient and permanent form. This was done at the solicitation of many friends, and at considerable expense. We hope our brethren will assist in its circulation. The volume is printed neatly on good paper, and is sold for twenty cents a copy. Address orders to Rev. Jno. D. Ellis, publisher, Forest, Miss.

PERSONAL.

Bishop Galloway is at present making a tour in Texas. Besides filling other appointments, he will preach the commencement sermon at North Texas College, and also at the University of Texas.

We thank Rev. H. C. Edmondson, of Chester, Miss., for an invitation to attend the South Union Camp Meeting, which will begin July 26. We will bear the date in mind, and unless thwarted in our purpose, will be on hand.

Dr. J. C. Morris, of First Church, Memphis, preached the commencement sermon at Centenary College last Sunday morning, and in the evening preached for the Young Men's Christian Association. He delighted and edified his hearers on both occasions.

Dr. F. N. Parker has been quite sick lately, but he has rallied, and at present is attending commencement exercises at Centenary College. He will be absent from the city all this week, and, perhaps, the greater part of the next, but will return in time to fill his pulpit on the fifteenth.

We are under obligation to several presiding elders for invitations to attend District Conferences. We would be glad to attend everyone inside of our territory. But such will be impossible. We will visit as many as we can, governing our visits according to time and circumstances.

Please note the card of Rev. J. R. Countiss on the fifth page. He is one of our best and brightest young men, and we heartily commend him to any presiding elder who may need a supply, or to our preachers-in-charge who may desire help in protracted meetings. Address him, after the tenth of June, at Pittsboro, Miss.

Dr. I. S. Hopkins, pastor of Centenary Church, Chattanooga, will preach the commencement sermon, June 8, at Millsaps College, and on the tenth deliver the baccalaureate address. Commencement exercises begin on the sixth and end on the tenth. We thank the authorities for a copy of the elegant programme of exercises.

Rev. R. G. Porter, in a note to the editor, says: "Rev. J. W. Malone, D. D., has resigned the presidency of the Woman's College, Oxford, Miss., and Rev. W. M. McIntosh, A. M., has been elected to take his place. So the work goes on. Bro. Malone will return to pastoral work. He needs rest, which is to be had only in change of work."

Dr. DuBose was called by telegram from Dallas to San Marcos, Texas, on account of the extreme illness of his father. The sickness proved fatal, and the Doctor had the satisfaction of hearing the good man's last words. He died in the faith, and rests from his labors. We know how to sympathize with our brother in his bereavement.

Deep down in country well and city water main are the seeds of dysentery and cholera morbus. Do not let them multiply in your body. Take Perry Davis' Painkiller when your bowels begin to trouble you. It always cures.

A Card.

After two years at Millsaps College I have completed my course and am without work for the Summer and Fall. If any brother preacher knows of an opening, or has need of my assistance in meetings, I shall be glad to hear from him at Jackson, Miss.; after June 10, Pittsboro, Miss.

A Chance to Make Money.

I have berries, grapes and peaches a year old, fresh as when picked. I used the California Cold Process. Do not heat or seal the fruit, just put it up cold, keeps perfectly fresh, and costs almost nothing; can put up a bushel in ten minutes. Last year I sold directions to over 120 families in one week; anyone will pay a dollar for directions when they see the beautiful samples of fruit. As there are many people poor like myself, I consider it my duty to give my experience to such, and feel confident anyone can make one or two hundred dollars round home in a few days. I will mail sample of fruit and full directions to any of your readers for nineteen (19) two-cent stamps, which is only the actual cost of the samples, postage, etc. Francis Casey, St. Louis, Mo.

Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, 663 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y.

Few people are aware of the extent of the Institution presided over by Dr. Pierce, or that an important part of his medical enterprise was the establishment of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, where people from afar can be lodged, boarded and treated, with all the privileges offered by the finest hospitals, yet with a personal care and freedom entirely foreign to such institutions. Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute has a staff of nearly a score of physicians, each man a specialist. It has a bacteriological and analytical department second to those of no medical institution in the United States. It has elaborate machines and appliances, together with all the most approved mechanical apparatus, for the latest treatment of diseases.

Of late particular attention has been drawn to the possibility of treating certain forms of disease, mechanically. Whole pages in the newspapers and magazines have been given up to the description and illustration of the mechanical devices in use, and the mechanical treatment of disease has been exploited as if it were a novelty. It may be to many people, but as an evidence of the advanced thought and progressive spirit of Dr. Pierce, it may be mentioned that many of these mechanical devices for the cure of disease have been in use in the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute for a score of years. In this, as in everything else, Dr. Pierce keeps his great Institution at the front, with the result that there is a constant stream of persons seeking treatment who come from the farthest States and most remote territories. Often these invalids have gone to the great hospitals of the country and found no benefit, coming to Dr. Pierce as a last resort. It is gratifying to know that the public faith in Dr. Pierce and his methods and medicines is amply justified by the many and remarkable cures which have resulted from his treatment. It may be well in this connection to emphasize the value of Dr. Pierce's offer of free consultation by letter addressed especially to those suffering from chronic diseases. In a great many cases the advertised offers of "free medical advice" have behind them not a single medical practitioner qualified to give medical advice. It is only necessary to point to the medical staff of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute as evidence that Dr. Pierce's offer is genuine as it is free.

"Potatoes."

We once heard of a man who ate potatoes for breakfast, but at lunch his wife always gave him a nice dish of potatoes, while for dinner the dear woman thought he would enjoy nothing more than a good square meal of potatoes.

This poor man died.

My dear madam, have mercy on the poor man who has to eat potatoes all the time; give him a change. Order a "New Orleans Cook Book." It is full of the best recipes by the best cooks of this Southland—95 pages—and was designed to be serviceable. Send twenty cents in stamps to the Advocate office, and secure one of these valuable books before the limited supply is exhausted.

From this date no attention will be paid to manuscripts that come to this office rolled. Let them be folded and put in an envelope. And please, brethren and sisters, use ink. Pencil writing, after passing through the mail, is often hard to read. We speak both for the printer and the editor.

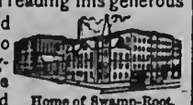
DO YOU GET UP WITH A LAME BACK?

Kidney Trouble Makes You Miserable.

Almost everybody who reads the newspapers is sure to know of the wonderful cures made by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It is the great medical triumph of the nineteenth century; discovered after years of scientific research by Dr. Kilmer, the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, and is wonderfully successful in promptly curing lame back, kidney, bladder, uric acid troubles and Bright's Disease, which is the worst form of kidney trouble.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything but if you have kidney, liver or bladder trouble it will be found just the remedy you need. It has been tested in so many ways, in hospital work, in private practice, among the helpless too poor to purchase relief and has proved so successful in every case that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent free by mail, also a book telling more about Swamp-Root and how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. The regular fifty cent and dollar sizes are sold by all good druggists.



Home of Swamp-Root.

Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Beecher and His Teacher.

Henry Ward Beecher certainly owed a debt of gratitude to his teacher in mathematics, not only for the knowledge acquired through his tuition, but for lessons tending for strength of character. He tells this story to illustrate the teacher's method.

He was sent to the blackboard, and went, uncertain, soft, full of whimpering.

"That lesson must be learned," said the teacher, in a very quiet tone, but with terrible intensity. All explanations and excuses he trod under foot with utter scornfulness. "I want that problem; I don't want any reasons why I don't get it," he would say.

"I did study it two hours."

"That's nothing to me; I want the lesson. You need not study it at all, or you may study it ten hours—just suit yourself. I want the lesson."

"It was tough for a green boy," said Beecher, "but it seasoned him. In less than a month I had the most intense sense of intellectual independence and courage to defend my recitations. His cold and calm voice would fall upon me in the midst of a demonstration, 'No!'

"I hesitated, and then went back to the beginning, and on reaching the same spot again, 'No!' uttered with the tone of conviction, barred my progress.

"The next," and I sat down in red confusion.

"He, too, was stopped with 'No!' but went right on, finished, and sat down, and was rewarded with, 'Very well.'

"Why," whimpered I, "I recited just as well as he did, and you said, 'No.'"

"'Why don't you say, Yes,' and stick to it? It is not enough to know your lesson. You must know that you know it. You have learned nothing till you are sure. If all the world says, 'No!' your business is to say, 'Yes,' and prove it.'"—Selected.

The Deaf Church-Goer.

Why did he come to service every Sunday, that old man, of whom everyone knew that he was totally deaf? Was it mere habit? Was it to see the people? Was it mere curiosity? Oh, no! The old man with the quiet, solemn face looked neither right nor left. His eyes were generally turned upwards, as if he saw something lovely there, as if he were conversing with a friend who was bringing him good tidings and to whom he sent up thanks in return. Of course, this spiritual joy was not always expressed by his looks; sometimes he sat in his place with drooping head, as if very tired.

On one occasion a friend came to him and wrote the following question on a slip of paper: "Do not the services fatigue you greatly, as you are not able to understand anything?"

"Sometimes, yes; but, nevertheless, I should not like to miss one. I attend for three reasons: First, because I can express my reverence toward God by my presence in his house; secondly, I can worship him in spirit, even if my ear does not catch anything of the sermon—in spirit I can sing with the congregation by repeating the hymns I learned in my childhood; thirdly, even a deaf church-goer, if he is faithful in heart, may influence another to attend services regularly."

How much we may learn of this deaf church-goer, to whom God has given such a fine spiritual ear! Is not this a fact: "Whoever draws near to God, he will experience that God draws near to him and gives him a taste of what eye hath not seen nor ear heard?"—Exchange.

The Pigeons Saved the Baby's Life.

An incident occurred recently in the family of G. F. Marsh, a member of the Pacific Coast Pigeon Society, says the San Francisco Examiner, which proved to him in a most impressive manner the valuable services which may sometimes be rendered by the carrier pigeon, and probably explains some of his enthusiasm in that direction. His little baby boy was taken suddenly sick with most alarming symptoms of diphtheria. The mother, watching by the bedside of the little one, dispatched a message tied on a carrier pigeon to her husband at his store on Market street. In the message she wrote the nature of the child's alarming illness, and made an earnest appeal for medicine to save its life. The bird was started from the home of the family, near the Cliff House, five miles from Mr. Marsh's Market street store.

The bird flew swiftly to the store, where Mr. Marsh received it. He read the message, called a doctor, explained the child's symptoms as his wife had detailed them in her message, and received the proper medicine. Then tying the little vial containing the medicine to another pigeon, he let it go. The pigeon sped away through the air, straight for the cliff. It made the distance, five miles, in ten minutes; a distance which would have required the doctor three-quarters of an hour to cover. In twenty minutes from the time the mother's message was sent to her husband the baby was taking the medicine. Naturally enough Mr. Marsh is partial to pigeons, for he considers that he owes his baby's life to one.

"Real Good Times."

A poor little street girl was taken sick one Christmas and carried to the hospital. When there she heard the story of Jesus coming into the world to save us. It was all new to her, but very precious. She could appreciate such a wonderful Savior, and the knowledge made her happy as she lay upon her little cot.

One day the nurse came around at the usual hour, and "Little Broomstick" (that was her street name) held her by the hand and whispered:

"I'm havin' real good times here—ever such good times! S'pose I'll have to go 'way from here just as soon as I get well; but I'll take the good time along; some of it, anyhow. Did you know about the Jesus bein' born?"

"Yes," replied the nurse; "I know. Sh-sh-sh! Don't talk any more."

"You did? I thought you looked as if you didn't, and I was going to tell you."

"Why, how did I look?" asked the nurse, forgetting her own order in curiosity.

"O, just like most folks—kind o' glum. I shouldn't think you'd ever look glum 'f you knowed about Jesus bein' born."—Pulpit Illustrator.

Passing By.

"The last time I saw her she stood out by her gate, looking up the street. I had half a mind to go over and talk with her a little while, for I knew she had had a hard, lonesome Summer; but I was in a hurry, and so I went on. I thought I'd go and see her soon, but the next thing I heard she was gone." There was a minute's pause, and the added words came slowly: "I've always wished I'd stopped that day, but I was sort of busy about something—I don't remember what, now—and I didn't dream it would be the last time I'd see her."

Only a fragment of conversation in a street car, the speaker a stranger, but it told the story enacted round us every day—some sore heart needing cheer and comfort, somebody who passes by on the other side, and a chance that never comes again. The cause of the haste which seems so important at the time vanishes from recollection in a day or two, but the picture of the lonely, waiting one at the gate, unchecked by that which might have been given, haunts the memory while life lasts. Ah! if we were never too busy to be kind!—Wellspring.

If your dear mother could count on your steady, sensible, helpful, practical interest in the home-making and the management of the house, she would be the happiest mother in the world. She would be glad to give over a little or a great deal of her authority to an earnest and systematic little daughter. She has had the care of her home on her mind now for nearly twenty-five years—morning, afternoon and evening, meals, house-furnishing, house-cleaning, sewing, guests, everything. Think of it! Do you wonder that her first fine enthusiasm is a little dulled, and that it doesn't seem so tremendous a matter to her if her sofa-cushions are old-fashioned, or her window-curtains are looped primly back as they were twenty years ago, or her waitress doesn't wear the very newest kind of aprons?—The Ladies' Home Journal.

The Law of Love.

Before Socrates it was said: "Let us do good to those who love us, and evil to those who hate us." Socrates changed the precept, and said: "Let us do good to our friends, and let us do no evil to enemies." Jesus Christ says: "Bless them that curse you." "Love your enemies." Socrates was in some respects the best of the wise men of Greece. He was more practical in his ideas—more in sympathy with the best instincts and aspirations of humanity. But how inferior was his negative conception of benevolence to that of our Lord! The only hope of this fallen world is in the great divine law of love, of doing good as God does to the unthankful and the evil.—Sel.

"How is the baby?" I asked, drearily, standing at the foot of the staircase leading up to a chamber where the little one lay ill. I was tired, unhopeful; my mood came out in my tone.

"'Peak like you do when you laugh," called the weak little voice upstairs; and I felt rebuked. It has come to me a hundred times since; I hope I am brighter and cheerier for it.

"Speak like you do when you laugh." That means sparkle and gladness and good-will. Those fretful lines at the mouth corner don't come from laughing. The weary ones around the eyes have another origin. But the plainest outward sign of despondency is that in the tone. The sick feel it; that is why "visitors are forbidden." Little children are infallible weather prophets; they will not "take to" you. And you and I—just common working men and women, neither sick nor young nor old, but busy and often tired—we love—yes, that is the word—we love the bright, loving, laughing, happy voice. "Speak like you do when you laugh."—Selected.

One morning my sister went to see a friend, and took with her our little dog.

When she left she quite forgot the dog; and as soon as our friends discovered him, they did all they could to make him leave, but with no avail.

Some hours passed and he was still there.

So they telephoned to let us know his whereabouts.

"Bring him to the telephone," said my sister.

One of the boys held him while another put the trumpet to the dog's ear.

Then my sister whistled, and called, "Come home at once, Paddy."

Immediately he rushed to the door, barking to get out, and soon afterwards arrived at home.—Mayflower.

A HELPING FUND.

We have many calls to send the ADVOCATE to poor, aged persons at a reduced rate. This we always do. Are there not many persons, well-to-do in this world's goods, who will send us money—any sum they may see fit to give—to supply the ADVOCATE to persons who would like to have it, but are unable to pay anything? We will gladly send it to such for one dollar a year. We hope to get many responses to this appeal. Let those who respond designate the names of those to whom they desire the paper sent, or give the money to their pastors, and let them send the names. If names are not sent, the editor will do the best he can. Who will first respond?

On Jellies

ANDREW JACKSON DARDEN was born Jan 23, 1829 in Jefferson county, Miss., near Fayette, and lived in the same community during his whole life until about a year ago, when he moved to Centerville, in Wilkinson county, in order to be near the homes of his grandaughters. On Nov 28, 1848, he was married to Miss Catherine V Mayoarry, the faithful wife who to-day mourns the departure of her tried husband. Rev. J. G. Jones performed the ceremony. Fifty-three years have these two trod the path of life together in fair and in gloomy weather. Only one child was born to them, Henry M Dardee, who came to an untimely death in 1876, being one of the martyrs to the cause of white supremacy in Mississippi. He was at that time only twenty seven years old, but he left a widow and three little children—one son and two daughters—to whom the grandfather's house became the home. The years have run on, and now there are five great-grandchildren. No death occurred since 1876 until Friday evening, May 16, 1902, at 8:30 P. M., when "Grandpa" Darden departed from this life, surrounded by his earthly loved ones. On Thursday morning of the preceding week, being a little sick, he arose before day to take paregoric, but by mistake swallowed a spoonful of carbolic acid. This prostrated him. It was thought, however, for several days that he would recover, but after a week had passed signs of approaching dissolution appeared. During the last few hours of his stay he had not the power of speech, but during all his sickness, except these few hours, he showed himself, by his talk, fully conscious of all the surroundings, realizing that the result of his sickness might be fatal. He was a charitable man. He preferred to talk of the virtues of men; he was not seeking to find their faults. He was hospitable. His words of frank and hearty cheer we can not forget. He was unselfish; he was patient in suffering; he was Christian. He joined the Methodist Church about fifty years ago, and was faithful in his support and constant in his devotion unto the end. He rejoiced in the triumphs of the Christian faith; he was a reader of its books. The ministers of the gospel were invited and welcomed to his home, and whether in his last sickness or in the days of health, he desired his pastor's visit to include family prayer. His last spoken words were expressions of faith and victory.

H. G. HAWKINS, Pastor.

REV. VINES M. DAVIS passed peacefully over the river of death at his home in Red River parish, La., on March 20, 1902, at the ripe age of seventy years and two months. For eight days he suffered of pneumonia, while physicians, relatives and friends tried vainly to beat back the dark-winged messenger that God had sent to call his tired servant home. Truly, here we have no continuing city. Father had labored faithfully in God's vineyard as a local preacher of the M. E. Church, South; was of very strong faith, and fully consecrated to the cause of the Master. In his death the church lost an earnest worker, the neighborhood a good citizen, and his family a kind father and wise counselor; but we are assured that our loss is his great gain. Several times during his illness he expressed his readiness to obey the summons from the other shore. Among his last rational words were these, "The prospect is bright for the future." On the night before his illness began he sang several of his favorite songs, together with his wife and this writer. The last song was, "The unclouded day," and it was the last song he sang on earth. "Blessed are the dead that die in the Lord; they rest from their labors, and their works follow them."

His daughter, F. B. DAVIS.

MRS. MARTHA ANN ALGIERS (nee Barrow) was born Oct. 27, 1820, in West Georgia, where she spent the years of her childhood. In 1843 she was married to T. D. Algiers, and went with him to Alabama, where they lived till 1883, when they, with a train of Westward emigrants, came to Clarke county, Miss., where they opened a farm, and spent many years to bless the country. Ten children were born unto this union, five of whom preceded the parents to the better land; four went home in infancy. Dec. 7, 1890, Mrs. Algiers was left a widow, with only her youngest daughter, on the old homestead. This one married about a year after, and with her she lived till April 22, 1902, when the Master said, "It is enough; come up higher." This dear old grandmother's shouts and songs have been the inspiration of many protracted and camp meetings, and in the judgment methinks many will rise up and call her blessed, for hers was a long life of self-denial and doing for others. She was an affectionate wife, a loving mother and good neighbor. In her old age her greatest delight was caring for her grandchildren who played around her. How they will miss her! Five children, many grandchildren and great-grandchildren, and a host of friends, mourn their loss. THOS. J. O'NEIL.

DR. CHARLES B. DUNNING was born at Pine Bluff, Copiah county, Miss., Dec. 15 1852. He became a dentist by profession. On the twenty-first of January, 1880, he married Miss Mattie McNair, of Brookhaven, to whom were born five children, four of whom, with their mother, survive him. In 1888 he joined the church. I was his pastor the last three years of his life. In my ministry I have not had a more faithful friend and loyal church worker. He was always at his place of duty. In his home life he was a loving and faithful husband, and a tender, loving father. He was also a good citizen, one in whom the people had the utmost confidence, they having nominated him for the mayoralty of the town of Magee, Miss., just before his sudden death, Sept. 27, 1901. May the "Father of mercies" watch over the bereaved wife and children!

L. E. ALVORD.

MISS REBECCA RAWLINGS was born on a plantation near Washington, Miss., in November, 1816, and died in St. Anna's Home, in New Orleans, March 16, 1902, in her eighty-sixth year. She was a life-long Methodist, and spoke with great interest of the early pioneers of Methodism in Mississippi, having spent her youth near where the first Methodist Church in that State was founded. For many years she was a member of the family of her brother-in-law, Dr. Henderson, of this city, and a member of the Felicity Street Church. For the last nine years she was an inmate of St. Anna's Home. Much of her life was devoted to the care of an invalid niece, who demanded her constant attention. The writer visited her as her pastor during the last year of her life, and was with her during her last illness. She repeatedly assured him of her readiness to meet her Lord at any time, and seemed perfectly resigned to his will in everything. She retained her powers to the last, and loved to talk of the better world to come. W. W. DAAKS.

AT the age of fifty-eight years two months and five days Mrs. MARTHA J. DAVIS, wife of Rev. V. M. Davis, peacefully passed to her reward on the morning of March 28, 1902; eight days after the death of her husband. She died of typhoid-pneumonia after suffering sixteen days, which she bore quietly, and several times expressed her willingness to die and be at rest. Having lived a consistent Christian life, she was not afraid to tread the dark valley. She was a noble, pious Christian; a kind and gentle mother, and her life was "as a bright, shining light, that shineth more and more unto the perfect day." But we mourn not as those who have no hope, for though our hearts are bowed in sorrow, our faith looks up to God and says, "Thy will be done." "The Lord giveth, and the Lord taketh; blessed be the name of the Lord." O God help us to so live that, ere long, we may be reunited with our dear parents "in the land of eternal sky." Her daughter, F. B. DAVIS.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and, therefore, requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address,

Hall's Family Pills are the best.

One secret of a sweet and happy Christian life is learning to live by the day. It is the long stretches that tire us. We think of life as a whole, running on for years. We can not carry this load until we are threescore and ten. We can not fight this battle continually for half a century. But really there are no long stretches. Life does not come to us all at one time; it comes only a day at a time.—Southern Churchman.

Mrs. Laura S. Webb,

Vice-President of Women's Democratic Clubs of Northern Ohio.

Mrs. Laura S. Webb.

THERE ARE MANY sickly women between the ages of 45 and 55, but there are very few invalids over 55 and 60 years of age. The change of life coming to a woman near her forty-fourth year, either makes her an invalid or gives her a new lease on life. Those who meet this change in ill health seldom live ten years afterward, while a woman who lays aside the active duties of womanhood in health seldom fails to live on in happiness, years after she has passed 60. This is truly a critical time.

Mrs. Laura S. Webb, of Toledo, Ohio, recognizes the change of life as a dangerous period and she also has faith in Wine of Cardui. She writes:

"As I had always been troubled more or less at the menstrual period, I dreaded the change of life which was fast approaching. While visiting with a friend I noticed that she was taking your Wine of Cardui, and she was so enthusiastic about it that I decided to try a bottle. I experienced some relief the first month, so I kept on taking it for three months and now I menstruate with no pain and I shall take it off and on now until I have passed the climax. I do not dread it now, as I am sure that your Wine of Cardui will be of great benefit at this time."

Wine of Cardui is the remedy to re-inforce a woman against the shock that comes with the change of life. It re-establishes healthy functions after years of suffering. In doing this it has saved thousands of sufferers just in time. Do not wait until suffering is upon you. Thorough preparations should be made in advance. Begin the Wine of Cardui treatment today.

We Have It at Last

For many years we have been trying to get a Bible containing exactly the features which, to our mind, would constitute as nearly as possible especially for the use of preachers and teachers. We have contracted for a large number of a Bible which we believe to be the nearest to a perfect book we have ever seen. It contains the AUTHORIZED VERSION, DICTIONARY OF PROPER NAMES, SUBJECT INDEX, CONCORDANCE, AND MAPS. The type is long primer, self-pronouncing. It is 6x8½ inches, and only 1 inch thick. Bound in the best levant morocco, divinity circuit (overlapping edges), calf lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges. By reason of the large number contracted for we are selling this splendid Bible at only a little more than half its regular price.

A Perfect Bible

R·I·P·A·N·S

I have been taking R.I.P.A.N.S Tabules. They aid digestion, regulate the bowels and are the best thing I know of after a night's sport. A great many golfers are using them.

At druggists.

The Five-Cent packet is enough for an ordinary occasion. The family bottle, 60 cents, contains a supply for a year.

REV. WALKER'S

FAMOUS DYSPEPSIA CURE.

Famous for Glorious Achievements.

The recognized unfailing scientific Cure for Dyspepsia, Nervous Indigestion, Constipation, Acidity, and Bilious Colic. Relief in one minute, with first dose; quickly effects a permanent Cure. Never fails. Neutralizes and eradicates dyspeptic poison. An absolute specific. Very palatable, perfectly harmless, as gentle as nature in effect. Neglected Dyspepsia and Indigestion produce "Blight's Disease," undermines the vital organs, overthrows the mental faculties, producing insanity and death.

Mr. J. G. Thompson Anclote, Fla., voluntarily writes: "I suffered agonies from Dyspepsia Walker's Famous Dyspepsia Cure quickly cured me. I gained 16 pounds in one month. My friends are astonished at my quick recovery. A wonderful medicine."

Rev. F. M. Martin, Van Wyck, S. C., "Best Dyspepsia medicine I ever found."

Rev. E. M. Boone, editor Baptist Chronicle, Alexandria, La., "Doing finely in my wife's case."

Mr. Leroy Turner, Sparta, Ga., "I could scarcely eat anything; two doses completely relieved me."

For containing month's treatment, by mail, $1; checks, 10 cents extra. Address.

Rev. EDWARD H. WALKER,
Box 82, Atlanta, Ga.

Notices.

Arrangements are being made that all delegates to W. F. M. meeting, to be held in Grenada, Miss., June 4-8, may secure one and one-third fare on all roads leading to Grenada.

Delegates will please secure certificates from each road over which they pass, that they may secure reduction.

Hope to have arrangements perfected soon.

Be sure to get your certificates.

ELLA GRIDER,
Sec. W. F. M. S.

All the preachers of the Sardis district will please notify me at Eureka Springs, Miss., of all the delegates and others who expect to attend the District Conference to be held at Pope, Miss., July 2-4

Brethren, it is necessary that you should do so at once.

Yours in Christ,

J. A. GOAD, P. C.

May 29, 1902.

The Durant District Conference will meet at Goodman, July 10-13. A full attendance of members and delegates is earnestly desired. Let every brother who has a place on the programme make the very best preparation he can, and come to say it.

W. S. LAGRONE.

ADVOCATE OFFER.

Magic White Soap, advertised in our columns, is manufactured in New Orleans by a responsible company, who can be relied on to do what is promised. The soap is what is claimed for it. There is none better on the market. A fair trial has been given it at the home of the editor, and the good wife, who knows what soap is, says "it is about the best she ever used." Our lady readers would do well to give this soap a trial. Send for a box of twenty bars—one dollar; charges paid by the manufacturer.

We make the following offer: We will furnish one box of this soap, and the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for one year, for $2.50, to new subscribers. We make the same offer to all who will pay up back dues, and send $2.50 additional. Cash must accompany the order. Address

JNO. W. BOSWELL,
512 Camp St., New Orleans.

General News.

The peace terms with the Boers were dictated by King Edward.

Resolutions on the death of Dr. Palmer were adopted by the Progressive Union of this city.

George E. Chamberlin, Democrat, a native of Mississippi, has been elected Governor of Oregon.

Northern fire insurance companies have decided not to insure the property of negroes in the South.

Most of the engineers, firemen and pumpmen in the anthranite region went on strike on Monday.

It was announced the last shipment of horses for South Africa from Chalmette was made on Tuesday.

General reductions in the price of meat in New York is taken as an indication that the Meat Trust is weakening.

Any one attending a spiritualist seance in Bohemia is liable to a fine of $40, a decree to that effect having been issued by the governor of the province.

Colonel von Witzleton and Major Wilmann have been authorized by Emperor William to accept the invitation to visit the Military Academy at West Point.

Leading financiers of Wall street have become alarmed at the power of J. P. Morgan in the financial world, and are laying plans to safeguard various interests.

There was rioting and bloodshed in Chicago on Monday as a result of the teamsters' strike. The police were compelled to charge the rioters and use their clubs freely.

Confederate camps and associations celebrated the anniversary of the birth of President Jefferson Davis in Memorial Hall, on Tuesday, and crosses of honor were presented veterans.

It has been suggested that Dr. Palmer, who was one of the most eminent citizens of the State, should be honored with a monument, the gift of the people, built with contributions large and small, from the many who regarded him as one of the South's great men, as well as from those who knew and loved him.

The total British losses in South Africa up to the signing of peace are reported as 1069 officers and 20,897 men. Nearly two-thirds of the total died from disease. The British have taken about 37,000 Boer prisoners, and of killed and wounded on that side there are no reliable statistics. Nor are there any statistics as to the money spent by the two Boer republics. Britain has had about 280,000 men in the field. The Boer force at the start was estimated at 50,000.

The administration is considerably worried over the prospect of no legislation for Cuba. Twenty-two Republican senators are in revolt against the Payne reciprocity bill, and have come out flat-footed for the rebate plan or nothing. The President has been conferring with the campaign leaders of both Houses relative to the party's obligations and the obstacles in the way of their fulfillment, but no one will admit that a solution of the vexations problem is in sight.

Special Notice.

To the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Mississippi Conference:

Officers and delegates who expect to attend the annual meeting to convene in Yazoo City, June 14, will please send their names to Mrs. J. F. Powell at once.

Trains from Jackson arrive at 8:20 A. M. and at 4:40 P. M. These trains will be met by a Reception Committee on Saturday, June 14.

Superseding All Others.

From rich Mississippi river bottoms: "I have been selling Hughes' Tonic for six years for chills and fever. Has superseded all others in my trade. It is invariably cures when given according to directions. It is the very medicine we need and the only one for chills and fever that I can sell." Sold by druggists—50c. and $1.00 bottles.

A Chance to Make Money.

I have been selling Perfumes for the past six months. I make them myself at home, and sell to friends and neighbors. Have made $710. Everybody buys a bottle. For 10 cts worth of material I make Perfume that would cost $2.00 in drug stores.

I first made it for my own use only, but the curiosity of friends as to where I procured such exquisite odors prompted me to sell it. I clear from $25.00 to $35.00 per week. I do not canvas; people come and send to me for the perfumes. Any intelligent person can do as well as I do. For 42 cts in stamps I will send you the formula for making all kinds of perfumes and sample bottle prepaid. I will also help you get started in the business.

Glances at the World.

The Picayune, of this city, does not see any relief from the clutches of the Beef Trust. The legal fight now being made against it will, in the opinion of the Picayune, amount to nothing, because it "will be difficult to show that the combination, or alleged combination, has done anything more than to raise the price of meats. . . . But while no relief to the people is to be expected from the litigation in progress, there is a remedy which would be immediate, efficacious and permanent in putting down prices of meats, poultry, eggs, butter and cheese, and that is to repeal the tariff on beef cattle and slaughtered meats and provisions from foreign countries. If these necessaries were allowed to come in free, Mexico could send us herds of beef cattle, while Canada could supply us with any desired amount of meats, eggs, and dairy products. It is in the power of Congress to give this relief." This, our contemporary is fully persuaded, Congress will never do. It follows, of course, that the people who are dependent on the markets for their meat supply, must continue to pay tribute to the Trust. The only hope of relief is in the fulfillment of the word of the commercial prophets, who tell us that prices will soon fall.

A case of some importance was decided a short time since by the courts of Louisiana. A young lady of New Orleans brought suit against certain parties for using her picture without permission on advertising matter. No offense was intended. The advertisers desired a suitable embellishment, and selected a photograph, from a number of others, found in a picture gallery. This public use of her likeness wounded the feelings of the young lady, and she brought suit. Damage to the amount of one dollar was assessed against the defendants; the cost of the suit also being charged against them. The damage assessed, though nominal, was a vindication of the young lady's plea that advertisers have no right to use her picture for the gratification of the public gaze without her consent. The decision may prevent anything of the sort occurring in Louisiana in the future.

Secretary Root, of the War Department, has set at rest a matter that has occasioned some anxiety. A short time since Gov. Taft, of the Philippine Commission, was directed to go by Rome on his return to Manila, and confer with the church authorities concerning the lands owned by the friars in the islands. Forthwith it was given out by those who would have it so, that Gov. Taft had been appointed as United States representative to the Vatican. This was understood to be a recognition of the Pope of Rome as a temporal power. Mr. Root has transmitted to the Senate and House the precise instructions given to Gov. Taft. "In concluding his instructions, Secretary Root says: 'Your errand will not be in any sense or degree diplomatic in its nature, but will be purely a business matter of negotiation by you as governor of the Philippines for the purchase of property from the owners thereof, and the settlement of lands in such a manner as to contribute to the best interests of the people of the islands.'" That should quiet the fears of all who have had any anxiety on the subject. But our people must keep their eyes open, all the same.

News comes of a threatened uprising of negroes in East Mississippi against the whites. How much truth there is in the report we do not know, but dare say it is exaggerated. The report says that in the section, twenty-five miles northeast of Meridian, the negroes outnumber the whites two to one, and that a mob of fifty would form at a given point, and from there march through the country, kill the whites, burn their houses, and destroy their farms. The white people got wind of the purpose, arrested the leaders, and thus nipped the uprising in the bud. "The people of the threatened districts are very much alarmed, and will keep on the alert until all possible danger is out of the question. The people of Marion, from which news of the uprising and threats first reached Meridian, are very much wrought up, and prepared for emergencies at a moment's notice." We trust that there is no real ground for such a report. If true, how foolish the negroes are! In an uprising they might kill a few white people, but they themselves would suffer in the end.

Although action against the Beef Trust has made but little progress since our last issue, the Trust and its agents seem to be thoroughly alarmed. Its agents in several cities, if reports are true, can not be found. The supposition is that they have fled, else are hiding. Eastern managers, dispatches say, are "demoralized by the injunction granted in New York against the packers' combination," and all the managers of branch houses in New York, Brooklyn and Jersey City have collected together and destroyed every paper containing evidence of any kind that might incriminate the combination. Managers not only fear arrest at any moment, but are worried over what steps may next be taken by the District Attorney to follow up the advantage he has already gained. The trade has greatly fallen off, and independent butchers are profiting by the trouble into which the Trust has been plunged.

It seems almost impossible for a law to be enacted in this country that can not in some way be circumvented, or set aside, without incurring penalty. As an illustration, note the following from the Indianapolis Journal: "Even if the anti oleomargarine law shall stand the test of constitutionality in the courts, it is not probable that so cheap and palatable an article of food will be driven from the market because the coloring has been made expensive by act of Congress. It is said that even now one company has devised a plan of furnishing oleomargarine in its natural color with a package of coloring which the purchaser can apply in the kitchen in two minutes. As the color is a matter of taste, it is quite probable that white butterine may become popular." If oleomargarine were a poison instead of a palatable and healthy food, as many consumers claim, it would make no difference with those who are bent on breaking or evading the law. Human depravity, backed by ingenuity, is equal to any undertaking.

CENTENARY COMMENCEMENT.

BY REV. R. H. WYNN.

The closing exercises of Centenary began with two declamation contests on Saturday evening, May 31, the first being between six students of the Fitting School for the Pharr medal, and the second between three members of the Sophomore class for the Schwing memorial medal. The successful contestants were C. E. Fike, of Sabine parish, and R. H. Harper, of Alexandria. In the judgment of the writer, the delivery of the various speeches in these contests was fully up to the average excellence of other years.

There was the most unanimous expression of delight with the two sermons preached on Sunday by Dr. J. C. Morris, of Memphis. The commencement sermon at eleven o'clock, based upon II. Cor. iv, 18, was a great discourse, exhibiting profound and far-reaching exercise of thought and intense spirituality of purpose. The sermon in the evening to the Young Men's Christian Association, based upon Prov. xxiii, 7, and Phil. iv, 8, was also very able and stimulating. The preaching of Dr. Morris abounds in apt and striking imagery, and particularly impresses one with the value of accurate scientific knowledge in a preacher's storehouse.

On Monday evening the contest between four young men for the McGehee medal took place, resulting in the award of the medal to R. H. Harper, who had also received a medal on Saturday evening, and thus was twice victorious in a contest of public speaking.

The Board of Trustees held protracted morning and afternoon meetings on both Monday and Tuesday, and the writer was, therefore, unable to be present at the exercises of the Union Literary Society and Franklin Institute, and also failed to hear anything but the distant reverberation of the alumni address of Rev. W. W. Drake, which was very highly spoken of on all sides. The subject was, "The Mission of the College Graduate." A considerable number of the college alumni were present at commencement this year, and a movement was set on foot looking to a large alumni reunion some time next year.

By an earlier beginning the concluding exercises took place Tuesday evening, instead of Wednesday morning, as heretofore. The annual literary address was delivered by Hon. H. H. White, of Alexandria. His subject was, "The Civil Code of Louisiana," and his historical treatment of this theme was exceedingly interesting, and, in printed form, would be a valuable addition to the libraries of the literary societies, to whom it was addressed.

The fourth contest in public speaking was the senior contest in oratory between E. A. Hoffpauir and L. O. Clark; the one the son of a Methodist preacher, the other the son of a State senator. Both speeches were excellent, and at the same time quite different in theme and style, so that it was consequently difficult to compare. By a vote of three to two in the committee of judges, the medal was awarded to the preacher's son.

Several preachers were gratified at the success of their children. Rev. J. D. Harper saw his son receive the two medals referred to above, and, in addition, a third for class scholarship, which pleased the father even more than the others. Rev. J. J. Hoffpauir saw his son receive the senior medal in oratory, and heard him deliver the valedictory address. Rev. H. W. May heard the announcement that the Winecoff prize of fifteen dollars for best original work in Latin had been won by his daughter, Miss Jennie. The athletic medal was awarded to F. R. Singleton, son of Rev. H. R. Singleton. Rev. C. C. Miller also heard his son deliver a good speech in the oratory contest.

The degree of Bachelor of Science was conferred upon E. A. Hoffpauir, L. O. Clark, and G. O. Sanders. A certificate of having completed the same course was given to Miss Mary Taylor. There were, in addition, a department graduate and a number of commercial graduates. The Commercial Department has been very successful during the past session.

The Board of Trustees re-elected Dr. I. W. Cooper president, but he decided to resign his position, and the resignation was accepted, resolutions being passed expressing the deepest appreciation of his services in building up the college during the past four years of his administration. All the other members of the faculty were re-elected. The Board did not have time to elect a successor to Dr. Cooper, but the matter is in the hands of the Executive Committee, who will, I hope, be able to make a satisfactory announcement at an early date.

Figures from Louisiana Conference Minutes.

BY DR. JOHN T. SAWYER.

The report of Treasurer Thomson, found on page 55 of the last Minutes, shows that last year the Louisiana preachers raised for missions the sum of $10,973.43. Of this amount, $8,283.22 was for foreign missions, and $2,690.21 was for domestic missions. The Woman's Foreign Missionary Society reported a grand total of $2,880.47, and the Woman's Home Mission Society $3,150.15, both of these amounts being largely in excess of the previous year. The Epworth Leagues, I am sure, raised considerable missionary money, but it does not appear in figures in the Minutes. The Sunday-schools are reported as raising for missions $1,134.77, and for Children's Day $412.46. It is gratifying to note that the collection for superannuates, and all the other Conference collections, show a large increase over the previous year. Summing up the figures we have given above, we find that there was raised by the churches, Sunday-schools, and the good women of Louisiana Methodism, a grand total for missions—foreign, domestic, and local—of $18,551.28. Specials that may have been lost sight of in "Other Objects," and what the Leagues may have raised, would make this total somewhat greater.

Year before last our per cents. raised on our assessments were 68 for foreign missions and 61 for domestic. Last year the amounts raised by the churches on their assessments by regular collections showed a per cent. of more than 91 for foreign missions and more than 79 for domestic. Thus we see that in the matter of regular collections the increase over the previous year was more than 23 per cent. on the foreign assessment and more than 18 per cent. on the domestic. Two districts paid out, and the increase was large in the other five. There has been a steady advance during the last quadrennium, and we are now where 9 per cent. more will carry us out as a Conference on foreign missions, and 21 per cent. more will run us beyond the line on domestic missions. It is only necessary that we should raise $1,526.57 more than last year to pay in full on both assessments. There can really be no good reason why we should not go on to perfection this year. If twenty out of the list of our many prosperous and wealthy members would each give one hundred dollars more than they did last year, the Louisiana Conference would take her place with the seven Annual Conferences that last year met their full assessments for missions. That is a consummation devoutly to be wished, and it will surely come to pass if all alike rich, poor, and middling will this year pay on these collections a liberal increase on their last year's offering.

Shreveport, La., June 4, 1902.

I take the following paragraph from the editorial columns of the Texas Christian Advocate. It is a worthy and well-deserved tribute to one of the noblest, truest men we have in our ministry or our membership. His stainless Christian character, his industry in the business committed to his hands, and his great patience and self-control under severest trials and provocation, make him an excellent model for our young men. Here are Dr. Rankin's words:

"Rev. J. D. Barbee, D. D., looked like a patriarch moving among the brethren. He is every inch a man, from his feet to his head. Perhaps no man in the church has been called to pass through severer ordeals than he, and all on account of his devotion to the church and her interests. Yet no one has ever heard him murmur or complain. Neither has he whined nor whimpered for sympathy. On the contrary, he has borne himself like a martyr and abided his time in patience. It pained many of the delegates to have to vote for any measure, even in the interest of peace, that seemed in any way to reflect upon his actions in collecting our debt from the government."

Thousands of our people throughout our connection would endorse these words, and would sign a resolution of confidence and blessing.

Dr. Barbee concludes the sixteen years of his service as senior Book Agent with eminent credit to himself and gratifying profit to the church. The exhibits of the last quadrennium are especially so. We would expect nothing less from his great abilities, and his true and tried integrity.

Appreciative Words.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: I have done much business with our Publishing House since Bros. Barbee and Smith became agents for same. One year I did over $500 worth. They have published nine different pamphlets and booklets for me, and some of those in several editions, and to date I can say I owe the House nothing, having settled in full. And, too, I can say I never have dealt with men more prompt and correct than they. They are business men of the highest type, and I think it is nothing but right to let them know that we appreciate their success with the business of our Publishing House. They may have made some mistakes, but not intentionally. I esteem them as good and trusty men. We all make mistakes, and some, too, that grieve us much. This only argues the fallibility of humanity, and, therefore, how ready we should be to bear one another's burdens, and not to add to them. May God greatly bless those faithful men!

Our Orphans' Home.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER: You are earnestly requested to read and lay this upon your heart.

The Orphans' Home was built in 1897 by the consecrated efforts and gifts of the Methodists and the friends of orphan children in the State. It has cost approximately $10,000 to erect buildings, etc., and $6,000 annually to support it. The Home owns 50 acres of land; 25 of this in yards, gardens, orchard and groves for the children, and 25 acres in a field—all good bottom land. These gardens and the field are cultivated by the boys, thus teaching and developing them, and then raising some produce to help support them. They also milk the cows and feed the stock and pigs. The girls do all the cooking, housekeeping, etc., with matron and housekeeper to instruct them.

A ten-months' school, with two teachers and over eighty scholars, is the pride of the Home. They are taught the lower branches of an English education. They are trained religiously by family worship, Sunday-school, and preaching. More than thirty have united with the church this year. We take any orphans that are needy, regardless of denomination. We take the little ones that are outcast, and all enjoy the same privileges. We have just opened a neat little cottage for a hospital. Since the Home opened have cared for 207 children. Have found good homes for a large number. We now have 102—more than ever before. With this increased number we find we must have more room. As we have our kitchen, a little room 12x16, for ten girls to cook and wash dishes for over one hundred persons, entirely too small and warm for the comfort and health of these girls, we wish to build an annex for this purpose, with small rooms for additional bath-rooms, pantry, store-room, place for milk, etc. The children are delighted at the hope of getting out of this hot and crowded room. It will take about 7,000 feet of dressed and 6,000 feet of rough lumber, shingles and other material, bricks, nails and other hardware, doors, windows, etc. The work will be done at the lowest possible cost.

Will you help us to erect this? I feel sure you will, for these little, helpless ones. What part of this can you give us? Ask God to help you say what you can do for us, and write the manager. We want to build this now, before the weather gets too hot and sultry. It is necessary. Any material will be as good as cash. We feel sure our saw-mill friends will give some lumber; the others the rest of the material and cash. Don't lay this down and forget it. Our prayers shall follow each one, and we expect to hear from you.

Respectfully and fraternally,

W. T. GRIFFIN,
Manager and Agent.

Water Valley, Miss., May 29, 1902.

Important!

There is yet due on subscriptions to the Twentieth Century Fund in North Mississippi Conference the amount of $7,919.98; in the Mississippi Conference, $10,120.45; in both, $18,040.43. Some of this amount is in large subscriptions. Many brethren have withheld payment, saying they did not want their money to lie idle in bank.

To all this is notice that Millsaps College and our colleges for girls are now ready to put to immediate use all funds that may reach them from any source.

Our need is urgent. The payment of these subscriptions will do good beyond power to calculate.

INFANT BAPTISM—No. 5.

BY AN ITINERANT.

THE OBLIGATION FOR INFANT BAPTISM.

SECTION I.

As a church, we affirm the practice of infant baptism, and, therefore, at first blush, the burden of proof rests on us. We are rightly called upon to state the reasons of our faith and the grounds of our practice. This duty we most cheerfully undertake; and yet it is not improper to remark that a point will be reached in the discussion when the laboring oar will shift hands, and the responsibility will devolve on the opponents of the practice of proving that it is, as they affirm, an innovation, brought into the church without divine authority, after the apostles were dead.

That the Tertullian type of baptismal regeneration on the one hand, and the cumbersome mode of baptism by immersion on the other, have been the main reasons for decrying infant baptism, we have no room to doubt. But to the law and to the testimony. In every covenant which God has made with any people he has included their infant children with their parents.

1. The first covenant mentioned is that made with Noah after the flood, and which certainly embraced his entire posterity, without respect to age, for all time. "And God spake unto Noah, and to his sons with him, saying, And I, behold I establish my covenant with you, and with your seed after you." (Gen. ix, 8, 9.) In this covenant God promised never again to destroy the world by a flood, and little children are as certainly included in it as are the adults. "Seed" means "children" of any age. Besides, who can imagine that God has promised not to destroy people after they are grown, but that he may, if it pleases him, send another flood and destroy the infants.

2. When God made the covenant with Abraham (Gen. xvii, 7-14) he as certainly included eight-days-old Isaac as he did Abraham himself. And not only Isaac, but all his "seed." "And the grand stipulation concerning Christ—the seed of Abraham, through whom all the families of the earth were to be blessed—as certainly included Isaac, as did that other stipulation concerning possession of the land of Canaan." (Rush.)

3. God entered into a covenant with the children of Israel as a nation. Here, as in every other covenant which he made with the people, infants are as much included as adults. "Ye stand this day all of you before the Lord your God; your captains of your tribes, your elders and your officers, with all the men of Israel, your little ones, your wives, and the stranger that is in thy camp, from the hewer of wood unto the drawer of thy water; that thou shouldst enter into covenant with the Lord thy God, and into his oath which the Lord thy God maketh with thee this day." (Deut. xxix, 10-12.) In this passage, we find that the "little ones" entered into the covenant just the same as did all the other classes mentioned. Parents and infants alike, entered "into his covenant . . . and into his oath."

4. That God has made a covenant with us through the gospel, no one can doubt. But in this covenant he has as certainly included children, as he did in the other covenants made with his people. They are the subjects of redeeming grace. Dying in infancy, they enter heaven, not on the ground of their Christian descent, but because of their connection with Christ, by whose righteousness the "free gift" is come upon them unto justification of life. "If there be any for whom Christ did not die—for whom he did not purchase the sanctifying grace of the Holy Spirit—any whom he designed and decreed never to be saved—such are not in covenant relation to God." But if Christ died for "all"—"if in Christ all shall be made alive"—then do all infants stand in covenant relation to the Father.

If children are left without the covenant of grace, and have no interest in the blood of Christ, and no standing in the family of God; and if their relation to the church is ignored, and the duty of the church toward them is undefined, we ought to know the fact, however sad and dismal the thought, and however chilling to the best feeling of our hearts such a discovery must inevitably be. But the study of the New Testament on this subject leaves no sting behind. All its utterances, however brief, are singularly comprehensive, and full of comfort. "It is not the will of your Father in heaven that one of these little ones should perish."

Anti-Pedobaptists generally believe that children dying in infancy are saved through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus. True it is, that I have heard two Baptist preachers say there are infants in hell not a "span long;" but notwithstanding this and their Calvinistic tenets, Baptists generally believe in infant salvation. However, if I am incorrect, let them rise up and correct me, and I will leave them to the judgment of a just God, a just people, and to the hope of all those who have infants in the grave.

Now, in view of God's manner of dealing with his people at all times, including infants in every covenant, they must be included with their parents in baptism, as it is but a token of the covenant of grace. No inference nor supposition, whatever, can set aside this conclusion. It must stand, and will stand, until there is shown an express injunction of Christ Jesus against it.

SECTION II.

In the former section it was shown that God never entered into any covenant whatever, with any people, without including their children. In this it will be shown that whenever there was a rite or ceremonial employed in initiating into a covenant, the same rite, or ceremonial, administered to the parent was administered to the child.

1. In the covenant which God made with Abraham, he instituted circumcision as the rite, or ceremonial, of initiation into it. And not only did Abraham himself receive the rite, but also his infant Isaac. "This is my covenant, which ye shall keep, between me and you and thy seed after thee; every male child among you shall be circumcised. And ye shall circumcise the flesh of your foreskin; and it shall be a token of the covenant betwix me and you. And he that is eight days old shall be circumcised among you, every man-child in your generations." (Gen. xvii, 10-12.) Observe that "Abraham was ninety years old when he was circumcised" (verse 24), but Isaac was only eight days old. "And Abraham circumcised his son Isaac, being eight days old, as God had commanded him." (Chap. xxi, 4.) From this transaction, we learn that God made no difference between Abraham and Isaac, considering that Isaac was as much entitled to the token of the covenant, though an unconscious babe of only eight days old, as was his father, Abraham, a man of ninety years old.

2. When the children of Israel were brought into the Mosaic covenant, four hundred and thirty years after the covenant made with Abraham, we find the token of that covenant was bestowed upon the children the same as was upon the parents. St. Paul says: "Moreover, brethren, I would not that ye should be ignorant, how that all our fathers were under the cloud, and all passed through the sea; and were all baptized unto Moses in the cloud and in the sea." (1. Cor. x, 1, 2.) "By Moses, Paul unquestionably means the Mosaic covenant, or dispensation; and the baptism in the sea was administered to the whole congregation." By this typical baptism, all—men, women, and children—were brought under obligation of acting according to the Mosaic precepts, as Christians receiving Christian baptism are said to be baptized "into Christ," and are thereby brought under obligation to keep the precepts of the gospel.

Can anyone doubt that there were infants amongst this mighty multitude? If so, he will believe nothing if it suits his notion. "Were all baptized," expressly says the apostle. Certainly this "all" includes the men, women, and children who came out of Egypt; if not, what became of the children?—were they left in Egypt? The Bible does not say so, neither does it intimate that they crossed the sea in ships. If the reader will refer to the first chapter of Numbers, he will find from the numbering and ages there given, that there were infants among the host of Israel that were "baptized in the sea." Not only did these little children receive baptism, the token of the covenant, with their parents, but Paul tells us that "all these," which were done unto them, "were our examples."

3. We believe all are agreed that the present gospel ordinances are to bring us under obligation the greater to the observance of duty; and as the uncircumcised man-child should be "cut off from his people," because "he hath broken my covenant," so in this dispensation of grace are the ordinances not to be lightly considered, nor ruthlessly set aside. Therefore, the apostle is to be understood as explaining the commission on the Day of Pentecost. He was certainly enforcing the same principles contained in the Abrahamic covenant, when he said, "Repent and be baptized, . . . for the promise is to you, and your children." That is, if parents and children were included in the one, they certainly were in the other.

"When a positive institute is connected with a promise, all who are contained in the promise have a right to the institute. If parents must, therefore, be circumcised because they are included in the promise, then, as infants are included in the promise, they, too, must be circumcised. . . . Then, if parents must be baptized because the promise belongs to them (Peter said they should be baptized, because the promise belonged to them), then must their infants be baptized, because the promise belongs to them also." (Clement.) So, in this, as in the other covenants, the children are included with their parents, and are entitled to the same rite and benefits growing out of it.

ADDENDA.

From The Baptist, of May 29, published at Jackson, Miss., we clip the following gem (?): "To Christ, and not to the font, is where the children ought to be brought." We suppose infants are meant. Then, if they can be brought to Christ, as "believers," for this is the only way, according to Baptist teachings they can, they are proper subjects for baptism. But if they are not brought to Christ, that is, persuaded to "believe," then "they shall be damned." This is their doctrine! We think less water, and more of Christ, would help some grown folk.

A RARE SPECIMEN OF THE "GENUS CANIS."

Recently, an individual over in East Mississippi, claiming to be a preacher, exploded as follows: "I can find just as much Scripture for baptizing puppies as I can for baptizing babies."

We are not at all surpised at what he finds, or does not find. But hear Paul! "Brethren, I would not that ye should be ignorant, how that all our fathers were under the cloud, and all passed through the sea; and were all baptized unto Moses in the cloud and in the sea." Now, here are three "alls": "All under the cloud." This "all" includes the infants. "All passed through the sea." This "all" includes the infants. "And were all baptized." This "all," also, includes the infants. These "all," Paul says, were "our fathers." Now, as I am human, this proves infant baptism, as well as that of the older human beings, to me. But if this individual says that it proves puppy baptism to him, I have no "spute" to make with him, for he ought to know his tribe, and especially his father.

GRENADA COLLEGE COMMENCEMENT.

BY MISS MARY V. DUVAL.

DEAR DOCTOR BOSWELL: Psychologists—those learned scientists handed over to us from the nineteenth century—tell us that certain conditions of the grey matter of the human brain are absolutely necessary before certain emotions and feelings can be photographed thereon. If this be true, I am sure those conditions were met in the inner consciousness of the writer just a little over a week ago in witnessing the closing exercises of the collegiate year at dear old Grenada College. It is very seldom that a whole administration goes out so thoroughly en rapport with its constituency as that of President McIntosh and his retiring faculty; and the genuine Methodist "love-feast" held on commencement morning, when the plucky little president overcame his emotions enough to bid farewell to the people he loves best on earth, testifies to the three years of genuine good work done there—work that will live when college walls will have crumbled into dust. For what are colleges or universities, what thrones or principalities, when compared to the worth of immortal souls? We all rejoice that the good work of building the new "annex" was begun during commencement. Long may the grand old college live to battle with ignorance and sin, and send out strong, cultivated Christian women, thoroughly equipped, as in past years, to sow good seed in the Master's fields. A finer graduating class it would be hard to meet with anywhere; seventeen beautiful girls, Mississippi's "jewel" "cornerstones, polished after the similitude of a palace." Miss Minnie Brown, of Sallis, received the first honors, and Miss Lillian Applewhite, of Vaiden, the second. That "good Methodist blood" will tell was evidenced by the fact that the only "A. M." degree was won by Miss Elizabeth Kittle, of Evansville, Miss.—a little Delta violet, granddaughter of that consecrated man of God, the late Rev. W. P. Barton, of precious memory. As she came forward to receive her dearly and honestly won diploma, I thought of the promise, "Down to the latest generation thy seed shall be blest," and rejoiced that I had helped to contribute my share in building this lovely Christian character, whose foundations were laid in a Christian home and a godly ancestry. May all our work prosper in our hands so signally!

The Alumnæ meeting, contrary to precedent, was held on Friday evening, the exercises being of an unusually interesting nature. Rev. Mr. Robinson, of the Baptist Church in Grenada, delivered the annual address—one full of wit, wisdom, and friendly advice. The Alumnæ president, Miss Helen Dubard, presided with a gentle dignity that won her many encomiums.

Rev. L. S. Jones, of Port Gibson Female College, was "booked" for the commencement sermon on Sunday, and Rev. T. Y. Ramsey, whom Grenada and Grenada College delight to honor, for Sunday night. Owing to a death among his patrons Rev. Mr. Jones failed to arrive on Saturday, and so Brother Ramsey, who is always ready, filled the pulpit, to the delight of his many friends, on both the morning and evening occasions. Brother Ramsey's sermon on Sunday morning was indeed a finished and beautiful production, and his many friends could but regret, in listening to it, that his removal from our Conference and State would preclude in future their enjoying such "feasts of reason and flow of soul."

The May McIntosh Missionary Society held its annual meeting in the college chapel at 4 o'clock P. M. on Sunday.

The art levee on Monday morning and the grand concert on Monday evening both merit a much more extended notice than I can give here.

On Tuesday morning the college chapel could not hold the vast audience that assembled to witness the graduating exercises. Rev. L. S. Jones more than fulfilled the expectations of his hearers in his address to the graduates, and all who listened to him felt better and stronger for having heard him. The baccalaureate address by President McIntosh was short, pithy, and to the point. He knew his audience, and they knew him. It was a spiritual communion, a looking backward to days that are no more, and a looking forward to the things that are in store for those that love the Lord. Nothing could be more beautiful than the spirit of love and confidence existing between President McIntosh and the young natures committed to his care. It is his strong point, an armor of influence that encompasses him wherever he goes—the spirit of love and gentleness, "the greatest thing in the world." Oh, that the earth were filled with this spirit, the spirit of Christ.

Sardis, Miss., May 30, 1902.

PORT GIBSON COMMENCEMENT.

Commencement at the Port Gibson Female College has come and gone. The occasion was one of interest from start to finish. Dr. Carpenter, of Natchez, preached the commencement sermon. His subject was, "Christ the Ideal of Normal Life." It was a most thoughtful discourse, flashing with the fires of eternal truth; a most timely sermon, calculated to inspire young life with high ideals of living. Dr. Carpenter is a great preacher.

Monday evening the college chapel was filled to overflowing. Everybody was out to see what the primaries could do. The little folks showed that they had been well trained, and reflected much credit upon those who had drilled them.

Tuesday night was grand concert night. During these exercises most of the pupils took part, thus bringing before the public much of the work done during the year. The showing was good. We have never witnessed a more interesting exhibition of talent and thorough training.

Wednesday evening was occupied with the graduating exercises. Miss Mable Adams, who received the degree of M. E. L., read a most interestiug original essay on "Drift Not; Row." Miss Minnie Lee Jones received the degree of B. E., and gave us some of the finest readings we have ever heard. Miss Florence Rowland graduated in book-keeping. Dr. J. W. Chambers, of McComb City, delivered the literary address. His subject was, "The Educational Possibilities of Mississippi: Her Present and Future Literature." It was a masterful address. Dr. Chambers is a strong, fluent speaker.

There is an air of progress and prosperity in this, our oldest Mississippi female college. The college life is highly religious. Every girl in the school is a member of some church, and most of them consciously saved. This institution is worthy the patronage of our church.

OBSERVER.

THE OBJECT OF THE MINISTRY.

Strange views, now and then, are seen and heard about the object of the ministry; and let it not be forgotten that the more incorrect one's views are, and especially those of a minister, concerning the real object of the ministry, the further he is likely to be from being a real minister. One is likely to aim at his ideal of a real minister, and hence it is clear that if his ideal is false, his life as a minister will be false. If his ideal is that of selfishness, he will most likely live specially for himself, if not wholly. If he thinks of ease and worldly glory for himself, he will likely strive for them; and if he strives for them, then he will have to strive unlawfully. He will have to leave out God's counsel, and pander to the unlawful wishes of the unlawful. God does not call men to the ministry to have ease and to glorify themselves, but to glorify him, and that can not be done in this world without diligence all the time and sufferings. Our itinerant idea is not that of "driving down stakes," but is that of going where God and the church need us, to remain until we are needed more elsewhere, whether our stay is the time-limit of four years or one year. The idea of "stake-driving" is too much the ruling one already for the good of our Zion. We have known brethren to drive down stakes and stay four years at places, although the church did not flourish under their ministry, and their return each year was not desired. The one consuming thought with every true minister should be the glory of God, the edification of the church, and the salvation of sinners, whether we stay in a place one year or four; otherwise, we are most likely to have more of ourselves in it than the glory of God and the good of the people. A minister may drive down his stakes to stay at a place four years, and determine to stay, if he has to allow his people to do many sins unrebuked, much less to neglect to enforce discipline. In some places he will have thus to do if he stays four years with the consent of the people. Our Lord could not stay in some places but a few hours, even with some of the leading members of his church; and is it true that his disciples are better than he? "If any man come to me, and hate not his father, and mother, and wife, and children, and brethren, and sisters, yea, and his own life also, he can not be my disciple." (Luke xiv, 26.) If any other sentiment than this is adopted, and a preacher drives down stakes to stay, and does all he feels is necessary to stay, and then is moved, he will most likely feel that great injustice is done him, and his character as a real minister is damaged, in the estimation of the Conference especially, if he is not moved to a more creditable charge, even if his move was not the product of jealousy, unholy scheming, wire-working, etc. Let us be wholly the Lord's, and we shall not waste time in hunting for and driving down stakes, but we shall go wherever he sends us, and do what we can until he sends us elsewhere.

Miscellaneous.

The Berlin Church Synod has again caused great sensation by openly discussing the growing depravity of the Berlin youth of both sexes, says a dispatch from Berlin to the London Chronicle. It seems that although churches are being multiplied in the capital, the church is fast losing its influence on the people, and especially on the rising generation, a fact which the delegates at the synod prefer to ascribe primarily to extraneous influences. The Socialists are blamed for educating their children to disdain authority and piety, and mothers are taken to task for being indifferent to the dangers run by their daughters. The Roman Catholic clergy are described as keeping a sharp lookout on children of mixed marriages. The universal practice is condemned of parents keeping their children out late at night in restaurants. Finally, the startling statement is made that one marriage out of every twelve contracted in Berlin is followed by divorce. The synod ultimately passed a series of resolutions calling the attention of the secular authorities to the danger to public morality occasioned by low-class variety theatres and music halls, which are increasing at an alarming rate all over Berlin. A resolution was also passed urging the police to close all restaurants and public houses during church time on Sunday morning, but this has created such a storm of protest from the publicans that it will no doubt prove quite futile.

Many households fail to realize even a moderate ideal of happiness, not from a lack of love, or for want of moral principle, but simply from lack of ideas. The husband's occupation may bring him into contact with many persons, but his thoughts and reflections get into a rut. The wife, for one reason or another, gets into following a very narrow round. The result is that neither of them bring to each other or into the home any new ideas of fresh impulses, and so the common life becomes stale, flat and unprofitable. There is one wholesome corrective to this, and that is hunt for ideas, just for the sake of brightening up other people in the home. If you hear a good story, keep it in mind. If you learn of an interesting fact or a novel argument, treasure it for the sake of the good it will do the home circle. The reason why conversation in the home so often descends to the level of nagging, is that people lack ideas and outlook. They do not say pleasant or bright or interesting things, not because they are dull or ill-natured, but because there is nothing in their heads for their minds to work on. The wheels whir and bazz, but the clock doesn't strike.—The Watchman.

Often, but not too often, do we hear of the abiding influence of the mother's life and example in the lives of the boys who go from home into the busy world, but too seldom is the inestimable value of the father's influence extolled. With inexpressible gratitude for all that mother represents, the father is the boy's ideal of a man, and stands as the head of the household and the unit of society. A noble father, upright, honorable, conscientious in all the relations of life toward wife and mother and children in the home, in business and social engagements, of unswerving integrity, just and self-controlled, honored in all the community in which he dwells, is a silent, but irresistible power in deciding the character of his sons. Never can they forget that they are the children of such a father. While the love of mother will keep them tender, the example of father will make them noble.—C. E. Earle, in Baptist Standard.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

INDIAN BAYOU CIRCUIT.

DEAR BROTHER BOSWELL: We are making some progress in our Lord's work on the Indian Bayou circuit. We have large and attentive congregations, and souls are being converted, and Christians strengthened in faith. Dr. C. W. Carter, our faithful presiding elder, was with us at Bethel last Saturday and Sunday. The Doctor was at his best, and the four sermons he preached were accompanied with the power of the Holy Spirit. As a result of this quarterly meeting ten joined the church, five children baptized, and many brought nearer to God. Our Sunday-schools are doing well, and our young people are becoming interested in our Epworth League work. Pray for us, that the good work may continue.

Yours in Christ,

F. N. SWEENEY, P. C.

GUEYDAN, LA.

DEAR DOCTOR: I have just closed a fine meeting in Gueydan. The church has had a great spiritual uplift. Notwithstanding the bad weather for at least four days, we had good congregations for this time of the year. There is a world of work to be done here, with a poor workman in the field. The meeting was opened on Sunday, May 11, but comparatively nothing was done until the fifteenth. It closed on the twenty fifth. Two professed sanctification, ten were converted or reclaimed, and five joined the church.

Bro. A. C. Smith, of Lafayette, La., was with me a while. Bro. Martin Hebert, our French preacher, was with me to the close. His sermons were practical, clear, and strong. The interest was at its height when the meeting closed. We collected at least twenty or twenty-five dollars for the French Mission parsonage. God has wonderfully blessed us.

The whole circuit is progressing as nicely as can be expected at present. I am, in our Lord,

Your brother,

A. A. BERNARD.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

HARRISTON CIRCUIT.

DEAR BRO. BOSWELL: We have passed the second Quarterly Conference. It was held at Martin. Our presiding elder, Bro. Adams, was at his post, full of well-directed labor for the Master. He preached us three very excellent sermons that made a strong impression for good. The one on Sunday, at eleven o'clock, was very fine. We had a nice turn-out of officials, and they made a good financial showing for the quarter. The circuit is moving along nicely just now. May God graciously bless all the churches and all the members. We are anxious for a gracious revival all over the work and throughout the church. Pray for us. Fraternally,

A. D. MILLER.

Lorman, Miss., May 30, 1902.

GULFPORT, MISS.

DEAR BRO. BOSWELL: Gulfport is growing marvelously. Our congregations are large, and we are hopeful of gracious results. We are seeking to have our Sabbath observed, and to drive out the whisky traffic. Our membership has doubled. W. D. DOMINICK.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

DURANT, MISS.

DEAR ADVOCATE: We have just closed a good meeting, resulting in the building up of the church and the adding of ten to our membership. These all joined on profession of faith. Bro. Lagrone preached seven times, Bro. Gladney eight, the pastor seven, the Baptist pastor three, T. Y. Ramsey twice, and the Presbyterian pastor once. There was a diversity of preaching, but one spirit. Nine of the ten who joined were members of the Sunday-school. It is the legitimate result of our work in the Sunday-school, and it gives us unspeakable joy to record such a glorious fact. It is normal condition when the boys girls of the Sunday-school come into the church as they reach the proper age. We have received forty-two into the church since Conference. We give God all the glory.

With best wishes,

E. S. LEWIS.

How many Christians miss the secret of spiritual power! They are weak to resist temptation, and lack power to draw others to Christ. There is much friction to overcome in themselves. The oil can is as necessary to the continuous motion of a train as is the piston-rod, for without oiling the machinery would soon be destroyed. Christian joy is to the believer both impulse and lubrication.—Dr. D. Steele.

In marriage only when there is equality of health as well as affection. Affection may be the basis of unity in marriage, but the superstructure depends largely on the womanly health. When the wife is tormented with backache, distressed by headache, and racked by nervousness, she has no ambition for exercise or pleasure.

Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes weak women strong and sick women well. It cures headache, backache, and other womanly ills by curing the diseases of the womanly organism which cause them. It establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness.

Weak and sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, free. All correspondence is held as strictly private and sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

The dealer who offers a substitute for "Favorite Prescription" does so to gain the little more profit paid on the sale of less meritorious medicines. His profit is your loss, therefore accept no substitute.

"My wife commenced to complain twenty years ago," writes Lewis A. Miller, ex-Chief of Police, 33 Prospect Street, Weissport, Pa. "We have tried the skill of twelve different doctors. She took gallons of medicine during the time she was ill, until I wrote to you and you told us what to do. She has taken eight bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and six of the 'Golden Medical Discovery.' She can do her own work now and can walk around again and is quite smart.

"You can publish this letter if you wish. We have received such benefit that we wish every sufferer could derive the same amount of good. My wife's complaint seemed to be a complication of diseases—so the doctors said. We will ever remain your friends. May God bless you and your Institute."

Dr. Pierce's Pellets are the most desirable laxative for delicate women.

The Commoner

(Mr. Bryan's Paper)

The Commoner has attained within six months from date of the first issue a circulation of 100,000 copies, a record probably never equaled in the history of American periodical literature. The unparalleled growth of this paper demonstrates that there is room in the newspaper field for a national paper devoted to the discussion of political, economic, and social problems. To the columns of The Commoner Mr. Bryan contributes his best efforts, and his review of political events as they arise from time to time can not fail to interest those who study public questions.

The Commoner's regular subscription price is $1 per year. We have arranged with Mr. Bryan whereby we can furnish his paper and NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE together for one year for $2.25. The regular subscription price of the two papers when subscribed for separately is $3 net. When remittance is made by personal check ten cents extra will be charged.

THURSDAY, JUNE 12, 1902.

The Rev. J. D. Walsh reported the proceedings of our late General Conference for the Western Christian Advocate, Cincinnati. In reporting the failure of the Daily Advocate to print the minority report of the Committee on Publishing Interests after the authors of the report had been granted the option of printing in the Daily, or in pamphlet form, he simply says, "It appeared next day that the publisher of the Daily Advocate had declined to print it." We wonder why Mr. Walsh did not state the publisher's reason for declining? He was present, and heard all that was said. He knows it was distinctly stated that the libel laws of Texas are such that the publisher's attorney advised him not to print the document. Mr. Walsh leaves the readers of the Western to infer that the publisher of the Daily willfully defied the action of the Conference, which was not the case.

Isn't Bro. Bailey, of The Baptist, mistaken in saying that the M. E. Church, South, has "women preachers — already?" We do not know any. We did know of one who was licensed about fifteen years ago, but it was under the administration of a man who did not understand the law. The act was declared invalid. That a few try to preach without authority may be true. We know none, even of that sort, who are now in fellowship with us. We have sins and shortcomings enough to answer for without sinning against good order by licensing our women to preach. We may possibly reach that point in the course of time. We are not there yet.

We hope there will be no disturbance among our Southern Baptist brethren on account of the action of Dr. Broughton and his deacons, of Atlanta, "who have taken a stand in favor of the reception into the church, without re-immersion, of all immersed persons who were professors of faith before such immersion, whether performed by a Baptist minister or by some other person." "This," the Chicago Standard says, "is the usual custom in many Northern Baptist Churches." Such is not the custom in the South. On the contrary, the old "land-marks" are still observed, and "alien immersion" will have a hard time in securing recognition. Dr. Broughton may get into trouble.

Since the abolition of the time-limit by our sister Methodism is not only proving troublesome, but imperiling the itinerancy itself, we, of the Methodist Church, South, should rejoice that our recent General Conference looked with so little favor on any move that had for its object the wiping out of our land-marks. And "we can keep on letting well enough alone."

ETERNAL LIFE.

No man begins to live and enjoy life, as God desires and purposes he shall, until there comes to him a consciousness of life eternal. There is, perhaps, in all well-instructed children a clear consciousness of acceptance with God, and the certainty of living forever, for all of them believe that they belong to Christ, and are heirs of the kingdom. But this can not be said of all who pass the line of accountability. The most of them forfeit their gracious relation, and lose both their consciousness of divine acceptance and their hope of heaven. It is to such souls the gospel appeals, and offers the reward of eternal life.

As to the nature, purpose and means of securing eternal life, no man need be ignorant. Jesus is "the true light which lighteth every man that cometh into the world." "Through him we have access by one Spirit unto the Father." The wayfaring man, though a fool, may feel after and find God.

In a sense, eternal life is the perpetuation of the life that now is. Man is immortal. He can but live, whether in this world or in that to come. But that which is called eternal life is to be distingnished from the natural or temporal life. In this world the sinner lives under condemnation, subject every moment to execution. Passing into eternity, though life is not extinct, he suffers torment which is eternal. This is the second death. If in this life he passes from condemnation, having the sentence of death removed, he comes into the possession of life eternal. "He that believeth on Christ is not condemned; but he that believeth not is condemned already, because he hath not believed in the name of the only begotten Son of God." "He that believeth on the Son hath everlasting life: and he that believeth not the Son shall not see life; but the wrath of God abideth on him." It will be noted here that eternal life is spoken of as being in the actual possession of the believer. It is no mere prospect founded on a hope. He hath everlasting life. Note also that the Scriptures speak of the believer as passing from death unto life. It is a transition by the power of God, faith in Christ being the condition on which God works. We say works, because the transition is not effected at the arbitrary dictation of faith, neither at the arbitrary dictation of the divine will, but by the Holy Ghost, in applying the atoning blood to the soul, thus cleansing it from sin, and fitting it for the gift of eternal life. By comparing these ideas and quotations with the general teachings of God's Word, the reader may come to a clear knowledge of the nature of life eternal. It is the life of God in the soul—a life "hid with Christ in God."

It is no trouble to determine the purpose of God in giving eternal life to as many as believe. Jesus said: "I am the door; by me if any man enter in, he shall be saved, and shall go in and out, and find pasture. . . . I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly"; not merely "to continue a living existence," but "to give the fullness of immortal, heavenly, glorified life." Our Lord's atonement did not stop short with saving man from perishing. It extended further. It opened the way by which man might "glorify God and enjoy him forever." These are the ends for which man was created. Herein is a manifestation of the divine love, which included concern for body as well as the soul, for the divine purpose is to save both body and soul, and both body and soul are to join in glorifying God on earth, that both together may enjoy him forever in heaven. Jesus comforted his disciples by assuring them that it was his Father's will that every one which seeth the Son, and believeth on him, should have everlasting life, and that he would raise him up at the last day.

How to secure eternal life is clearly revealed. "This is life eternal, that they might know thee, the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom thou hast sent." This means there is to be "a life of acquaintance with God in Christ." It is to be something more than a historical belief in the existence of the Father and the Son. Millions thus believe, but have no sort of saving acquaintance with God — no well-founded hope of eternal life. God in Christ is apprehended by faith. In no other way can we come to the knowledge. We can not see God with our natural eyes, nor hear him with our natural ears, but mind and will and heart combine in taking hold of God by faith, and we realize the impartation of the divine life as clearly and as sensibly as if God did actually and literally speak to us in so many words, and say: "This is life eternal." "By faith we know," is the triumphant affirmation of every child of God. In this faith we stand against all enemies of our religion. "Faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen." "With the heart man believeth unto righteousness, and with the lips confession is made unto salvation."

THE LAW AS TO LOCAL PREACHERS.

We offered, in last week's ADVOCATE, to show that the law recently enacted by the General Conference makes it possible to license persons to preach without so much as asking the consent of the District Conference. The authority to do so is found in a new paragraph to follow paragraph 75. It reads as follows:

The District Conference shall elect annually, on nomination of the presiding elder, a Licensing Committee of six, or four, of which the presiding elder shall be a member and chairman. They shall serve until the ensuing Annual Conference, and, in case of absolute necessity, shall have the power, by unanimous vote, on thorough examination on the prescribed course of study, to license proper and duly recommended preachers (persons) to preach. In cases where it is clearly impossible for the applicant to reach the District Conference, the presiding elder may examine him and report to the Conference.

Here is provision for a "Licensing Committee." This committee is to be appointed by the District Conference, to be composed of men of the presiding elder's own choosing, and is to serve from date of appointment until the ensuing Annual Conference. Between these two dates the committee has power, under certain conditions, to license proper persons to preach. This is an innovation, pure and simple, on all the history and traditions of Methodism. It is the delegation of authority to a select number to do that which the law, in another statute, says shall be done by the District Conference — a breach of Methodist economy which we do not think is at all justifiable. It is true the paragraph gives such authority only in case of "absolute necessity," but it does not say who is to determine the necessity of the case. The applicant may plead necessity in the interval between the District and the ensuing Annual Conference. The committee may take a different view, and thus knock the applicant out of license for a whole year.

In the territory of the patronizing Conferences of this ADVOCATE, District Conferences are often held as early as April; the Annual Conferences from the last week in November to the middle of December. But some of the District Conferences are not held until August. In the one case the Licensing Committee would be in existence about seven months; in the other only about four months. Just why the district was left without the intervention of a Licensing Committee from the Annual to the District Conference, perhaps no man in Southern Methodism can tell.

Next, the examination of a candidate on the "prescribed course of study" (What is the course of study? Who can tell?) is to be thorough. Who is to do the examining, and who is to determine the thoroughness of the examination, is not stated. Whether the committee appointed by the presiding elder to examine candidates for license to preach (see paragraph 165, page 72), or the presiding elder himself, or the Licensing Committee of six, or four, is to do the examining, this new paragraph does not say. Paragraph 165 is still in force: the new law does not abrogate it, and in addition to the appointment of the Licensing Committee, the presiding elder must keep alive his committee of three appointed as heretofore for the District Conference; else he must appoint another committee of three to examine a candidate, and this committee must report to the Licensing Committee. All this must be done to keep one law from coming in conflict with another. By the time the whole law is complied with, the presiding elder, and several other brethren, will find their hands full.

In the next place, the Licensing Committee must be unanimous. It will not do for the presiding elder, who is a member of the committee as well as chairman, to side one way, and the other members another way. But as "all votes to license persons to preach shall be by ballot" (see paragraph 74, page 36), there can be no trouble. One vote in the negative will settle the matter.

The last clause is a saving clause, so far as an applicant for license is concerned. If it is clearly impossible (the applicant himself or the presiding elder being judge) for him "to reach the District Conference, the presiding elder may examine him and report to the Conference." That is certainly the grant of great grace—a give way to the pleas that many have made during the last eight years to the effect that it was impossible to attend the District Conference. We are glad of it. It gives the applicant, who, maybe, is poor and timid, a chance, and it magnifies the office of presiding elder. But we utterly fail to see the justice or consistency of granting such a concession in favor of an applicant and denying it to a licentiate, who, for cause, may fail to reach the District Conference, and thus lose his license, as has often been the case.

We fully admit the good intentions of those who framed this legislation. It may work for good. So mote it be. It is the law, and we shall, as far as we have to do with it, obey it, and advise others to do the same. But there will be trouble.

"SHORT HISTORY OF METHODISM."

Dr. H. W. Featherstun, of Mississippi, communicates the following complimentary notice of the "Short History of Methodism" to the Epworth Era. Dr. Featherstun's notice is flattering, but we can afford to reprint it, if thereby it will increase the circulation of the book, and put our young people (or old ones, either) in the way of obtaining a knowledge of Methodist history. Dr. Featherstun says:

I have for some time been seeking a history of Methodism suitable for study by the Leaguers, and have found none so good as Dr. Boswell's. In the first place, it is a "short history," and that means very much, for but few of our young people have the time, the patience, or the mental discipline, to read a long array of historical details, many of which are of minor importance. Dr. Boswell knows how to condense. His book, a 16mo, covers only 167 pages, and yet it begins with the birth of Methodism, and ends with July 30, 1900. Nor are any important details omitted. Dr. Boswell's style is as clear as it is condensed. The boys and girls still in the grammar school will not find it difficult to understand.

Brief as it is, there will be found in it some things that many of our preachers and older laymen have not learned. Let our Leagues everywhere get Dr. Boswell's "Short History of Methodism," and form classes for its study.

H. WALTER FEATHERSTUN.

Moss Point, Miss.

We will, until further notice, send the "Short History" and the ADVOCATE one year, to all subscribers, new or renewing, for TWO DOLLARS cash, the subscriber to pay cost of sending the money. If checks are sent, ten cents must be added. The price of the history is sixty cents. It will be mailed postpaid. We would like to have many orders on this proposition during the dull months of the Summer.

RESIGNATION OF DR. COOPER.

Resolutions adopted by the Board of Trustees of Centenary College:

Resolved, 1. That we do profoundly appreciate the earnest and devoted services rendered by Dr. I. W. Cooper to Centenary College in his capacity as president.

2. That we greatly regret to sever the bonds of our official relations which have existed most agreeably between us.

3. That we feel that he has greatly added to the prosperity of the college, and the fruits of his labors abide here.

4. That we pray God's blessings upon him in all his future career.

School Catalogue.

The first catalogue of the season to reach us comes from Poplarville, Miss. It is a "Catalogue of the Tenth Session of the Poplarville High School," presided over by Prof. W. I. Thames. This school is what its name indicates—not a college, but a high school. It prepares boys and girls for college and university. It is in a healthy pine region of Southern Mississippi, in a fine community, and is well patronized. The faculty is complete.

A Change of Date.

The Arcadia District Epworth League Conference, which was to have been held at Arizona, June 25-29, has been postponed till later in the Summer.

Temper your spirit by grace and be patient. It will help you over many rough and thorny places.

PLEASE HELP.

We desire to raise a small amount of money—thirty or forty dollars—to assist a poor, sick preacher in securing a change of locality for a month or two. He has been sick a long time, and destitute. A change to a congenial atmosphere, where he can also have a change of water and diet, may save his life and restore him to health. He is a good man, and has been useful. Small sums will be thankfully received. We will faithfully apply the money. Who will respond? Read Matt. xxv, 31–40.

Address JNO. W. BOSWELL,
512 Camp St., New Orleans, La.

In answer to the above appeal we have received up to date (June 10) the following sums:

PERSONAL.

Prof. U. S. Ineichen, vocalist and musician, will make engagements to help in meetings anywhere in Louisiana and Mississippi. He will be particularly pleased to assist at camp meetings. Brother Ineichen may be addressed at Fayette, Miss.

Rev. W. M. Young, presiding elder of the Corinth district, says: "The second round has been exceptionally good in several respects. The preachers are doing nicely." And we have no doubt the preachers are saying, "The presiding elder is doing finely."

The Western Christian Advocate, of Ardmore, Ind. Ter., says: "Rev. J. B. Mitchell is doing well at Guthrie. He has the will, the knowledge, and the industry, and will succeed anywhere." We are glad to hear this good account of one of our Mississippi boys.

Bishop Hoss preached the commencement sermon for the Memphis Conference Female Institute, at Jackson, Tenn., on Sunday, June 1. It goes without saying that he both entertained and edified the congregation. The following Sunday he was at Oxford, Ga., and preached the commencement sermon for Emory College.

The Southwestern University, Georgetown, Texas, has conferred upon Rev. G. B. Winton, the newly-elected editor of the Christian Advocate, Nashville, the honorary degree of D. D. The honor is worthily bestowed. The Doctor has entered upon his work as editor, and makes a fine beginning. We heartily welcome Dr. Winton to the fraternity.

At the meeting of the Board of Trustees of Centenary College, last week, Dr. I. W. Cooper was re-elected president of the college, but the following day he tendered his resignation, which was accepted. The appointment of his successor was left to the Executive Committee of the Board. Dr. Cooper's work at Centenary for the four years of his presidency has been eminently successful.

We had the pleasure this week of a visit from Rev. W. E. Vaughan, editor of the Pacific Methodist Advocate. After the close of the General Conference he ran over into Georgia to see old friends, and was on his way back to his California home. We enjoyed his half-hour stay in our office very much. He was in health and fine spirits, and very hopeful of the future. He reports peace in those sections of the church he has recently visited.

Dr. Andrew Hunter, of the Little Rock Conference, one of the oldest preachers of our church, died, last week, at his home in Little Rock. He was nearing his ninetieth year, and had been in Arkansas since 1830, the date of the organization of the Arkansas Conference. He was in all respects the most popular and most useful man that ever traveled in Arkansas. He was, late in the sixties, elected to the United States Senate, but declined the honor, preferring his place as an humble preacher of the gospel. He could not be turned aside from the one work of his life. He has earned a great reward.

Preachers' Meeting Notes.

The New Orleans Preachers' Meeting convened Monday, June 9, 1902. Present: W. W. Drake, J. F. Foster, P. H Fontaine, R. H. Wynn, L. F. Alford, and C. D Atkinson. Absent: W. H. LaPrade, F. N. Parker, and M. F. Johnson.

Additions reported: Felicity, 10; Burgundy, 2; Dryades, 2; Parker Memorial, 5; Mary Werlein, 4; Louisiana Avenue, 1.

Rev. J. A. Alford, student of Millsaps College, and Mr. Lewis Wicht were visitors at the meeting.

During the past month revival services, led by Bro. Drake at Burgundy Street Church, resulted in much good.

Children's Day was observed at Burgundy, Dryades, and Louisiana Ave.

Rev. L F. Alford reported a revival service held at Gouldsboro.

The pastors who attended the commencement at Centenary College expressed themselves as very hopeful in regard to the future of our college. C. D. ATKINSON, Sec.

First Dose Cured.

Permanent relief: "My daughter contracted chills in 1877. No prescription ever gave more than temporary relief, no tonic kept them off. Two bottles of Hughes' Tonic cured her completely. She had no chill after taking the first dose." Sold by Druggists—50c. and $1.00 bottles.

Seashore Camp Ground.

The thirty-first Annual Camp Meeting will begin on Wednesday, July 9, and continue eight or ten days. The wharves and bath houses which were destroyed by last Summer's storms are being rebuilt, and other improvements made for the comfort and convenience of the large crowds which always attend our camp meetings.

Arrangements have been made with the Louisville and Nashville railroad and connecting lines whereby reduced rate tickets will be sold to the Seashore Camp Grounds from July 5 to 17, inclusive, good to return until August 31.

The presiding elders of the Mobile, New Orleans and Seashore District Conferences of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, have charge of the religious exercises and will be assisted by the best preachers that can be obtained. Preaching under the tabernacle, grove and cottage prayer meetings, and other religious services, will be held during each day and evening, to which all on the grounds are not only cordially invited, but are expected to attend.

The fourth Annual Tri-State Epworth League Conference will be held on the grounds commencing Wednesday, July 23, and continuing through Sunday, August 3. Reduced rates have also been obtained from the Louisville and Nashville railroad and connecting lines to this Conference. Tickets will be on sale from July 21 to Saturday, August 2, good to return until August 31. These Epworth League Conferences are growing in interest every year. Their services are not only interesting, but instructive, and much good is resulting from them. All Leaguers and those interested in this work are earnestly invited to be present at the next Conference, which will no doubt be largely attended.

The Seashore Camp Ground is located on Mississippi Sound, two miles west of Biloxi, and is one of the most beautiful places on the Gulf coast. It enjoys a railroad service that is unexcelled for comfort and convenience; the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company operating fourteen regular passenger trains that pass through the grounds on Wednesdays, and ten trains on other days. A magnificent artesian well furnishes cool and life-giving water from a depth of many hundred feet, and by a perfect system of water works the cottages and hotel are furnished with this water direct from the well. The hotel has a frontage of 160 feet on the beach. A multitude of magnificent shade trees temper the noon-day sun, and at night numerous electric lights dispel the darkness and illumine the roads and pathways that intersect the grounds. A new pier 1 240 feet in length, with a summer house on the end, extends out into the Gulf and offers positively the most delightful advantages in the South for a promenade. The bathing is unexcelled, surpassing all other points on the Gulf. All parties residing on the grounds have the privilege of the bath houses. Good board can be secured at the restaurant, which is always in charge of a competent chef, and in private houses at reasonable rates, four to six dollars per week.

There are also a limited number of furnished cottages on the grounds that can be rented cheap for the season. The comforts and conveniences of all visitors will be carefully looked after.

All Methodist preachers will be admitted into the grounds and provided with board and lodging free of charge.

Persons wishing to secure accommodations before the rush of opening of camp meeting should address communications to Rev. J. L. Jordan, Keeper Seashore Camp Ground, Biloxi, Miss., or any of the following officers:

J. B Leftwich, President, Mobile, Ala; Dr. E L. McGehee, Vice-president, New Orleans, La.; W. B Thomson, treasurer, New Orleans, La.; S. H. Meyer, Financial Secretary, New Orleans, La; H. W. Spear, Recording Secretary, New Orleans, La.; J. W. Farish, Chairman Executive Committee, Biloxi, Miss.

Mississippi Conference.

To the Members of the Examining Committees and the Undergraduates of the Mississippi Conference, and Others Interested—

DEAR BRETHREN: For several reasons the committee composed of the Rev. Dr. W. L. C. Hunnicutt, the Rev. L. Carley and T. L. Mellen, appointed by the various Examining Committees at the last session of our Annual Conference, deem it advisable to postpone the holding of the "Normal Institute" till next year, when the new committees to be appointed at the next session of our Conference can organize and take such steps as are authorized by the recent action of the General Conference. Yours faithfully,

T. L. MELLEN.

Rev. R. M. Standifer, of the North Mississippi Conference, will please take due notice hereby, and govern himself accordingly.

Camp Meeting.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: Our camp meeting for South Union is to begin on the night of July 25. The Committee on Entertainment is as follows: Sam Moss, Chester; W. C. Buck, Ackerman; Walt Adams, Chester.

All who expect to attend please write to Sam Moss at Chester, Miss when to expect them, and they will be met at Ackerman.

Mississippi Leaguers.

The Conference of the Mississippi State Epworth Leagues will meet in Annual session in First Church, Jackson, Miss., Tuesday evening, July 1, 1902, continuing through the second and third.

Leagues should elect their delegates at once (each League being allowed one delegate for every fifteen members) and send the names to Mr. Robt. B. Ricketts, chairman Entertainment Committee, Jackson, Miss.

The Leagues will also forward their ten-cent assessment to the State treasurer, Mr. D. G. Patton, Jackson, Miss.

We hope the pastors will announce this Conference from their pulpits, and insist that their Leagues have a full delegation in Jackson. We will be glad to have as many of the pastors present as possible.

31ST ANNUAL CAMP MEETING

Seashore Camp Grounds.

Located on the Gulf Shore, with a frontage of 1,400 feet.

WILL OPEN (D. V.)

On Wednesday, July 9, next, and Continue for 8 or 10 Days.

The Grounds are opened April 1, and closed Nov. 1, for occupying cottages and reception of visitors. Modern and ample accommodations have been provided. The wharves and bath houses which were destroyed by last Summer's storms are being rebuilt, and other improvements made for the comfort and convenience of the large crowds which annually visit this refreshing and delightfully cool and bracing place of rest, free from malaria and contagious diseases.

The sea bathing is unsurpassed by any resort on the Mississippi Sound, while the supply of pure, sparkling drinking water is furnished by one of the finest of artesian wells, whose waters possess rare virtues.

The Grounds represent a beautiful grove of rare attractiveness, with its abundance of 20 odd varieties of shade trees, which afford shelter from the Summer heat.

The exhilarating sea breezes refresh the fatigued, and act as a tonic to the debilitated visitors from our smoke-enveloped and dust-stifling cities and towns. Boats for sailing and fishing always on hand. The drives along the seashore present magnificent views, and are over ten miles in length. Visitors are not expected to arrive or depart on the Sabbath day.

The L. and N. R. R. Company will place on sale the reduced rate of fare during the season, from all points on their lines, and secure a corresponding rate from all connecting lines. Tickets will be placed on sale July 5 to 17, inclusive, and be good to return on until Aug 31. Two daily mail trains stop at the Camp Grounds, besides the accommodation and excursion trains, during the entire Summer season. A fine hotel with a frontage of 175 feet, equipped with electric lights and all modern conveniences, has been erected.

All itinerant preachers of the Southern Methodist Church will be admitted into the grounds and provided with lodging accommodations in Wesley Hall free of charge.

The services during Camp Meeting are in charge of the presiding elders of the New Orleans, Seashore and Mobile District Conferences.

The fourth Annual Tri-State Epworth League Conference will be held on the Grounds, commencing Wednesday, July 23, and continuing through Sunday, August 3. Reduced rates have also been obtained from the Louisville and Nashville railroad and connecting lines to this Conference. Tickets will be on sale from Monday, July 21, to Saturday, August 2, good to return until August 31. These Epworth League Conferences are growing in interest every year. All Leaguers and those interested in this work are earnestly invited to be present at the next Conference, which will no doubt be largely attended.

The usual entrance fee will be in force this season. No charge will be exacted for entrance on the Sunday of the Camp Meeting. A cordial invitation is extended to all who desire to attend the Camp Meeting and spend a while on the Camp Ground.

Persons wishing to secure accommodations before and during Camp Meeting, or rent cottages for the season, will please communicate with Rev. J. L. Jordan, Keeper Seashore Camp Ground, Biloxi, Miss., or any of the following officers:

J. B. LEFTWICH, President, Mobile, Ala.

MR. EDITOR: I wish a small space in the children's column. I am eleven years old, and am in the fifth grade. School has just closed, and I feel at a loss to know what to do with myself. Our teacher is a splendid little man; and when I say he is little, I mean it, for he appears like a boy. But I know this people will miss him very much in our Sunday-school, for he teaches the largest class, and he is a splendid Sunday-school teacher. He will start to his home in Mississippi this week. Papa is an itinerant preacher, and he is away from home most of his time. I guess I will find plenty of work to do this Summer, for mama is never stout in the Summer season, and I can relieve her greatly by doing little things about the house, and I am anxious to do house-work. Mr. Editor, as this is my first letter I can not write a very long one; so I close.

LILLIE MAIE WILLIAMS.

The Meeting of Two Lives on a Summer Day.

Almira Tompkins stood beside the kitchen table. She was looking at the great yellow bowl of currant juice that she had been squeezing from the currants. "Well, now," she said, "that's as rich, pretty juice as ever was seen. Dear me, I've got to hurry; here's the jelly to make, and extra dinner to cook for the men who have come to help in the hay. Sometimes I wish I had a hired girl, but I s'pose she'd be more bother than help. I'm getting older each year, and it's a good deal to have the care of the house and farm, but I can't give up the dear old place. How could I see strangers in the window where mother used to sit, and walkin' in the garden among her flower beds? Yes, and some hard, thoughtless people makin' merry in the settin' room, where father used to have family prayers. To be sure, if I went away, I could'n't really see it, but some things live in one's mind no matter where one goes. Now, if brother Daniel hadn't gone off and died, I'd had some help with the work."

Just then there came a loud knock on the front door. Almira hastily dropped her skimmer and let down her sleeves. "I do wonder now if that's the minister's folks come to spend the day." She walked across the broad hall and opened the door. There stood a middle-aged woman.

Her face was thin and white. Looking up, she said: "Would you mind if I sat here on the steps and rested a bit? I've walked a long way this morning, and it's such a hot day."

"O, my," interrupted Miss Almira, "the sun will soon be shinin' on them steps; come right in the settin' room."

The tired woman followed the speaker into the cool, half-darkened room, and sank into a chair.

"Now, you'll have to excuse me a minute, 'cause I'm bilin' jelly and must run out and see to it."

Presently Miss Almira returned with a plate of old-fashioned cookies and a glass of milk.

As she entered the room the stranger asked, "How far is it from here to Farmer Simpkins?"

"O, it's some distance. You ain't goin' to walk so fur this hot day, I hope?"

"Yes; I think I must. I heard they wanted a girl through harvest and haying, and I think I'd better go on or some one else may get the place. I used to work in the city, but I had a long illness, and then the doctor said I must come to the country. I come as far as Beckman's Corners on the train, and then I thought I'd walk an' inquire along the road. I thought at this season of the year I'd be likely to get a place somewhere. Some one told me about their wantin' a girl at Mrs. Simpkins', so I'm on my way there."

"Well, such a tired-lookin' woman as you can't walk to John Simpkins' farm to-day in the heat. Now, you just stay here 'till after supper, an' my hired man will drive you over. There never was a more obligin' man than Seth. He'd go now, but we've got extra help in the hay to-day, an' so he can't break off. Help's scarce here, so you needn't be afraid of some one's gettin' the place ahead of you."

"How good you are," said the woman, as she drank the milk and ate her little luncheon. "I shall feel rested when I've had the cakes and milk, an' if I'm going to stay till night, can't I go out an' help you along with the dinner?"

"Why, yes, to be sure you can. It'll be a real help to have some one cut the ham, wash the potaters, and grind the coffee."

The two women went out to the kitchen together. Just then Seth looked in at the door.

"Could I have a jug of switchel and some cakes to take to the field for the men?" he asked.

"The ginger and molasses and things s'll stirred up ready for the water; just help yourself. Seth," continued Miss Almira, "here's a poor woman goin' over to John Simpkins' to try and get a place. She's been sick, an' it's such a hot day to walk so fur, I told her after tea you'd hitch up and take her over."

"To be sure I will, an' more'n glad to give her a lift," said Seth, as he went out of the door whistling, "Come thou fount of every blessing."

"You can just wash your hands at the sink, an' tie on this apron of mine. You'll feel better out here to work," said Almira Tompkins. "Somehow work takes the lonesomeness out of hearts sometimes, an' this old kitchen is so home-like. Somehow father and mother and all of us have lived so much of our lives here that it seems as though it was dreadful near to heaven. You see they're all there, now."

"I'll just tie this ring up in the corner of my handkerchief," said the woman, "cause it's worn so thin. I'm afraid to work in it, for fear it'll come apart."

The other woman looked from the beans she was stirring on the stove, and her eyes fell on a thin, worn band of chased gold.

She gazed a moment, then dropped her spoon, and said, "Jest let me see that ring a minute."

Almira Tompkins gave one long look, and then asked, "Where did you get it?"

A faint color stole into the pale cheek as the other said:

"I shall have to tell you the story. Mother an' me took boarders in the city. A young man come to learn a trade an' he boarded with us. Bye-an'-bye we come to love each other, then he put that ring on my finger. It had been his mother's, he said.

"Then he was going to write to his folks all about it, but he got sick with fever an' died. He went off so quick there was no time to get his folks there, an' after he died an' we sent word, a neighbor of their'n come an' brought his body home, an' all his things. I put them up myself, but I kept this ring, because it meant a love that's never died. The years have gone, an' I'm alone now, but"—

"See here," said Almira Tompkins, taking up the slices of ham and laying them in the frying-pan, "what's your name, and what's the name of the man who gave you the ring?"

"I'm Jane Endicot, and his name was Daniel Tompkins."

"Yes, an' I'm Almira, his sister, an' he went out from this home an' you've come back in his place. I guess you'll never git to John Simpkins'."

"Seth, you needn't hurry in from the fields to-night," said Miss Almira, when they had finished their dinner; "we shan't want you to go over to Simpkins'."

. . . . . .

It was evening when the sweet odor stole up from the pinks and lavender in the garden, and the new-mown grass in the front yard. The birds were chirping low in the maple trees. A soft light was stealing over the hills.

Two women sat on the broad stoop of the Tompkins farmhouse. Miss Almira was holding Jane Endicot's thin, wrinkled hand.

"I thought," she said, "I needed help with the work, and I suppose I do, but my heart was lonesome. I'll tell you, Jane, we'll walk the road together 'till we stop before the gates of the Everlasting City. An' I guess it aint fur away. Somehow I feel as though mother an' father an' brother Daniel knowed we was together to-night."

Seth and Rover, the big farm dog, came 'round the house and laid down on the new mown hay. The full moon came up over the hills. Peace breathed everywhere, and, perhaps, as Almira Tompkins said, "The spirits of just men made perfect were hovering near" as the two women sang:

"Thus far the Lord hath led me on,
Thus far his power prolonged my days,
And every evening shall make known
Some fresh memorial of his grace."

Strength-Giving Sympathy.

It has been said that nothing shows the quality of a man so much as the source to which he turns for comfort. It is equally true that nothing shows one's estimate of another more than the sort of comfort one offers him. This is shown in the way different persons deal with a child that is hurt. One talks about the hurt, exclaims over it, caresses and pities. Another apparently disregards the hurt or makes light of it, and seeks at once to occupy the child with something else, until he forgets his pain, and laughter takes the place of tears. Often the child would hardly think of his hurt were not his mind fixed on it by supposed "sympathy." But that is the truest sympathy which seeks to spare him, not so much the suffering of the hurt as the suffering of thinking about it, and the emotional disturbances and nervous weakening which come from cries and complaints and fears.

That is the truest sympathy which feels for the child, not simply as undergoing now the smart of a burn or a sting or a cut, but as one who is sure to meet much suffering in the world, and whose success and happiness depend largely upon his being able to rise above it or apply himself to other things in spite of it.

A little girl had to be taken to the surgeon for a brief, but painful operation. The surgeon sought to relieve her fears by assuring her that it would not hurt much. Distrusting him, she turned to her grandfather, who accompanied her, asking: "Will it hurt, grandpa?" "Yes, my child, it will hurt badly," was the reply. Instantly she put out her arm and submitted to the operation without a murmur. It was false sympathy which prompted the surgeon to give the false assurance. It was actually true sympathy which led the grandfather to declare the truth—sympathy with her strength and courage.

True sympathy seeks not the sensibilities and the emotions, but the mind and the will. It seeks the latent strength rather than the manifest weakness.—Selected.

For His Mother's Sake.

The florist's boy had just swept some broken and withered flowers into the gutter, when a ragged urchin darted across the street. He came upon a rose seemingly in better condition than the rest. But as he tenderly picked it up the petals fluttered to the ground, leaving only the bare stalk in his hand. He stood still, and his lips quivered perceptibly.

"What's the matter with you, anyway?" the florist's boy asked.

The ragged little fellow choked as he answered: "It's for my mother. She's sick, and she can't eat nothin', an' I thought if she'd a flower to smell, it might make her feel better."

"Just you wait a minute," said the florist's boy as he disappeared. When he came out upon the sidewalk he held in his hand a beautiful half-opened rose. "There," he said, "take that to your mother."

He had meant to put that rosebud on his mother's grave, and yet he knew that he had done the better thing. "She'll understand," he said to himself, "and I know this will please her most."—Selected.

An Appeal to Our Friends.

We make a special appeal to our friends who owe us on subscription to send us the amount due. We need the money. The amount each one owes is small, but the aggregate amounts to hundreds of dollars. Our friends must see that it is embarrassing to us to withhold the money. Please look at the label on your paper, and if you are behind, send us the amount due. We will greatly appreciate it.

A HELPING FUND.

We have many calls to send the ADVOCATE to poor, aged persons at a reduced rate. This we always do. Are there not many persons, well-to-do in this world's goods, who will send us money—any sum they may see fit to give—to supply the ADVOCATE to persons who would like to have it, but are unable to pay anything? We will gladly send it to such for one dollar a year. We hope to get many responses to this appeal. Let those who respond designate the names of those to whom they desire the paper sent, or give the money to their pastors, and let them send the names. If names are not sent, the editor will do the best he can. Who will first respond?

Neglected Dyspepsia and Indigestion produce "Bright's Disease," undermines the vital organs, overthrows the mental faculties, producing insanity and death.

Mr. J. G. Thompson Ancote, Fla., voluntarily writes: "I suffered agonies from Dyspepsia. Walker's Famous Dyspepsia Cure quickly cured me. I gained 14 pounds in one month. My friends are astonished at my quick recovery. A wonderful medicine."

Rev. F. M. Martin, Van Wyck, S. C., "Best Dyspepsia medicine I ever found."

Rev. R. M. Boone, editor Baptist Chronicle, Alexandria, La., "Doing finely in my wife's case."

Mr. Leroy Turner, Sparta, Ga., "I could scarcely eat anything; two doses completely relieved me."

25-20 MARLIN.
THE 25-20 MARLIN is one of the handiest arms made and accurate to 300 yards, with light report and little recoil. Its bullet is more reliable than a 22 calibre and the barrel does not foul as rapidly. It will kill cleanly and quickly without tearing. Smokeless powder can be used to a large variety of loads, and the ammunition is cheap.

SAMUEL ETHAN FRIARSON BYRD was born in Harrison county, Miss., near Wool Market, June 11, 1871, and died at McHenry, Miss., May 30, 1902. He was the son of Jno. I. and Rebecca A. Byrd. Brother Byrd had been a faithful member of the M. E. Church, South, ever since he was a small boy. He daily lived his profession, and with his gentle, loving disposition endeared all to him who knew him. He was prominent in business circles, and in our memorial services his business partner gave the best testimony of his life I ever heard—that his lips were so free from taint of anything impure that he was never heard to use even slang phrases. He had truly taken the counsel of the Psalmist, "Keep thy tongue from evil, and thy lips from speaking guile." His sickness was long and severe, yet he bore it with patience, and left a bright testimony of the life of Christ that was in him, the hope of glory. He was at the time of his death a member of the Board of Stewards. We feel sorely his loss, and shall miss his counsel; yet we rejoice in his triumphant death. We carried him to Costville Church, where Bro. G. W. Huff held another scort memorial service, and then we laid him to rest with his loved ones and friends in that beautiful spot he loved so well. May our blessed Lord comfort the bereaved parents, brothers, sisters, and friends, and through his death give to each of us a deeper desire for that "more abundant life!" We sorrow not as those that have no hope, but expect to clasp hands again on that eternal shore. His pastor,

W. L. HIGHTOWER.

WILLIAM JAMES PARSALL was born in Ogdenburg, N. Y., June 18, 1830, and died at his home in Summit, Miss., at 11:15 P. M., Sunday, May 11, 1902, aged seventy-one years eleven months and twenty-four days. At the age of ten years his father died, and he was thrown on his own resources; yet he worked his way through the common schools of his day, and through the Allegheny College, Pennsylvania, laboring often till late at night to meet current expenses. At the age of eighteen he came to Vicksburg, Miss., and taught in a female school located in that city at that time. From there he moved to Baton Rouge, La., but the yellow fever of '53 drove him to Clinton, La., where he met and was married to Miss Lucretia C. Ratliff, who, with their only two children, survive him. Mindful of the education of his children, he moved to Summit, Miss., about 1860, where was a good school, and where he finished his life. Bro. Parsall was the first County Superintendent of Public Education of Pike county, Miss., and established the public school system in the county. For many years he was postmaster of Summit, and in all his public work maintained his Christian integrity. He was converted and joined the Methodist Church in his young manhood, and served it in almost every official capacity most faithfully. For nearly two years he was confined to the home, and at last, amid unmistakable evidences of his peace with God, went to his final reward.

H. F. LAWIS.

BRO. T. M. BROWN was born Dec. 10, 1838, and departed this life April 1, 1902. His death was the result of injuries received from falling last September, from which he was partially paralyzed to the time of his death. He was a patient sufferer for six months, but was always resigned to the will of the Lord. Bro. Brown joined the M. E. Church, South, in 1870, and served in an official capacity to the time of his death. His pastor was recognized as a part of his household. There was a ways a hearty welcome for the tired itinerant. As superintendent or teacher in the Sunday-school, he was most efficient. He was one of the most regular attendants upon the ordinances of the church I have ever known. His devotion and loyalty to her doctrines and discipline could not be excelled. In his home his virtues shone most beautifully; as a husband, always gentle and thoughtful; as a father, most devoted. He leaves a host of relatives and friends, who mourn their loss. Bro. Brown passed away in the triumphs of a living faith, and gave many evidences of his readiness for the change. W. A. CLARK.

LORENZO MCQUEEN was born Jan. 21, 1820, and died May 1, 1902, aged twelve years three months and eleven days. After an illness of seven days he departed this life in peace, leaving evidence of being prepared to go. He was a consistent member of the M. E. Church, South, and a bright Sunday-school scholar. In a dying hour, when asked by papa and mama, "Do you want to stay?" he said: "No, I want to go; I don't want to stay. I'll be the first to go." Humming beautiful songs, such as, "I'll be a true soldier; I'll die on the field," and "My mother's Bible," he fell on sleep, leaving father and mother, four brothers and five sisters, to mourn their loss. The funeral service was conducted by Rev. R. G. Williams, of Gulfport, Miss., who made a very impressive talk from those beautiful words, "I will come again, and receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also." (St. John xiv, 3.) "In my Father's house are many mansions," and we shall meet again. UNCLE ALBERT.

MRS. SELINA A. GAINES, the daughter of Rev. S. Evans, was born in the parish of St. Tammany, Aug. 1, 1830, and died May 23, 1902. She joined the Methodist Church in her young days, and became a faithful worker in her Master's vineyard. She was married to W. M. Gainer, and was blessed with eight children, five of whom remain to mourn her death—four sons and one daughter. She was a lover of her church, and trusted in the Savior whom she served. Having been her pastor only five months, I haven't seen much of her life; have conversed with her concerning her faith in Jesus, and found it very strong. She had not been able to attend her church for some time, but communed with her God alone. Seventy-one quiet, but beautiful, years stand as a monument to those who knew her. She gave assurance to those who wept at her dying bed that she would be with Jesus. She suffered no pain, but said, "All is well." Weep not, loved ones; she is just waiting on the other side.

Her pastor, H. E. CARTER.

JAMES E. CRAIG was born in Jackson parish, Feb. 14, 1875, and died at Oxford, DeSoto parish, April 27, 1902. Two years ago Mr. Craig married Miss Lillian Robinson, one of the first young ladies of DeSoto parish, and was a devoted and loving husband to the noble girl whom he won for his wife. He joined the M. E. Church, South, in 1896, and since then has lived a pure Christian life, forgiving the erring and loving his fellow-men. His daily walk was such that all who knew him loved him, and his loss is sadly mourned by many relatives and friends here. His fair young wife is bowed down by the blow, and her only consolation is the knowledge that he was fully prepared to pass to the better world, where friends can part no more. Even while dying he pointed upward, and said, with a smile, "There is heaven." It is a rare occurrence for such a young man to be so faithful a Christian, and his example is worthy of imitation by all. MRS. D. H. R.

MARGRET J. HAM, daughter of Bro. and Sister Thompson Grissom, and wife of Bro. Ham, was born Nov. 8, 1876, and died April 17, 1902. Sister Ham professed religion in 1885, and joined the M. E. Church at New Hope, Belmont circuit, of which she remained a member until her name was transferred to the church book on high. Her life was a life of purity and holiness, ever ready to do what she could for those she came in contact with. Through her death the church has lost an active member, her husband and little girl a devoted wife and mother, and the community a shining ornament. Her whole life ran in streams of usefulness and untiring devotion to the cause of Christianity. Her holy, purifying influence will long live in the hearts of those who knew her well. May God help the bereaved ones to be submissive to his will

M. L. TUCKAR, P. C.

LILLIE HALE, the daughter of William and Lillie Hale, was born Jan. 25, 1886, and died May 8, 1902. So brief was her earthly ministry of joy and grief for the inheritance of the kingdom of heaven. Everything that loving hand could do was done for her recovery, but the Father said: "Suffer her to come to me; I have work for her to do in heaven." She professed faith in Jesus Christ in August, 1901, and was ever ready to perform any task that might lead towards the upbuilding of God's kingdom here on earth. It was not my good fortune to have met her while living, but her neighbors have said she was a sweet, pure, noble young Christian; and I would say to her mother and other relatives, Weep not, for while you can not call her back to you, you can go to her. M. L. TUCKAR, Pastor.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and, therefore, requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address,

We Have It at Last

For many years we have been trying to get a Bible containing exactly the features which, to our mind, would constitute as nearly as possible especially for the use of preachers and teachers. We have contracted for a large number of a Bible which we believe to be the nearest to a perfect book we have ever seen. It contains the AUTHORIZED VERSION, DICTIONARY OF PROPER NAMES, SUBJECT INDEX, CONCORDANCE, AND MAPS. The type is long primer, self-pronouncing. It is 6x8½ inches, and only 1 inch thick. Bound in the best levant morocco, divinity circuit (overlapping edges), calf lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges. By reason of the large number contracted for we are selling this splendid Bible at only a little more than half its regular price.

A Perfect Bible

R·I·P·A·N·S

I have been taking R.I.P.A.N.S. Tabules. They aid digestion, regulate the bowels and are the best thing I know of after a night's sport. A great many golfers are using them.

ADVOCATE OFFER.

Magic White Soap, advertised in our columns, is manufactured in New Orleans by a responsible company, who can be relied on to do what is promised. The soap is what is claimed for it. There is none better on the market. A fair trial has been given it at the home of the editor, and the good wife, who knows what soap is, says "it is about the best she ever used." Our lady readers would do well to give this soap a trial. Send for a box of twenty bars—one dollar; charges paid by the manufacturer.

We make the following offer: We will furnish one box of this soap, and the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for one year, for $2.50, to new subscribers. We make the same offer to all who will pay up back dues, and send $2.50 additional. Cash must accompany the order. Address

JNO. W. BOSWELL,
512 Camp St., New Orleans.

ANOTHER NOTICE.

Requests for special copies of the ADVOCATE come to us so often that they are burdensome, and we again remind our friends that in making such requests they must send FOUR CENTS for each copy. We can not afford to "send bill," as we are sometimes asked to do. Please, friends, bear these things in mind.

If the label on your paper is wrong let us know, and we will correct. If it is right, and shows that you owe us, please send the amount due. We need the money.

Baton Rouge District Conference.

The Baton Rouge District Conference will convene in Zachary, La., Wednesday, July 2, at ten o'clock A. M. Rev. Robert Randle will preach the opening sermon at eleven o'clock A. M.

S. S. KEENER, P. E.

Notice.

The Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Mississippi Conference will convene at Yazoo City, Saturday, June 14, at 8 P. M.

All auxiliaries are urged to send delegatee in order that the number in attendance may entitle us to reduced rates on railroads. Ask agents for certificates when buying tickets in order to get one-third rate returning. Send names of delegates to Mrs. J. F. Powell, Yazoo City, Miss., as early as possible. Let us pray with united hearts for grace and wisdom from above, that our service may be acceptable to God.

A Card.

After two years at Millsaps College I have completed my course and am without work for the Summer and Fall. If any brother preacher knows of an opening, or has need of my assistance in meetings, I shall be glad to hear from him at Jackson, Miss; after June 10, Pittsboro, Miss.

A Chance to Make Money.

I have berries, grapes and peaches a year old, fresh as when picked. I used the California Cold Process. Do not heat or seal the fruit, just put it up cold, keeps perfectly fresh, and costs almost nothing; can put up a bushel in ten minutes. Last year I sold directions to over 120 families in one week; anyone will pay a dollar for directions when they see the beautiful samples of fruit. As there are many people poor like myself, I consider it my duty to give my experience to such, and feel confident anyone can make one or two hundred dollars round home in a few days. I will mail sample of fruit and full directions to any of your readers for nineteen (19) two-cent stamps, which is only the actual cost of the samples, postage, etc. FRANCIS CASEY, St. Louis, Mo.

General News.

The Kron Prinz Wilhelm has lowered the eastward record of ocean steamships, making the trip in five days eleven hours and thirty-two minutes.

President Mitchell of the Coal Miners' Union will confer with Commissioner of Labor Wright about the strike.

Some of the mines in the anthracite region will be flooded as a result of the inefficiency of the non-union men.

The Daughters of the Confederacy adopted resolutions on the death of D. Palmer.

Life.

The poet's exclamation: "O Life! I feel thee bounding in my veins," is a joyous one. Persons that can rarely or never make it, in honesty to themselves, are among the most unfortunate. They do not live, but exist; for to live implies more than to be. To live is to be well and strong—to arise feeling equal to the ordinary duties of the day, and to retire not overcome by them—to feel life bounding in the veins. A medicine that has made thousands of people, men and women, well and strong, has accomplished a great work, bestowing the richest blessings, and that medicine is Hood's Sarsaparilla. The weak, run-down, or debilitated, from any cause, should not fail to take it. It builds up the whole system, changes existence into life, and makes life more abounding. We are glad to say these words in its favor to the readers of our columns.

DOES IT STAND TO REASON that Perry Davis' Painkiller could have held public confidence for 60 years unless it really did cure diarrhœa, cholera morbus and all similar troubles so common and so dangerous in hot weather?

Summer Tourist Tickets

To all Summer resorts reached by the Queen and Crescent Route will be sold, commencing June 1, at low rates for the round trip, and carrying return limit of Sept 30, 1902.

The Summer schedules are nearly all now in operation, a few additional facilities to be added by connecting lines on June 1 and June 8 when Summer travel will be in full swing.

The Asheville service, including sleeper from Birmingham, which is attached to train leaving New Orleans at 7:30 P. M., will run daily, commencing June 8.

The dining-car service of the Queen and Crescent Route is maintaining its reputation for excellence, and no effort is spared to make the Summer trip via this splendidly equipped line a thoroughly enjoyable journey.

Brook Trout Fishing.

The trout fishing in the stocked streams of the Sapphire Country of North Carolina is at its best.

The splendid new hotels of the Toxaway Company afford accommodations which are thoroughly up to date.

The scenery is not surpassed by any mountainous section of the country.

Summer tourist tickets to Brevard and Toxaway, N. C., on sale at all principal stations on the Queen and Crescent System.

Interchangeable Mileage.

Effective June 1, 1902, the Interchangeable Mileage Credit System of the Western Passenger Association (the Red Book) will become operative on the Mobile and Ohio railroad between stations north of the Ohio river (St Louis to Cairo, inclusive).

"Potatoes."

We once heard of a man who ate potatoes for breakfast, but at lunch his wife always gave him a nice dish of potatoes, while for dinner the dear woman thought he would enjoy nothing more than a good square meal of potatoes.

This poor man died.

My dear madam, have mercy on the poor man who has to eat potatoes all the time; give him a change. Order a "New Orleans Cook Book." It is full of the best recipes by the best cooks of this Southland—95 pages—and was designed to be serviceable. Send twenty cents in stamps to the ADVOCATE office, and secure one of these valuable books before the limited supply is exhausted.

Let the preachers answer fully in writing all queries under Ques. 18, and let there be no exceptions under Ques. 19. The pastors will greatly oblige me by seeing that Ques. 20 be satisfactorily answered by having all books conform to the Discipline. And let us all pray for revivals which shall add many souls to each pastoral charge in the district. See Matt. xviii, 19! A thousand souls for Christ, and all collections in full."
